WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 30th, 1902.

"All hinges on the Philippine Bill," said Chairman Payne, of the Ways and Means Committee, Saturday, when I asked him the probable date of the adjournment, and it is no exaggeration to say that the attention of every member of congress is centered on that measure. The House passed its own bill on Thursday by what was practically a party vote, but one republican voting with the democrats. On Friday, the conference committee began its work and on Saturday a number of differences between the House and Senate bills had been adjusted. Some, there are, who predict that the conference will report today a settlement which will meet with the approval of both bodies and permit of adjournment to-morrow noon, but the more conservative anticipate that adjournment will not be taken before Wednesday or Thursday. That Congress will remain in session until after the 4th of July no one anticipates.

The current provision, the House having legislated for a gold standard in the Philippines and the Senate having continued the currency of the present silver basis, is giving the conferees the greatest amount of trouble, but the provision of the House that there shall be established a Filipino legislature, whereas the Senate provides only for a census which is to be made the basis for establishing a legislature at some future period, is almost equally difficult of adjustment. It is expected that other bills in conference will be reported this moon and the Sergeant-at-Arms will have difficulty in maintaining a quorum in the House from day to day as there is a very general desire on the part of the members to spend Independence Day at their homes.

Apart from the bill establishing the Appalachian Forest Reserve there has been little important legislation in either chamber since the passage of the Philippine Bill.

The Appalachian bill, as passed by the Senate, carries an appropriation of $10,000,000 and requires the Secretary of Agriculture to file with Congress a plat of the land he proposes to purchase. The bill will not come up for action in the House at this session, although the House Committee on Agriculture has considered it and has determined to report it favorably early in the next session.

The Immigration Bill passed by the House will also wait action until the Short Session. The Senate Committee on Immigration reported the bill favorable and there is little doubt that it will pass but the time intervening between now and adjournment is not considered sufficiently long to permit of proper consideration of so important a measure. The Senate Committee threw out the provision of the Senate bill which prohibited the sale of liquor in the Capital on the ground that the amendment was not germane to the subject. In a previous letter I intimated that the House counted on such action by the Senate when it accepted the amendment and subsequent events have justified the precision. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Admiral Dewey appeared before the Philippine Committee and furnished valuable and interesting testimony in regard to the taking of the city of Manila and the subsequent initiation of the Philippine Insurrection. The Admiral maintained that he came first to regard of Aguinaldo as merely an adventurer and that he considered his object in coming to the islands as purely his purpose being personal gain. In answer to a question from one of the members as to why he Dewey had afforded assistance to a man whom he regarded as no better than a thief, the Admiral replied that "all's fair in war." The testimony reveals a certain amount of unwritten history which Admiral Dewey admitted he had not made public because he had intended to incorporate it in a book which he expected to publish "some day."

A recent decision of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia places the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands in a somewhat equivocal position. They are, according to the decision of the court, men without a country. It seems that one Antonio M. Ospisa, a native Filipino, petitioned the court to permit him to file a declaration of his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States, but the Department of Justice rendered the opinion that the Court had no power to take such action because, pending the action of Congress, the government of the United States did not recognize a Filipino as a citizen of any country. The Philippines not coming under the head of any government recognized by the government of the United States. The being the case it would naturally follow that the citizen of the Philippines has no legal existence and any infringement of his rights by a foreign government could not be made the basis of a demand for indemnity by the United States. The situation is certainly peculiar and is probably without precedent in the history of civilized nations.

Acting Secretary of State Hill, by the direction of the President, has already commenced negotiations with Senor Quesada, Minister from Cuba, looking to the formulation of a reciprocal treaty with the Island. This treaty will be completed and presented to the Senate early in the Short Session. With a view to securing the prompt ratification of the treaty, the President will accept invitations to speak in those states whose congressional delegations have opposed his Cuban policy and will strongly advocate relief of Cuba by means of a reciprocal treaty. Mr. Roosevelt believes, according to my informant, who stands very close to the administration, that in this way he will be able to establish so strong a sentiment in favor of Cuban reciprocity that he will meet with less opposition when Congress convenes in December.

The engrossed copy of the Panama Canal Bill is now at the White House and requires the signature of the President to become a law. The necessary treatment with Colombia is already drafted and the State Department has received assurances from the French government that it will do all in its power to facilitate the transfer of the canal from the French company to the United States. Mr. Roosevelt has himself expressed to recent visitors the greatest confidence in regard to the construction of the canal and it is assumed by some that he has advice to regard to the title which he will find no flaw therein when he subjects it to more careful scrutiny.

IN EVERY SACK OF
PINE CITY
FLOUR.

