WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, October 25th, 1901.

President Roosevelt returned to the White House on Thursday bringing with him his daughter, Miss Alice Roosevelt. Miss Roosevelt's baggage, which consisted of three small square oak chests, with iron-bound covers which would have done credit to an old sea-dog of a naval officer, was quite indicative of the complete freedom from conventional restraint of this thoroughly independent family. Not since the days of Nellie Grant has there been a debutante in the Presidential household. But now Miss Alice Roosevelt has come to fill that social role and her advent is something of a sensation with the young people of the Capital elite. She is not a strikingly handsome girl, but is sensible, gracious and full of bright progressive ideas. Roosevelt independence is so clearly a part of her make up and methods that it may be not altogether a fiction that she has said if Washington social fashions do not please her she will "just set up some new ones that will."

The fine trio of Kentucky horses ordered for the use of President Roosevelt, failed to measure up to the critical inspection of that gentleman, for he is something of an expert in judging horse flesh. He found one of them weak in limb and that another, belonging to the party that his wife was to use, was unsafe for woman and children. The horses were promptly returned to the disappointed dealer and now the President has sent a commission down into Virginia to find suitable animals. The White House children are rejoicing over a thoroughbred shaggy Shetland pony, which is a beauty, and a dog cart that is "just a dream on wheels," as young Icarus dubs it.

By the way, the President has requested the officials who prepare documents for his signature to date them simply from the White House. He has a democratic preference for that name over the less distinctive title "Executive Mansion." Mr. Roosevelt has a strain of royal blood in his veins, but it does not run in hereditary pomp or castellated nomenclature.

A distinguished visitor at the White House on Saturday was Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore. This learned prelate, who is the head of the Roman Catholic church in the United States, called to pay his respects to the new President and, perhaps, to learn something in general terms of the attitude of the executive on pending Catholic church problems in the Philippine Islands. The interview was brief, but cordial, and the Cardinal evidently obtained assurances that the government would deal with issues in the Islands in which his church is interested in a spirit of exact impartiality and justice.

The hearing of testimony in the Schley inquiry is nearing a close. Admiral Schley is upon the stand and has given so far, a clean and circumstantial account of all his actions in the campaign on Cimarron and Santiago. The Court seems to be pretty eager to hear him tell his story. There is an intense interest in the progress and outcome of the case from one end of the country to the other. Scarcely both the popular and of the contact so far as the press and public are concerned. But whichever way the Dewey verdicts are there will be disappointed in wide circles and perhaps a renewal of reminiscences that may call for either executive or Congressional action to put an end to the miserable personal feud in the navy.

army and navy officials belong. The open criticisms uttered here against his rulings in the pending hearing have annoyed him exceedingly and he has made his protest against such injustice by resigning the official headship of the organization. In this action he has manifested a spirited resentment that has won general praise from the press of his fairness throughout the entire course of hearing.

The Treasury is "overflowing with filthy lucre." The daily receipts show a surplus of $200,000 a day over all expenses, which means that Uncle Sam is taxing his people about $70,000,000 a year more than is necessary. On the first of November he will send out to the bond holders $2,769 check to pay interest due on that date. Likewise a large platoon of Congressmen are coming up in December with bills for appropriations or reductions that will make the great surplus look like thirty cents in Spanish silver. Meanwhile, the Treasury officials are preparing to revamp and apply General Grant's epigram that "a surplus is easier to handle than a deficit."

The temperance people, anti-saloonists and W. C. T. U. have held meetings covering the whole week. They talked like the zealots that they are and prophesied the success of their cause in a day not dim and distant, with superb enthusiasm. The reports made report of much progress in abating saloons in all parts of the country and represented that anti-saloon sentiment and legislation have both revived notably in the past year. Washington city has been held down to about 500 saloons or one to every hundred of the adult male population. Therefore, gentlemen in the several states who are figuring on breaking into Congress next year, need not quit the track for fear they will find this city a Sahara for thirsty statesmen.

