WHAT WILL BE THE END?

The Eastern Question May Be Near Its Solution.

Should Greece Prostet in Stirring Up
Strife in Macedonia the Great Powers Would be Compelled to Take Steps.

[Special Letter.]

To speak of war may be the ultimate outcome of the present misunderstanding between Greece and the great European powers would be idle speculation. Every day may bring with it developments as disastrous to the Hellenic kingdom as to the rest of Europe. The Greeks are practical men who have looked beyond the shadow of a doubt that the so-called European "concert" is an iridescent dream. The people of Italy, for instance, are so far in favor of the Greeks that the Italian nation could not live a fortnight should it attempt to take sides against the army of liberation in Crete. Public opinion in Great Britain and France is also with the Greeks who, standing alone and unassisted, risked their personal safety in their persecuted brethren in Candia, under the leadership of Prince George of Greece.

Admitting, for the sake of argument, that Greece was set upon by the combined forces of the great powers, and more for the assassination of the naturally wealthy island than for the sufferings of its inhabitants, set in the treaty of Berlin providing extension of the guarantees of 1860. The Turkish representatives promised faithfully to carry out the promises were reluctantly done, but the promises were reluctantly broken, and ever since 1880 the Cretans have struggled for liberty.

It is not generally understood that, in a measure, the warfare in Crete has been a fratricidal struggle. The Turks except perhaps in a few instances, of the lighter, have been done by the "Ottomans," who are renegade Christians. Three-fourths of the native Cretans are communists of the Greek church, the other fourth have been Moslems. Most Mohammedans in Crete have time and again pointed out the wonderful "adhesiveness" and fanaticism of Moslemism. To those must be attributed the success of the minorities in their efforts to secure independence and why these misguided Cretans were encouraged by their spiritual advisers to strike blows for the prophet and their religion they became fiends who looked upon the Christians as devils. The Moslem pashas in the eyes and nostrils of Allah. The Christians, on the other hand, have been divided into many factions, each recognizing its own petty leader and neglecting the welfare of the entire nation. In fact, with the arrival of the Greek troops a new spirit came into the land, and every Christian in Crete now yearns for union with the Aquatic Poachers Kill Fish with Stolen Dynamite.

The Treatment of Persons Having Private Claims Against Uncle Sam Reduces No Credit on Congress.

[Special Washington Letter.]

There is enough dynamite stored within a stone's throw of Georgetown to blow up half a dozen cities. This dangerous explosive is used in the blasting operations of stone quarries. Potomac limestone is the principal rock of the Potowmack from near the Aqueduct bridge and also for blasting into the solid masses of rock which form the site of the new union depot.

In the course of the operations in a number of quarry, one-story frame structures, which dot the pictureque slopes below the precipitous Potomac bluffs. These little buildings, like whitewashed sentinels, mark the location of the several quarry plants, the number of which increases, sending a small sum of money, have been pushed along under protest, but all of those claims which might perceptibly increase the total appropriations for this congress have been persistently referred to the judiciary.

To such an extent has this policy of ignoring the obligations of the government been carried that judgments of the court of claims are no longer paid. That is to say, the government, the government was created for the purpose of ascertaining the merits of certain claims and to report to congress whether they should be paid or repudiated.

But the policy of the management of the treasury has led to immense appropriations and makes everything subservient to a record for economy. As a consequence those who are unfortunate enough to be creditors of the government either abandon their just claims or expect to begin a period of lobbying and waiting which may continue indefinitely.

Some congressmen have persistently called attention to the delinquency of the government in this regard, but have been whipped into silence and are questioning following of leadership which shows to all claimants the futility of hoping for relief from congress.

On the day before the bill was taken up for consideration, Mr. Walker, of Massachusetts, declared that a certain obnoxious bill for the promotion and retirement of a hospital steward as a second lieutenant of cavalry had been introduced at the request of the censors to prevent the consideration of notorious bills. He said:

"This case is put here under the peculiar circumstances which exist in order that the public may be made to men aware of the robbery of their country by the government of the United States; their just claims have been reported favorably and unanimously by the committee to whom this duty is assigned, and the bill has passed the house, and will be discussed the day after tomorrow. Women may still continue to haunt the halls of congress in the hope that it will deal justly with their fathers' and husbands' private claims to money lost in the service of their country, and agrees to this house and the leaders to put in such claims as this, to be discussed all day, so that these other claims shall not be considered."

Referring to Mr. Walker's remarks, the Speaker of the Senate said:

"I am glad to see a reversal going on among gentlemen on the other side of the house. I am glad to see that the scales have been stricken from their eyes, and that they have begun to see that they are robbing the public and upon the taxpayers of this country."

Mr. Mahon, of Pennsylvania, said: "I want to say about this court of claims. That this court, I think, claims to be a state of accountability, a stricter compliance with the rules of evidence than any other court in the United States. I say, either you ought to stand by the court and pay the judgment of the court, or you ought to stand by your court. My experience is that the greatest robber in this country is the nation itself. Our government is continually robbing private citizens of their property and refusing to reimburse them. Now, I say that the time

FISHING WITH DYNAMITE.

