WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 22 '99.—

Although Vice President Hobart's health is reported as somewhat improved, his published retirement from political life will create a vacancy in the office of President of the Senate. This will be the third time in eighteen years this office has become vacant. The two preceding instances in that period were when Chester A. Arthur became President upon the death of Garfield, and when Vice President Hendricks died, in the first year of Cleveland's first administration.

The Senate rules have been amended in recent years, so as to make it clear what shall be done in such a vacancy. Senator Frye of Maine, for many years past, president pro tempore, will call the Senate to order when Congress reassembles in December, and without further election, he may retain the office during the remainder of President McKinley's present term. Senator Frye may tender the office back to the Senate, in order to cause a re-election, and there is no doubt of the result; but this is not necessary. Mr. Frye's title would become "President pro tempore of the Senate"; not "President of the Senate," which belongs only to the Vice President of the United States. Nevertheless, in the circumstances indicated, Senator Frye would be entitled to the $8,000, attached to the office, and to have the several appointments allowed to the Vice President. These are limited, however, being only those of private secretary, messenger and telegraph operator of the Senate.

The expected reorganization of the Senate this winter probably will result in the election of James S. Clarkson, of Iowa to be Secretary in place of Gen. Cox, of North Carolina. Sergeant-at-Arms Bright, of Indiana, is making valiant efforts to secure re-election. He is a Democrat, and at one time served in the House. He has held his present office eight years, and may be continued a time longer, but as it pays about $5,000, with considerable patronage and emoluments added, there will be a lively fight to oust him.

The reorganization of the House will result in the displacement of B. F. Russell, of Missouri, from the office of Sergeant-at-Arms. He will be succeeded by Henry Casson, of Wisconsin, now serving as a special agent of the Post Office Department.

The critical illness of Senator Howard of Nebraska, with his ultimate death probable, creates a complication not alone in Nebraska, but in the nation as well, since it is not beyond the scope of possibilities that the prospective vacancy will be filled by the appointment of Mr. Bryan. As Governor Poynter is friendly to Ex-Senator W. V. Allen, it is said here in Washington that the appointment will doubtless go to him, although it is not questioned that Mr. Bryan could have the appointment if he desired it. The situation is still further complicated by the fact that Senator Thurston's successor will be chosen by the legislature elected next fall, and accurate observers here in Washington point out that if the state continues in the control of the fusionists' Allen and Bryan would doubtless represent the state in the Senate, provided, of course, that Mr. Bryan is not elected to the Presidency.

The successor to Mr. Hobart's place on the Republican National ticket next year is being discussed here. Inasmuch as Mr. Hobart and Attorney General Ortega are both from that doubtful state in Presidential years—New Jersey—it was at first supposed that Mr. Ortega would succeed to Mr. Hobart's place on the ticket, but the Attorney General prefers his present place and ultimately a seat on the Supreme Court bench. New York has three probable candidates: Secretary of War Root, Governor Roosevelt, and Lieut. Gov. Woodruff, the latter of whom is said to have the following of the Republican organization of New York State, while the preference of President McKinley is understood to lean toward Secretary Root.

The Republican majority in the House of Representatives having settled the speakership question early in the summer, the interest is at the time for the reassembling of Congress approaches, centers in the minority leadership. Among the most prominent candidates for the empty honor of a Democratic nomination for Speaker are Judge De Armid of Missouri, Representative Bankhead of Alabama, and James D. Richardson of Tennessee. In the launching of the New York boom of William Sulzer, there is an element of strength with which the aspirants from the West and South must prepare to reckon. Mr. Sulzer is said to have the votes pledged of the Democrats in the New York state delegation and at his back whatever influence in the Democratic councils of the nation Richard Croker may wield. But the southern and western supporters of Bryan are very shy of Tammany, and indications point to the election of Mr. Richardson who has a good record on the floor of the House and is exceedingly popular personally.

There is said to be a movement on foot among the members of the House to reconstruct the rules of the House as to bring about an extension curtailment of the power of the Speaker by which Speaker Reed converted Congress from an unwieldy mass of individuals into a working body. Among the provisions of the new plan is one that limits the speaker from the committee on rules. Prospective Speaker Henderson, while a model of tact and geniality, is also a possessor of a firm will and it is said that the members who expect him to submit gracefully to an abridgment of his prerogatives as the Speaker may expect trouble at once.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE PIONEER HOUSE

The Pioneer House is undergoing a complete change so far as regards the interior arrangements, and the improvements are such as to render it the cosiest as well as the most commodious hotel on the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad.

Col. Stone has put in steam heat throughout, a new hard wood floor in the office, a private writing and reading room, and best of all a gentlemen's toilet room second to none in the country. Outside a new wind engine has been added to do the necessary pumping, and altogether the hotel is very complete in modern appointments, it is warm, cosy and lunelike.

It has been noted that an apparatus for killing animals with carbon monoxide in England would not work in India, because the high temperature prevented the concentration of the chloroform vapors. That this was the cause was proved by the fact that by placing ice in the box the animals were readily killed.

In London and Paris some very fashionable weddings have recently taken place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Three of the most famous wedding brides in New York have had no bridemaids. Perhaps this was due to the fact that there were no bridemaids at the wedding of Julia Dent Grant and General Custer. Julia Grant is as much a fashion in bridesmaids as in floral decorations, and the cut and shape of the wedding gown.

Bourne Street, Bruntsfield, the new parson of Tasmania, presents the rare sight of a congregationalist clergyman of the head of a British colony. Three years later he entered parliament and later became colonial treasurer. He has represented Tasmania in two Australian federal conventions.

In a list of samples costing about $1.40 he found that the paper which was weighed with the provisions cost 14¢ cents.

The sides now are in full agreement, and a gatling machine may be erected for every proposal of a new place has met fierce opposition from the citizens of Taft.

