WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 23rd, 1902.

Last Thursday afternoon, after the Senate had adjourned, John T. Morgan, the venerable Senator from Alabama, sat at his desk writing a press-telegram to his home paper. When he had completed it he handed it to me and said "that tells you my position." The telegram read, in part, "I feel more encouraged than at any other time since I began the fight for an isthmian canal. The action of the senate this afternoon means that a canal will be constructed. I wanted it constructed by the Nicaraguan route because I think that route the better. If it could not be by Nicaragua however, I gladly accept the Panama." These were the words of a man who had made a long and valiant fight for a project he knew to be good and for a route which he believed to be the better. He had been defeated in the choice of route but the great end he regarded as accomplished and he knew how to accept the defeat of his methods with the same bravery that had characterized his prolonged fight for an isthmian canal.

By a vote of 42 to 34 the Senate adopted the Spooner substitute for the Hepburn, Nicaraguan Canal bill. This substitute authorizes the President to purchase the entire property of the Panama Canal Company after having satisfied himself of the validity of the title and secured the necessary concessions from the Colombian government. In case he is unable to do this he is to negotiate the proper treaties with Nicaragua and Costa Rica and commence operations on that route. An amendment to the substitute provides for the issuance by the government of 2 per cent interest bearing, gold bonds to the amount of $130,000,000 to cover the cost of the project. The Senate measure is now in the hands of a conference committee but it is generally believed that the House will eventually accept the Senate's substitute.

Following the receipt of the message of the President, in which he so strongly advocated Cuban reciprocity, the republican members of the Senate have held two conferences in an effort to agree upon some measure of relief to Cuba, but their deliberations have not been productive of results and now all hope of reciprocal tariff concessions to Cuba at this session of Congress have been abandoned by all but a few enthusiasts. Mr. Roosevelt asserts that, in as much as he considers that the honor of the nation is at stake, he will not abandon the fight. He expects to make an extensive tour of the country next fall and will present his views to the people in the hope that they will induce their representatives to ratify a treaty which, in the mean time, he will probably negotiate, granting reciprocity to the new republic. There are rumors to the effect that the President will call a special session of the Senate to ratify such a treaty before next December, possibly immediately after the adjournment of Congress but I have succeeded in obtaining no confirmation of the stories and doubt that a special session will be called, at least until after the fall elections.

If Mr. Roosevelt attempts to effect by means of a treaty which will require only the ratification of the Senate, what the two Houses of Congress have refused to grant, there will result a bitter protest from members of the House of Representatives who declare that the Senate has no power to modify the tariff by means of a treaty. Under the constitution all revenue measures must be initiated by the House and on that ground the Members claim that revenue duties cannot be modified by the executive and the upper chamber to the exclusion of the House. "Such a precedent," said a prominent republican mem-

Christian Smith, the oldest locomotive engineer in the country, lives near Harper's Ferry, Md. He ran the first engine on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at a speed of from six to eight miles an hour, which was considered rapid for those days.

A new and novel cure for dropsy and asthma has been discovered by Dr. John S. Crum, of Philadelphia, and the total cost of his treatment is $1.80. Dr. Crum, who is 72 years old, had not eaten a morsel of food for 30 days, and during that time the only nourishment he had taken was frequent sips of a salt and water solution.

The German emperor ascribes his good health and vigor to the excellent advice given to him by his favorite doctor and he has learned by heart the latter's "rule of life" which is as follows: "Eat fruit for breakfast. Eat fruit for lunch. Avoid pastry and hot cakes. Only take potatoes once a day. Don't drink coffee. Take four miles every day, wet or fine. Take a bath every day. Wash the face every night in warm water. Sleep eight hours every night."

The principal hobby of the ex-Queen Regent of Spain is collecting playing cards. She possesses a large number of curious packs, many of which have no little historical interest. One set, made of ivory, is believed to have belonged to Prince Alfonso, who fought with the great duke of Marlborough, and to have accompanied him in all his campaigns. Queen Christina also owns some exceedingly rare cards of Egyptian, Arabian, French and Spanish manufacture.

