WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, Apr. 5th, 1901.

Fred Funston is now a Brigadier General in the regular army, thanks to the President. It is not creditable to any officer to be trying to baffle such men as Gen. Funston's capture of Aguinaldo, because of their opposition to a volunteer officer being made a Brigadier General in the regular army, which was the only military reward the President could give Funston, the new army law specifically stating that no volunteer officer should be given a commission in the regular army between that of Lieutenant and Brigadier General. The President promptly appointed Funston a Brigadier regardless of the opposition of army officers and their friends. Funson's admirers rejoice that he did so at once, as they know that the army ring can wield a powerful influence and they feared that if given time enough to get concentrated upon the President, it might have succeeded in preventing the appointment.

This fight against Funston, which may be carried into the U. S. Senate to try to prevent the confirmation of his nomination is merely a revival of the old fight of the West Pointers against the outsiders, which has been going on for many years. The head quarters of the West Pointers may be said to be in Adjutant General Corbin's office, at the War Department, although he is not a West Pointer himself. Gen. Corbin is a man of undoubted ability, but it is a well known fact that he is now a Major General, more through political and petticoat influences exerted under various administrations than because of his military service or accomplishments. It is regarded as Corbin's influence that prevented Secretary Root sending congratulations to either McArthur or Funston on the capture of Aguinaldo, until after Secretary Long had congratulated both officers in his telegram to Admiral Reamay, as well as thanked them for their praise of the Navy for its assistance. Secretary Root and Gen. Corbin would better be very careful unless they wish to become very unpopular. The public does not care a rap about rivalry between West Pointers and outsiders in the army, but it admires bravery and daring and desires, may, demands, that it shall be rewarded whenever found. Senator Burton voiced public opinion when he said just after urging the President to announce Funston's appointment to be Brigadier General. Funston has the quality and ability that gets rewards. It does not make any difference how he does it, but he gets there. Whether it is by beating Filipinos at their own tricks, or swimming streams, or just plain hand to hand fighting. We expected to have him made a Brigadier General in the regular army. That was certainly not too much to ask as a reward for such an exploit."

Pekin, China, he was the first American to scale the wall of the Chinese city and enter Pekin. On the following day, while engaged in the fight in the Imperial city, he received a soldier's wound. His meritorious conduct deserved recognition, and it is believed that if given an appointment to West Point, and a commission upon graduation, Maston Titus will make an excellent officer."

Senator Platt, of Conn., author of the terms for withdrawing from Cuba said of those terms: "Some people, both here and in Cuba, assert that we seek to establish a protectorate, but this is entirely a misconception. The acceptance of the terms proposed will not establish a protectorate in any sense of the word that has ever been used in international law. The situation is unique, and the relations between us and Cuba will be unique and may properly be expressed by saying that the U. S. desire to become the guarantor of Cuban independence, and the stability of its government. The right of intervention, which we must insist upon, is only to be exercised to that end, and only when necessary for that purpose. It will not authorize any interference on the part of our government in Cuban affairs, unless circumstances arise which require that we should act to preserve their independence, or insure tranquility, and such a step could only be taken as the result of deliberation by Congress. The Cuban republic will be comparatively weak and unable by itself to cope with problems very likely to arise both as to its foreign policy and domestic conditions. It may need the assistance of the U. S. and instead of resenting the willingness of the U. S. to assist it, it should be thankful that it has so powerful a friend."

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Time Having Passed for Introduction of Bills, Without Consent of the Governor, Both Houses Have Settled to Work.

St. Paul, March 28.—The railroad gross earnings bill will not come up again in the session. In the house yesterday it was taken from the table and after a call of the house and a sharp debate it was voted to take from the table by a vote of 57 to 56. It was then made the special order for Friday morning. During the debate the author of introducing the alleged corruption in connection with the bill was taken up and Mr. Mallory, the chairman, said that the gentleman who made the charges had not come forward to substantiate them.

The author of the bill to make state hospitals out of the insane asylums at Anoka and Hastings met rather rough treatment. The appropriation of $200,000 for new cottages was struck out and an amendment adopted placing the institution under the control of a new board of control. If the bill passes, it will be without an appropriation.

A bill was offered in the senate increasing the salary of the insurance commissioners from $3,500 to $4,000 and the deputy commissioner from $1,500 to $2,000.

The Pan-American commissioners appointed by the governor returned yesterday and presented both branches of the legislature and read a report made to the governor, stating that the appropriation of $20,000 is entirely inadequate and asking that it be increased to $30,000. This would permit of erecting a $100,000 building. The commission recommends an increase of the $20,000 appropriation unless an increase can be made.