Pine county has been fertilized by nature ever since Creation, and produces the Best Wheat in the World. We buy this wheat direct from the farmers and make into flour in a modern, up-to-date plant. Bread from this flour is more nutritious, more digestible, and more palatable. It retains moisture longer and makes more bread from the same amount of flour. If your dealer tells you he has a flour that is no good or better than ours, you can know that he is trying to make money out of some other flour.

We employ Pine City labor, burn Pine City fuel, and gather Pine City grain. Don't you think it would pay you to use our flour? Give it a trial anyway. We guarantee it.

CHOSES L. A. ROSING

Minnesota Democrats in Convention Nominate Candidates.

L. A. Rosing is named for Governor and Robert A. Smith for Lieut. Governor. The Convention Large and Harmonious.

The following were placed in nomination by the democratic state convention at Minneapolis, June 23:

Governor—Leonard A. Rosing, Cannon Falls.

Lieutenant Governor—R. A. Smith,
St. Paul.

Secretary of State—Spurgeon Odell, Marshall.

Attorney—Albert G. Leile, Owatonna.
General—Frank D. Larke
tre, Minneapolis.

Treasurer—Joseph L. Myers, Little Falls.

Clerk of the Supreme Court—Geo. P.
Jones, Rock County.

Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—Major J. M. Bowler, Minneapolis.

State Chairman Rosing called to order at the opening of the convention, and the call was promptly dispersed.

Humphrey Johnson, of Isanti, was elected to the office of auditor of Wasteland, for temporary chairman and Meesa-hah, of Pine and Carver, was elected to the platform committee.

A committee on credentials was appointed, and no contestants on the list of delegates as returned to the state central committee were allowed to stand. The organization was next made permanent, and a committee of eleven was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws.

The motion for a regular annual convention was carried, and adjournment was had until 2 p.m. yesterday.

John S. Farley, chairman of the committee on resolutions, told the platform committee that two bills of great importance had been introduced.

The bill to prohibit the sale of tobacco was introduced by Hon. John Lind. The platform is as follows:

"We declare our allegiance to the principles of Democracy, and set forth on our national platform the following demands, as especially taught by that great exponent
of the cause of freedom, Abraham Lincoln,

and by the great leaders of our party,
for the adoption of which we have ratified in the latest national convention."

We further express our admiration for and grateful appreciation of the great statesman, and his unique and inspiring teaching in the service of humanity, and most fearless and eloquent champion of the rights of man. William W. H.

We also declare that the people of the United States that their latest Democratic national convention has not been sufficiently aroused to compel the passing of legislation to secure the principles of the faith, however reluctantly to the people of Spain, to withdraw our troops from the island and allow them to continue in the exercise of self-government, and we condemn the conduct of the Spanish Government in its treatment of the American nation, and before the declaration of war with Spain.

We also declare that we regret that the Spanish people, the agents of the Spanish government, and the publican party, the people of the United States, and the people of the Philippines, placed before the world the most abominable fundamental principles of the Spanish Government, and our flag and arms in evidence to orders from that country.

The power of the modern trusts is an anomalous and dangerous evil, and we would revoke the tariff benefits they enjoy; we would reform the subsidy system, and we would make the regulation of disease—special privilege. And we emphasize the application of the Democratic principle of equal rights to all and special privileges to none, and we protest against the existing inequalities and wrongs.

We also declare that in a spirit of lawlessness which finds expression even in the public service bank and the money market, we oppose government by injunction.

We will correct the imbedded and unbusiness-like habits that throttle our progress, and we will reorganize our charter, so that there are now only two lodges, nine less than a year ago.

MINNESOTA NEWS

Crop Bulletin.

There has been no rain in the extreme southwest during the week, and though showers were general elsewhere, and a heavy rain fell in the total area of the Red River valley, the total rainfall for the week was small in the southern half of the state and also in most of the Red River valley. The weekly rainfall in Becker, Douglas and Wilkin counties were the largest, reported, and these ranged only from 0.75 of an inch to 1 inch. The amount of rain in the north was low for the season, and on the morning of the 1st, it is probable that several frosts would have been general if there had not been fresh winds during the night; in the southwestern counties the winds were strong and caused considerable injury to hay and young flax, gardens and millet. The cool weather has retarded the growth of corn, which is generally rather small. The week has been favorable for the cultivation of corn and potatoes.
Potatoes are doing very well,
and the carrots and turnips are progressing well. The weather has been favorable for use. The dry and cool weather has been beneficial to the small grains and they continue in a vigorous condition, though there is a fear of lodging on rich soils; a little rain is said to have appeared in some northern fields. In the southwest the weather has been cool and dry, and it will not be long before it is heading; early oats are also beginning to head. Barley is heading;
early flax is in bloom, and rye is beginning to turn color. Clover cutting is begun, and timothy is coming into blossom; hay will be general before the end of the month.