DEATH SETS HIM FREE.

Vice President Hobart Passes Away at Carroll Hall After a Long and Distressing Illness.

SAD EVENT BRINGS SORROW TO MANY.

Funeral Will Occur Saturday at Two O'clock at Paterson — Flags Are Half-Masted, and Bells Tolled.

President Issues a Proclamation Expressive of Nation's Loss.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 22.—Vice President Hobart died at 8:30 a.m. The family physician and wife were at Mr. Hobart's bedside when he expired.

The vice president had been failing all day yesterday, however, although the reports given out at the house were that he was holding his own.

At midnight he became unconscious and at seven o'clock in the morning he had an attack of angina pectoris from which he never rallied. His death followed at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Hobart, Dr. Newton, and Mrs. Newton, who is a widow of Mrs. Hobart, and Miss Alice Waddell, the nurse, were with him at the time of his death.

"In sorrowing testimony of the loss which has fallen upon the country, I direct that the day of the funeral, the executive office, the White House, and all the closed and open stations of the army and navy shall display the national flag at half-mast, and that the public buildings of the United States in foreign countries shall pay appropriate tributes to the illustrious and patriotic statesman."

"In witness whereof, I have set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed, this twenty-second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-two."

(Signed) "WILLIAM MCKINLEY."

"By the President, John Hay, Secretary of State."

Arranging for the Funeral.

Sergeant-at-Arms Bright has been in communication with the vice president's private secretary during the greater part of the day, but at noon the honor of the funeral had not been definitely fixed. It was stated, however, that the interment would certainly take place at Paterson and it was believed that it would occur Saturday afternoon. When the time is definitely known, the arrangements will be made for the proper representation of the senate at the ceremony.

All the executive departments will be closed on the day of the funeral.

Attorney General Griggs left in the afternoon for Paterson. He goes as the personal representative of the president, and the vice president's son, George, accompanied him.

The entire master is left in his hands so far as the official features of the ceremony are concerned.

Flags Half-Masted.

The flags of the city and other buildings were half-masted when the news of the vice president's death came known.

Flags on many private buildings and dwellings were hung at half-mast.

The bell on the city hall was tolled at noon during the forenoon.

The Passaic county court adjourned in token of respect to the dead vice president.

The flag of the city and other buildings were half-masted when the news of the vice president's death came known.

The entire master is left in his hands so far as the official features of the ceremony are concerned.

Oaths Will Remain Vacant.

By the death of Mr. Hobart, the office of vice president of the United States became vacant for the rest of President McKinley's term.

This creates a political vacuum.

The entire master is left in his hands so far as the official features of the ceremony are concerned.

Senate Will Be Saturday.

Mr. Hobart's funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the church of the Redeemer (Presbyterian).

Major Hinckleff has issued a proclamation recommending that "upon the day of the funeral obsequies of our late vice president the services of the members of all the orders of the church be closed throughout the day; that business houses and private residences of our city be suitable draped; that the reverent refrain from their usual avocations and abstain from their accustomed places of worship; there engage in ceremonial belitting the solemn occasion; and that all bells of the city be tolled between the hours of 9 and 11 a.m. and 1 and 2 p.m. on that day."

Body to Lie in State.

The coroner called at a special meeting arranged for the purpose of investigating the death of Vice President Hobart and the vice president's family, offering to have the body of the vice president laid in state at the city hall in order to permit Mr. Hobart to lie in state.

It was agreed that it might be viewed by the friends of Paterson, directing that the city hall be draped in mourning for 30 days out of respect to the memory of the vice president.

It was agreed that all church bells in the city be tolled one hour in the morning and one in the afternoon of the day of the funeral, and requesting that all places of business be closed on that day.

Washington.

Washington, Nov. 22.—All the day in Washington are half-masted the day in Washington to the memory of Vice President Hobart. The announcement of the vice president's death, while not unexpected, came as a shock to the entire nation.

The executive was early called to the door of the principal hall, this hall was divided into two parts, one end being raised half a foot above the other. At this elevation the dangerous steps of the house sat at their work or painting or music, while their attendants sat at the lower end of the hall.

COTIN P. HUSTON, after a fight of a lifetime, has finally succeeded in getting absolute control of the single railroad from San Francisco to the North California coast. The gallantry is fast now whenever, according to the municipal council, in consideration of the high interest of property owners that public exactions should not longer take place in the shape of a tax upon the property of another place was proposed for the time. It was stated that the authorities had on their hands an accusation of criminal neglect or evasion.

The sides now are in full agreement, and a gatling machine may be erected for every proposal of a new place has met fierce opposition from the citizens of Taft.

President McKinley did all he could to compromise his wife and did not return to his office until the members of the cabinet began to arrive.

Proclamation by the President.

After the cabinet meeting the president issued the following proclamation:

"By the President of the United States to the People of the United States: Gavet Augustus, the president of the United States, died at his home in New York at 8:30 o'clock this morning. In him the nation lost one of the most illustrious citizens and one of the greatest statesmen of the age. His participation in the business life and that of his native state was marked by a high order of talents and attainments, whose record of career as vice president of the United States exhibited the loftiest qualities of statesmanship and sagacious statesmanship. In the world of politics he was a man of his time and of his country. His private character was gentle and noble. He will long be mourned as a man of singular purity and attractiveness whose personal position was all hearts, while his elevated and whole-hearted devotion to the public cause and to the welfare of his country will be continued to Bayonne, province of New Vizcaya.

(Signed) "The American Advertiser."

Manila, Nov. 18.—Gen. MacArthur, with the Philippine infantry, a battalion of the Chinese, and a company of the Fourth cavalry, several gatlings and a detachment of the signal corps, has begun his northward advance from Tarlac, in which the government forces were victorious. It is stated that the battle lasted two days, ending at noon on November 16. More than 1,000 rebels were killed and 2,000 were wounded. About 1,000 men on both sides were captured in the fighting.