Retnach has made a series of experiments upon children of 6 to 9 months, with chocolate. He found that the fat was well absorbed, and that a very small proportion of it reappeared in the feces. The children increased very rapidly in weight. The indications for the use of chocolate are: dyspepsia, flat dyspepsia, chronic enteritis, cases in which the body weight does not increase with normal rapidity upon ordinary diet, and in rachitic and scrofulous children.

Greyhounds are the swiftest dogs known, and scientists say that they are the swiftest of all four-footed animals. Trained hounds can travel at the rate of 18 to 22 yards a second, which is about the speed attained by a carrier pigeon. These dogs are bred for speed alone. Every other consideration is lost sight of, and only the endurance is cultivated. Foxhounds are also very fast travelers, going at the rate of nearly 16 yards a second.

The great scarcity of platinum continues to be complained of. It is in such demand, for example, in chemical and scientific work, that the price in the neighborhood of $300 an ounce—that is about 20 times the value of gold, or five times that of silver, 70 years ago. The total world's output of platinum is less than five tons a year. Most of the mines from Russia. Formerly platinum was mistaken for silver, and considerable of it got into the Russian coinage without being discovered.

A band of gypsies traveling in an automobile arrived in Central Park, N. Y., the other day and went into camp at Sherwood Park. The automobile, which is a gasoline affair, is large and very handsome, and is driven at a distance like a trolley car. It is especially built for the tribe. The inside is divided in three apartments: one a bedroom, one a dining room and in the front is the kitchen. The chief of the tribe says that he can make 50 miles a day in the automobile if he wants to.

Spiders are knit with in the forests of Java where they are used to make a spider's web to cut through them, we are told. A spider weighing four pounds, which has taken up her residence in a cathedral Munich, regulates herself with a large supply of lamp oil. A Texas spider weaves a balloon four feet long and two feet wide, which she fastens to a tree by a single thread, then marches on board with her half-dozen little ones, out the thread and away she drifts, until some distant point on the globe.

Capt. A. A. Rosell, a master mariner of Honolulu, has become a king. He is now the ruler of Marcus Island, a little patch in the Pacific Ocean, which, from a distance, looks much larger than a cork. Rosell took charge of the island a few days ago. His only subjects are guano birds, and from them he soon expects to reap a fortune. Rosell discovered the island in 1899, and claimed it in the name of the United States. Rosell will not be approved until last February. Rosell will have complete control of the island.

While the average adult should ingest 20 cubic inches of fresh air a minute, it is impossible in the present state of things to get that amount of fresh air today. A New York sanitary engineer found as much as 26.3 parts of carbonic acid in a cubic foot of the atmosphere of air in the trolley cars in New York city. This is, to some extent, due to insufficient heating of the cars, the windows being in the winter necessarily tightly shut. The constant business on the hours of the cars have been examined, and it is found that long hauls from 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 bacteria.

SHARP DEBATE IN HOUSE

The Heated Discussion on the Philippines Government Bill Continues.

BALL MAKES CHARGE OF HYPOCRISY.

Washington, June 25.—Some routine business was transacted in the house Tuesday prior to the resumption of the debate upon the Philippine civil government bill. Bills were passed to establish a sub-post of entry at Nuen, Ariz., to appropriate $5,000 annually for the support and maintenance of the permanent international commission of the congress of navigation, to authorize the director of census to compile statistics regarding irrigation.

Mr. Ball (Tex.), the first speaker on the Philippine civil government bill Tuesday, made a general onslaught upon the republican policy. Taking Peckinpa as his text he charged the president and administration with hypocrisy. If the president would dis-

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Heir Apparent to the Throne of Great Britain and Ireland.

Nation's Genesis Disappointed.
At the various palaces and at the Grosvenor, Buckingham, Carlton, Cecil and other hotels where the foreign representatives are staying, the news created the greatest dismay.