They each contain from a few sticks to a ton of dynamite, enough, in the aggregate, should it explode, to dislodge the upper Potomac, and debruge Georgetown with masses of rock and debris. The blasting purposes, however, only a few ounces of dynamite are used at a time.

From these wooden barges along the Potomac river, the dynamite sticks are stored, certain fishermen, who cannot under the law employ gill nets, have been stealing sticks of dynamite and fuses, and nearly every night they go out into the stream, and explode sticks of dynamite in the water, killing vast numbers of fish by concussion. The sticks are weighted, a lighted wick is placed in the fuse, and when the explosion starts, the fishermen quickly get away from the spot. In a few moments there is a suppressed sound, like distant thunder, and a great gill of running water rises above the surface.

When the aquatic poachers return to the center of the river and gather to the dead and dying fish, which float to the surface in large numbers.

The men heard the roar of the explosion which was followed by a crackling grabbed at lightning," said a Georgetown policeman, "but these fishermen who steal dynamite will compare with him in point of nerve." Commodore Sutton with his party went to the scene of the "fishing" and was valiantly trying to catch the fishermen who are depopulating the waters of the upper river of their game fish by means of dynamite.

The men who work about dynamite are called dynamite men, and are expert in handling the treacherous stuff. Seven fatal explosions have already occurred, and a deep hole in the earth opposite the island called "Three Sisters" marks the spot where one of these experiments of blasting lost his life last year. He was warning "chilled" dynamite at a bonfire, when a stick of the giant explosive ignited, blowing him skyward and incinerating him in a

The men engaged in blasting at the site of the Union depot in Georgetown are only allowed to bring dynamite on the Virginia side sufficient for one day's work. They are usually stored in a brick kiln on the Agueda bridge, the street was paved with cobblestones. The horses ran furiously and it seemed miraculous that no explosion occurred, when dynamite was exploded in a wagon and went off, but he was able to get away from his dangerous load. The horses ran fully half a mile and stopped at their own volition on the Agueda bridge. As they ran around the wagons, the horses were stampeded and ran amuck, trampling against the iron railing. An explosion at that point would have wrecked the bridge and killed many people.

These bills have probably never been a session of congress that has given greater emphasis to the assertion that it is impossible to collect even a just claim against the government than the one now approaching a close. A few pennies less have been snatched through cut-throat, and an extremely limited has come for this congress either to pay these findings of the court of claims or to abolish that court and let the people of this country know that congress does not propose to pay their claims whether they are found to be just or not.

"These bills that we now have in the committee on war claims, those claims, are about 1,200 in number. They do not accumulate. They come in congress after congress. The bills are printed, and the committees in the senate and house of representatives, whereby they go and investigate, and then they have spent about $34,000 in this congress for printing for this and other committees. The congressional printing bills are enormous, and cause a great expense.

And thus the discussion continued until the hour of adjournment, without a vote having been taken on a single bill. The dear people have no idea of the amount of money that is spent in the senate and house of representatives, whereby the do-nothing policy is constantly pursued. As a matter of fact it may be truthfully said that a large majority of the people of this country, and of the people care for little other than their own amusement and grandeur, and they legislate from purely or impurely selfish motives in all cases. This is the naked truth, although it may not be palatable to the statesmen concerning whom it is told.

Not a single ship bearing the United States flag passed through the Suez canal last year, according to the report of the consul at Cairo, although the traffic aggregated nearly $10,000,000. Two-thirds of the vessels using the waterways were British.

The number of persons in the United Kingdom who speak English and who use Gaelic as their native language, though constantly decreasing, is much larger than is commonly supposed. It includes 600,000 in Ireland, 350,000 in Wales and 239,000 in Scotland.

Man is the only animal that has a nose or chin. Horses have faces that are round; swine have snouts, and elephants trunks; lions have vast smelling organs; but none of them anything that can be separated from their faces and called a nose. Is it even more true of the chimp, which is particularly human?

The island on which the Girard lighthouse stands lies nine miles off the coast of France, and is reported to be the smallest inhabited island on the globe. At low water it is 30 feet in diameter; at high water the lighthouse, whose diameter at the base is 284 feet, completely covers it. It is inhabited by three persons.

On the occasion of the semi-centennial anniversary of Girard college, public school, and university, a statue of Phenix Girard will be unveiled. The statue will be one of the heroic size. Girard was fairly diminutive. The statue stands on a pedestal of granite nine feet high, and the figure is to be of the same size. Mr. J. Massey Rhind is the artist.

The little town of Nassau, in Sweden, has a female population of 150 strong, in its fire brigade. The water supply of the village consists simply of four great tubs, and it is the duty of the women "fremen" to keep these full in time of fire. These stand in two convenient places from the tubs to the lake, about three streets away, one lane passing the full buckets and the other sending them back.

A movement is on foot in Kansas to induce the legislature to order a marble bust of Charles Robinson, the first governor of the Sunflower state, and place it in the chapel of the State university in Lawrence. Only a bust is asked for, as Robinson went to Kansas in 1854, and did much in securing homes for the free-state emigrants who went from New England, and he has often been called "the father of Kansas."