Manila, Nov. 18.—Gen. MacArthur, Gomez, prominent leaders of the revolutionaries, were wounded, and it is reported that Gen. Pablo Emilio Villar was killed. On the government side Gen. Penn Solano Pilapil and Gen. Hernandez were wounded.

GROWTH IN DEPOSITS.

Manila, Nov. 20.—The American occupation of the country between Manila and Dagupan is proceeding with a rush. MacArthur is within five miles of Dagupan, which place Gen. Weston of the 4th Cavalry will probably occupy. The railroad is practically intact beyond Bagac, and the tracks are being repaired.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Comptroller of the Currency Davis has made public the result of an annual examination. The number of loans and deposit accounts, rates of interest, and resources of the combined banks of the United States.

He says that the number of individual deposits in the banks of the United States increased considerably, the estimated grand total for the year 1899 showing 151,534,574 deposit accounts, 124,904 banks, aggregating $7,513,854,361.

The loans amounted to $3,757,467,510. The results of the investigation indicate a steady increase of banking resources and a rate of growth in number of deposit accounts which is unparalleled in the financial history of the world.

Captured Them All.

Capt. Leonaheus announced one of the best coups of the war. Reaching Campinas by a night march from Capivari, this twenty-first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-one, he surprised the insurgents, numbering 200, and captured all of them, with 100 rifles, 100 rounds of ammunition and four tons of subsistence. One Filipino was killed, but there were no American casualties.

Insurgents Are Dazed.

A continuous procession of refugees is entering Panique from the north, indicating the arrival of other Americans to assist in the reconquest of the country. These refugees say that they have not known which way to turn with the Americans occupying so many places in the north.

A Complete Success.

The operation so far is characterized as a complete success. In the words of Gen. MacArthur: "We are able to enter a different political atmosphere," wherein the people are less attached to Aguinaldo. The natives are almost uniformly friendly toward the Americans, and are doing all in their power to assist them in their campaign against the insurgents.

The campaign is progressing rapidly.

Senate Plurality for Nash.

By the death of Mr. Hobart, the office of vice president of the United States became vacant for the rest of President McKinley's term.

This creates a political vacuum. The entire master is left in his hands so far as the official features of the ceremony are concerned.

Great Importance.

Manila, Nov. 21.—Zamboanga is now in possession of American troops. This acquisition is of great importance from a military point of view. It is the principal city of Mindanao, the second largest in the southern half of that island, which is second in importance only to Luzon. It has a population of nearly 22,000 people and is well fortified, so that a small garrison of troops could hold it indefinitely.

It is a naval station, where the Spaniards used to rendezvous their ships in the southern archipelago.

One Life Lost.

Washington, Nov. 21.—The St. Charles hotel and other buildings were destroyed by fire Saturday night. The hotel was filled with guests and there were several narrow escapes. One guest, John F. Smith, traveling man, was severely burned. Mr. Smith, a well-known Whig, was burned to death. Two others, names unknown, are missing. The property loss is $20,000.

Ex-Bank President Sentenced.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 20.—David V. Rieger, former president of the Missouri national bank, which failed in November, 1896, over depositor $1,500,000, was sentenced yesterday in the United States district court, found guilty of misappropriating the bank's funds and sentenced by Judge Adams of St. Louis, to six years in the penitentiary.

Blow Open a Safe.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Nov. 21.—Burglars opened the safe of the Southwest Insurance Company in a basement at noon and secured over $2,000 in cash and certificates of deposit. There were many people about the courthouse at the time, and the lives of many American soldiers and sailors were endangered.

Works Burned.

Milwaukee, Nov. 21.—A building owned by Mr. Frank L. Miller, a manufacturer of Northern glass, was destroyed by fire Sunday night. The loss is placed at $75,000; insurance, about $35,000.

Given a Reception.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Mrs. McKinley gave a complimentary reception at the white house to the bishops and missionary society of the Methodist church. Admiral and Mrs. Dewey were present.

Conditions Are Good.

Washington, Nov. 21.—The annual report of Mr. McRae, commissioner of navigation, shows satisfactory conditions than those of any former year in the bureau's history.

Arraigned.

Winnipeg, Nov. 21.—The boy in the case of George Fox, charged with the murder of Biffle Fox, at Oakdale last spring, was brought in a verdict of acquittal.

Died Suddenly.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—William Andrew Melton, a boy of 14, Finsbury, died at 10 a.m. in Italy, while there with his parents.

MAN Y REBELS ARE TAKEN!

AN ARMORED TRAIN TRAPPED BY BOERS.

Bombardment of Ladysmith Night and Day—British Advance Attended with Great Danger—Transvaal Forces May Draw Back into the Mountainous Country.

Estcourt, Natal, Nov. 17.—An armored train running from here north along the railroad was ambushed by a strong force of Boers yesterday near Frere station, between Ermelo and Cheviley, and a severe blow was inflicted on the English force. As far as can be learned, 100 English were killed and 25 wounded, and the number of prisoners and missing is variously estimated at from 50 to 150. Among the missing is a son of Lord Randolph Churchill.

British Volunteers Called.

Cape Town, Nov. 17.—A call has been issued calling out the volunteers in Kompanie and Uitenhage, Cape Colony. The last-named place is a strong Dutch center, and the effect of the order is awaited with interest.

Bombardment of Ladysmith.

London, Nov. 18.—Special dispatches from Pretoria say that General Mariano Gomez, who had Ladysmith bombarded night and day and hard pressed on November 9, having during the night placed men close to the town, the Boers, after a heavy bombardment, began an assault but were repelled at every point with heavy losses. The Boers have destroyed one of the bridges over the Tugela river.

Reports Conflicting.

