HUMOROUS.

"I have a lot of sense," "How does she show it?" "She never permits herself to appear more intelligent than the man who is talking to her." Chicago Record.

"You see," Mack—"What do you think of Scribble's new book?" "Robbins—"I haven't formed an opinion."—"You must have been reading the criticisms."—Crawford.

"I know it is that the jailor of the flat is such an automaton?" "Grinshaw—"I suppose so."—"You are wrong, he gets very glib on the ground floor."—Judge.

"Point of View."—"Biker, you ought to be ashamed to wear such good clothes."—"So you are so good?"—"No; you ought to be proud to lend money to a man who wears such good clothes."—Crawford.

"Can you support my daughter in the style to which she is accustomed?" asked the father. "Pretty nearly," replied the mother. "Of course I can't keep her in her former luxuries I have given her forever."—Harper's Bazar.

"Yes," remarked Satan, firmly, "I would rather yield something than have my theology man resign myself into the clutches of any coal trust." Accordingly he gave orders to have gasoline stoves substituted for the radiators in his household.

"Happened to see your wife on a wheel yesterday. If I remember, I heard you declare you would never let her go to ride."—"Yes, I know, but she had a chance to trade off her pig dog for a wheel and I thought I would choose the least evil."—Indianapolis Journal.

"Did you attend the big meeting at Old City Hall last night?" asked one Pittsburgher of another. "No," replied the other. "Well, my name was on the list of vice presidents, and I knew that if all those men were there I would not be able to get in the hall."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegram.

WHEN PAWPAWS ARE RIPE.

The Golden Rule as Found in an Indiana Thicket. An alluvial forest with a deep leaf mold and somewhat alluvial, in which the tree chooses to grow; and it would be overwhelmed. I find the forest is composed of maple, plane, tulip and maple on the flats and close to brook sides.

There is a damp, rich, muddy soil, and a thick carpet of such a forest, you may distinguish the atmosphere dear to the pawpaw. Here the woodthrush, the muse of ornamental groves, finds a more restrained interval, and all around chatter ground squirrels and nut-crackers. On the hillside near by the cyprus, in the season, flutters the rose-purple reeve, there, too, the black hawk ripens its flat, shining berries of leucine color.

Get out your bicycle for a six-mile spin into the Sugar creek hills. We will take the Ballinacree road and pedal directly toward the Llevelen neighborhood. The road is a narrow one, but of where clumps of Asimina triloba dance down a gentle slope bordering the brook called Indian creek.

Yonder is the wood. A high barred roof of green, it is with not an outside gate to let us through. Well, hang up the wheels in this wadi-coppe and I'll show you how to beat the black. Take your coat, so hang it over the top wire beside the post and scramble over where the coat covers the points. It is a little trick, but fairly easy.

Now we are light-hearted. We may take all we want and welcome. Like two schoolboys, away we scamper, and what a downhill of odoriferous fruit we find. Grapes, huckleberries, brown and yellow, the heavy custard apples above the ground in some places, while a few of the clusters sit high on the boughs. First we eat our fill, then we cram our haversacks full of the choicest specimens.

SEALED HER OWN DOOM.

Havenge upon the Woman Who Brightened His Earthly Happiness. The evidence was indisputable. Smithson had killed the chambermaid who took charge of his rooms in the big bachelor apartment house where he lived. The deed was done in the heat of anger, it is true, yet when it was all over and Smithson felt the cold clasp of the iron handcuffs upon his wrists he seemed to take the matter in his own hand.

The judge turned to Smithson in a perfunctory way and asked if he desired to take the matter in his own hand. The jury yawned wearily. A man accused of murder too often sounds his own death-knell when he takes the stand in his own behalf. The court and spectators felt that Smithson's doom was sealed.

"My name is Algernon Smithson," began the prisoner, "and what I have to say is merely a confession. I make no defense. My provocation, however, was great." "That is all right," said the judge.

Silence filled the courtroom, broken by nothing. "The engaged apartments," he continued, "that I finished the year, and proceeded to furnish them according to the dictates of my own taste. Then this woman came into my life. She was a chambermaid in a hotel, and she was making a thin wash of green, and the Indian corn stands in conical shapes of primly ranged. Many-colored growth of clover, while flocks of albert snip the blue grass."

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

The heredity of genius is illustrated by the Harvard senior class election, in which the son of the late Secretary Washburn at Yale and the son of Joseph H. Choate as poet.