Royal carriages were already drawn up in readiness to take the guests to the reception at the palace, but the moment the "hickers" announced his majesty's illness all the preparations for the day ceased.

Mr. Reid, accompanied by Ident. Col. Sir Frederick Edwards, the secretary of his majesty, who is in special attendance on Mr. Reid, left their cards at the palace.

President Hoar's Illness.
Washington, June 25.—The secretary from Ambassador Choate, at London, to the state department, received Tuesday afternoon, says that the coronation has been postponed indefinitely on account of the indisposition of the king. The message was taken to the president by Acting Secretary of State Hill, and the former laid it before the cabinet, which now is in session.

Explanation of King's Illness.
New York, June 25.—Cyrus Ross explains the illness of the king and the operation as follows: "Perityphlitis is inflammation, including the formation of an abscess, of the tissue around the cecum, appendix and, hence, perityphlitis is hard to distinguish as a separate entity. Usually an operation is necessary to ascertain whether the appendix is the cause of the trouble. In the king's case there is probably an abscess of the cecum, and the operation today was an immediate necessity because of the danger of rupture. It was discovered by the surgeons—that is, the king's condition was such that it was necessary to operate at once. The king's condition is in the right stage now."

News Rumors Haunted.
Pittsburg, Mo., June 25.—Henry Taylor, a Negro, who killed Edward Swallow, also colored, on August 14, 1901, was hanged in the county jail at this place Tuesday. The execution was witnessed by a large number of strangers in 15 minutes.

"That statement is not true, either," cried Mr. Clark.
When Mr. Landis referred to Mr. Clark's former criticism of Grover Cleveland, the second member corrected him and declared: "The second election of Grover Cleveland was the greatest calamity that has befallen the human race since the fall of Adam."
"Didn't you vote for him?" queried Mr. Landis.
"Yes," responded Mr. Clark amid great laughter. "and that is one thing I expect to pray Almighty God to give me absolution for on the day of judgment."

Canal Conference Meet.
Washington, June 25.—The conference on the isthmian canal bill met at 11 a. m. Tuesday. In view of the prospects of an early adjournment, appreciation was expressed by house members that a prolonged contest in the conference might lead to the postponement of all legislation. But when this prospect was suggested to some of the house members, they are thoroughly aware of the situation it was stated that there was practically no doubt that canal legislation of some sort would be enacted. There is a favorable temper of the house toward the senate amendment. The conference Tuesday continued for an hour and a half and adjourned Wednesday.

Senate Proceedings.
Washington, June 25.—A mistake of engrossing in the river and harbor act, passed at this session, was corrected in the senate Tuesday by the passage of a bill relating to the appropriation for the improvement of the Cumberland river in Tennessee.

BRYAN WITHHOLDS NAME.

Not Willing to Accept the Fusion Nomination for Governor of Nebraska.
Grand Island, Neb., June 25.—William J. Bryan Tuesday refused to consider if on the question of whether he will accept the nomination for governor, but it is confidently believed by the fusion leaders that if the fusion ticket is a unit, as was agreed by both conventions he will not decline.

Senator Allen early Tuesday reiterated the statement that he has not taken to the effect that in case of his nomination Mr. Bryan could not and would not decline.

William J. Bryan had a conference with democrats and populists shortly before noon and urged upon them that his name be not brought before the convention and it is now thought that his will prevail. Senator Allen has also declared himself emphatically against accepting a nomination. With these two men out of the running, it is not probable that fusion will prevail.

Score a Victory.
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 25.—The Susquehanna canal company, which is controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad, scored a partial victory Tuesday when it succeeded in getting several engineers, a fireman and pumpmen to return to its control at Nanticoke. The men held a secret meeting Monday and most of them decided to return. The exact number who went to work is not known, but it is said that company officials will not discuss the matter. The men were distributed among the four different collieries located in and about the borough. Most of those who went back were members of the union.