A notable event of the week has been the meeting of the General Council of Scottish Rite Masons of Thirty-Third and 2nd degree. The Convention contained the most distinguished Masons of the Union. A new "Grand Commander" was chosen in the person of Congressman James D. Richards, of Tenn., who thereby becomes the most exalted mason in the world, ranking even with King Edward of England. His election to this high place in the Masonic world is a deserved recognition of his great ability and devotion as a Mason. The Convention also dedicated the splendid statue of Albert Pike, which the Masons have erected in this city.

The coming season in Washington promises to be more than normally brilliant both politically and socially. There are great questions to occupy the attention of Congress and their agitation will keep the Capital well filled with the lions and lionesses from all parts of the country. Indeed this city is rapidly becoming the great winter center of the nation.

Leon F. Czolgosz Is Electrocuted for the Assassination of President McKinley.

Said in the Chair He Was Not Sorry for the Crime.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 29.—At 7:12 this morning Leon Czolgosz, murderer of President William McKinley, paid the extreme penalty enacted by law for his crime. He was shocked to death by 1,700 volts of electricity. He went to the chair in exactly the same manner as have the majority of murderers in any state, particularly in this one, a few of them have done—talking to the witnesses while he was being strapped in the chair. He said the president became an enemy of the good people—the good working people. I am not sorry for my crime. I was not sorry for the guards hurried him into the chair.

A moment later, mumbering through the half-adjusted face straps, he said: "I am awfully sorry I could not see my father."

Rev. Cordell Herrick, chaplain of the prison, was in the death chamber when the call that might be made for his services. He was not wanted by the prisoner, however.

The clothing and personal effects of the prisoner were burned shortly after the execution.

The physicians holding the autopsy decided, after a careful examination, that Czolgosz's brain was normal, if not above normal.

PEN-POINTS.

A lie is a handle that file many tools. Pain is the shadow that follows pleasure. Heaven never helps man who have that lied feeling. Politeness, like the hairs of a man's head, are numbered. Virtue is frequently the only reward because there are no questions asked. There is always a chance for a man to go higher if he has the ability to climb. A wise man can answer a lot of questions that a fool would not think of asking.

YIELDS ITS CLAIM.

Family Relinquishes Body of Czolgosz to Prison Authorities.

THE ASSASSIN'S LAST DAY OF LIFE.

How It Was Spent—Final Interview with His Brother—Deaths He Was Alone in His Awful Crime.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The body of Leon Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley, will not be removed from Auburn. Superintendent of State Prisons Cornelius V. Collins and Warden J. Warren Mead, after an hour of controversy with Czolgosz's brother, succeeded in obtaining from him the following relinquishment of the family claims to the remains when the execution shall have finished his work:

"Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 29, 1901.—J. Warren Mead, Agent and Warden, Auburn Prison. I hereby authorize you, as warden of Auburn prison, to dispose of the body of my brother, Leon F. Czolgosz, by burying it in the cemetery attached to the prison, as directed by the law of the state of New York.

"This request is made upon the express understanding that no part of the remains will be given to any person or society, but that the entire body will be buried in accordance with the law in the cemetery attached to the prison.

"WALDECK CZOLGOSZ."

"Witnesses: John A. Slicher, George E. Clarke."

Sensational offer.

The resolution of Superintendent Collins to prevent presentation of the transportation and burial or cremation of the body of Czolgosz took new zest from two offers that were submitted Monday by men of question.

WHERE CZOLGOSZ WILL BE EXECUTED.

Czolgosz spent his last day of life much as he did all the others since he passed into the hands of the law. The approach of death seemed to awaken no greater consciousness of his position than he again turned his back upon the priests who came to urge him to confess and repent, and was undemonstrative in the presence of those of his kin who came to say a last farewell to him.

When alone with his guards he remained silent and passed the time either lying on his bunk or in slowly pacing up and down the cell. He talked, when addressed, to those admitted near his cell, but with his old deliberation and aloofness. If he knew strong emotion at any time, he was successful in concealing it from those who watched over him. The prison guards combated the suggestion that his stolidity was a haze of fear, and that the hour of execution would find him helplessly broken down. The prisoner suffered a loss of appetite during the day at the usual allowance of food given to prisoners. Throughout his entire confinement he has had a good appetite, and his physical condition has been excellent. He weighs about 155 pounds, which was thought to represent a slight gain since his arrest.