New Counties.

A bill has been introduced taking in the name of county division. The bill contains two parts, one for the voters of the county at the fall elections. Petitions have been circulated for a vote on three different propositions, for setting off the townships on the northeastern part of the county. The petitioners say: "One of the reasons for which a proclamation has been issued is for the setting aside of eighteen townships in the southeast corner of Polk county for a new county to be known as Columbia county with Foster as the county seat." A bill has been introduced in the setting apart of the same territory and the organization of Columbia county with McIntosh as the county seat. A third proposition is to add a third township to the county with Cannon as the county seat. The bill is to be voted upon in the fall elections.

Good Templars.

The report of the grand secretary of the Good Templars has been heavily during the past year.
There were 2,781 Good Templars reported at the grand ledge session last year and 1,136 have been initiated during the year but the ledge has lost 2,605 members during the year so that it now has a net membership of 1,824, nearly 1,000 less than a year
ago.

Want New Laws.

Governor Van Sant and Dairy Commissioner Johnson have introduced a bill to adopt a new pure food code, drawn to cover all adulterations and preservatives, and avoiding all the defects of present laws. It will also cover the sale of adulterated whiskey and liquors. All other pure food laws will be revised and the proposed legislation will be prepared in great part by the legislature.

Mr. Johnson, who is a good representative of the people, is concerned in the interests of all classes and the hearts of the people of all classes are engaged in the improvement of the law.

THE STORY TELLER

THE NEW GIRL.

By W. R. Rose.

THE April sun was pouring in through the half-open window, and a gentle breeze from the south swayed the long curtains. But there was very little sunshine in Annabel Maitland's heart, and the south wind brought no soothng relief to her drowsy brain.

Presently there were two sharp whirs at the telephone. Annabel ran back to the instrument. It was a call from George. His Aunt Mary hadn't come. She had two more to catch the train elsewhere. The next train wouldn't be in until five o'clock. He would meet it then and bring his aunt home with him.

"Any girl yet?" he called.

"No," replied Annabel with a little smile in her voice.

"That's tough," said George.

"But we'll get along some way. Goodby."

Annabel hung up the receiver with a petulant little jerk.

"It's well all very well to say 'I get along somehow,'" she grumbled. "What good does it do? George can't lift his finger to do a thing about the house. Poor old dear. And I did want to have everything nice when his aunt came. Well, I'm to get a few hours respite, anyway. I'd better be studying that book some more, or shall I just dash?"

And then the telephone bell gave its double whir again.

"This is the Unique Employment Agency," said a voice. "We have a girl that we think would suit you. She has an excellent recommendation. And also says she can take the place at once."

"Send her right up, please," said Annabel.

"She will be up soon after luncheon," said the voice.

Annabel sat down; so very much relieved that she broke forth into song. It was a song that George had liked before they were married. How the time had flown! It seemed but yesterday that he was leaning over the piano and begging her for another verse. And she had been a young girl then. Married two years last October. She stopped her song just long enough to interpolate a little sigh, and then went on.

Probably it was the song that prevented her from hearing the doorbell. It rang, and Annabel sprang to her feet. And there stood a maid who had started by a long run at the kitchen door. She hurried down stairs and hastily turned the key and knob.

There stood a neatly garbed woman, a woman of middle age, with a pleasant smile on her motherly face.

Annabel smiled, too, when she caught sight of the stranger.

"Come right in," she said. "I'm so glad you didn't disappoint me. They telephoned that you wouldn't be up until after luncheon."

"Who telephoned?" inquired the stranger, and she smiled.

"Why, the agency people," replied Annabel. "Won't you sit down?"

The stranger accepted the invitation and Annabel seated herself before her.

"Of course you cook?" she said.

The stranger smiled again.

"I've had many years' experience at it," she said, with a queer little twinkle at her mouth.

"Bliss or fancy?"

"I think I may say both, ma'am."

"I like the modest way you say it," said Annabel. "They most always boast so. Do you make good bread?"

"I have been," said Annabel.

"And pastries and cakes?"

"George likes cookies. Yes, and he likes fried cakes. Do you make fried cakes?"

"Yes ma'am, and johnnycake too."

"He loves johnnycake, but we never had a girl who could make it to suit our taste." What afternoon would you like?"

"I'm not very particular, ma'am," said the stranger. "Perhaps we can arrange that later."

"I'm sure we can," said Annabel. "I pay $4, and have a laundress two days in the week."

"That's satisfactory, I think," said the stranger. "Have you much cooking?"

"Very little," said Annabel. "And I always help with the work too. You wouldn't mind my coming into the kitchen, would you?"