State Case Not Aside for Present.
St. Paul, Minn., June 25.—In the United States circuit court Tuesday, Judge Amidon, presiding, the action of the state of Minnesota against the Northern security company and James J. Hill, its president, was called, and then set aside until after all the jury cases are disposed of, when Attorney General W. B. Douglas will move that it be remanded to the district court of Ramsey county where it originated.

Case Not Declared Citizenship.
Washington, June 25.—An answer, approved by the attorney general, was filed Tuesday by Clerk Young of the district supreme court, to a rule to show cause why a writ should not be required to admit the citizenship of the petitioner papers of Antonio M. Opisso y de Ycaza, recently an inhabitant of the Philippines, who had petitioned the present law to declare such intentions.

President Goes to Boston.
Washington, June 25.—President Roosevelt, accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou, Dr. F. E. Urie, of the navy, and M. C. Latta, stenographer, left here Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 over the Pennsylvania railroad for Boston, where the president will attend the commencement exercises at Harvard university and return an address.

City 'Tis, 'Tis True

During our newspaper experience of nearly twenty-five years we have been subject to the usual amount of criticism on account of articles which appeared in these columns, but strange as it may seem, the "roasting" has almost invariably come from people who get the news by borrowing their neighbor's paper.—Ex.

Telephone Line to Bergman's.

The Minnesota Mutual Telephone Co. have their line completed to Bergman's. All subscribers and their families are entitled to use the line free of charge, but if they allow a stranger to use it or use it for the benefit of a stranger, it will cost them 15 cents, with all messenger fees added, which will be charged up to the phone where the talking is done. All subscribers are to be careful in allowing their phones to be used by strangers as it is liable to create trouble at any time, as often times strangers impose upon subscribers by using the line on long distance calls and then fail to settle for the same. I hope they will observe this request and that each and every one of them will profit by the new line to Bergman's.

Yours Truly,

Called Hence.

Mrs. John Kline died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. Biederman, Monday evening at 7:45. The cause of her death was cancer.

Mrs. Kline was born in Germany in 1840, and married twice before leaving the old country. She was married the first time to August Spearing by whom she had three boys, Chas. of Alton, Ill., Fred of this place, and Herman of Carlton. She lived with Mr. Spearing about 9 years when he died. About a year after his death she married John Kline by whom she had four children, three girls, and one boy, Mrs. Chas. Gustafson, Mrs. Adam and John Biederman, of this place, and Louis, of West Duluth.

She came to America in September, 1874, and settled in Graceville, Wis., where she lived for about eight years, when she moved to Minnesota, residing at Malottown, where she resided until 1885, when she removed to this place and has remained here since. Mrs. Kline has been a sufferer from cancer for over four years, as it is about that long ago since Dr. Stowe, of Rush City first operated on her. She has suffered untold agony for the past few months, but has had the best of care at the hands of her daughter, Mrs. Adam Biederman, where she has made her home since parting from her husband some two years ago.

The funeral was held from the German Lutheran church, Rev. A. Schultz officiating, with interment in Birchwood cemetery.

The pall bearers were, P. E. Smith, Herman Borchers, John Stoeltz, Jas. Hurley, H. J. Rath and E. Veenhoven.

The PIONEER extends its sympathy to the bereaved family.

ROBERT SALLETTE

of Ballad of the Revolution

THE Liberty Boys are up and out. They're here in a flash in a flame. And they fiercer and fiercer at King George's name.

There's my bluster and bluster and tread. The Liberty Boys will beat them yet. And the chief of the boys is Robert Sallette. Robert Sallette—his limbs are long. And his good right arm is unconquerably strong.

He rides like a centaur, he swims like a fish. And the Liberty Boys will ride at his wish. And the Tories have never a chance to fight.

There's a gentleman Tory, rich and old. He has bought up acres and hoards up gold. He sits in his house never making a noise. For fear of a visit from the Liberty Boys. And he says aloud "A price I will not give. On the head of this traitor, Robert Sallette."