St. Paul, March 29.—As the legislative session is to close every day brings its session. Yesterday it was the primary election day in the house and board of control in the house. The board of control bill passed the house with all the amendments and now goes to the governor. The bill provides for a board of control consisting of three persons, holding for two, four and six years. The term is really six years but the first ones will all be appointed by Governor Van Sant and the next two years will be elected by the people. The bill will remain in the house for six years so that it will make one apportionment for each gubernatorial term. This new board wipes out the board of corrections and charities; the board of education and now goes to the legislature. The new board of education will have to reform schools and reformatory schools as very materially clip the wings of the regents of the University. While there was a good deal of opposition at the outset, in the end it was agreed the bill was good, so good, so good.

There is a bill pending in the house which places the street railway company under the control of the railroad and warehouse commission. The Twin City Rapid Transit Company has desired to do this before the railroad committee in opposition to the Bill. Illness and death of the mother of the attorney who was to appear for the railroad caused his absence from the city and an effort was made to give him an opportunity to come before the committee. This request the house refused.

The house committee to investigate the alleged corruption in connection with the railroad gross earnings bill had begun to get into business after getting to Illinois in the family of Mr. Washburn, who made the affidavit on which Mr. Talcott based his charges.

The same bill, all bill having expressed themselves 6 per cent on their earnings after they have paid for the railroad carfare.

A bill increasing $20,000 for the reformatory at St. Cloud was offered. The bill increasing the salary of the assistant auditors general from $1,500 to $1,550 was defeated.

The senate seems inclined to do all manner of things to the primary election bill. It has been introduced and is liable to stand off and on until added congressional and judicial districts. There was a good deal of opposition to the bill, however, and the conference of the house is very doubtful.

Senators have voted and approved in finding the sum of $20,000 for carrying on the state government.

The bill increasing the salary of the fire warden was defeated in the senate.

St. Paul, March 30.—The greatest fight of the session terminated in the house yesterday by the passage of the bill increasing the tax on railroad gross earnings from 3 to 4 per cent by a vote of 78 to 36. This bill was supposed to be irreversibly dead last week, but friends of the railroad, reasoning it and when it was readied on its merits the members did not care to vote against it.

The house committee on public buildings reported out the capital bill giving a million dollars to the new capital, with the recommendation that it be passed. Attorney General Griggs told me of his first visit to the supreme court chamber. It was years ago, according to Collier's Weekly, he was a young and green lawyer. He had been sent to Washington except the congressmen from his district. This congressman took him to the supreme courtroom and the slender young lawyer sat and looked at the nine clerks. "I am the youngest on earth," he says he heard a sigh and said to himself, "Before I die I want the honor of standing here once."

That was in 1873. Little did the young lawyer then think that he was going to have the great privilege not only of addressing the court, but of becoming the greatest orator on earth. He died in 1891.

The senate yesterday thought better of initiating the state offices, congressional and judicial candidates, the primary election law, and reconsidered the amendment adopted Tuesday, passing those portions and the joint resolution which made the special order due next Tuesday.

St. Paul, April 1.—Though there are only eleven more working days of the legislative session, there was a bare majority present Saturday in either senate or house, and by common consent no attempt was made to pass bills.

Senator Stockton introduced a bill appropriating $20,000 for new buildings for the deaf, dumb and blind, and their maintenance at Faribault. He took a large delegation to Faribault yesterday (Sunday) to show them what he wants with the money.

After a long discussion the senate recommended a bill to pass forbidding parties who secured a divorce from marrying again for十四 years.

In the house a bill was introduced repealing the law just passed creating a tax commission. The bill was not taken seriously. The house is getting restive over the delay of the committee appointed to investigate it. It is proposed to have take place in connection with the gross earnings tax bill that is to be introduced instead of the first four years being required work, the four years' course will be divided into forty-eight term subjects, of which twenty-four will be compulsory, to be taken, however, as far as during the four years, and the other twenty-four to electives, as at present.

One of the bills offered in the house makes being a habitual criminal a crime punishable by imprisonment. The number of convictions a person has undergone determines whether he is a habitual criminal.

St. Paul, April 2.—The Senate did not meet yesterday until in the afternoon and the entire session was occupied by the reading and first reading of bills. Only 25 bills were introduced, though it was the last day for the introduction of bills without the request of the governor. Two years ago 55 bills were introduced in the senate on the last day.

In the house only 15 bills were introduced, which is much below the usual number on the last day. As all of these bills have to be read at length, a very considerable portion of the session was thus occupied.