Preparations in Death Chamber.

Late in the afternoon the autopsy table was wheeled into the room adjoining the death chamber. Under orders from the warden a coffin was also brought in. The latter is of plain pine, stained black. Czolgosz will be dressed in a very simple manner for the execution, a pair of blue trousers, a loose-fitting, simple outfit. He will wear no undergarments and no shoes. The left leg of the trousers will be adjusted to permit the free adjustment of the electrodes, and the shirt will be open at the neck; the doctors insist on being permitted to see the body should be any after the current is passed through the body.

LAST INTERVIEWS.

Assassins' Farewell Conversation with Relatives Brief.

Czolgosz held his last two interviews Monday. The first was with Superintendent Collins and the second with his brother and brother-in-law. Both of the interviews were brief and the interview of the question of religion was mentioned, when Czolgosz broke from his seeming lethargy and violently denounced the clergy and the clergy and made his relatives promise that there should be no service for him living or dead.

Prior to the late evening interviews,

Czolgosz reluctantly received Father Padinski and occurred after the afternoon and occurred after he had once refused to meet them. When they reached the prison, Superintendent Collins conveyed the persistent Collins consented to an interview to the priest. Czolgosz sent back word that he did not care to see them, but the priests asked to see him, despite his refusal. Superintendent Collins consented and personally escorted them to the cell. The priests remained with Czolgosz for three-quarters of an hour and personally pleaded with the prisoner to repent and pray for Divine forgiveness. He rejected all their advances, however, and they left the cell. They told themselves they would hold themselves ready to answer a call from him at any hour of the night. It was sent into the death house and tried to get the prisoner to talk to him. Although he remained in the cell some time he was getting no satisfaction from getting anything material from him.

Was Alone in His Crime.

At eight o'clock the brother and brother-in-law were taken down to the condemned man's cell. There was no demonstration when they met Czolgosz merely stepped to the front of his steel cage and said:

"Hello."

The brother ventured the remark: "I wish you were very nervous, he got you into this scrape?" The assassin answered in a slow, hesitating manner:

"No one. Nobody had anything to do with it but me."

"That is not how we were brought up," said the brother, "and you ought to tell us everything now."

"I have nothing to tell," he answered, in a surly manner.

"Do you want to see the priests again?" asked his brother. And he answered, with a certain reluctance that he had previously shown:

"No, d—n them; don't send them here again; I don't want them."

The brother-in-law interjected here: "That's right, Leon."

The brother looked rather disturbed by the answer. Then stepping up to the bars the brother here, giving the prison authorities the disposal of the body.

Wanted to Be Present.

There was a painful pause of a few minutes and then the relatives resumed casual conversation with him to which he replied in monosyllables until the brother-in-law suggested, much to Superintendent Collins' surprise, that he should accompany him to witness the execution. Before Superintendent Collins could reply Leon Czolgosz said: "Yes, Mr. Superintendent, let them see me killed."

Superintendent Collins told the trio in emphatic terms that no such thing could be allowed, and ordered them to say good-bye.

Czolgosz walked to the back of his cell, sat down on the edge of his cot and did not answer the last farewell. When the relatives reached the warden's office they again renewed their request to see the execution, to which Mr. Collins replied: "Emphatically no. The law will be killed at seven o'clock to-day, and if you apply to the warden in the afternoon you may be able to see the body."

The two men were then let out of the prison.

A few minutes after they had left Superintendent Collins received a telephone message from the chief of police of Cleveland announcing that the father of the convicted man had signed an agreement similar to the one signed by the brother here, giving the prison authorities the disposal of the body.

EXTREMELY NERVOUS.

