THE BIG STRIKE.

Developments Make Things Lively in Various Quarters.

Judge Collier Comments Favorably on Attitude of Strikers—Civil and Criminal Suits Against De Armit—Deputies Fight.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 17.—Monday was fraught with exciting incidents in matters pertaining to the miners' strike. Early in the strikers' camp, a probable murder in the deputies' ranks, a filling of criminal and civil suits against the De Arnits, and the hearing in the injunction case against Prince Dolan and others, kept both sides to the struggle busy and on the qui vive all day long. That the injunction will be materially modified there can be no doubt, which on its face would indicate a victory for the strikers. The preliminary decree has been continued pending a consultation of the judges and an opinion will probably be handed down by noon to-day. Judge Collier said in his history as one of the wonders of the world, that the strike would go down in history as one of the wonders of the world, that the strike would go down in history as one of the wonders of the world, that the strike would go down in history as one of the wonders of the world.

Deputies Fight for Wages.
The threatened suits against the New York and Cleveland company for retaining the wages of their striking miners were given a remarkable impetus by noon to-day. Judge Collier said in his history as one of the wonders of the world, that the strike would go down in history as one of the wonders of the world, that the strike would go down in history as one of the wonders of the world, that the strike would go down in history as one of the wonders of the world.

Criminal Suits Against De Armit.
In addition to the civil suits entered by the promoters of the De Armit by his former employers for wages, three criminal suits have been brought against Samuel De Armit, a brother of the late President Garfield, who was evicted on Saturday by Samuel De Armit, has brought a criminal suit charging assault and battery. She says in her petition that she was worth $1,400 in currency, about $900 in notes, and $9,000 in bonds.

Deputies Fight.
Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 17.—Two deputies, Robert Kerr and Frank Anderson, employed as guardians of the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, were arrested by the strikers on Monday. Kerr cannot live. Anderson was in charge of the deputies at Sandy Creek. Kerr, who lives at McJee's place, was arrested on Monday morning. He has served before as a deputy during strike.

Will Close All Mines.
Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 17.—It was decided by the eastern Ohio leaders and miners at a mass meeting Monday at Bellefonte, Pa., that they would close all the mines, no matter what the circumstances, and no matter how many mill and glass factory workmen become pite.

Injunction in Illinois.

MEXICO'S TROUBLE.

Serious Financial and Commercial Situation Confronts the Country.

City of Mexico, Aug. 17.—Exchange on New York rose Monday on the fresh drop in silver to 131, and in some cases 140 was asked. Bankers were in doubt as to what rate to make in view of the condition of the silver market. Dealings were nominal. Exchanges on London went to 215, the lowest on record, and implying for this government, in meeting the interest on its sterling debt, a loss at the rate of 25,000,000 per annum. The government cannot meet this loss by economies and by using the surplus funds, but bankers here say the time has come when something must be done, and the debt should pay a lower rate of interest than six per cent, and also that Mexico is entitled to relief in view of the punctual payment of her gold interest under existing circumstances. It is not to be denied a very anxious sentiment prevails, as the people have come to expect a still further rise in the value of silver, and many predict it will be forced to a point where the dollar will be worth 30 cents in gold. Importations will be generally reduced and all the interests of business except exports will be affected. The commercial crisis is hardly expected, as merchants were not aware, up to very recently, of the government and the country are confronting a serious situation, which is the worst for many years.

A RACE RIOT.

Bloody Battle Between Whites and Negroes in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 15.—The bloodiest race riot that has occurred in Arkansas in months took place at Palm Springs, 30 miles from Little Rock, on Monday evening. Three men are dead, another fatally wounded and two others badly injured. The dead are: Harrison Kerr, a negro, shot in the chest; Charles Adams, a white, killed outright; Charles Ardit, shot through the heart. The seriously injured are: J. T. Clark, Jr., a telegraph messenger, shot through the shoulder, probably fatally; R. D. Owens, deputy sheriff of Perry county, shot through the groin, seriously wounded. Owens, deputy sheriff from Perry county, had a warrant for Harrison Kerr, a negro, charged with murder. When he attempted to make the arrest he was shot through the chest on the other. The first shot struck Owens in the groin, and the bullet, striking silver in the trousers pocket, glanced and injured Harrison Kerr. The money in Owens' pocket probably saved his life. Anderson and Clark went to Owens' assistance and five more negroes joined in the fight. A bloody battle ensued in which over 50 shots were fired.

HOPEFUL SIGNS.

Encourage the Relief in Dupon of Prosperity.

