WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12, '99.— Unless President McKinley takes some steps to stop the collection of money from federal office holders for use in the Ohio campaign, he is likely to find that the move will do him more harm than good. Money is a good thing to have during a campaign, especially in Ohio, but such a barefaced attempt to set the civil service law at defiance will surely alienate all those citizens who do not want to see the old corrupt state of things restored. The circular is sent out on the regular letterhead of the Ohio Republican State Central Committee, and is signed by W. F. Burdell, treasurer. It asks for contributions "on account of the important bearing the result in Ohio this year will have upon the greater contest 1900, and because of the fact that the defeat of his party in the President's home state would be heralded by the opposition as a rebuke to his administration." It then goes on to point out that the Civil Service law, while providing penalties for the payment of contributions to any Federal officer or employe, does not in terms forbid such payment to those who are not Federal employes, and states that the financial committee levying this assessment are some of them in Federal employ. It is nevertheless easy to read between the lines that unless money is contributed sufficient to carry Ohio this year, that McKinley's nomination next year may be endangered; and that if even another Republican President should succeed him, the office holders might have to make a fresh fight to secure reappointment at his hands.

In view of the fact that President McKinley has declared that "we will take no backward step" in enforcing the Civil Service law, it would seem that he could not to so call on Senator Hanna to recall and disavow this circular. Copies have already come to hand that has been received postmasters as far as Maine and Kansas, and there is no reason to doubt that they have been sent to practically all the Republican office holders in the country.

Taken in connection with other incidents, this circular seems to show that the Administration is quite badly alarmed concerning the situation in Ohio this fall, and fear very much the influence which the President's home state going democratic might have on his chance for re-nomination next summer.

Since his retirement from the position of secretary of state, John Sherman has largely passed out of public view, but he is still a resident of Washington. When asked the other day what he thought of Admiral Dewey as a nominee for the presidency, Mr. Sherman said "You must remember that I am a good Republican and certainly I do not want to say any thing that might embarrass my party. A man to be successful in a race for the Presidency must know how to manage men. Of course, he is the hero of the times and popular sentiment would run in his favor as it did to Grant. If the people elect him to the Presidency it will be with supreme disregard for party lines. For these reasons Dewey would be a strong candidate. The argument that Dewey is not schooled in statecraft has little weight in his disfavor. He has displayed great firmness of character, a wonderful degree of self-confidence, and he is a man I should say, who is well fitted to deal with difficult and perplexing problems."

The President's conference with Admiral Dewey before he left for the West resulted in orders being issued at once for increasing the naval force now engaged in maintaining what is a practical blockade of the Philippines, by several more vessels including the Brooklyn. It has been openly stated at Washington for some time past, that a thriving trade was being carried on with the insurgent ports, and it has even been hinted that some of the officials over there were deriving considerable profit from conniving at its continuance. Whether the latter be true or not, it is not easy to understand why the additional vessels were not sent some time ago. However, it shows how anxious the Administration is to identify itself in the popular mind with carrying out Admiral Dewey's wishes in regard to the Philippines, as there is no doubt that the people generally have almost implicit confidence in the Admirals' judgment.

The suggestion has been made in some quarters, that the United States exercise its good offices, to prevent hostilities between Great Britain and the Transvaal Republic, but the Administration officials do not deem it expedient, under all circumstances of the case to do so. It is not considered at all probable that either of the two countries involved in the controversy, is likely to ask the assistance of the United States, or that it would be given if it were asked. Although this government would like to have the present trouble settled without war, McKinley does not feel called upon to volunteer to mediate between them. Of course, should the governments of Europe, join in an appeal for a peaceful settlement of the questions at issue, it is not unlikely that the United States would, in such case, lend its best efforts in the same direction. There is no possibility of any independent action being taken on the part of the United States.

$1,000 Premium.

The above premium is offered by the Minnesota State Horticultural society for the production of a seedling apple tree as hardy and prolific as the Duchess, with fruit equal to the Wealthy in size, quality and appearance, and that will keep as well as the Malinda. This offer is open to all.

Quite likely the seed to produce this tree may not yet have been planted even. Select a corner of your garden or orchard for a seedling nursery, and plant seed of the hardiest varieties of apples. You will find the work of growing and testing seedlings an interesting one, and it promises much for the future of pomology in the northwest.

—Work on the road between Chongwa-tan and the copper mines is progressing finely under the supervision of Messrs. Smith and Chase. They expect the machinery here in a few days and it will be put in position as soon as possible. They will also build a large boarding house, barns etc., and before long copper ore will be shipped from here by the new road. The machinery will consist of a diamond drill, engine, boiler and crushers.

—W. H. McDonald and W. L. Kelly of St. Paul, came up on Friday last. Mr. Kelly returning Saturday, and Mr. McDonald this morning. While here Mr. McDonald attached the "Florence B." and on Wednesday Sheriff Hawley accompanied by Mr. McDonald, S. Loucks and A. E. Webber, went to Pokegama where the boat was aground and raised it. A. E. Webber with the Stowe, towed the boat to the dock where she sank. Mr. McDonald intends to take the machinery out of the hull and during the winter he will build a flat bottomed hull and put the machinery in it to be used for hunting and fishing. As the boat is now it would never be any good but with a flat bottom she can run almost anywhere. We are pleased to know that the craft will be put in use again as the machinery is first class.

—The speech of Father Abraham in the last number of Poor Richard's Almanac, published by Benjamin Franklin in 1757, "Contains the Wisdom of many ages and nations assembled and formed into one connected discourse." —CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY. This remedy is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, and influenza. It has become famous for its cures of these diseases, over a large part of the civilized world. The most flattering testimonials have been received, giving accounts of its good works, of the aggravating and persistent coughs it has cured, of severe colds that have yielded promptly to its soothing effects, and of the dangerous attacks of croup it has cured, often saving the life of the child. The extensive use of it for whooping cough has shown that it cures that disease of all dangerous consequences. It is especially prized by mothers for their children, as it never fails to effect a speedy cure, and because they have found that there is not the least danger in giving it, even to babies, as it contains nothing injurious. Sold by J. Y. Breckenridge, druggist.