"Oh, heaven! Wright is mild and kind. And justice and mercy are much to his mind. But his father's voice that he should be heard. To uphold the cause of King George the Third."

And to silence this horrible noise that comes from Boston way of free and brave. One hundred 'twixt the man and girl. Who will bring me the head of Robert Sallette!"

The Tory sits in his old oak chair. With arms and bluster carrying air. He sits and quakes and has a very heart-ache. And not even the ghost of a noise he makes. For news came last night that the boys would ride.

And he hears the tramp of a horse outside. A jingling strap, a ringing tread. And the seat within him as cold with dread.

There falls on the door a thunderous knock. And it jars his chair and his old neck. And into the room there strides before. The trembling darky comes before him. A stranger man with a ponderous sack. A sword at his side and a gun at his back.

He drops the sack with a heavy thump. And he strikes the floor like a headless lump. And he says, with a shiver and a shudder. It seems to pierce like a word of light. "A hundred guineas I come to give you. I bring you the head of Robert Sallette!"

The Tory starts, and his heart grows sick. And his eyes grow dim and his breath comes quick. And he stares at the thing that bulges round. At the end of the sack that lies on the ground.

"Show me the head, ere you speak so bold!" "Nay!" quoth the stranger. "First, the said! I have ridden too fast and ridden too far. And have seen too much of your Liberty War."

To ran, a risk at the very end. So out with your sword, my loyal friend. And then, I promise you, you shall get. A sight of the head of Robert Sallette!"

The gold rings out on the table there. It lies in a heap bright and fair. A glittering pyramid rich and rare. Dazzling bright and beyond compare. The stranger laughs at the splendid sight. But again his sword is drawn bright.

"A bargain's a bargain, friend," he said. "You pay right well for a homely head. For—his swing his head and his head clear— 'The head of Robert Sallette is here!'"

"That's a man who rides, and sings as he rides. And shames his saddle, and claps his sides. For glee at hearing the gun-cock chirp. To his pockets so he takes his whiff. He laughs 'Hail hat' and he laughs 'Hoi ho!' And he's off to the forest like a shot from bow."

"My dear old friend, 'I will be some time yet Ere I part with the head of Robert Sallette!"

There's a Tory gentleman, rich and old. Who sits and quakes with fear and rage. And he says some things unbecoming his age.

As he glares at the ground, and at something round. That rolls from a sack with a thumping sound. He grumbles and groans, and he savagely leaps. In a painful way at his grizzled hairs. And he cries: "Oh the murderous, traitorous burglar! Instead of his head, he's left me a pumpkin!"

—Laura E. Richards, in St. Nicholas.

LOUISA MAY'S SOLO at the CELEBRATION.

LOUISA MAY is to sing a solo at the celebration. Mrs. Hatfield was explaining to a visitor. "And I don't know but he'll be too fine to speak to her own folks when she's raged out in all her new things. Still, I don't begrudge her the things. She's worked real faithful pickin' strawberries and doing all sorts of chores to pay for what she'd like to have. She's a good girl, Louisa."

could get one; but I don't know that he's able to, although he always has been close-mouthed about his money affairs. You'll be at the celebration?" "Oh, yes; we are all going. And I expect to hear Louisa May beat 'em all!"

There the conversation ended, because a red-haired girl came hurriedly into the sitting-room. She blushed furiously as she heard her name. On the morning of the Fourth of July Louisa May was very happy as she stood before the small mirror in her bedroom and gave the last touches to her toilet. Her cheeks had made up very prettily, and her mother had decorated her by an unexpected gift of a pretty pink ribbon sash. She had never before had such a beautiful hat, and there was but one thing to detract from her satisfaction with her appearance.

"If only I didn't have such a mop of red hair!" she said to the mirror. "It is a mope-colored, like Lucy Dane's, or a regular brindle, like Nancy Trent's. I shouldn't care. But red it isn't as red as it used to be, though, and I shall wear my hat white! I sing—that I will hide it a good while."