Strange as it may seem, there was not a bill of great importance offered in either house, with the exception of one concerning the maximum railroad rates for transporting grain of any kind, potatoes and coal from any point in the state to St. Paul, Minneapolis or Duluth.

Governor Van Sant sent in a message vetoing the bill which provides for a uniform system of accounting at the various state institutions.

All the state now centers in the omnibus appropriation bill, which calls for $20,000. The committee meets every afternoon to consider the bill and await if possible the increase of the tax levy.

REMARKABLE PAT HANDS.

Five Full Ones That Contained a Wonderfully Combination of Numbers.

Inner club circles have been regaled with a story of a recent sitting at draw poker, in which five well-known clubmen took part, says the Baltimore Sun.

It was at the home of one of the members. Two new packs of cards were brought out, the seal of one was cut and the cards were dealt around to secure the dealer for the opening hand. This done, the second pack of cards was opened and shuffled by one of the party, who handed it to the dealer, who also shuffled. The pack was then tendered for the usual cut, which was done. Around a jackpot had been agreed upon.

The player who had first say was an insurance man, and he promptly opened.

Next was a grain merchant, who raised the offer of $100,000. The insurance man then called for a change ante and he saw the raise and went the limit but quietly met all that had been bid and raised $100,000.

Then came the railroader, who was the dealer. There was a pause, and each player inspected his cards with a self-satisfied air. The railroad man broke the silence by meeting all bids and raising them the limit.

Everybody was surprised to find out how many cards were wanted and each player in turn said none. The dealer took note. He made a nominal bet and the call was passed all around.

At the show-down the hand in each case was a full house, the beginning with the first to the left of the dealer, as follows:

Sixes and deuces, eights and tens and fives, aces and fives.

The railroad man was the winner. He had the cards as held by each player framed and each played has a photograph of them as a series of phenomenal sequence in a game of poker.

To the Supreme Court;

After his great speech on the colonial test case had been delivered in the supreme court the other day, and he had received the congratulations of many members of the bar and press, Attorney General Griggs told me of his first visit to the supreme court chamber. ## MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Change.

At a meeting of the faculty of the university a change was proposed in the curriculum which, if adopted, will revolutionize the system of university work. The amendment was offered by Professor Woodbridge, and recommends the introduction of the semester plan and eastern college groups.

Along with this change is proposed the abolishment of all degrees except that of bachelor of arts, this to be conferred upon students who have completed forty-eight four-hour subjects during their careers. It is proposed to have a degree instead of the first four years being required work, the four years' course will be divided into forty-eight term subjects, of which twenty-four will be compulsory, to be taken, however, as far as during the four years, and the other twenty-four to electives, as at present.

THE MARKETS.

The P.C.R.T.

The annual report of the Twin City Rapid Transit company of Minneapolis for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1900, has been compiled and shows that the company is in an exceedingly prosperous condition.

Gross earnings for 1900 were $2,830,575, an increase of 13.62 per cent, and net earnings $10,341.04, an increase of 20.21 per cent.

After paying dividends on preferred stock the surplus $70,591.04, and from two dividends of 12½ per cent each, amounting to $450,000, have been paid on the common stock, leaving a balance of $355,591.04 to be added to surplus account and for the improvement of the year.

MELDOW LAWN.

Water! Water! plenty of water. Mr. Charles Purdy has moved to his farm again. We wish him success.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franklin report over a young daughter, that arrived at their house, on Monday April 1.

We understand that some of the farmers are hauling their logs out of the mill yard to Collins, so have them sawed. That hardly looks right.

We understand that Mr. Elbridge has purchased a team; one horse formerly owned by Mr. Purdy, the other by Mr. Holter, which make a fine driving team.

Mr. Mathews took a trip to Beeson on Monday. He says that the frost is fast leaving the ground and that his wagon cut in to the axles in some places.

Mrs. Haun and daughter Lois departed on Wednesday last for the Island to visit the bedside of their father and grandfather, who is not expected to live, being 84 years of age.

Results. Immediate and lasting before and after trying other remedies use Rock Mountain Tea this month. Will keep you well all summer. A great spring blessing. Breckenridge.

WILLOW RIVER.

Rev. Knutson preached last Sunday morning and evening to a crowded house.

The men working in the planting mill began work at 6 a. m. since April 1st.

The snow is going fast and in a few days the village streets will have a summertime appearance.

P. N. Hanson, of Minneapolis, an old real estate man, has engaged himself with H. A. Beddoe, in the land office.

Mr. A. L. Ahlstrom, who has been getting out posts and cord wood near here this winter has gone to Glenco to remain for the summer.