London, Nov. 19.—Official dispatches from Gen. Buller very little light on the situation in South Africa. Report from Pretoria says that Mariano Gomez, who had Ladysmith bombarded night and day and hard pressed on November 9, having during the night placed men close to the town, the Boers, after a heavy bombardment, began an assault but were repelled at every point with heavy losses. The Boers have destroyed one of the bridges over the Tugela river.

Over the Falls.

Nigeria Falls, N. Y., Nov. 21.—A major, well dressed man, emerged a lager here Monday afternoon and was driven to Prospect Point, overlooking the falls. Arriving there he left the stage, walked deliberately into the water and leaped over the falls. There were several people in the vicinity at the time. There is no clue to the identity of the suicide.

Rounds Discredited.

London, Nov. 21.—Reports of recent serious fighting about Ladysmith are generally discredited. The British are actively preparing for the hard march north and the mountainous mountains are continuing their invasion of Cape Colony. There was prospect of a native uprising in Cape Colony in sympathy with the Boers.

Favors a Larger Army.

London, Nov. 20.—Saturday morning the report Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles commanding the army, favors a larger army to increase the power of the land forces of the United States. He also says that under all circumstances he will maintain the utmost loyalty, fortitude, vigilance and a faithful performance of duty have been manifested on the part of the troops in the foreign service.

Situation in Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 21.—The democratic campaign committee concedes Taylor, a member of the national republican executive committee, to be the most popular candidate for the governorship of Kentucky. He is the most popular of all the candidates.

From 1884 to 1888 he was a member of the national republican executive committee, and during that period was a member of the national campaign committee of the national republican campaign of 1888. During those years his business was successful, and he was a member of the board of directors of the Louisville & Nashville railroad. His name is well known in Kentucky, and he is a man of great popularity.

He is a man of great popularity, not only in the state, but in the country, and is a man of great popularity. He is a man of great popularity, not only in the state, but in the country, and is a man of great popularity.

Works Burned.

Milwaukee, Nov. 21.—The day in the case of George Fox, charged with the murder of Biffle Fox, at Oakdale last spring, was taken from jail here by a mob and lynched.

Ships Arrives.

London, Nov. 20.—The Shamrock, which left New York November 2, arrived in the Clyde at midnight.

A THOUSAND SLAIN.

Battle in Which the Government Forces Defeat the Revolutionaries of Columbia.

New York, Nov. 21.—A special cable from Panama, Colombia, to the Herald says, "Official advises from Bogota, dated November 18, report that a terrible battle between the government forces and the rebels was fought near Buena Mangua, capital of the department of Santander, in which the government forces were victorious. It is stated that the battle lasted two days, ending at noon on November 16. More than 1,000 rebels were killed and 2,000 were wounded. About 1,000 men on both sides were captured in the fighting.

AN ARMORED TRAIN TRAPPED BY BOERS.

Bombardment of Ladysmith Night and Day—British Advance Attended with Great Danger—Transvaal Forces May Draw Back into the Mountainous Country.

Estcourt, Natal, Nov. 17.—An armored train running from here north along the railroad was ambushed by a strong force of Boers yesterday near Frere station, between Ermelo and Cheviley, and a severe blow was inflicted on the English force. As far as can be learned, 100 English were killed and 25 wounded, and the number of prisoners and missing is variously estimated at from 50 to 150. Among the missing is a son of Lord Randolph Churchill.

Duchess Volunteers Called.

Cape Town, Nov. 17.—A call has been issued calling out the volunteers in Kompanie and Uitenhage, Cape Colony. The last-named place is a strong Dutch center, and the effect of the order is awaited with interest.

Bombardment of Ladysmith.

London, Nov. 18.—Special dispatches from Pretoria say that General Mariano Gomez, who had Ladysmith bombarded night and day and hard pressed on November 9, having during the night placed men close to the town, the Boers, after a heavy bombardment, began an assault but were repelled at every point with heavy losses. The Boers have destroyed one of the bridges over the Tugela river.

Reports Conflicting.

London, Nov. 19.—Official dispatches from Gen. Buller very little light on the situation in South Africa. Report from Pretoria says that Mariano Gomez, who had Ladysmith bombarded night and day and hard pressed on November 9, having during the night placed men close to the town, the Boers, after a heavy bombardment, began an assault but were repelled at every point with heavy losses. The Boers have destroyed one of the bridges over the Tugela river.

Over the Falls.

Nigeria Falls, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Major, well dressed man, emerged a lager here Monday afternoon and was driven to Prospect Point, overlooking the falls. Arriving there he left the stage, walked deliberately into the water and leaped over the falls. There were several people in the vicinity at the time. There is no clue to the identity of the suicide.

Rounds Discredited.

London, Nov. 21.—Reports of recent serious fighting about Ladysmith are generally discredited. The British are actively preparing for the hard march north and the mountainous mountains are continuing their invasion of Cape Colony. There was prospect of a native uprising in Cape Colony in sympathy with the Boers.

Favors a Larger Army.

REPORT OF INDIAN SERVICE

MINOR NEWS ITEMS.

Commissioner Jones Reviews the Condition of the Various Tribes of Red Men.

SOME EXTRACTS FROM THE DOCUMENT.

Steely Increase in the Number of Indians Being Educated—More Schools Are Needed and Attention Should be Directed—The Recent Chippewa Outbreak.

Washington, Nov. 20.—The annual report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, William A. Jones, includes reviewing the progress of Indians in all branches of the service, urges more schools for Indians, and makes a methodical study of individual traits and consideration of subsequent environment in making recommendations.

The active educational system of the Indian office, he says, is predicated upon the motto, "Education is the best way to reservation." There are now 25,522 boys and girls in attendance on the various Indian schools, and the number is increasing at the rate of over 2,000. The Indian population from which these are taken is being 18,100.

Codification Not Satisfactory.