A Yale Alumni association has been formed at Portland, Ore., with Robert Platt as president, Henry F. Connor as secretary, and an executive committee composed of the two men mentioned and Dr. J. W. Hill.

There is considerable interest in the appointment of Rev. C. H. Rice to the pastorate of the old Congregational church in Stockbridge, Mass., on account of the new minister's personality, for he is fresh from Bowdoin and Andover seminaries and only 25 years old, but because it was in his parish that Jonathan Edwards preached before he went to Princeton, and David Dudley Field before his sons had eclipsed his own generous fame.

About $400,000 was bequeathed to the Church of England and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel by the late Alfred Marriott, of Scarborough, Mirfield, Yorkshire. The testator directs that the money shall be devoted towards the erection of churches in the poorest and most neglected parishes of the metropolis or in foreign parts, or in ending and enlarging hospitals or refuges for orphan children of fallen women.

Dr. Creighton, the new bishop of London, has a keen sense of humor. Some time ago when he was making a visitation of his diocese, he found that he was entertained in an old manor-house, and slept in a room supposed to be haunted by a ghost. The next day the bishop was asked whether he had seen the ghost. "Yes," he replied, with great solemnity. "But I have had my spirits in full view, and I don't see you again." On being further interrogated as to what he had done, the bishop said: "The ghost instantly vanished when I asked for a subscription toward the restoration of Peterborough cathedral."

A writer in Goodwill says that Tom Mann once accused the clergy of not sympathizing with the poor. Bishop Benson hearing of this invited him to Lambeth and taxed him with it. Going up to the bookshelf, he took down a book and said: "I don't see you again." "What do you think of it?" "That's all right," said Tom Mann; "who wrote it?" "I did," said the archbishop, somewhat triumphantly, presenting him with the book. The book was "Christ and His Times," and the passage which the archbishop read was from the chapter on "Suffering Populations." Tom Mann often made use of the book at social meetings.

Physical and Ethnological Conditions of the Wild Regions Over the Claims to Which the American Explorers Nearly Went to War.

(Special Journalist's Letter.) The "Beyond Mountains" of the "Arabian Nights" indicates a phase of national life through which every country has passed in its journey toward development and civilization.

The fauna of this region is also peculiar and interesting, as may be seen by consulting my work on South American natural history. But there are still many species that the naturalists have not come across, especially among the lizards, moths and beetles.

The countless tributaries of the great feeders of the Orinoco and Amazon, interlace and overlap in bewildering confusion. Moreover, probably as a result of the depressions above mentioned, they frequently infiltrate and flow one into another in natural canals called by the Indians "Itaboco."

SENATORS SPIN YARNS.

How Jones, of Nevada, Got Even with Senator Brice.

Amusing Experience of a Buffalo Man in Bologna—How Ben Butler Dues Upon a Time Averred a Catastrophe.

(Special Washington Letter.) It was a dull day in the senate, and the statesmen were in a story-telling mood in the clock room.

"I want a chance to tell what I heard about Brice in Paris. I was coming from the Brussels meeting," declared Senator Allison and Senator Morgan preceded me through Paris, and I was all alone in my hotel.

"So, you see, that the statesmen are given such a chaffing each other at times, just as the boys chaff each other at school. As has been said before, men are only boys grown old. Hearts don't change much, after all."

"Speaking of Europe," said Senator Culom, of Illinois, "reminds me of a story Ben Ingersoll used to tell just after the close of the civil war. Col. Bob went to Europe for a summer trip and while riding in an English compartment he was tackled by a young bar tender who affected to know all about America."

Ingersoll replied: "No, nor an Englishman either. It could help it." Senator Sherman told of a Col. Martlett of Cincinnati, who was obliged to remove his Loyol Legion button while he was in Europe, because it was taken as an indication of royal favor.

"I was for once visited by her first in those far-off days, before they had come to this country," he said. "That could build up my case."

to leave town, and wherever he went afterwards he registered as Thomas Thompson, of Boston. Only by listing his name as also could he afford to "do" Europe.

"Your story about Ingersoll," said Senator Perkins, of California, "reminds me of an American gentleman who was recently at a dinner party in London, and had a rather curious experience. There was also present an extremely aristocratic but insular Briton, with that large contempt for things American that even today a few Englishmen display."