Mr. H. H. Schoumachers, from McLeod County, has purchased a tract of land east of town, and will soon move on with his family and begin improvements.

Miss Minnie Pettit, who has been teaching school west of town, has gone to Washington to get a home stand among the big firs. Miss Paddock, of Minneapolis, has taken her place.

You will waste time if you cure rheumatism or dyspepsia by starving yourself. That only makes you weaker and less able to bear up against your disease. You always need plenty of good food properly digested. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure in the result of years of scientific research for something that would not only cure the disease but never touch it again. It is the only remedy that will do it. J. Y. Breckenridge.

Pokagon Lake.

Mr. T. A. Barnes is hunting and addition to his dwelling 12 x 14 feet.

Seymour Drew, who have been leaving and saving at Quarry, have closed operations for the season.

The Holmstrom Bros., who have been working for Seymour Drew, returned home the first of the week.

Stockholm Anderson, of fish lake, came up on Wednesday to visit his two sons P. H. and A. W. and his daughter, Mrs. Fred Norstrom.

Pineapple lake will open up earlier this year than ever before, as the ice is very thin and unless we get some cold weather the ice will crumble before long.

Sherry Grant and Darwin Bartlett commenced building logs on Wednesday morning. They hauled in a basswood log on Thursday, this measured over two and through.

Mrs. Bowler, our school teacher, closed a very successful six months school. School closed on last Friday afternoon, a picture was given. In the afternoon and in the evening the young people had a pleasant time skipping the light lanterns.

VILLAGE ELECTION.

At the village election held Tuesday the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: The vote for President was a tie between Julius Dwyer and R. P. Allen. Councilmen, Jos. Veverka, Dr. H. L. Wiseman, Ed. Madden, F. J. Rybak and A. G. Binger, Treasurer; Geo. Kiel, Recorder, Z. M. Edwards, Assessor, Plus. I. Heyward, Justice of the Peace, E. Vienhoven, Street Commissioner, A. Rauden.

On Wednesday evening the council met and decided the tie vote for President according to the village charter which says that in case of a tie in any election the council shall meet and decide the tie by casting lots. At the above mentioned time the council met and the names of the two candidates were put into a hat and Councilman Veverka drew out the name of R. P. Allen and he was declared elected to the office of President for the ensuing year. R. P. Allen is a progressive young business man, one who has the interests of the village at heart and should make a good President. If the council and President work in harmony, and each try to be the best they can, everything in the village will move along smoothly and the village will prosper under the new board.

Money expended judiciously, even if the village is run in debt, is better than to have things go on in a shabby manner for the fear of spending too much money. It is to be hoped that the new board will see to it that the streets are graded so that when we have a little soft weather the sidewalks will not be covered with water. It would be a very easy matter to drain the streets of the village so that the water would all be carried to the lake or river and then the streets would not be a mud puddle after every little shower of rain, and we would not have to wear rubber boots on the sidewalk in order to keep our feet dry. Money spent in work on the streets, if spent judiciously is a good investment, no matter how much is used.

You can get any kind of seeds you want at Madden's.

—Remember when in need of job work, that the Pioneer competes with the cities.

Prof. Iverson, of Lanesboro, Md., suffered terribly from neuralgia of the stomach and indigestion for thirteen years and after the doctors failed to cure him, he turned to an irregular life of indulgence, and after taking a few bottles of it he says, "It has cured me entirely. I can't say too much for Kodol Dyspepsia Cure." It digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the food you want. If you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, belching or any other stomach trouble, this preparation can help but do you good. The most sensitive stomachs can eat it. J. Y. Breckenridge.

Have you seen those nobly walking skirts at the Big Store.

The stomach controls the situation. Those who are hearty and strong are those who can eat and digest plenty of food. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the food you want. If you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, belching or any other stomach trouble, this preparation can help but do you good. The most sensitive stomachs can eat it. J. Y. Breckenridge.

—Buy your Salt at Madden's.

Pug children with weak constitutions can attain an unusual degree of bodily and mental vigor by taking Rocky Mountain Tea this month made by the Madam Medicine Co., Inc. Breckenridge.

The miraculous cures of rheumatism and disorders made by Matt J. Johnson's Great Blood and Rheumatic Cure, 608½ Sixty Eighty-Eighth in this locality, are making the remedy very popular in this section.

We will open up for the inspection of the citizens of Pine City and vicinity in the Miller building, on May 1st, 1901, a full and complete line of clothing and Gent's furnishings.