Mr. Edward Wrenbury, the noted mountaineer, has earned the alpenstock for more than 30 years, and has scaled Chimborazo and the Matterhorn, besides hundreds of lesser peaks, and, although he had numberless thumps and falls, and once fell 1,000 feet, he never fractured a limb or sustained any serious injury. He did, however, tumble down a flight of stairs in England and fractured his collar bone.

Prov. Munn, of the university of Berlin, famous for his discoveries in the physiology of the brain, says that it is a great mistake to suppose that gymnastic exercises are suited between the hours rest the pupils. On the contrary, he says, they still more fatigue the brain, while our bodies are absolutely fatigued. If both studies and gymnastics are to be indulged in on the same day, they should be separated by intervals of rest.

The culture of olives in California has increased so rapidly that the state has now a monopoly of the market of this country. The crop last year netted $100,000 to the state, and in 1871, when the estimated output will be $3,000,000. The reason for the expected great increase is that a great number of orchards bear this year for the first time. It takes seven years to bring up a tree, and the olive bearing. Properly tended the trees continue to produce for centuries.

This paper used in making both of Edward's notes is the despair of connoisseurs. It is thicker in the upper left-hand corner, to enable it to retain a brighter impression of the vignette there, and it is also thicker in the lower right-hand corner, to hold the center and beneath the figures at the ends of the notes. Counterfeits have not been able to cope with this difficulty, and in the best imitations of the notes the paper has always been of the same thickness throughout.

The definite announcement has been made by Postmaster General Gary that the postmasters of the country have been directed to allow the four-year tenure-of-office policy for all postmasters. He stated that, except in a few cases removal for cause was required on some other ground, such as inefficiency or other instances of unsatisfactory conduct or administration of the office, all postmasters, four-inches as well as those of presidential appointment, would be allowed to serve out a term of four years.

Farm Poultry says that Isaac Willbur, of Little Compton, R. I., has the largest poultry farm in America. His flock numbers 100,000 to 150,000 doves of eggs a day. He keeps his fowls in the colony plan, housing about 40 in a house 16x10 or 12x12 feet each, and letting them range over the surrounding fields. He has 100 of these houses scattered over three or four lots. The food is loaded into a long wagon, which is driven about to each house in turn, the attendant feeding and gleaning at the doors. At the afternoon feeding eggs are collected.

Newport, Ky., March 22.—Scott Jackson and his mother, Mrs. Jackson, hanged yesterday for the murder of James Bailey, 1868, of Pearl Bryan. Jackson's body was cremated on Saturday night in Cincinnati, and the ashes were taken to Greencastle, Ind., by his mother.

SCOTT JACKSON.

Walling will be buried at Hamilton, O., where his mother lives.

On Saturday morning, February 1, 1868, a man, identified as Scott Jackson, was found on the farm of John H. Lock near the edge of the Forest Park, just south of Newport, Ky. No mark of identification could be discovered, and no cause of death could be ascertained. The body was taken to the undertakers in Newport and a doctor's certificate was issued. The dead woman's name was stamped "Lewis and Day, H. Greencale, Ind." With that the coroner's inquest was adjourned.

The body was buried in a shallow grave.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Both Bodies Are in Good Working Order.

Gossip Letters Giving in Detail the More Important Work of the Senate and House of Representatives.

St. Paul, March 17.—Pan one more up in the senate to the credit of the house. It is now in session.

At the session yesterday Senator Miller called up his resolution for the appointment of a committee of seven to ascertain whether the present asylum cannot be enlarged sufficiently to meet the needs of the insane, and that the fourth asylum for a time, of course, the friends of Hastings were up in arms in opposition, while the Anoka contingent, feeling it was in the interest of the whole to make it easy for them, favored the scheme. The upshot of a lengthy debate was that the resolution was passed, but the work was assigned to the regular committee on state hospitals instead of a special committee. This was done by a vote of 31 to 21, which indicates that Hastings' strength has been reduced.

One of the bills introduced provides for the removal of the law requiring fees to be paid for the filing of articles of incorporation. When the senate adjourned there was an open meeting in the chamber of the state auditor to the newspaper representatives relative to the proposed repeal of the liberal law of 1887. The Publishers' Association of the Twin Cities and the State Editorial association were represented by several members in opposition to the proposed repeal.

The contention in the house yesterday was that the bill was introduced on the road and bridge fund bill, and after it had been introduced making it impossible for roads and bridges, to an amount which cannot be provided for in the next four years. There is only $39,000 in the fund, and more than $100,000 will be required to meet the bills now pending. In consequence a resolution was offered apportioning the sections of the state where the funds available shall be expended, and also the amount to be expended in each section. After debating nearly all the forenoon on this topic the resolution was withdrawn, and the house found itself emerging from the same in a dead lock. One of the accomplishments of business was the passage of a resolution forbidding the further use of the house for lectures or phonograph records.

The farmers were brought in from the state to support the bill imposing a fine of $10 to $50 for selling unwholesome milk. For falsely branding cheese a fine of from $25 to $50 is imposed.

The senate passed three bills and introduced ten. The house passed four bills, killed three and introduced eleven.

St. Paul, March 18.—The scale or no scale. That was the question which agitated the senate yesterday. The issue in question is known as the San Jose, Cal., product and the bill in question is to prevent its introduction and spread in Minnesota. In California the scale measure one of the most popular bills which concerns fruit growers. The opponents of the bill claimed it was waywardly in the interest of nurserymen. After two hours' debate it was recommended to pass by 19 to 13, but it is 9 to 13 in the senate.