"It is about as large as England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Switzerland, Portugal and Greece combined. It became at once evident that the questioner not only disbelieved the statement, but was indignant at what he regarded an attempt to puff him. Indeed, after the speaker complained to the host about the ill-breeding of the American in trying to hold up to ridicule an English gentleman."

Senator Lodge, who just came into the cloak room, and had not heard the stories of Europe, told a good story about Ben Butler. As one time Ben Butler, then living in Lowell, was chairman of a meeting held in the town hall.

"I informed him," continued Jones, "that I was indeed a member of the United States senate, but that all members of that body were asked to leave the room, nor all of them possessed of money to bloom. I told him that fortunately there was but one Senator Jones, and that he gave away money to make himself popular in spite of his homeliness."

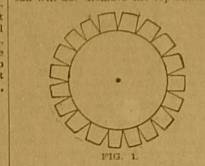

"Instancing an Exception. "At any rate, it pays to be polite and accommodating." "No always. In leaving a train the other morning I saw a lady of my acquaintance had left an umbrella in her seat. In my haste to pick it up and run after her to restore it I left my gold-headed cane behind, and I'm on $0.75 on the transaction."—Chicago Tribune.

"Some people venture to believe that it is wiser to say 'I don't think' than 'I am sure' in most cases, it isn't wiser at all. It merely a comical utterance of truth."—Washington Star.

AN AMUSING DEVICE.

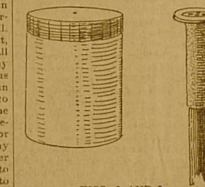

How Any Bright Boy Can Construct a Toy Lozenge.

It is a very easy matter to make a lozenge, that is a toy that will closely imitate the sound made by a lozenge, and the materials needed are very simple.

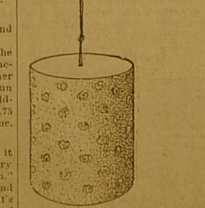

Soak the parchment in warm water for a few minutes, then stretch and glue it fast to one end of the cylinder, holding the glued ends down with linen thread wound tightly around the box over the ends as shown in Fig. 2.

The threads being the glue in keeping the parchment firmly fastened to the tin, and relieve the glued ends from excessive strain. When the parchment is dry it will be tightly stretched like the head of a drum.

Next whittle out a round stick six inches long and a quarter of an inch in thickness; to the end fasten a small button with two feet of three small steel wire nails, as shown in Fig. 3.

Now obtain several strong horse hairs, and form a loop at one end of them by tying a knot three-quarters of an inch from the end. This loop is slipped over the resin end of the stick, and will be prevented from working off by the button. The other ends of the horse hair are to be passed through a small hole made in the center of the parchment head, and through a small button or piece of cardboard, the ends being tied in a large knot to prevent their pulling through again. The finished lozenge will then appear as in the illustration.

THE LOZENGE.

To make it sing grasp the stick in one hand and swing the cylinder about it. This will cause it to give out a sound similar to that produced by a large lozenge in full flight, and the faster it is revolved the louder it will sing.

—We hope our citizens will encourage the enterprise in all ways possible.

—Rush City seems to have some bad people in their village, who are from Boston, and up the road. Last Monday morning at 5 o'clock fire was discovered in the warehouse of Carl Ramberg, which is situated about one and a half miles north of this store. The wind was from the south, and by the aid of the fire department was saved with only a very slight burning.

—E. P. Sullivan, traveling agent for the McCormick Harvester company, was in this village and surrounding country on Tuesday last, strengthening up with the farmers. Mr. Sullivan says that the company's sales in this county are increasing each year, and says that Adam Diekmann is doing good work as their agent.

—Mr. C. M. Dixon, a well known merchant of Pleasant Ridge, Fulton county, Pa., has a little girl who is frequently troubled with the cough, but when the first symptom appears, his wife gives her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which always affords prompt relief. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. Y. Breckenridge.

—Don't be persuaded into buying liniments without reputation or merit—Chamberlain's Pain Balm costs no more, and its merits have been proven by a test of many years. Such letters as the following from L. G. Bagley, Husonene, Cal., are constantly being received: "The best remedy for pain I have ever used is Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and I say so after having used it in my family for several years." It cures rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. For sale by J. Y. Breckenridge.

—Mrs. O. S. Barlow, of Waterville, Kansas, came up from Taylor Falls where she has been visiting her daughter Mrs. E. J. Gottry last Saturday, and spent several days visiting at the residence of her uncle, Thomas Dies.