The snow in the park is about all gone and as soon as practicable the dead leaves and the dirt that has accumulated during the past winter should be raked up so that the new grass will come up soon and the park will be nice and green.

See that you get the original DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve when you ask for it. The general is a certain cure for piles, sores and skin diseases. J. Y. Breckinridge.

Personal.

People coming, going and gone.

Mrs. H. O'Brien spent the fore part of the week in Minneapolis.

Nelson Sherwood, of Rock Creek, was a county seat caller on Thursday.

Anthony Foster, of Willow River, was a county seat caller on Wednesday.

R. J. Hawley came down from Kerrick on Saturday afternoon with an insane man.

R. Bacon is doing the mason work on W. Kuebeck's new restaurant and bakery.

Mrs. J. C. Hunt, of Montana, visited friends in this place the latter part of last week.

C. Tether, principal of the Tayger's Falls school, was in this place on business, Saturday last.

Miss Gothic Wheeler, of Atwater, visited at the residence of Jas. Hurley the fore part of the week.

Henry Glusow, who came down with the remains of Geo. Williams last week, returned to his labors up north Virginia City on Monday.

The roads around town are drying up in fine shape, and it will not be a short time before the dust will be flying. As soon as the snow is gone the citizens should go to work and clean up around their residences burning what is combustible, and what won't burn, take to the village dumping ground on the north side of the river.

The greatest grass seed, Brotnus Inermis, for sale at Madden's.

On Monday afternoon quite a little excitement was created in the southeastern part of the village by Mrs. Albert Richardson moving her household goods into the house which Albert gave to the squaw whom he lived for a number of years, and from where he was buried at the time of his death. The court gave the property to Mrs. Richardson, and Monday morning, without any warning she moved a load of her household goods down to what is known as the squaw a house and ordered the squaw out of the house. The squaw refused to go and Mrs. Richardson sent for Sheriff Hawley to come and eject the squaw, but when the sheriff got there he found that he could do nothing without a writ of execution.

—Mrs. Smith of Hutchinson, foster-mother of Miss Shearer, arrived in this place on Wednesday last to remain to visit a few days with Miss Shearer.

Arthur Schultz, who has been at work in the woods during the past winter, returned home the fore part of the week to stay until time for the log drive.

Miss Jones the Evangelist will preach both morning and evening at the M. E. Church Sunday. The Easter program will be held from seven to eight, p.m. All are cordially invited.

Alfred Rice, John Nevil, J. C. Hunt and M. H. Nason, departed on Thursday for Mont., where they there found that he could do nothing without a writ of execution.

I had planned to get no rest nor any amusement I read DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. After using it once, I forgot I ever had anything like piles.—E. C. Boice, Somers Point, N. Y. Look out for imitations. Be sure you ask for DeWitt's. J. Y. Breckinridge.

—LeRoy Welty, the gentlemanly traveling salesman of the Zenith Paper Co., of Duluth, visited his customers the latter part of last week. He reports times much better than they have been for some time back, but says that there is still room for improvement.

—P. V. McAllion arrived in this place with another car load of horses on Sunday night. He has some very fine horses in the bunch. The greater part of them are broken to drive single or double. Any one wishing to purchase a fine team for farm work should see Hodges & McAllion at First State Bank, Pine City, Minn.

—William Connor has begun the rebuilding of his house which was partially destroyed by fire some time ago. Will says that the department saved him a little over a hundred dollars, as the insurance company only docked him $179 from the face of his policy, and upon investigation the amount saved will come close to $300, which makes quite an item these hard times.

—F. A. Hodge and S. G. L. Roberts spent the fore part of the week in St. Paul, lobbying a bill before the Senate. The bill if passed as presented would cause Pine County to expend about $12,000 and they were down trying to defeat the bill. Mr. Hodge returned on Wednesday morning and Mr. Roberts on the night train Wednesday. The bill was to come up for passage yesterday afternoon.

* THE STORY OF A BONNET

I MADE me up my mind to wait for spring that Jenny-cum-Had named the day in her own sweet words, "when we would marry me."

She'd have the prettiest bonnet that ever the sun shone on.

One that would throw a rainbow seven times in the shade!"

Ever seen Jenny smilin'? Ever took note of her eyes?

I tel' you her eyes made 'em from little blue patches o' skies!

Just like the moon, an' I'm thinkin' when you see them look at me,

I see just all o' Heaven that ever I hope to see!

Well, I went down there to the city, an' I tol' the store folks plain,

I wanted the sweet bonnet that every comer in the land had.