How the Assassin Spent His Last Day of Life.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Czolgosz suffered a slight nervous attack late Monday afternoon, but the prison officials do not regard it in the light of a breakdown, and adhered to their agreement signed prohibits any entry to the chair and death. Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald and Prison Physician Fern visited the cell at six o'clock. They found the prisoner suffering from extreme nervousness that manifested itself in dilated eyes and free flowing perspiration. When they finished the examination the prisoner turned suddenly from them and retired into the corner of his cell, refusing to talk. They gave him no treatment and were of the opinion that, while he was very nervous, he did not show signs of absolute collapse. Czolgosz had just concluded a lengthy interview with Father Padinski and Hickey. There had been considerable traffic in the corridor leading to the death chamber, and the prison officials were inclined to ascribe to the prisoner's nervousness to those circumstances.

Aside from the break at nightfall,

Miss Amelia Court departed for Duluth on Wednesday.

Chas. F. Craig, the Impersonator, at Pioneer Hall this evening. Don't forget to hear him.

Smoke Sapharava 5c cigar.

These our pound packages of fine Japan Bond Paper for 5c, 10c, 15c, and envelopes to match at 10c, a bunch are just the thing for correspondents. At the Drug Store.

We are anxious to move out a little more small paper at half price. We have lots much on hand. Fine assortment at Wiseman & Co.

Don't forget the entertainment at the Pioneer House hall this evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Reading Club.

We acknowledge a pleasant call on Saturday last from Miss Flora Keer and her friend Miss Olson, of Grantsburg. Call again ladies.

Erna Endwarder, of Sandstone, came down the first of the week to be present at the funeral of Miss Blanche Scholter.

If you want to buy a good sewing machine or monthly payments, at a reasonable price, call in and see the ladies Wiseman & Co. carry.

Miss Alice McKusick, who has been in St. Paul for the past couple of months, came up the latter part of last week to spend a week or so with her parents and friends.

Funeral was received at this place the latter part of last week announcing the death of Mrs. Overman, who lives three and one half miles southwest of Rush City. The funeral was held on Sunday last. Mrs. M. Brantley and son Carl attending. Smoke Sapharava 5c cigar.

Have you noticed that Joe Bergain also came in the Drug Store.

Jacob Weekley and family, old residents, departed on Wednesday morning for Iowa to visit for a few days with Mr. Weekley's daughter, Mrs. Ackerman, of Waterloo, Iowa. Sometime they will visit his daughter, Mrs. Falkenstein, of Milwaukee, Wis., and after spending a few days at the metropolis of Wis., they will depart for Chattanooga, Tenn., where they will make their future home. On their way south they will stop at Fairbault and get Mr. Weekley's son, Jacob, who has been at school at that place.

We are taking orders for steam-bath suits, and if you need any you had better order now so you will get them in time. WISEMAN & Co.

Rev. Robt. Forbes, D. D., will preach in the M. E. church next Monday morning at 10-30. After preaching the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. The service commences at 7-15. Subject of the address, "Seeking Higher Things." Strangers and all invited to attend these services.

We are sorry to state that J. D. Vaughan, our popular clothier, is confined to his bed with an affection of the stomach. John has been a sufferer from stomach trouble for some time but was only compelled here to bed on Saturday last. His long friends hope that his illness will be of short duration, and that he will in a short time be able to attend to his business again.

Smoke Sapharava 5c cigar.

For farmers who have not got a lantern. We will store grain, three months free of charge.

Compressed yeast at the Big Store.

The report of the wedding of Miss Mary Wiseman to Mr. John Erickson, published in the PIONEER last week, was a mistake as we saw a letter from Miss Wiseman writing to her father, stating that she was still at work for the parties she went down to St. Paul to work for and that she was well and doing well. We were misinformed and take pleasure in correcting the error.

We acknowledge a pleasant call on Monday by Mrs. Frank Court and two daughters, Amelia and Carrie.

A new line of Lamps at the Big Store.

We are pleased to see our old friend Owen George, court stenographer, in this place again this week. Mr. George has been court stenographer here for quite a number of years and we are always pleased to see him.

Fresh Bread at the Big Store.

J. D. Wilcox, Jr., has purchased a new six horse power steam engine for cutting wood, and has cut quite a number of cords of wood for different parties in town. John does good work and charges only fifty cents a cord for sawing. All those having wood to saw should lay in their winter supply at this time and get John to saw it for them. We wish him success with his new engine.