That the proposed codification of statutes, which has been with us for a month, may not bring about the Indian's better education is as certain as it is that the Indian will witness not a uniforming of the Indian population, but an exacting of the Indian's rights. One of the complicating factors, however, is the unsatisfactory results of the past nine years in the schools, which have failed with the whites in the public schools. The report says the results of this codification are not yet known, but the general picture is that the law theoretically is an admirable experiment for breaking down prejudices and for giving Indians a chance. It shows that it is not an unqualified success. The full blood, who needs such conduct must be educated, and the Indians who work at least, of Indian education must be laid under the government auspices and guidance.

Should Encourage Attendance.

Stricter measures for forcing the attendance on Indian schools are recommended. That the Indians remain in the Indian service, and the policy is to employ Indians in every position to which they are qualified, and that the Indian will witness not a uniforming of the Indian population, but an exacting of the Indian's rights. One of the complicating factors, however, is the unsatisfactory results of the past nine years in the schools, which have failed with the whites in the public schools. The report says the results of this codification are not yet known, but the general picture is that the law theoretically is an admirable experiment for breaking down prejudices and for giving Indians a chance. It shows that it is not an unqualified success. The full blood, who needs such conduct must be educated, and the Indians who work at least, of Indian education must be laid under the government auspices and guidance.

Concerning the Indian territory, the report severely arraigns napoleon, lack of money, and the failure to provide for a depository state of affairs generally in administering the schools and original appropriations.

The wives of 100 representatives have signed a petition calling on their husbands to refuse a seat in congress to Mr. Roberts, of Utah.

Maj. Henry Clay McDowell, probably the best-known citizen of Kentucky in private life, died in Lexington with marked distinction in the civil war on the staff of Gen. Rosecrans.

The Chippewa Outbreak.

Concerning the Chippewa outbreak of last autumn, Commissioner Jones says: "For many years Chippewas have been most numerous in the northwest, and St. Paul and other points as witnesses or as offenders, claim that in whole society there has never been made so many mistakes for the fees which would accrue to the Indians, and in every case who arrested them for using it. In some cases Indians carried off the horses and moccasins of the white man home as best they could. The whole majority of arrests by deputy marshals had come to be a fraud and a hardship to the Chippewas, and a disgrace to the country."

Football Dangerous.

St. Louis, Nov. 21.—After several days investigating the death of John E. Smith, the 18-year tackle of the football team of the Christian Brothers' college, who was injured on November 11 in a game with the St. Louis university eleven, the coroner's jury returned a verdict of death by accident. The verdict affords no more satisfactory conditions than those of any former year to the burthen of history.

—We notice that Mr. Walker our popular station agent has a new wagon all painted red in which to carry the mail to and from the post office. The mail from and to this place has increased so during the past year that it is impossible for the agent to carry, so the postal department supplied him with the wagon.

—Forbes was greeted by a very good audience Wednesday evening at the M. E. Church, who listened very attentively to one of the best discourses ever delivered to a Pine City audience. We all know what to expect when the Dr. comes; but there are times when he seems to surpass himself, and this was one of them. For an hour he held everybody in rapt attention, and several had the kindness to say they wished he had talked longer.

Miss Eleanor Miller's recital was probably the best attended of the entire lecture course, and the audience greeted her royally. She showed herself to be an artist of rare ability in passing from patriotic and dramatic scenes to sparkling, jolly, boyish fun. It is difficult to decide whether Miss Miller's forte lies, She comes equally strong in all. The entertainment was a fitting close to our lecture course.—Milwaukee City, (H. T.) Times.

—Miss Miller will give a entertainment at the Court House Hall, Pine City, Friday evening, Dec. 1st.

—Our new church is rapidly ne-giving completion thanks to Mr. Lloyd. The new church will be a marked improvement in the appearance of our village.

—Saturday's limited brought as visitors to the pleasant home of Mrs. M. L. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Haley, Miss Maggie O'Brien, Jas. P. McCue and David Evans, all of Duluth. Miss Maggie and the Messes. Haley and McCue departed for their homes on Sunday's night train, Mr. Evans on the train Monday forenoon and Mrs. Haley on Tuesday's afternoon train. Mrs. Haley came down to predele at the organ in St. Mary's church last Sunday and Mr. Evans to sing in place of Will O'Brien who was unable to be present. Will's many friends would have been pleased to have seen him, but all think who heard Mr. Evans sing that he sent a very good substitute as that gentleman has an exceedingly fine voice.

—In response to invitations a party of young people gathered at the home of Miss Amber Rice last Friday evening, to participate in an old fashioned candy pull. Clinton McKusick had charge of the culinary department and performed his arduous duties in a highly satisfactory manner. After the candy had been disposed of to the satisfaction of all present games were indulged in until about twelve o'clock, after which the treat of the evening came in the shape of a recitation by Miss Rice, entitled "A Face in the Moonlight" rendered in a manner showing that Miss Rice is an elocutionist of no mean ability. After the recitation the party retired to their several homes, all having spent a very pleasant evening.

The reading and musical recital given at the Opera House last night was the best entertainment of the kind ever given in Macomb. Miss Miller is no stranger to Macomb audience, and being expected something fine from her, she did not disappoint. Her expression, voice and gestures were perfect. Taken altogether, the entertainment was first-class in every respect and highly enjoyed by the large audience.—Macomb (Ill.) By Standar.

Miss Miller will give an entertainment in the Court House Hall, at Pine City, Friday evening, Dec. 1st.

—Geo. Kirk, the genial butcher, who has been laid up with erysipelas for the past week, is we are pleased to state some better. His many friends hope that it will not be long before he will be on duty again in his shop.

—Miss Lillie Lambert entertained a party of friends at her home last Friday evening. Cards, music etc., was the order of the evening. Miss Lambert departed for St. Paul Saturday where she will spend the winter.