An' I paid out money for it, though any contender words,

It will all come back with roses, an' ribbons,

an' all them birds,

But now the trouble's a-comin'—she was all in deep distress;

How was a ten-dollar bonnet to go with a old coat?

Mother—she's kinder than her head, said

"Would be 'out o' place,"

An' I paid out money for it, though any con-

tender words,

It will all come back with roses, an' ribbons,

an' all them birds,

But her gran'ma came ter the rescue: "It's been seventy years," says she,

"Send me some money, and it'll be all right. It's good as it is to be."

I've seen a heath! It stirred away—but it was a heath!

An' seen in to-morrow's the Easter day, we'll make it over for Jen!"

Jen threw her arms around her, till we heard the grans a-mayin'.

"Even if I had a heath, I'd git it right! She'll smother me that way!"

Go 'long an' git yer scissors, an' all o'er the town,

With a friend like that a wendiful dress is just what'll set you right!"

An' it did! An' seen? she looked so sweet when she come in, all dressed up, an' when we met in the room, When mavin' over, the license do the person was sayin' foun'!

An' I paid out a levin' Jenny any the more,

an' less,

Kate I married her Easter mornin' in grand manner,

—B. L. Hartman, in Atlanta Constitution.

BLOSSOM'S EASTER DAY

LILIES did not grow in the Easter court. The only superfluous articles which the children who lived there knew anything about were lots of cotton, cotton and waste papers, squalor, misery and unhappiness there were in plenty, but no flowers, no Sabbath days, no happy children—that is, excepting Blossom—Blossom, whose long-lashed violet eyes and shining curly hair like a bit of heartsease whose little critch went tapping through the halls all day, and who sat on the rickety stairs at nightfall ready to call out a cheery greeting to her mother when she turned into the dark alley.

Blossom was very rich. Her mother and father were the wealthier people on the avenue and, besides, Blossom's mother had not always lived in the alley. So when Blossom's glad cry, "Hurry up, mamma, I'm waiting for you," would ring out on the foul air, the alley children would turn their heads and look with wondering, wistful eyes at the scene which never failed to take place. Blossom's mother was never too tired to kiss the winsome face and Blossom's arm always caught her mother in a rapturous embrace. Then they went in and shut the door, and the alley children were so poor, so poor.

Out in the great city the Easter story was being told again and again one Saturday evening, and after her bit of work was done Blossom's mother told her a new story of a little girl who, ever so long ago, went to church on Easter morning, and while she listened to the lilies and palms while the minister preached to the big people.

It was a fine old church, with a great organ, and windows so beautiful that the sun made violet, and gold, and purple lights on the floor. "And the little girl sat there in her white dress that she didn't know, my Blossom, that some day she would grow up and have great trouble."

"Poor blossom," exclaimed Blossom, and then she fell to cuddling the hard hand in her sweet bay way and with the exquisite imagery of childhood went to the beautiful church herself, hearing the wonderful music, and seeing the lights and flowers. The vision filled her walking thoughts, her prayers and her dreams. She lay down to sleep, awake with the sun of Easter morning shining across her face, there was a tremulous hope in her heart that down in the alley she would hear some one crying: "Christ is risen to-day," and then the response: "He is risen indeed," just as her mother used to hear it in her old home.

But Blossom heard only wicked and evil words, so she went back to her world of "make believe" and said blithely to her mother: "Now put on your prettiest dress, mamma, and I'll put on my white dress, and the lace cap, and the little slippers with big bows, and we'll go to church and hear the big organ and O mamma, couldn't we do it honest truth—for sure, I mean?"

"I am afraid Blossom, that you'd look queer in a blue church; and the organ music, please," coaxed the child, sitting up in bed, her little hands held out pleadingly.

A torturing wave of homesickness swept over Blossom's mind, and only could give she answered, and her little hands said cheerily: "Well, mamma, I'll take care of you." Then they both laughed as if there were no heavy shadows? Tastion court, and nothing by joy and love in the world on Easter morning.

"We shall have to start early, then, dear, before the people go to church, and you shall see the lilies and the organ music, and have a happy Easter by ourselves," said her mother.

After one awestruck whisper, Blossom did not speak again to her mother. She felt as if she must have died and gone to Heaven, for never in her happy life had she known such a dreamless anything so beautiful as that which she saw on entering the church. They sat down under the gallery and Blossom's mother white-faced and weary, laid her head on her mother's shoulder and closed her eyes. There was a lump in the child's throat; her pleasure gave her even pain. The organist was playing a slow sweet melody that thrrobbed through the child's heart. The organist, Blossom unable to control her tears, stood up leaning heavily on her crutch and wiping her eyes with her little coarse handkerchief.