Potatoes and hay continue to be brought to this place by the car load every day. The farmers find their hay and potatoes, but for everything that is raised on the farm, and it consequently gives our village a lively appearance which is just as it should be and as it would have been years ago if our citizens had not a move on themselves before.

Farmers, remember your grist work, and will guarantee the Best flour and a satisfactory deal.

Pine City Mill & Elev. Co.

Bargains in furniture at the Big Store.

Quite a number of the citizens of Hinkley and Sandstone were in the county seat on Tuesday, an adjourned term of court being in session at that time.

Smoke Sapharava 5c cigar.

Mrs. Ella Perkins came up from Hustletown on Monday and made us a pleasant call. This is the first time Mrs. Perkins has been in town since having the small-pox, and her many friends were pleased to see her again.

Don't wait until cold weather is on before ordering storm cash. Remember that it takes some time to fill orders for odd sizes.

Wiseman & Co.

We were informed Monday that Chas. Glanville had sold his farm at Hustletown to a Bohemian, but were unable to find out his name. Mr. Glanville had a good farm at Hustletown but decided to sell out as he is away from home and owing machine and the boys do not like farming, and the boys rather live in town. He will build a nice place in town or buy lots and build to suit himself.

We are glad to welcome Charles and family back as they were.

Bureaus and baby carriages at cost. Wiseman & Co.

Louis Steinbarr, who has been at work for Otto Hawkawak for the past seven years, departed last week and spent a few days in St. Paul visiting friends but came back the fore part of the week. He has not made up his mind what he will do, but says that he will remain in this place as he likes it better than any place he was ever in. Louis's many friends are sorry to see him leave Otto's, but are glad that he will still remain a resident.

SPECIAL SALE

all next week at the Big Store.

If you don't get a circular, call on the Big Store and get one.

A very pleasant party was given by the Misses Kate and Minnie Barndt to a few of their most intimate friends last Tuesday evening.

The occasion being in honor of the Mamie's birthday anniversary. The party was in the order of a candy-pull and the time was passed very pleasantly in pulling candy and playing games. Refreshments were served, after which all repaired to their homes, having spent a very enjoyable evening.

Come in and see our new rollers. It costs you nothing to learn that Wiseman & Co. can furnish you with elegant furniture at reasonable prices.

Buy your Storm Cash at the Big Store.

Mrs. Ness, of St. Paul, a sister of Mr. Frank Court, came up on Saturday to spend Sunday with her brother and to be present at the silver wedding Saturday evening. She returned home on Monday accompanied by her only son Louis, who had been visiting with his uncle and family for about a week.

Mrs. Greely, of Stillwater, mother of our popular county auditor, is visiting with her son and daughter, Mrs. Marsh, this week.

The Big Store offers you, for one week beginning Nov. 4th, 18 lbs. of good Roasted Rio Coffee, worth 15c per lb. 10c David Vacluch (whole) per lb. 3c; 12 bars of Laundry Soap, 25c. We have a great many more bargains for you in our grocery department, at all times.

CALLER HOME.

The sad news was reported around this village on Monday afternoon, that Miss Minnie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scholter, had passed away at noon, October 25, 1901.

Miss Scholter was born in Germany in 1864, came to this country with her parents in 1880 and settled in this place where she has lived ever since. About a week ago Miss Scholter was taken ill with Bright's disease and heart trouble from which she died. She was buried on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the German Lutheran church. Rev. Schultz officiating, with interment in Birchwood cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Jas. H. Wanda, Henry Baingo, Otto Glawie, William Engler, Arthur Braundt and Herman Teich.

Miss Scholter was a quiet unassuming young lady, well beloved by those who knew her, and will be greatly missed by her many friends, who were only limited by her acquaintances. She leaves a father, mother, three sisters and numerous friends to mourn her loss.

The PIONEER joins with the many friends of the bereaved family in extending its sympathy.

Wiseman & Co. carry five different grades of fully covered caskets, but sides a full line of coffins and undertaking goods. No delay in furnishing a first class casket of your own selection.

When the face of the dying turns away, and the limbs have fallen to the floor...

THE LANDLORD'S STORY

By WILL S. GIDLEY.