Several quite important bills came into the senate. One increases the tax on the gross earnings of insurance companies doing business in the state from one cent to one and one-half percent on their gross earnings. The teachers' pension bill was a third measure which will attract a good deal of attention. The fund will be increased to a point per cent on the salaries of teachers. To obtain a pension a teacher must have served 20 years, and 13 years of that time in the place where the pension is to be paid. The highest pension allowed is $500 per annum.

A new state printing law was also brought in. It abolished the present classes under which the printing is done, and established a new class to make the specifications and advertise for bids. Among the bills passed was the one appropriating $5,000 for the dedication of the Gettysburg monument to the First Minnesota.

The house showed its good will for Speaker Jones by presenting him with a large oil painting of himself. He accepted with thanks.

The printing bill lacked two votes of passing in the house. It has been one of the most agitated bills of the session, and has been killed and resurrected several times. It looks as though it will not be passed.

The bill extending the terms of county auditors to four years produced a long debate, and while it was allowed to go to the calendar for passage or rejection, it was not voted upon. There were eight motions of passage. Three bills were passed by the one of importance providing for free-text books in the schools.

St. Paul, March 19.—The bill regulating state road and highway departments, the subject of so much debate in the senate yesterday. The bill authorizes the board to increase, but not to decrease the assessments made by the county commissioners along effectual roads, and to increase the interest on the same, allowing them to increase as assessment as well, but it failed and the bill was recommended to pass with a proviso that a party should have a hearing before any assessment is made.

Rep. Knudson endeavored to resurrect his bill making village license $1,000, but failed. The bill was on the table very hard.

The judiciary committee gave a hearing to a bill to take some large amounts of monies from the leading cities in the state who appeared in opposition to the proposed anti-trust law. They claimed it would not reach the trusts, but would deal with monies used in the state. Nothing was said.

Past and Minneapolis united in favor of allowing the capital commission to issue $200,000 in certificates of indebtedness, the bill was laid over for further consideration. As far as the committee on insane hospitals has gotten, the evidence is that a fourth asylum is necessary.

The Twin City Jockey club, having expense of $60,000 for the grain elevator, was unable to get a bill through the state fair grounds, thought it was hardly fair when the legislature two years ago passed a law forbidding pool selling. A bill was accordingly introduced in the house, the result of this prohibition, and of 1886, and it was recommended to pass, but the house reconsidered the recommendation yesterday, and now the bill is likely to be killed. The bill was introduced by an organization to cooperate to maintain pools, and the bill was introduced in the fourth asylum for a time, of course, the friends of Hastings were up in arms in opposition, while the Anoka contingent, feeling it was in the interest of the whole to make it easy for them, favored the scheme. St. Paul, March 20.—The legislative session was over.

Secretary of State, Wilson, will experiment with sugar beets in the state. The director of the state experiment station at St. Anthony Park will have charge of the distribution of the seeds. A farmer who wants to have furnished with a sufficient quantity for the purpose. Not more than five farmers in each county will be selected to grow the stock. The secretary of state will have charge of the experiment, a desire has cropped out to have the sugar beets and other data, and as soon as these reports are received the seed will be ready for distribution.

Suffocation.

Emil Lund, a laborer employed at the woodwork elevator at Minneapolis, was suffocated when he fell into a bin. It was in the province of his duties to go down into a bran bin to clear the flues whenever they become clogged. The day of his death he was called upon to attend to a flue, and he went down into the bran bin. In the bran, in the meantime, continued to run from above into the bin. Lund stepped off the ladder and sank in the soft sand, and was unable to extricate himself. Another workman witnessed the accident, but the running sand could not be stopped in time to prevent Lund from meeting his death by suffocation.

Nearly Lost His Ear.

Charles E. McAvoy, a small petrifier at St. Paul, had his ear almost severed at his head by a dog. The dog is known as a pet about the place, and he always been on friendly terms with McAvoy. The dog was sleeping when McAvoy, who was wearing a coat, stepped over by that coming from above. Another workman witnessed the accident, but the running sand could not be stopped in time to prevent Lund from meeting his death by suffocation.

St. Paul, March 21.—Saturday was not a strong day in the senate for the constitutional giving up of the right to tax sleeping and dining room car passengers.

A bill was also passed forbidding the organization of insurance companies to insure against loss by burglars and robbers.

St. Paul, March 22.—Saturday was not a strong day in the senate for the constitutional giving up of the right to tax sleeping and dining room car passengers.

Two bills were introduced, one allowing newspapers to charge for publishing the heading and foot of tax lists, which heretofore have been printed on the side of the page, and another allowing the state board of equalization to increase but forbidding them to decrease assessments.

Property owners who want their assessment reduced can no longer appeal to the state board. If this bill goes into effect it will be the first time in the history of the state that the board must adjust by the decision of the county officers.

A bill was also passed forbidding the organization of insurance companies to insure against loss by burglars and robbers.

A long standing feud between a Red Lake Indian named George Washington and a number of a band of Canadian Indians who are on a trail to Chief Moose Dang, culminated in murder of Bakune, a member of the visiting party.