New York, Aug. 14.—J. G. Dunn & Co., in their weekly report of trade, say: "There is a moderate increase in the increase in trade, and nearly all bright export prospects. The great change in business is emphasized by the presence of a multitude of buyers from all parts of the country, who are making inquiries as to their homes and more forcibly yet by the business signs of prosperity are not lacking. The strong rise in stocks, the fall in the clearing and railroad earnings, the heavy speculation in many of the leading wheat, have all made the week one of surprising interest to those who are concerned with the hard work in the west."

Five Waterports in Lake Erie.
Cleveland, O., Aug. 13.—A strange phenomenon was observed at this city at about eight o'clock Thursday morning. ASSASSIN SENTENCED.

Anarchist Who Killed Canovas Will Be Executed.

Madrid, Aug. 17.—Michel Angiolillo, the anarchist assassin of Premier Canovas del Castillo, who was tried by court-martial at San Sebastian, was found guilty and was sentenced to death. Upon hearing the sentence Angiolillo turned deadly pale and had to be assisted to the courtroom. Angiolillo will be garrotted within the prison.

Angiolillo, in the course of the statement, said he had fled from Poggia in October, 1885, and went to Marseilles and Barcelona, where he took the name of Jose Santos. At first he had no thought of becoming an anarchist, but while at Corinthia he began to be interested in anarchist doctrines. He then returned to Marseilles, and after his expulsion from that city he went to Belgium and London, where he spent most of his time in the society of anarchists. When the execution took place at Barcelona on May 4 of last year, he was a devoted adherent of participation in the bomb outrage at the feast of Corpus Christi, he conceived the idea of assassinating Canovas without bloodshed, and all he proceeded to Spain and carried out the resolution. Angiolillo went on to say that the passion for vengeance led him to the residence of the Duke of Orleans and acquainted with the manufacture of explosives he used the revolver.

FOUGHT WITH SWORDS.
Duel Between Count of Turin and Prince Henri of Orleans.

Paris, Aug. 16.—The count of Turin and Prince Henri of Orleans fought a duel with swords at five o'clock Sunday morning in the Bois de Marechaux. Prince Henri was severely wounded in the right hand. Prince Henri was taken to the residence of the Duke of Orleans and received medical attendance.

The second of Prince Henri of Orleans was M. de Leontoff, governor general of the episcopal province of Abyssinia, and M. Raoul Montrieux. The count of Turin's were Gen. Count Avagadro de Quinto and Marquis Carlo di Giarra.

The count of Turin, considering the letters of Prince Henri of Orleans to the Figaro offensive to the Italian army, wrote to the count of Turin, offering a retraction. This letter could not be answered until August 11, the day of the arrival of Prince Henri in France. The prince replied to the count of Turin by telegram, maintaining the right of a traveler to record his experiences.

TECUMSEH AND THE COMET.

Told the Indians It Was His "Arrow in Heaven." A few days ago the old bull of Jones covered the old fort built by Gen. Tecumseh into a barn. Although the old log structure has stood the storm of all the varying chances of Liverpool since that early period, not an amount similar to be seen in it today.

The structure was built as a government trading post or factory, where the soldiers were purchased from the Indians. During the Creek war from 1812 to 1814, it was a rendezvous and distributing point for the United States soldiers, and Maj. Phil Cook was in command.

During the famous Creek war incident by Tecumseh and his brother, who was written about in the history of the United States he communicated with the tribes from Florida to Canada, advising them that there was the written about in the history of the United States he communicated with the tribes from Florida to Canada.

Fort received its name from John Benjamin Hawkins, a trader from North Carolina, who had been appointed a commissioner to Georgia to draw up a treaty with the Creek Indians.

INDUSTRY ACQUIRED BY JAPAN AS PART OF THE TREATY.

Camphor is produced in a product of Japan, since the annexation of Formosa to that country. The camphor trees are only particularly common in the mountainous regions of Formosa.

Crude camphor is made by steaming the thin chips of the wood in a wooden cask or over an iron pot, the camphor steam rises into a cooling chamber, where it is left for three days to separate water and oils from the crude camphor.

THE STORY TELLER

THROUGH THE SHADOWS.

There's no sun to cheer the waters;
Where death's chilling waters flow;
And of cool and time beyond it,
Those on this side do not know.

Bling sing not above those waters;
Their mystery is the woods and
Gives earth our names no inkling
Of the land beyond their haunts.

Nothing grows by that cold river;
And grow they there or there,
Yet must it hint of what is yonder—
Heaven or hell, or murky mire.

Yet must it all go through that darkness,
Lighted by no cheering beam,
Through the waters of the shadows
That o'erhang the chilling stream.