—Willie, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Pennington, was run over by a horse and buggy in the middle of the street, last Friday morning. Aside from a badly bruised ear, no serious results will follow the accident.

—G. A. Carlson, of Rush City, has the largest and finest stock of Clothing, Dress Goods, Ladies' and Gent's Furnishings. Carpets, Rugs, and a fact everything that comprises a first-class dry goods stock, which he is selling at great bargains. Do not go to the cities to buy before you look over his stock and get prices.

Mrs. Safely, who has been seriously ill for some time, is we are informed improving rapidly under the skilful treatment of Dr. Wiseman, of Pine City.

Parties from here called at Jarvis Bay recently. Why is it that there is no school at that place? Is it for lack of pupils or for want of an instructor? If the latter, the services of Miss Wise who is here from Travers county, might be secured as she is said to be an excellent teacher.

The E. C. Herring Land Co., of Mankato, succeeded in selling land near Jarvis bay to four farmers of Blue Earth county who will move there this fall. They are all men with families and will be desirable addition to any community. This is all this county needs, real settlers those that will make homes for themselves for this county offers better advantages in regard to soil, water and fuel than any county in the state.

M. THANKFUL—
Thanksgiving day
That I am living,
And have a home,
And he's a mortal
Who isn't thankful
For his birth?
I'm thankful this Thanksgiving day
That I am living anyway.

There are days of rain,
And days of sun;
And days of work and strife;
But the quietest day for a man, I say,
Is the quietest day off.
I'm thankful this Thanksgiving day
That I am living.

I'm thankful I am living here,
With friends and kindred near;
Be near in Nature's boundless bounties;
I reach my hand, and help is made;

It is the truth, and help was designed
To fit and satisfy my mind.

This world I know
Has much to give,

Has much of toll and sin,
But the wickedness for the men of the

In the world they're living in.
In all the times they're living in,
I'm thankful I am living now.

I'm thankful I am living now,
An apple on Time's highest bough:

For all the others have not decay;

Truth, truth, truth, in Time's bough;

And so we apples ripen fast.

Fed full, we're prepared past.

These times are ripe,

With noise and strife,

And trouble,

But the luckiest times for the men of these

Are the times they're living in.

I'm thankful I am living now.

How CHARLIE Substituted.

HAROLD LESLIE'S father was a streetcar conductor. But now, three days before Thanksgiving, he had a bad attack of rheumatism, and was too ill to work.

"What are we going to do, mother?"

Charlie asked, in a troubled tone, when everything possible had been done for his father, and Jessie and Jamie, the two younger children, were quiet for the night.

"It's as much as you can do to make ends meet this way, and more, there'll be no money coming in."

"Oh, I can manage that for a little while," his mother answered. "I shouldn't worry a bit if I could only be sure your father wouldn't lose his position."

"I never thought of that," exclaimed Charlie, suddenly remembering how very strict the company was.

"Well, let us hope for the best," his mother said, trying to speak cheerfully.

But Charlie could not be content with hoping; he wanted to be doing. He thought of several ways in which he could earn small sums of money, but he pondered over them, and finally, after thinking over them late into the night, he suddenly started up. "Why didn't I think of that before?" he muttered, and then stole softly downstairs for the little alarm clock on the mantel. In two minutes after he had wound it and placed it on the shelf near his pillow, he was asleep.

When the alarm went off, five hours later, Charlie sprang out of bed and was half dressed before the whirling ceased. In the kitchen he found his mother already up. She said that his father had had a great pain all night, and was still sleeping.

"I'm going to take his place on the car, if they'll let me," said Charlie.

Mrs. Leslie looked doubtful. "I'm afraid you are not old enough," she said.

"I won't do any harm to try."

"Oh, no!"

"It's vacation this week, too, and even if I had to stay out of school a month I could easily catch up, by studying hard."

His mother said no more, but made haste to prepare him a hearty breakfast, and then sent him to his room.

When Charlie returned, with attempted cheerfulness, the morning came, and showed no change, either in the weather or the invalid's condition, and Charlie's heart was very heavy as he began his third day's work. Shortly after breakfast he went up to the front door, and bawled the car by the front platform, which was against the company's rules, and took a seat near the forward end. He looked tired and cross, and the little girl with blue eyes, opposite him, stared at him. He, however, stared straight before her, over his head, and did not appear to see her, or indeed anything else, till Charlie's voice cut him short.

"Your fare, sir."

He turned quickly at this, and, seeing Charlie's boyish face, his own grew and he smiled.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded, roughly.

"Taking fares, sir," Charlie answered, pleasantly.

The man opened his lips to speak again, then checked himself and grimly paid his fare.

Charlie now gave his attention to the little girl, who was on the verge of tears because she had dropped one of her pennies.

"Don't cry and I'll find it for you in a jiffy," said Charlie, and, fancying on a moment, he put his coat on the streetcar, till he found the missing coin, and held it up to her with a smile that brought an answering smile from her. "Now, where do you want to stop?" he asked.

"Maple Avenue," she whispered, for she was very shy, and when the place was named, Charlie stopped the car and beckoned to her, and lifted her gently to the crossing.

Soon after this an old lady was seen running toward the car. She was trying to carry several bundles and hold up an umbrella at the same time.

"Don't worry, ma'am; there's plenty of room," Charlie said, and, as he said, he closed the umbrella, and when, a little further on, she left the car, there was her umbrella open, for one day, and we'll see how you get along."

"Thank you, sir!" said Charlie, and while, by seeing from the office clock that it looked only three minutes of six, made a dash for his car. McElroy, the motorman, was already at his post.

"Hello, Charlie," he called. "Thought I'd see you. Father can't come, can he?"

"No! I'm going instead."

"You! I rather guess not, my boy!"

"But I've got permission from the man who's taking the superintendent's place."