The appointment of Spyreter Peterov to the Crookston land office is the result of the united support of Senator Fisher and Congressman Eddy. The latter is much pleased with the appointment.

The burned out people in East Grand Forks have let the contract for the erection of a brick rear wall. The first loss of the micaud block was satisfactorily settled by the insurance companies.

Ex-State Auditor Braden died at Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Braden went to California three years ago for the benefit of his health.

Fire at Walnut Grove destroyed the postoffice, a confectionery store and a saloon.

through an error of the enrolling clerk failed to become a law. This year a bill was introduced to the legislature by the grain elevators and was promptly rejected. In the senate it was introduced and passed. Saturday the senate bill reached a vote in the house and the bill was cut to $250, and passed. Saturday the bill cost $700 because a clerk made a mistake.

One of the bills introduced in the house forbids any kinetoscope or vimeo-scope of a prize fight in Minnesota. If this passes the Col. McCormick's bill prohibiting such a device will be stricken.

Relating to the letting of advertising space to the state fair grounds, thought it was hardly fair when the legislature two years ago passed a law forbidding pool selling. A bill was accordingly introduced in the house, the result of this prohibition, and of 1886, and it was recommended to pass, but the house reconsidered the recommendation yesterday, and now the bill is likely to be killed.

A highly interesting competition between a large number of new inventors has just been decided by a very distinguished Board of Awards, and a handsome cash prize and gold medal awarded as the result of the decision. For some time the patent firm of John Wedderburn & Co., of Washington, D. From Cripple Creek.

After the big fire in Cripple Creek I took a very severe cold, and tried many remedies without help, the cold only becoming more settled. After using three small bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, both the cough and the cold left me, and in this high altitude it takes a meritorious cough remedy to do any good.—G. B. —Rufus A. Hoyt, state agent of the humane society was a visitor in this place this week, he having been sent for to investigate the charge brought against Carl Trippier, for brutally beating his horse. He found the charge sufficient to warrant his arrest. He was taken before Judge Veenhoven, plead not guilty, asked for an attorney and the case was postponed until 7 o'clock Thursday evening. We will give the trial in full next week.

—The Burger Bros. saw mill has been shut down this week on account of not being able to get any water. During the rain that we had last week and the water having been drawn off for about two feet, caused the ice to settle, and the pipe through which they draw the water to the boiler, either got smashed so that no water could get through or else it was broken between the mill and the lake. The damage whatever it was repaired by Wednesday, and the mill started up and is now running full blast.

—On Tuesday evening a very jolly crowd of young people gathered at the home of Charles Gianville on the banks of Cross lake, and spent the evening in music and dancing. The music was furnished by M. Curry, on the violin, Lee Fairbanks, on the cornet, Morris Edwards, on the guitar and Charles Griffith on the organ. There was between twenty-five and thirty in attendance. At 12 o'clock a fine lunch was served, after which dancing was resumed and kept up until two o'clock when all departed for their homes having spent a very enjoyable evening. The occasion was a surprise on Mr. Gianville's eldest daughter Ella.

Diseases of the Grippe.

The greatest danger of La Grippe is of resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for La Grippe we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that this remedy is a certain preventive of that dread disease. It will effect a permanent cure in less time than any other treatment. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. Y. Breckenridge, Pine City, Minn.

ADJUSTING AFFAIRS.

BY GILBERT FORDYCE.

HAD I mixed with St. Croix, and we were now on our way to some uninteresting people who were giving a party. She was smiling, but the conversation had slackened; apparently we both possessed ample food for reflection. As we rattled over some stones St. Croix shouted in me:

"She'll see her to-night, Ingram!" I had returned from the country that morning and still deep in my thoughts, I replied:

"No such luck; she is 100 miles from town, and—"

I stopped abruptly as I caught a glimpse of his face. "I'm afraid you don't mean my observations," I continued, grasping the situation, "you have again decided that the feminine interest in my life should be centered in one."

"Ingrain old dog," he said, solemnly. "It's 'set' for me to find!" (I have heard many remarks made before under similar circumstances.)

"I sincerely trust it is!" I replied.

A good-looking, wealthy man, just 20, has no right to be unmarried.

"This has happened whilst I have been here," I added.

He nodded.

"And the maiden is—" I began.

St. Croix actually looked confused. "Well, she's hardly—" he said, awkwardly, "that is—of course, she's young—well, the fact is, she's a widow!"

I gazed at him reproachfully.

"Any—er—"

"No, no," he replied, hurriedly, "of course, she's only young herself. Why, I said she's only young herself. I said she was bound in India—she's never been to India."

"My dear St. Croix," I said, "these confidences remind me of the good old days."

"Ah," he replied, with a sigh, "this is no boyish flirtation!"

"By Jove!" he cried, as an idea struck him, "you two will get on capitalistically together. Having been both in India, you will be able to—"

"Chat about her husband?" I suggested.

St. Croix looked serious.

"Poor child!—but I am a companion—she must have been very unhappy during that time."

It is strange how men generally refer to their wives' first marriages in this way.

"We are admiringly situated," he continued, his face lighting up. "I am 30, she—well, I should say she is 25. A man should be a year or so older than his wife."