(Copyrighted by Daily Reilly Pub. Co.)

IT HAD fairly poured for two days, and I had waded through all the newspapers and other reading matter...

The landlord, Mr. Handell, was a jolly old fellow who was noted for his sprightly stories, and he did his best to entertain his guests and keep up their spirits...

I did not join the group on the veranda. If there is anything I particularly dislike it is to listen to the chatter of a lot of people who are trying to delude themselves into the belief that they are enjoying life...

But on the evening of the second day, when it grew suddenly colder and a roaring wind was coming in from the open fireplace...

Now, if ever, was the time for story-telling, but the landlord's repertory seemed to be about exhausted.

"No use asking for any more funny stories," he drawled out with a deprecatory shake of the head.

"Give us a story by all means," urged one of the ladies. "I can't always sleep better if I have a ghost story or some exciting adventure to go to bed on."

"Well," began the landlord, reflectively, "I don't think this comes under the head of a ghost story nor even a story of adventure. I'll have to tell it, and let you classify it for yourselves."

The climax of my story came ten years ago when I was keeping a hotel in my native village, which I will call Eden Center; but the beginning dated back many years before that...

"Squire Peck, with his wife and only daughter, lived in a big white house on a hill in the outskirts of the village, and a high-spirited, high-stepping old chap he was when I first knew him."

"Squire Peck, with his wife and only daughter, lived in a big white house on a hill in the outskirts of the village, and a high-spirited, high-stepping old chap he was when I first knew him."

"The first one who saw it was an outsider, and the ruthless way in which his aspirations were nipped in the bud by Lucia's father, held forth very little encouragement to the others."

"It was at the singing school that he made the acquaintance of Lucia, and it was a clear case of love at first sight. He was a manly young fellow, and when the rest of the boys saw how matters were shaping, their wasn't one of them but wished him well."

"But the course of true love runs uncommonly rough sometimes as the poet tells about the young man who walked boldly up to the big house on the hill with Lucia one evening, and asked her father for her hand in marriage."

"The laughing old squire drove him from the house with the direst threats and curses that one man ever poured upon another, and the poor fellow was then near the close of his vacation, and Handell was com-

PURGENT PARAGRAPHS.

Sometimes a man's appearance suits a woman, and there are times when his appearance will please her more.

"How did that railway magnate's daughter happen to accept Jim Boze's love?" "It isn't his looks that run his name in these sections."

"Excuse me for bothering you, sir, but I would like to borrow a dollar." "I can't lend you a dollar, my friend, but I think you all the better for your faith in my financial standing."

"Are you sure there will be no hitch in our engagement?" "Anxiously asked the beautiful maid. 'How could there be a hitch,' assured the ardent lover, 'when we are going in an automobile?'"

"Why is it, now that he is sick and needs sympathy, none of the neighbors will call?" "For a very sufficient reason. He used to get up early every morning and open the shutters with a bang."

"The Present Paes-Servant—PA publisher at the door to see you." "Modern Author—'Have him come in and wait; tell him I just began writing a book and won't have it finished for 15 minutes.'"

"Philosophic—'Poorbye!' exclaimed O'Hara, condescendingly with Cassidy, who had been injured by a blast. 'This ought to look like yer hair, Cassidy, if it's 'Och! Foh! it might 'ave yer worse,' replied Cassidy. 'Suppose O' had me week's wages in it, it'd be toime.'"

HUMAN MONKEY OF JAVA.

Prof. Haeckel's latest publication contains some curious information about the human monkey of Java, a most interesting specimen of which was watched by Prof. Haeckel at his own house in Java, writes the London correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean.

The natives call it an orang-utan. It has a striking sound in utter. When standing it is scarcely taller than a child of six years. The head is comparatively small, and it has a small, pointed nose. The legs are short and the arms much longer.

As a physiognomy reminded me of the manager of an insolvent bank, pondering with wrinkled brow over the results of a crash. Distrust of the orang-utan is very often founded on terms of intimate friendship with the Malays in our household, especially with the small children. He never crawled like a four when he was young, but stretched on the grass beneath the tropical sun with one arm under his head.