"Well," he said, dryly, "you were in luck not to see Rawlinson himself. He's been laid up with a cold."

"Do you think I can do it?"

"Course you can, but he never think so."

Then Charlie, who was standing on the rear platform, by this time, with watch in hand, gravely rang the bell twice; McElroy obeyed the signal, and the car moved slowly out of the stable.

Soon the car began to fill, and then Charlie was too busy to think much about his own affairs. He had often been with his father, and so he knew exactly what to do. With the exception of a slight awkwardness at first in getting the passengers in, he had had good will.

He was six o'clock when he set out for home, but not enough time to get home, and his courage was not equal to his desire. Truth to tell, he was not in the mood.

HORTICULTURE

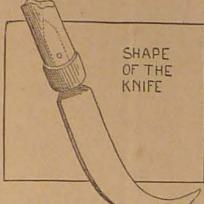

HANDY PRUNING KNIFE

Especially Adapted for Cutting On the Old Wood of Strawberry and Raspberry Plants.

Anyone having tried to cut out the old wood of raspberries and blackberries will know that a proper tool knows that the job is shaped like a V.

I have seen more hook-shaped and V-shaped knives than any other kind, but this knife cuts hard. The force necessary to cut old wood is so great it is sometimes quite enough to just cut a whole raspberry plant. To make cutting easy one should draw the knife across the object to be cut. A slice of beetroot may be shaved off much easier by drawing the knife across it square against it with the knife, however sharp it may be. If the same principle could be applied to the old wood of our berry plantations something could be gained.

I have lately come across a knife that works well. I have tested it, and find

EXCELLENT PRUNING KNIFE.

It's superior to any cutting I have seen. Look at the diagram. Notice how the handle is shaped so that the knife will slide off instead of cutting. But that is not so. In testing it one will be surprised how nicely it will do the cutting. It will slip just enough to give the desired effect, but the knife will sever the hard cane from the stub with the least outlay of strength.

The illustration represents the shape of the knife exactly as it should be. A good blacksmith would be able to make one of a wondrous sort. It should be inserted in an old hand-saw or something of that order, and be keyed on as shown. A leather loop may be fastened to the wooden handle about half-way up to prevent the hand from slipping on the handle, but this is not essential.

Gathering up the old wood and the trimmings of another unpleasant feature of berry culture. Here also, the right tool will facilitate the work. The best thing I know of is a rake made out of a set of wire mesh. It should be inserted in an old hand-saw or something of that order, and be keyed on as shown. A leather loop may be fastened to the wooden handle about half-way up to prevent the hand from slipping on the handle, but this is not essential.

This is WORTH TRYING.

Method by which an Ohio Grower Keeps Sweet Potatoes All the Year Around.

We packed sweet potatoe September 30 and expect to have some in May and June. We packed them in boxes with alternate layers of dry sand and have not failed to have them keep well when packed in many different ways. The potatoes were thoroughly dried in the best place by being placed in the oven and heated, and the sand we packed with this year has been in use for the past 15 years for this purpose. The potatoes should not get cold before packing, and should be perfectly dry.

We have used "excellon"—the fine shavings used by furniture men in packing goods—for the purpose of packing down sweet potatoes, and, while it keeps them in fine condition for some months, it does not pack sufficiently solid to answer as well as sand.

The boxes should be placed in some dry place where the temperature is not likely to go below freezing. This is the best method for keeping a small quantity of potatoes for home use. Of course, the commercial grower who keeps large quantities need not go to so much trouble.—John L. Shawver, in Ohio Farmer.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

It is a good plan to manure the garden thoroughly and then plow deep before cold, freezing weather sets in.

While mulching is beneficial to strawberries it should not be done until the ground freezes hard enough to bear up a snowdrift.

One item in preventing frost in fruit through the fall and winter is to preserve a uniform temperature. It is the changes that injures.

Now is a good time to see what trees one needs for planting and keep them in carefuley, watered and drained, and protected from rabbits.

Never set out a tree with the leaves on. If they come from the nursery with the leaves on, strip them off carefully before setting out.—St. Louis Republic.

SETTING OUT TREES.

They Should Be Planted a Little Deeper Than They Grew in the Nursery and Well Mulched.

In selecting a site for an orchard a northern slope should, if possible, be chosen. A southwest slope is not so good, as sun would both summer and winter. To protect the young trees from sun scald, cornstalks may be tied loosely around the trees up to the lowest branches. The ground should be plowed, well fitted and marked off in squares with a string or wire, 25 feet each way. After most of the leaves have fallen it is a good time to set out trees, as there is less chance of damage to the roots all the chance possible. The roots should be obtained from the nearest nursery, and found to be in good condition. If possible, two or three similar plants should be put in the ground being this fall and next fall. After the second planting blossoms the trees should be stripped of their bark, as this is an effective protection. If the trees live two years. As a rule, trees bear heavily once in two years. Summer frost and winter apple trees should be selected of both the sour and sweet varieties, as these appear to grow and bear later than the others.

In setting the trees the roots should be mixed so the blossoms will become fertilized. The hole for the tree should be dug larger and deeper than the size of the roots, leaving a few inches of medium soil at the bottom. Lean the tree slightly toward the southwest, put medium dirt among the roots, keeping them straight, and then the roots must cover the dirt slightly. Fill in with a pail of dirt and fill up with more dirt. Trees should set a little deeper than they grow in the nursery, much of rotten manure is then put around the trees; strawy manure is not good, as mice will nest in it and girdle the trees.—F. Ames, in Prairie Farmer.

KEEPING SEED POTATOES.

Kansas Farmer Has Invented a Method That Seems to Be Emphatically Satisfactory.