"Yes," I agreed, "she is very young for a widow."

"She is very young," replied St. Croix; "that's one reason why she should marry again!"

"True," I said. "How long has it been going on?"

Considered for a few minutes. "I first saw her," he said slowly, "at ten o'clock on nine on Monday last week!"

"My dear fellow!" I exclaimed, "you must hurry up matters, the lady will positively weary of the courtship!"

Just then the cab drew up with a jerk.

"Here we are," said St. Croix. "Jump out!"

After greeting our hosts we separated. Several people of my acquaintance were there, and I had to go through the usual number of duty dances. At last, however, I saw St. Croix coming towards me.

"Ingrain," he said, taking me by the arm, "come with me."

There is nobody so exacting as a man in love.

"She is waiting to be introduced to you," he said, "and I am making my way to the door. Here, we are in a quiet corner (for St. Croix is experienced in these matters), we found the lady."

"Mrs. Fordyce," said St. Croix, "allow me to—"

"Mrs. Fordyce!"

I looked at her, then burst out laughing.

"Dr. Ingram!" she exclaimed.

"You know me another?" cried St. Croix, with a playful look.

"Why," I said, "I have known Mrs. Fordyce since—"

"Yes, Dr. Ingram and I are quite old friends," she interrupted, with a glance at me.

I understood.

"That is all?" St. Croix said, heartily.

"And now we are," Mrs. Fordyce agreed with a smile.

The strains of a waltz came through the open doors. St. Croix looked at his programme.

"Bother!" he cried. "It's my dance with the daughter of the house. Will you kindly look after Mrs. Fordyce, Ingram?"

"I should be delighted," I replied, and hurried off.

As soon as he had disappeared I turned to Mrs. Fordyce.

"It's all very odd," I remarked.

"What?" she queried, "that you should turn out to be the friend Mr.

St. Croix has been talking to me about?"

"Smiled the quaintness of the whole matter seemed infinitely amusing to think that it is close upon me."

"No," I said, "that you should be the lady whose charms he has been describing to me."

She blushed; I gazed at her critically.

"For my word!" I exclaimed at length, "it is positively marvelous, to think, doctor," she interrupted.

"But, my dear Mrs. Fordyce, you actually look younger and more beautiful every day. Shall we have a little talk?"

She laughed.

"We have always been in the habit of speaking plainly to one another."

"I agree; it saves time."

"She gave me a nervous little glance.

"O," I said, reassuringly, "I am friend."

She was playing with the edge of her fan.

"I am a woman, as she looks," she observed, "and I was at an extremely early age."

"St. Croix was perfectly justified in his action—he told me!" I said, with a laugh. "But that is a detail, the thing is that he is most willing to let that class escape."

She looked at me with a smile.

"Ah, you have met her at the Races?"

"Yes; I found my little ten-year-old sweetheart would have grown into a dandy little lady by now!" How do you like her?" I continued, "that St. Croix is ignorant of her existence?"

"Well, he assumed I had no children, and I could not summon up courage to tell him afterwards. You see what a difficult position I am in," she added, plaintively.

"It is, I think," I agreed, "the unexpected appearance of a full-grown daughter upon the scene might prove too heavy a strain at this critical stage of his life."

"A girl of 15 is a responsibility," I added.

All this time I had been hugging to myself some special intelligence. I thought it was about time to bring matters to a head.

"Mrs. Fordyce," I said, "do you really care for St. Croix?" She did not reply for a moment.

"Yes," she said simply; "I really love him. O, can't you suggest something?" I said quietly, "we will have to speak frankly."

"Yes," I said, "I will help you to find a husband." She had given her word to him, and Calle was bound to marry him. Everything depended on what she had said, and her lover besought her to repeat it boldly. Calle felt sure that when the girl's family knew she had proposed to him they would not dare to interfere.

"I think that you are right, the souls for us," he wrote, calling her his "true wife before God!" The bishop consented to examine Margery to see if her words had really made matrimonial arrangements. He did so, and repeated the condition, and after repeating what she had said to her lover added that "if those words made it not sure," she would make it sure the next time. That settled the matter. Her mother could do nothing; Margery had promised, and she must allow to fulfill her words.—Lippincott's Consent.

She laughed happily.

"Really?" I said, glancing at her, "I'm sorry, when I'm talking to Calle on her behalf."

St. Croix rejoiced us.

"St. Croix," I said to him, quietly, after a minute or so, "I have been meditating in your affairs—with a good result, I hope."

He turned with a glad look of surprise.

"It is 'yes,'" he murmured.

"It's for you to say, after hearing the doctor," she replied, softly.

"My dear," she said, "the condition is, I said, abruptly, "that you can agree to become my father-in-law!"

He seemed to be quite surprised; I tendered a few simple words of explanation.

St. Croix glanced at Mrs. Fordyce, who was looking radiantly beautiful, and then did the same. I was pleased that he ever did in his life—accepted my proposal.—Maguet Magazine.

Don't Want It Seized.

"Well," said the assistant in a chemist's shop to an Irishman who pointed to a pile of soap.

"I want a lump of that," answered the Irishman.

"Thank you. Will you have it sealed or unsealed?"

"I'll take it wet!"—Tit-Bits.