—Henry F. Rath informed a correspondent of this paper that he had purchased over two hundred and fifty thousand feet of logs, besides those bought by Don & Maxwell, A. E. Webber, Tuesday was the best day of the season, he having bought twenty thousand feet.

—We were informed by Clerk of the Court, Edith that the adjourned term of Court will be held the 12th of next month, this giving those that want to get out their accounts papers one more chance before the spring session. All foreigners should bear in mind that they can't vote unless they have their second papers.

—On last Sunday afternoon Jas. W. Smith received a telegram announcing the death of his son Calvin, of Blomington, Prairie, in Cass county. Mr. Smith took Monday morning's early train for the above named place. The Pioneer extends its sympathy to the bereaved family.

—Mr. Cyrus Chase and wife, Edward Chase, of Baring, Maine, are visiting friends and relatives here. They spent some time in New Mexico, in search of health, before coming here. Mr. Chase thinks the climate of Minnesota much better for weak lungs than that of Mexico. They will remain here until spring.

—Mrs. Chase is a brother-in-law of Mrs. J. E. Stone and Hon. L. H. McKusick, of this place.

—On Saturday evening last there was a family reunion at the residence of Henry Brandes in this place all of the children one son-in-law and one daughter-in-law being present. The following are those that were present: Mrs. John Bartlett and two children, of North St. Paul; Emil and wife, of North Branch; Will Simons, wife and son, of Mora; Alvina, of Chicago, and the rest of the children live in this place. It has been some years since the whole family have been together. The prospect with the many friends of the family hope that they will all live to see a great many more such gatherings.

—Miss May Hurley, daughter of James Hurley and Miss Caroline Perkins, daughter of A. G. Perkins, are at home on their Christmas vacation. The young ladies have been attending school at the well known Villa Maria Academy, conducted by the Ursuline Nuns at Frontenac, Minnesota. They express themselves as delighted with the Academy, where they were general favorites, being nicknamed, "The Sunbeams."

—The following are very high class standers: Miss L. Connor, A. Howard, a young lady who is now a missionary in China. This lady was a personal friend of Dr. E. E. Barnum of this place, and graduated from the medical department of Ann Arbor University in his class. It is pleasing to note that this account given of this young lady's noble achievements through her own personal effort is in every respect true, and we hope that the account given will inspire many of our young readers to put forth their best endeavors to better their own condition. Honest endeavor, persistent effort and untiring zeal will win in any field.

A HOODED DOLLAR.

Some genius has discovered that the silver dollar is hooded, because so many dieters can be figured in its angles up. However, the thirteen superstitious will not keep people from taking them. The Saint Paul & Duluth will continue to accept them from the many patrons whose loyalty has demonstrated for many years the popularity of the Duluth Short Line. This line is the favorite route between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, West Superior, Stillwater, Taylor Falls, and other points, and has always enjoyed that reputation. It is thoroughly up to date in everything, and especially those things which add most to the comfort of the traveling public. Modern equipment, fast trains, convenient hours, smooth roadbed, handsome terminals, close connections, obliging employees—these are what have made it a favorite, and it keeps its patrons. The man who takes the Duluth Short Line always gets the best, and is satisfied. Ticket agents are always glad to provide inquirers with maps, folders, circulars etc., or they may be obtained by writing direct to W. A. Russell, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

The publishers of the St. Paul Weekly Dispatch have just favored us with a copy of their annual premium supplement. Some of the others which they make are simply wonderful. Articles which would cost more than the subscription price of the paper are given free with a year's subscription. There is something of interest in it for every member of every family.

The subscription price of the Weekly Dispatch is but 75 cents per annum, and it is the largest and best weekly paper published in Minnesota, consisting of from ten to sixteen pages per week.

Send postal card for sample copy of paper and premium supplement to the Weekly Dispatch, St. Paul, Minn.

DISEASES OF THE SKIN.

The intense itching and stinging incident to eczema, tetter, salt-rheum, and other diseases of the skin is instantly relieved by applying Chamberlain's Itch and Pain Ointment. Many very bad cases have been cured by its use. It is equally efficient for itching piles and a favorite remedy for sun-burn, chapped hands, chafed blisters, frost-bites, and chronic sore eyes. For sale by druggists at 25 cents per box.

Try Dr. Cad's Condition Powders, they prevent what a horse needs when it can't feed. Keeps blood purifier and ventilator.