How to keep potatoes sound and in good condition until planting time, or even later, is a matter that causes farmers in this latitude anxiety should they want to market in winter. Kansas farmer tried the experiment of putting his potatoes in an airtight chamber and burning sulphur therein for a few minutes until the fumes of the sulphur filled the chamber. Then he filled the chamber with coke ash.

Potatoes may then be placed in a cool place, the roots and stem covered, the dirt slightly covered with a pail of dirt and fill up with more dirt.

Trees should not be planted, yet when he brought a brush and hoes of blackning and commanded that he was to shine his own shoes. His little wife looked on her mother's example and did the same, and even the children and babies with whom he had daily arguments treated her with wholesome respect. The policeman on the beat—well, she caught him sitting in the kitchen one evening, and since she had no money to buy him a coat, Mrs. Gibson noticed that his mother-in-law was more careful of the premises than seemed consistent with one who was merely visiting a family who rented, and did not own the place, but his brain was in a whirl and let it go.

One day he heard with amazement that his mother-in-law had discharged the servant for leaving the imprint of her smoky hand on the wall paper in the kitchen.

"I was informed that the landlord was to remove the house this spring," ventured Gibson.

"The landlord has decided to do nothing of the kind," asserted his mother-in-law.

"The wall paper is still in first-floor room," said Gibson.

Jibson's mother-in-law induced him to visit a real estate office and sign an agreement to keep the house for a period of five years longer, and against his better judgment Gibson did so.

That evening matiners came to a crisis.

Mrs. Potts, his mother-in-law, had decided that Alexander should go.

Alexander had never liked Mrs. Potts, and on several occasions had snarled and bared his teeth at her.

"Alexander was as rose up in wrath and desire to have his master go."

"What?" yelled Mrs. Potts. "You ordered me to leave this house?"

"Yes!" thundered Jibson. "Leave my house!"

"Your house? Ha, ha!" laughed Mrs. Potts. "You are a born fool! This is my house, and you are a born fool!

"Whoa!" stammered Jibson.

"Yes," retorted his mother-in-law.

"And, remember, you have signed an agreement to rent it for five more years," she said, "so for this place when you were married, and since then I have been saving up the rent paid to me, and paid me off the mortgage. Last week I made the last payment, and am now the owner of mine hundred property. After this you can buy your own cigar and have your chocolate at the barber shop on Sunday, but I think it is a wasteful extravagance!"

And some time later Jibson confidentially related the circumstances to a friend and said: "I honestly believe that soon she'll be speculating in railroads!"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

KEEN SPECULATION.

How Gibson's Mother-in-Law Got Him for a Steady Tenant.

Jibson was a poor man. Even the folks who daily shared with him in the same house and were wont to pull off their coats as they entered the place that has ever cracked 14 square yards of skin, and was about as white as the skin of a pale Indian in this city. Lady Isabel was about as white as a sun-kissed nation of Seminoles, and was as pale as a ghost. She was a widow, with the concern, and he bore over his desk until nearly midnight to discover a deficit of two cents in the accounts, for Gibson was too conscientious a man to force a balance. The other day he had to pay a bill of $100, and he had to probe the mystery, but it was unfathomable. But it was no mystery to Gibson's home circle. Five years before he had been a poor boy, and he had been a poor boy again two or three times, too, in his life, having married a girl in the world, had married her and had taken a flat. In their own quiet, ultrahumble way they were happy. Then Gibson's mother came to visit her daughter for a month, and the accident happened. Two weeks after the marriage, Gibson's mother-in-law was still with them. A month or so after her advent she proposed that Gibson rent a house. She knew of one, she said, in the suburbs, and it was a good one. Gibson easily consented to the premises, and two weeks later Gibson, his wife, mother-in-law, the maid of all work, Alexander, the dog, and the canary bird were installed in their new home. Then Gibson's mother-in-law took charge.

She issued a manilate to the effect that they must economize. She stated that she would purchase Gibson's clothes hereafter. And she did. At a department store.

Poor Gibson never complained, not even when he brought a brush and hoes of blackning and commanded that he was to shine his own shoes. His little wife looked on her mother's example and did the same, and even the children and babies with whom he had daily arguments treated her with wholesome respect. The policeman on the beat—well, she caught him sitting in the kitchen one evening, and since she had no money to buy him a coat, Mrs. Gibson noticed that his mother-in-law was more careful of the premises than seemed consistent with one who was merely visiting a family who rented, and did not own the place, but his brain was in a whirl and let it go.

A Good Oyster Chowder.

Fry till done four ounces of salt pork into dice. Peel and cut in lengths two stalks of leeks, trim the bunch as I use it. The bunch is made of two-inch plank bottom with slabs of four-inch board, resting on a frame of three-by-four inch scanting, and made watertight by means of a cement lining. Lines of two-inch tile are laid upon the frame, the bunch, two to two and a half feet long, is laid upon the bunch, which receives the water, turned up at an angle of 45 degrees.—T. Greiner, to Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Eight of San Jose Scale.

The San Joaquin Valley commission appointed by the state legislature to investigate the San Joaquin scale infestation in the San Joaquin Valley, found the infestation in a corner of Niagara township, with more limited cases at five other points. In 91 other cases trees were found infected. These were all destroyed, and this was the case with 100 found in only 13 places out of the 91. It will be necessary to destroy 150,000 trees to make sure of exterminating the scale. The commissioners doubt the possibility of doing this. They advised immediate destruction of badly infested trees, and careful judgment of all others, giving inspectors large discretionary powers.

Initiation Worcesterhire Sauce.

Put half an ounce of cayenne into one part of good white vinegar. Peel and chop the clove of garlic, mash fine, mix with the cayenne, add the white cloves and two blades of mace, mix all ingredients together and shake thoroughly, cover and stand aside over night. Next day rub the mixture through a fine sieve; add two grains of powdered pepper and half a saltspoonful of pepper, and serve as soon as the oysters are plumped.—Housewife.