There had been no holidays in Louisa May's life, and never one so full of promise of pleasure as this. She had been in the village the day before to rehearse her song with Miss Hope, who was to play the accompaniment on the organ, and Miss Hope had said that Louisa sang beautifully.

"Let me give you this to remember me by." Louisa May thought that she could never be any happier than she was when she heard her grandfathers' voice.

HER GRANDFATHER HELD THE FLAG.

She had a very clear and strong voice, and she said to her mother as they went toward the grove: "I don't feel a bit nervous or afraid now." She did, however, feel a little nervous when her turn to sing came, and she found herself on the platform before the audience that filled every part of the grove. The chairman of the day stepped forward and said: "The applause died away, and the organist had just begun to play the prelude, when a boy shouted shrilly: 'Red head! Red head! Better look out or get up on the platform!'"

"Red head! Red head! Better look out or get up on the platform!" Louisa May's pink cheeks grew pallid. She opened her lips, but no sound came from them. She was trembling from head to foot. The flag fell from her hand down over the edge of the platform. Then in an agony of embarrassment she put both hands over her face and began to cry.

"The boy who had called out 'Red head!' suddenly felt a hand grip the back of his collar, and he was jerked from his seat by an irate little old man.

"I'll let you know how ye call my grand-daughter 'red head,' ye little ass-bag! You take that!" and he slammed his fist on the howling boy's ears. Then he hurried toward the platform and up the steps. A queer-looking little old man he was, with long white hair and a long nose, and he wore a pair of blue jeans and a bright blue jacket. He was hurrying to Louisa May's side, he put his arm around her waist and said, soothingly:

"There, there, Louisa May! Don't you mind that impudent little ass-bag! You sing your song now. Come, grandpa will start ye off on it!"

"The old man picked up the flag which she had let fall to the platform, and holding it in one hand while his other arm was round Louisa May's waist, he began to sing in a thin, warbling, but not unmelodious voice:

"Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light, What so proudly we halloo'd at the break of the first of May? Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight, From the blood-dimmed stains of a grand soldier's feet, were so gallantly streaming?"

He stopped at the end of these lines and said gently to Louisa May: "Come, now, honey, you sing, too."

She had taken her hands from her face, and she looked toward the sympathetic faces of the people before her. She felt her courage rise. When the old man began to sing the next lines Louisa May's voice, clear and steady and sweet, rose high above his own.

"And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air, Gave proof to the sight that our flag was still there. Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave, O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?"

Something of the lofty spirit of the grand old song suddenly filled during the rest of that day, but she felt the same way three days later when, on coming home from the strawberry patch, she found Grandpa Hatfield waiting for her in the hall. He hung open his parlor door behind him as he kissed her, and Louisa saw in a corner of the room a beautiful shining new piano.

"Why, grandpa!" she exclaimed, and flung her arms around his neck, his laughing and half-crying. His eyes had a strange light in them, and his voice was not very steady as he said: "It is you, Louisa, I don't know when I have heard anything that took such hold of me as the way you sung that grand old 'Star-Spangled Banner.' I was in it to be the first to sing you on your platform. I'll play it and we'll sing it together."

A few moments later a passer-by came up to Louisa May and asked her to listen to the fresh young voice and the old and quavering one singing together.

"And the star-spangled banner in triumph o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave— Youth's Companion.

FATHER.

"How do you expect to celebrate the Fourth this year?" "Little Waldo Wendell! Oh, beautifully! I am now engaged in my laboratory preparing a number of dynamite explosives and some nitroglycerine shells with which to commemorate the glorious occasion of our national independence!"—Judge.

"The Fourth is better." Visitor—"How do you expect to celebrate the Fourth this year?" "Little Waldo Wendell! Oh, beautifully! I am now engaged in my laboratory preparing a number of dynamite explosives and some nitroglycerine shells with which to commemorate the glorious occasion of our national independence!"—Judge.