An Unexpected Calamity.

Fond Husband—My dear, you know I promised you a diamond necklace this year—

Widow-Wife—I know you did, but let it go—the water pipes burst last night—N. Y. Weekly.

I should be delighted," I replied, and hurried off.

As soon as he had disappeared I turned to Mrs. Fordyce.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

THE POULTRY YARD.

How to Construct Sensible Roosts and a Convenient Feed Box.

There are many ways of constructing and placing roosts. The aim should be to make them comfortable for the fowls and convenient for the keeper.

It is well to have a nestling pen. He literally lived in a world of music. He was always hearing melodies, and when he improved had only to play them.

—Rev. Dr. William Prall, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Dr. Mason was minister on the day to Miss Elizabeth Bishop of Boston. Dr. Prall was a rising politician of New Jersey a few years ago. He entered the Episcopal ministry, however, and for a time was rector of an Episcopal church in one of the great cities.

It is an interesting fact, brought out by the recent anniversary of the Scotch church, that Dr. Vernally, so long senior pastor of the collegiate church, was at the age of 14 a student at Yale college, by the aid of funds provided by the Scotch church. Dr. Mason Latin and Greek.

The Boston Transcript says: "Rev. Dr. Isaac Lane has decided to resign the pastorate of Park Street church, Boston, to accept a position $1,000 a year, in addition to $2,000 which he claims as his salary to March 31. Dr. Lane does not look upon the amount of money as a bonus, for he declares that the action of the church committee has placed him in an unfavorable light before other societies, which is likely to affect his future prospects seriously."

The Protestant Episcopal church, or at least a certain section of it, is considering the advisability of employing evangelists or "lay readers" more extensively. Even the conservative Church of England has taken a step in this direction, as is shown in the following extract from the Church Times:

"The following arrangement is a convenient one: Make a tight platform constructed of two parallel beams, 12 inches apart, and a strap iron to hold the droppings. Around the edge nail a strip one by three to keep the droppings from scattering and which will give a step for the fowls in getting on and off. A platform arranged in this way is conducive to cleanliness, as the fowls will not step in the manure and track it over the floor. Place a foot above the platform and rest them one is unoccupied. The fear of danger will prevent fowls from seeking the roosts. If the roosts are set at the same level, no injury from getting on and off will occur and the fowls will not crowd on another:

firmly in a slot or mortise, as seen in Fig. 2. Make them of two by three, scantling, rounded on the upper side, planed perfectly smooth so that the fowls will not be likely to get splinters in their feet. Smooth roosts are easily cleaned. They are not apt to catch vermin. The perch should be far enough apart to prevent soiling of plumage; 14 or 15 inches is about the right distance. Allow one foot on the roost for each fowl of the large breeds and less for the small breeds.

In Fig. 3 is seen a handy feed trough which is a wooden and securely fastened to the wall of the poultry house. It can be recommended from the fact that it occupies no floor room and being up from the floor the fowls cannot get in it with their feet, thus soiling and wasting the food. A trough five inches deep and five feet long will hold 100 lbs. of grain. In the spring it is necessary to prevent soiling of plumage; 14 or 15 inches is about the right distance. CONVENIENT FEED TROUGH.

One of the chief difficulties in securing the roosts of a henhouse is that the fowls will not perch on them. The perch should be far enough apart to prevent soiling of plumage; 14 or 15 inches is about the right distance. Allow one foot on the roost for each fowl of the large breeds and less for the small breeds.

It is a good plan to take every opportunity to help the henhouse. If the stone thrown the plow out, the team should be stopped and backed up and the furrow caught again.

In all spring crops it is necessary to stir the earth thoroughly and reasonably deep. One of the essential conditions in securing a good growth and yield is to have the soil in a fine tilth when the planting is done, and thorough plowing is a great aid in getting the soil in this condition.

In order to lessen the work of the teams, and at the same time lessen the cost of the plowing in many cases, it will be found economical to use a somewhat larger plow—one that turns a furrow 10 inches wide. This will reduce the cost of labor.

Many bowel diseases may be traced to the filth eaten in the soft food. It is impossible for fowls to pick up soft food from a filthy surface without swallowing the adhering filth.—Orange Journal.

Maintain a Standard.

To Make Poultry Healthy, Profitable and Satisfactory.

In the poultry business, as in any other branch of farm economy, the standard of production, crossbreeding, mixing of the best specimens, etc. If an ideal type of hen is found or a male bird is always desirable to make him as near as possible the foundation of stock, and brings him up close to that very desirable quality of uniformity of standard which makes famous the flocks and herds of the various noted breeders of domestic animals, such fowls will be productive. The average farmer may say that the few chickens he keeps will make but little difference in the end, let the care be what it may. This is not a good rule to follow, however, for the reason that the stock may be inferior to the best—giving not only better yield, but lessening the chance of disease still further.

If the plowing is delayed until spring, it should be done very little deeper than the land has been plowed before, as being too deep will injure the roots and cause a loss of fresh roots, which will prove more or less detrimental. Deepening old ground by plowing should nearly always be done gradually.—St. Louis Republic.

FARMER JOE IN THE CITY.

BY SHELTON G. THORNDIKE.