For no bridge, or spans that river,
Nor can mortals sail the waves,
Nor can anyone guide the farer,
Or substitute to his weary.

Not can reason give the pilgrim
Nectar, compass or a bark,
Yet by faith he sails the river,
For the torrent and the dark.

Faith inspires him with visions
Of the Heaven of his quest,
A land beyond the shadows,
Of the country of the blest.

And right onward to that Heaven,
Onward through the chilling stream,
Gaily, calmly, fares the pilgrim,
Construed by faith's cheering beam.

Onward to eternal splendors,
Where majestic mountains rise
In the radiance of the sun
Of the country of the blest.

Fragrant roses bloom forever
In the paradise above,
And the lilies to the waters
Breathe the sweetness of their love.

In the forest aisles of Heaven,
Birds and broods are singing,
Of the beauties and the glories
Of the country of the blest.

And the mistle on the hedges,
Of the ministry of angels,
And the angels of the choir,
And the angels of the choir.

And the angels of the choir,
And the angels of the choir,
And the angels of the choir,
And the angels of the choir.

JACK AND BILL.

BY J. A. FLYNN.

"It's such a dreadful play," said little Babs, "for Auntie Jill to be so wavy and cwy!"

"Well, she needn't cry unless she likes," observed Rex, who understood things, being true.

Auntie Jill, who heard them from the dark corner behind the curtain, stole away to her room, because she hadn't half done her crying. The plot began.

"Girls and ladies," protested Babs, "we've to cry some, but we don't cry. We didn't want to cut off my hair and make me grow up a man I shall cry when I'm a lady." objected very loudly.

"When I'm a man I shall be a hunter, and kill Indians and lions, and shan't cry for anything."

Babs shook her head. "I should cry if you buried you, Wex. Wouldn't you cry if a big lion caught me and eat me all up?"

Rex put on arm protectively around her, because time is old and big, you see. "No, Babs. I should kill the lion; that would be ever so much better. Let's play tibby-cats a lion, and about Rex with the pistol, shall we?" But tibby-cat bolted to the apple tree; and the rocking horse was broken, and Rex and aggie the doll playing headman to her "Lily Jane" here.

"I wish Auntie Jill would come downstairs an' play siffick," sighed Babs. "I'd rather Uncle Jack take us out to the woods, or play ball with Rex. Are you sure mamma said he wouldn't ever come here again?"

"Certain sure," assented Babs, "an' he wasn't our Uncle Jack, never any more, mamma said—truly, Wex."

"He never was our uncle, really," explained the future hunter, "only going to be. But he was real nice, and I don't see what Auntie Jill wanted to go and change him for. It's just like women and girls."

"The sure Auntie Jill wouldn't be naughty, ever," said loyal Babs, indignantly.

"Then what is she crying for?"

"I speak 'cause Uncle Jack—"

"You said he wasn't uncle any more, Babs."

"Well, 'cause Uncle—that-used-to-be-Jack—"

"That isn't right, either, Babs. He's Jack—that-used-to-be-uncle."

"You're wewwy unkind, Wex," pouted his six-year-old sister.

"Don't be a crosser," replied Rex, loftily.

"Well, the sure Uncle Jack has been naughty," cause—mamma looked dreadful angry when she talked me about him. An' Auntie Jill is wewwy 'cause—'cause she cwy when you're naughty and has to be wushful in ze-cupboard."

"You're a horrid little girl, Babs," said Rex to wushful, marching away.

"No, the no. Don't go away, Wex, please don't. I'm—I'm so wolly miserable. I do with you, and I don't see what Auntie Jill wanted to go and change him for. It's just like women and girls."

"I'll tell you what we'll do," said Rex, after he had looked her with two knees, a horrible "somersault," and half an apple stolen out of the dining-room. "We'll go and tell Uncle Jack that auntie's crying awful and he'd better come and say he's sorry—'cause one won't for him ever any more."

"Oh, Wex," cried Babs rapturously, "wouldn't it be beautiful, An' I would wear my new hat, if you could get it down from ze-cupboard, so I would be nice and respectable. The sure mamma wouldn't mind if we were going to fetch Uncle Jack. So Rex tiptoed on top of the hat, and he picked the penguin as a protection against lions and robbers, and she went round by the street stuff shop, because they generally went that way with Uncle Jack, and a heavy new young boy was holding her to peek. The sides, everyone knows that brandy hulls are excellent nourishment for travelers of they get out in the woods. And they did them before they get out, they make sure of them, and don't "act" their pockets. Thanks to such practical measures, the young explorer reached the plank across the ditch in good spirits, and as happy as bold travelers shall always be.