"Did you just hear that?" "Yes, you ought to see the way he is banged up today."—Chicago Evening Post.

An Unsettling Boy. "Tommy," said Mrs. Glim, "you should not shoot your firecrackers in the house."

"But I want you to enjoy them too, mamma," replied the thoughtful boy.—Harlem Life.

CLARIFYING BEEWAX.

It is the Work in Done Recently a Treatment of Fine, Even Appearance Will be Obtained.

As it is generally clarified some beeswax presents a very clear yellow, which is not so when compared with it has a dirty look. This is owing to the proper method employed in one case and lack of thoroughness in another, albeit not always. For there is such a difference even in beeswax that it is questionable if some countries even the same. If clarified as it should be, however, the chances are nine out of ten of its presenting the same fine, even appearance, says the Country Gentleman.

The way to do it is to take the comb one has to clarify and put it in a large iron kettle, and tie it up on the farm outdoors, filling it with water. In this the comb should be allowed to boil for several hours. Meanwhile, a tub having been filled half full of water, on which is floated an old board of some sort, the mixture at the end of that period should be dipped out with an old pan or dipper from the kettle, and poured through a hemp sack or other thin material that is allowed to rest on the board in the tub. The result is the wax runs through the sack into the tub, leaving considerable residue in the kettle, which can readily be separated by squeezing or rolling the mass with a round stick or similar means of pressure.

The wax will float on the surface of the water in the tub and soon cool, and while this is taking place the kettle should be cleaned and filled with clean water; then the wax should be put back in it and boiled up a second time. It should next be strained carefully through a fine meshed cloth several times, and as the sack or cloth used for this purpose is of no special value afterwards it should be thrown away.

Beeswax clarified in this manner can be melted without water and put in moulds ready for the market, which otherwise might have been considered a nuisance and never used at all. It is used to save all the scraps and pieces of old comb, and at the end of the season treat them as described, for this will first-class beeswax be obtained, and that, as you know, is a good matter.

SPLENDID HEN HOUSE.

It is Capable of Housing a Great Variety of Poultry in Up-to-Date and Healthy Conditions.

The little house that is here figured can be built any size desired, but eight feet in length by five in width will be found very convenient. Make the height six feet in front and four feet in the rear. The entire front is made up of two wooden doors, with a window in each, and tyner wire netting doors. The roof is shingled, while the walls are made of matched boarding simply. There is no floor.

Now for the nest to which such a little house can be put. In early spring a brooderful of chicks can be placed in it, thus affording the little fellows a sheltered place to run outside the brooder. On pleasant days the wooden doors can be thrown open, giving outdoor conditions. When the chicks become too large for the brooder, they can occupy the house as a coop, roosting on the beams, and as the chicks are large enough to use them. As the weather becomes warmer, the wooden doors can be left open at night, the wire doors being closed to keep out cats and snakes. Fifty chicks (or more, if the wooden doors are to be left open) can be kept in such a house through the summer and fall.

This house can only be used as a colony house for laying hens, a number of such houses being scattered about the land to be occupied, and filled with about 15 hens each. Roosts are placed at the rear, and nest-boxes are placed in the front. The roosts are reached from the outside by means of the little hinged door shown at one end.

Such a house is also an excellent place to house a few hens, the wire door only being closed. It affords ideal quarters for a bunch of cookeers that one may wish to fatten for market, and the fall. Only a few number can be put into such a house, if a temporary wire enclosure is set up before the house, that the cookeers can be crowded during the day. Other uses for such a house will occur to the poultryman, while for the fancier such quarters make a fine place to rear and rear up choice breeders during the spring and summer.—Country Gentleman.

APPOPLEXY IN FOWLS.

It Occurs Most Frequently in Flocks Fed on What is Termed the High-Pressure System.