As early worshiper, a lady whose cradle draperies floated about her like a cable mound, down the aisle, her laying one caressing hand on the top of the crutch and the other on Blossom's shining head. Blossom did not start, for she had, recently, seen a woman nothing could surprise her, but she looked up into the fair, haughty face and smiled through her tears.

"Dear Blossom," it ran, "I want to send you some flowers from the little boy that he wishes you to have. These flowers to all your friends in Eastern court to help them remember that there is no darkness where Jesus is."

Blossom sat with her hands folded over her knee, looking down at the mass of blossoms at her feet. "It all

She felt as if she must have died and gone to Heaven, for never in her happy life had she known such a dreamless anything so beautiful as that which she saw on entering the church. They sat down under the gallery and Blossom's mother white-faced and weary, laid her head on her mother's shoulder and closed her eyes. There was a lump in the child's throat; her pleasure gave her even pain. The organist was playing a slow sweet melody that thrrobbed through the child's heart. The organist, Blossom unable to control her tears, stood up leaning heavily on her crutch and wiping her eyes with her little coarse handkerchief.

As early worshiper, a lady whose cradle draperies floated about her like a cable mound, down the aisle, her laying one caressing hand on the top of the crutch and the other on Blossom's shining head. Blossom did not start, for she had, recently, seen a woman nothing could surprise her, but she looked up into the fair, haughty face and smiled through her tears.

"Dear Blossom," it ran, "I want to send you some flowers from the little boy that he wishes you to have. These flowers to all your friends in Eastern court to help them remember that there is no darkness where Jesus is."

Blossom sat with her hands folded over her knee, looking down at the mass of blossoms at her feet. "It all

"What is the matter, little girl?" the lady asked, in a voice so musical that

"I am afraid Blossom, that you'd look queer in a blue church; and the organ music, please," coaxed the child, sitting up in bed, her little hands held out pleadingly.

"Well, mamma, I'll take care of you."

Then they both laughed as if there were no heavy shadows? Tastion court, and nothing by joy and love in the world on Easter morning.

"We shall have to start early, then, dear, before the people go to church, and you shall see the lilies and the organ music, and have a happy Easter by ourselves," said her mother.

After one awestruck whisper, Blossom did not speak again to her mother. She felt as if she must have died and gone to Heaven, for never in her happy life had she known such a dreamless anything so beautiful as that which she saw on entering the church. They sat down under the gallery and Blossom's mother white-faced and weary, laid her head on her mother's shoulder and closed her eyes. ## THE HORSES' FRIEND

Mrs. Conover, Widow of an American, can, Works a Reform at Paris.

By Determined and Persistent Effort
She Puts a Stop to the Shameful Abuse of Horses by Catherines.

Thanks to a woman Davis played an unusual part in the other day when several thousand city car drivers were the guests of the Society for the Protection of Animals at a public banquet. This function was the direct result of the individual efforts of Mrs. Anna Conover, though Danish by birth, she is the widow of a former secretary of Washington who was once secretary of the American legation in Madrid.

Mrs. Conover was for many years a resident of London, where she became a local celebrity as the manager of the Olympia theater. Retiring from theatrical life a few years ago, she settled in London, where she was prominent in many human and anti-animal scenes. Coming to Paris in 1886, just for a brief visit, she was horrified at the cruel treatment of the horses. She talked to everybody and wrote to the newspapers, urging a citizen's movement to abate the cruelty. She met on all sides the same reply:

"There is no use of doing anything. It is impossible to correct the evil. Frenchmen are instinctively cruel to animals."

Undeterred, Mrs. Conover began a vigorous campaign. Alone she elicited the protest of police and obtained the issuance of orders to arrest cattlemen maltreating their horses. Then she paraded the principal thoroughfares, alert for any who would. However crossed the roadway. Mrs. Conover was unfeared. When she ordered an arrest policemen found that no trifling was allowed.

Instead of returning to London she remained here until every policeman and every member of the public knew her at first glance. Her fame soon spread, until the constant reiteration by the newspapers of the work she was doing won the English speaking colony's cordial support. Then many names of the famous of Germany became interested and lent the prestige of their names to the movement. At this juncture somebody discovered there was a society for the protection of animals already existing. Shamed into action, this organization fell into line. Mrs. Conover, who finally conceived the project of appealing to the hearts of the 20,000 Paris cabbies through their stomachs. Wednesday's banquet was the result. Prizes were distributed to those cabbies tenderest to their tired steeds.