"When I felt a tasty food just out of his reach he cried, like a naughty child, 'Hute, hute,' a sound altogether different from 'oo, oo,' with which he expressed various emotions. He had a third and more shrill sound when he was suddenly frightened. The speech of these human monkeys has not many of the characteristics which are associated and altered in tone and strength with a number of repetitions. They also use many gestures, motions with their hands and feet, and they are very expressive in manner that a careful observer can detect their different wishes and various emotions."

He grasped a cup in both hands and drank like a child. He peeled bananas and oranges just as we are accustomed to do with fruit in his left hand. Most of the Malays do not eat the orange and orang-utang as berries. They believe the former are bewitched and the latter criminals who have been changed to monkeys as a punishment. Others think they are men in the course of metamorphosis."

The Trailing Skirt. There has been much talk lately of street sweeping by women's skirts. Concerning the "arresting and disconcerting of the various objects which the pavement may present," the Hospital says: "We lately watched the gradual conveyance, from the neighborhood of Regent circus, Oxford street, to the door of the Langham hotel, of an impossibly dirty piece of newspaper, covered with grime and saturated with grease, which had probably been used to wrap up the broken victims of some tramway, and had been discarded by him when that office had been fulfilled. No less than five skirts were required for the intended purpose; and we much regret that a more important engagement prevented us from devoting an hour or so to the fuller travels of the detergent."

World's Largest Anchor. The largest forged anchor that has ever been constructed in the world has been completed at the Charleston navy yard and will find a place on the coast of the United States navy. This mammoth anchor from its crown to the end of the shank is 14 feet 5 inches long and its width from jaw to jaw is 10 feet 3 inches. Its length over all is 15 feet 3 inches, and it weighs nearly seven tons.

SOMETHING ABOUT CARROTS.

A sirup is prepared from carrots. Carrot is easy of digestion, and goodly laxative. Carrot is used as a pottilage for fowl sore, and as a vegetable. Carrots, when cut into small pieces and roasted, are occasionally used as a substitute for coffee in Germany.

A strong ardent spirit is distilled from carrots in some parts of Europe, ten pounds of carrots yielding about half a pint.

In the reign of Charles I ladies wore carrot leaves as an ornament instead of feathers; and the beauty of the leaves is still acknowledged by placing a root, or the upper portion of one, in water, that it may throw out young leaves to adorn apartments in winter.

As an article of food carrots contain a large amount of what are called heat-producing compounds, with a small proportion of flesh-forming matter. It consists essentially of starch, sugar and albumen, with a volatile oil, which communicates a flavor unpleasant to many dappoles.

The Teacher's Wife. Clarissa, Miss, Oct. 28th.—Mrs. Clara Keys, wife of Chas. Keys, school teacher of this place, tells a wonderful story. For years her life was one of misery. Her back ached all the time, her head ached all the time, neuralgia pains drove her to desperation. She used much medicine, but failed to get any relief till she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. She says: "Very soon after I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills all my aches and pains vanished like the morning dew. I consider this remedy a God-send to suffering womanhood."

Encouraged by their success in her own case, Mrs. Keys induced her mother, an old lady of 74 years, to use Dodd's Kidney Pills for her many aches and pains. Now both mother and daughter rejoice in perfect freedom from illness or suffering which is something neither had enjoyed for years before.

Syrup of Figs

IS AN EXCELLENT FAMILY LAXATIVE. IT IS REFRESHING TO THE TASTE AND ACTS PLEASANTLY AND GENTLY. IT ASSISTS ONE TO OVERCOME HABITUAL CONSTIPATION PERMANENTLY.

With many millions of families Syrup of Figs has become the ideal home laxative. The combination is a simple and wholesome one, and the method of manufacture by the California Fig Syrup Company ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product, which have commended it to the favorable consideration of the most eminent physicians and to the intelligent appreciation of all who are well informed in reference to medicinal agents.

Syrup of Figs has truly a laxative effect and acts gently without in any way disturbing the natural functions and with perfect freedom from any unpleasant after effects.

In the process of manufacturing, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinally laxative principles of the combination are obtained from plants known to act most beneficially on the system.