YESTERDAY I sold the house, and I've got the bank to pay off the debts, so the dealers called it quits. The bank has a s.o.s. loan, went for fancy, and I quit a month ago. I've got the house all in shape, for everything's a old dear old Dick. And now I'm just a vagabond, a real old Dick.

I'll stay a day or two with him the way a month or two. Dick has, that he'll get me in a store. Or the place where I needn't eat my life. He says—“a-wavin' always in an overcoat. To get a livin', farmin'! Such work, he claims, don't pay. He'll have to go to the city, nice far and never way.

He's workin' for a big concern on some high-soundin' street. In a roomy office, choked up with dust and heat. I stayed with him an hour or two to watch him. And then I had to bust out to try and get some air. I stood a ways and watched to see the everlastin' thron. That's a fine unendin' stream a-hurtyin' along. It made me feel at first as though a lot o' A'n' awatin' for the doctor an' awatin' of him quick. While I stood a while an' all around seemed that I could hear a thousand different voices a-soundin' fat and beat.

"HE SHOWED ME 'ROUND."

Dick's home is clean ev'rythin' fixed. His wife's a stylish woman, though for me a bit too grand. It's a pity on yeas—no easy thing, I found. And to see his bound wonders we went, poor soul. We saw a lot o' places of both high and low degree. For he was bent on showing them art he was confidin' me. But while I saw some spendid things, I mainly saw grass and flowers. And I kept a-thinkin', Jessie, of that dear old horse he bought above it, where the breezes love to play. Where the noble horses like to linger and the cobble sing all day—

An' I kind o' kept comparin', dear, his home beneath the maples and that little wife o' mine. And, what's more, I didn't change with brother Dick to-day. Not even though he owned twice o'er the whole of Broadway.

We showed me round with lots o' pride—an' twas a wondrous show:

The works of art an' beauty rare are wonderful. I thought of all the splendors of the field, say "long ago,"

When the sun goes down an' ev'rywhere in tune,

When the hours of mornin' are a-doin' here and there,

Like they loved to watch the fields below

With daisies all-a-bloomin' an' butter-

cup a-blow—

And still he loves his city fine—the fields'll do for Joe.

And still I kept comparin' when I saw the streets at night.

A-sittin' in the parlor of the great electric light.

And I thought of other evenin's when, being a-tumblin' stars,

You went out with me, Jessie, to put up the pasture barn.

An' I thought of the lesson there no book can ever teach.

From the dead, mighty 'round us; an'

we'd mighty care for soap.

Yaller, if anything's about the color of her dress, anyhow. But she didn't hear. She thinks so much of herself, she's believed Dick's just did o' love for her. She's a much better girl than I am, when I told her Dick was a girl, if he hadn't much else.

Yes, girl, death do us part. Sounds solemn, too, don't it? Then both look solemn enough. I'll bet Dick's sorry already, that he didn't take the other one. An' that like a mom? Land! The longer I live the more I despise the most o' 'em I see.

"We'd better set right here till som o' the crowd gets out, don't you?"

"Well, what for? Why, Mis' Adams, you know keep turin' to the old farm more and more,

An' when the dawn's a-comin', I can see the Rose light a-shootin' up beyond old Boston Hill.

And when it's beauty paintin' all the eastern sky,

With the promise that an' one day is night.

When the glory o' God's morning sets the embers a-singin'—

Then I'm bound to their city grand, I'm comin' Thursday, Joe.

—Country Gentleman.

SUE'S WEDDIN'.

BY MINNIE C. HALE.

OH, Mis' Adams! Mis' Adams! 'Sence you for callin' on me, if you don't mind, I'll put on my bonnet, we'll walk along together to the church. For course you're goin' to the wedding.

"I wouldn't miss this weddin' for a good deal, for I mos' feel it I'd made the match. Though land knows, they ain't either o' them showed much 'preenin' fit, an' they ain't even sat to the right o' me. Dick's a good boy, till I put on my bonnet, we'll walk along together to the church. For course you're goin' to the wedding."

what she's got for a husband. But there, I think that may be sayin' somethin' about my neighbors, even such count' ones as Dick Culbertson.

"Now Belle Martin, you know, I don't know what to say to her yet. I mean to say to her, I call that real forgivin' of me?"

"We all know how hard she tried to cut you out, an' now she's done it, an' you're goin'—My gracious! If she ain't gone an' turned back ag'in me, her face! Mis' Culbertson, she's been faced to tell me how she got it! Sue's a good girl to come to you for, I tell you.

"You remember that time Dick was going with Belle, an' Sue was so awful sick from the thought that he'd left her? I call that real forgivin' of me?"

"Well, Dick, his heart's not so fast-sommin'; one girl a-pasin' all her money on good clothes for him to look at, an' another one admittin' cause he wouldn't let her have it? I call that real forgivin' of me?"

"It's got an awful temper, Dick has—perfectly awful! Just like his father had when he was livin'. They say he struck his wife, and I call that real forgivin' of me?"

"I s'pose you know she an' Belle didn't speak for two months, last winter. I happen to know it was all about Dick. I told Sue she'd better look out for Dick's temper, if she didn't want to get knocked down, too. My, didn't her eyes snap! Well, she didn't get left any when temps was gettin' passin'.