REMARKABLE LION FIGHT.

British Attacks Five Beastia Singe Hand and Kills Two of Them, But Is Finally Injured.

Now the most remarkable lion fight on record comes to London from a correspondent in northern Rhodesia. Mr. Johnstone, a collector of customs in the employ of the British Chartered South Africa company, was out hunting and shot a buck. As the buck ran from the scene, the grizzly sprang after him, which commenced to eat the buck. Mr. Johnstone, not to be robbed of his dinner, went into action with his magazine rifle, killed one lion and wounded another. The remaining three fled. The wounded lion, enraged, attacked the hunter, who had to run for his life. He called for another gun, but his native followers had gone. The police with him fired a wild volley and retreated. Mr. Johnstone sought a nearby tree and was nearly out of reach when the lion caught him and pulled him down. Mr. Johnstone put his left arm around the lion's mouth and gave a sledging blow with his right hand on the animal's head. Squeezed at the resistance the lion relinquished his attack. Dropping himself against the tree, Mr. Johnstone, in spite of his maimed arm, pulled out a cartridge, fired and took the lion right between the eyes, killing him. Three weeks later Mr. Johnstone died of blood poisoning from his mangled arm.

ONLY QUEEN WEARS WHITE.
This is the Color Chosen by Wilhelmmina Until the Date of Her Marriage.

According to established custom in Holland, Queen Wilhelmina is wearing only white from the date of her betrothal to that of her marriage. Court etiquette decrees that no other lady in the royal family should be dressed in white at the same time and maid ladies were ignorant of this extraordinary law, at a recent reception they were compelled to return to their homes and add some touch of color to their toilets before being admitted to the presence of their youthful sovereign.

The superb brocade mantilla and for the royal wedding dress cost about $36 a yard. The Dutch residents in England are sending as a wedding present to the queen of Holland a handsome silver dinner service, designed by Sir Alms-Tadema.

Education in the United States.
There are 24,257 schoolhouses, dormitories and other buildings in the United States devoted to education. The young men who are engaged to marry are the young men who are likely to be more interested in his blossoming than he is in his prospective bride every time he visits The Hague says the Chicago Times-Herald, if the cable reports are correctly.

OWES LIFE TO MISS WILSON,
London Wonder If Count Standard Will Wed His Beautiful Rescuer.

People are asking who was the blazoned Miss Wilson rescued on the train going down to Chatsworth, in England. He is no other than Count Standard, London's most seducing man, first secretary of the Austrian embassy and a cousin of the queen.

Miss Muriel, who is beautiful, talented and the best amateur actress in the day, was a guest of the Society for the Protection of Animals at a public banquet. This function was the direct result of the individual efforts of Mrs. Anna Conover, though Danish by birth, she is the widow of a former secretary of Washington who was once secretary of the American legation in Madrid.

MARKED COIN COMES BACK.

Reunions After Twenty-Five Years of Wandering to the Original Owner.

Twenty-five years ago, while working in the blacksmith shop of J. W. Shetter, at Stoughton, Wis., Harry Hawman, former chief of police of Sioux City, stamped the letters "W. S." on his master's coat of mail on half-dollar. This was the same name, without any doubt, he handed to him over the counter of his fish market in Sioux City, Ia. The coin had been worn smooth by constant handling during the quarter of a century. In that period of time it had perhaps been the pocket of thousands of persons and may have traveled miles across the country and back only to land finally in the hands of the man who had marked it with letters of an unmistakable character.

Never was a man more completely surprised than was Harry Hawman. In spite of the fact that he had not thought of since he last saw it, he recognized it at once and his mind flashed back over the quarter of a century. He proposes to keep it now.

PLANT PECANS.

Agricultural Department Will Seek to Encourage the Industry Among Farmers.

A collection of 15 varieties of pecans has just been made by the state agricultural department with a view to encouraging the growth of these nuts more generally. Now almost our entire production of pecans comes from Louisiana and Texas, and from these fields the director has got his finest specimens.

It is the intention to propagate a number of these varieties by seed planting and obtaining slips or sprouts from the southern territory which is most prolific and during the next year distribute them in parts of the country where it is thought they may prove.

It is the opinion of the director of plant industry that almost any nut known to man can be cultivated in some part of our variable climate, and it is his intention to follow this experiment with others.

BURGESS ON the Old Man.

George Landon Baker tells a good story on himself. When his son had completed his education at Ann Arbor he announced his intention of going into the newspaper business. "Why don't you come into my office and see me?" the senator asked. "Because, father," the young man replied, "I don't believe an honest man can be a lawyer."