It is a nice thing to have fat, plump fowls, when one is needed for the table. When they are kept for show or for exhibition, the fowls are kept on a high-pressure system, and others who may visit the farm, they look well also when they are very fat. When certain kinds of food are fed, and chickens are kept from exercise they will get very fat. Some breeds are better adapted to taking on fat than others. Not every pair is able to have crowded during the day. Other uses for such a house will occur to the poultryman, while for the fancier such quarters make a fine place to rear and rear up choice breeders during the spring and summer.—Country Gentleman.

TO PREVENT CROWDING.

Device Here Described Is Said to Insure Absolute Immunity from Colds and Roup.

To prevent crowding on the roost, the device here illustrated is simple and practical. Mr. Verdict says: "I describe the immunity from colds and roup I have enjoyed this winter to those who have used it. The roosts are lifted up on cleats in the daytime, and the dropping board, which is hinged to the wall, is also pinned up against the wall, giving the entire floor space unobstructed to the fowls." In the roost pole, by which it is two by two-inch stuff, are nailed pieces, a, a, nine inches apart, which gives enough room for one fowl. Beneath the roost is the dropping board, c, and below this the nests, d.—Orange Judd Farmer.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

Regularly and moderation in feeding are two important points to be observed in poultry raising. Ducks will eat many weeds and other vegetables, which other poultry will not, and they may be allowed the run of the "potato patch," when the potato beetle makes its appearance. You will find the seed very useful next fall and winter when you want to have the plumage of your show birds glossy and beautiful.

What looks nice or points more directly to the general thrift and intelligence of the farmer than a flock of well-bred fowls, all of one color and character?

If the occupants of the duck house become afflicted at night from any cause, the light should be kept burning until a light is brought into the pen, when they will immediately settle down into quietness.—Farmer's Voice.

THE SECRET OF HEALTH IN OLD AGE.

Shepherd, Ill. June 23rd.—Sarah E. Bower, of this place, is now 70 years of age and just at the present time is enjoying much better health than she has for over 20 years. Her explanation of this is as follows:

"For many years past I have been troubled constantly with severe kidney trouble, my urine would scald and burn when passing and I was very miserable.

"In 72 years of age and never expected to get anything to cure me, but I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and thought it would do me no harm to try them.

"I am very glad I did so, for they cured me of kidney disease and stopped all the burning sensations when passing the urine.

"I feel better now than I have for twenty years."

CONGRESSMAN FITZPATRICK.

Says Pe-runa is a Splendid Cathartic Tonic.

Congressman T. Y. Fitzpatrick.

Hon. T. Y. Fitzpatrick, Congressman from Kentucky, writes from the National Hotel, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"As the solicitation of a friend I used your Pe-runa and cannot say but I recommend your remedy to anyone suffering with catarrh or who needs a good tonic."—T. Y. FITZPATRICK.

A Good Tonic.

Pe-runa is a natural and efficient nerve tonic. It strengthens and restores the activity of every nerve in the body.

Through the use of Pe-runa the weakened or overworked nerves resume their natural strength and the blood vessels begin at once to regulate the flow of blood according to natural laws. Congestions immediately disappear.

Catarrh Cured.

All phases of catarrh, acute or chronic, are promptly and permanently cured. It is through its operation that the most serious cases of Pe-runa has attained such a world-wide reputation—a sure and reliable remedy for all phases of catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-runa, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice free.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission will hold examinations, during September and October, in several places in each state to secure young men and women for the government service. There are now 126,423 positions in the classified civil service, being an increase of 46,736 in six years. There were 7,972 persons appointed between July 1, 1901, and April 15, 1902, being at the rate of 10,670 for the year. There will probably be 11,000 appointments next year. Salaries at appointment vary from $800 to $1,200 a year with liberal promotions afterward. All appointments are for life and for most positions only a common school education is required. Politics or religion is not considered. Those desiring to take examinations of this kind can get full information about them free by writing to the Columbian Correspondence College, Washington, D. C. and asking for its Civil Service Catalogue for 1902.