"An' I don't think it's a long one; but the water was so near Rex's feet when they dangled, and it was such a good opportunity to shoot fish they should appear, that it took a good while to cross over. Then they had to go the long way round the lane, because the field was full of coveys, and, as Babs said, "Cows are dreadful fings, 'cause they might be bull's." So the autumn afternoon was turning to evening when they reached the fish pond where Uncle Jack used to be. But no jolly uncle appeared—perhaps his mamma had him in the cupboard. But boy and mamma called eagerly for them from the drawing-room, so Jack followed in with his hat and his coat, and his hat and mamma looked nowhere but at the children, whilst Jack and Jill looked everywhere but at each other. Then Rex and Babs laughed and giggled, and began to explain matters. "We've fetched Uncle Jack," said Rex, in a wretched tone, "to see Auntie Jill. And he's coming, 'cause he's coming tomorrow afternoon, if you'll let him."

"An' he's coming," he so wolly, wolly good," asserted Babs, emphatically, "but Auntie Jill won't be so wolly and not ever any more."

Mamma looked astounded and Auntie Jill found just one tear to come half out of each eye, for it hadn't been all Jack's fault, really, you know. Jack stepped a little nearer to her and half held out his hand and half dived, "Don't be silly, children; you do not understand," said mamma, reprovingly. But Babs smiled one of his quiet smiles, and said to her mamma, "I don't understand, 'cause he's sitting on the sofa beside mamma. I think they do," said she.

When Jack got very near Jill and took hold of both her hands. "My dear little Jill," said he rather brokenly. And she put her hand on his shoulder and said, "But really it isn't fair to tell what she said. Anyhow it must have been satisfactory to Rex and Babs, for they both laughed and giggled at the prospect of unlimited fishing, and ball, and swings, and pennies, now that Jack—that-used-to-be-uncle—that-was-to-be—was reinstated.—St. Paul's."

TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION.

Fresh Air the Best Prescription for Weak Lungs.

By those who remember the cruel disappointment and the dashing of hopes which followed the announcement seven years ago that Koch had discovered a cure for consumption, the news of the preparation of another remedy by him will not be hailed with unmixed delight. It is possible that a still better remedy will be discovered, but the present one is a great improvement on the old one. It is a great improvement on the old one. It is a great improvement on the old one.

A GREAT CHERRY ORCHARD.

How an Immigrant Crop is Handled on California Farms.

Probably there is no better known and certainly there is no larger range in the United States than that owned by the Mack estate. It is situated a little way outside the city of San Francisco, and covers a large tract of land between San Lorenzo and Hayward. It is spread over 3,000 acres of some of the finest fruit lands in California. It is one of the most successful of its kind in this extent is in fruit, for the most part cherry.

The orchard is owned and controlled by the Mack brothers and their sisters, who skillfully may be known from the fact that in spite of hard times and depressed market there has never been a year when it has not paid, and paid liberally. A full crop of cherries from this wonderful orchard will bring its owners anywhere from $30,000 to $35,000.

The season's cherry picking goes on at a great rate, and a little army of pickers toil from tree to tree, stripping the branches like a swarm of locusts.

The sight is picturesque, for the pickers come by families and live in the cherry orchard in a small village of tents. At the height of the season nearly 100,000 pickers are employed, of all ages and both sexes, as the work is of such a nature that it can be performed as well by women as by men.

The pickers are paid by the bushel, and the Mack brothers, of course, boarded at the expense of the ranch, and besides are paid from 75 cents to $1.00 a bushel. The Mack brothers employ three or four children can make as much money during the few weeks of the picking season as the labor of the house can earn during the entire year.

After the picking the cherries are taken over to the packing house and handled on the Mack estate. The cherries are sorted out and put upon local markets, while the more backward are shipped east. The force of pickers can dispose of 40 boxes per day. Two thousand boxes go to the car load, and must be hurried to their destination as speedily as possible, for the Mack brothers do not like to lose their pickers by overworking them.

The Mack brothers are very successful in the cherry business, and the Mack brothers are very successful in the cherry business, and the Mack brothers are very successful in the cherry business.

DINNER FOR A SNAKE.

Gradual Absorption of a Frog by a Water Moccasin.

It is not generally known that an opportunity of watching a snake swallowing his live prey when the snake is free and on his native soil. A summer feller in the State of Virginia, near the Shrewsbury river, the other day stopped for a rest at the site of an old rustic summer-house. A spring there was damaged by the frog, and the summer-house built over the pond so that wanderers could sit and refresh themselves there. The summer-house rotted and fell, and the pond filled with many seasons' fall of leaves from the surrounding oak and chestnut trees.