"Not in the least," said the stranger. "I think I'd rather like it."

"Thank you," said Annabel. "And I hope you find the kitchen suits you."

"It seems very convenient—and very clean," she said with an approving nod.

"I think you will find the place a comparatively easy one," said Annabel. "There will be no children to bother you."

"I'm sorry for that," said the stranger.

Annabel gave her a quick glance.

"I think I am going to like you very much," she said. "Will you look at your room now?"

So she took the stranger up the back stairs to the sky and sweet-smelling chamber, with its snowy bed-and curtains, and the stranger, as she laid aside her hat and cape, said the room quite suited her. Then she asked Annabel to lend her a comb, and soon frock that she could wear until her aunt arrived. And Annabel lent about four dollars in an amateur summer gown, and a white apron and a white cap, and the steek back and contemplated her work with great satisfaction.

"Why, you're a picture," she said.

"But you are not thinking of my kitchen," said Annabel, "but the maid had the maid."

And somehow Annabel failed to see any incongruity in this remark.

She escorted the new help back to the kitchen, and then hastily slipped into the dining-room and telephoned.

"George," she murmured, "the new girl has come, and I know she's a jewel!"

"Don't let her slip from the settee until I can see her," laughed George. "What is she, an emerald?"

"She's a diamond of the first water," said Annabel.

"If she's a diamond she must have curly hair," chuckled George.

"But, don't forget about Aunt Mary."

"Not for a moment," said Annabel.

"I am all ready for her now."

So Annabel and the new maid got the little luncheon together and ate it together; for here, thought the young mistress, is a maid that will probably not spoil.

But right in the midst of this little repast, the maid stood silent.

"Dear me," she cried, "I never thought to ask you for your name."

The maid looked up.

"It doesn't much matter," she said. "Suppose you can tell me. I told you I would tell you at my last place. It was Annie."

"It sounds a little familiar," said Annabel. "Out, of course, I'll call you that if you prefer it. George will think it funny, though."

"Your husband?"

"Yes. He has seen fun in almost everything we have," said Annabel.

"I am not supposed to be a very exacting person?"

"George says she is kindness itself, but I'm afraid she would be a little critical. You know how we women are? Of course, I suit George, but then he is quite blind to my faults."

"I'm really a rattlebrain," said Annabel. "Out, of course, I'll call you that if you prefer it," said Annabel.

The maid looked up again.

"The name is Lizzie," said Annabel.

"It's all right," said George, whose mouth was too well filled to permit of any further reply.

"The new maid made it," cried Annabel.

"The new maid did not appear in the dining-room. Once or twice Annabel dithered out after some necessity for the feast, but George caught no glimpse of the accomplished stranger.

"It is the cleanest prettiest trained animal show I have ever seen. The ponies, dogs and monkeys are marvels in their way and I congratulate Prof. Blake on his wonderful achievements in the line of training." This is what Mayor Thomas G. Hayes, of Baltimore, said a few weeks ago at the Barnyard Circus of Prof. Blake, which is with the Bostock-Furari Carnival company, which is to be the amusement feature of the coming carnival in West Superior, July 7-12. The prettiest of ponies, the most beautiful of dogs and the cleverest of monkeys are the actors in performances which has never been equalled in America. The animals do everything but talk. The ponies give a whole show all by themselves even to walking tight ropes and riding about on the backs of one another, jumping through hoops of fire, telling the time by a clock, telling the date and hour, answering all questions intelligently, of feet skyward by a balloon and marvellous and they display intelligence which is closely bordering on the human when they go through a regular comedy without a word of prompting from anyone. The monkeys are the clowns and they keep their audiences in roars of laughter. The grand finale when Mrs. Murphy, the Siamese aeronaut, sits thousands of feet skyward by a balloon and then returns to earth by means of a parachute, always makes a great hit and attracts much attention. In the world there is nothing like the ladies and children this is a particularly interesting show and is without question the finest of its class ever seen in this country. Professor Blake has spent a life time perfecting it and his accomplishments with the animals are truly astonishing.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission will hold examinations during September and October, in several places in each state to secure young men and women for the government service. There are now 126,423 positions in the classified civil service, being an increase of 46,736 in six years. There were 7,972 persons appointed between July 1, 1901, and April 15, 1902, being at the rate of 10,070 for the year. There will probably be 11,000 appointments next year. Salaries at appointment vary from $660 to $1,200 a year with liberal promotions afterward. All appointments are for life and for most positions only a common school education is required. Politics or religion is not considered. Those desiring to take examinations of this kind can get full information about them free by writing to the Columbian Correspondence College Washington, D. C., and asking for its Civil Service Catalogue for 1902.

HAVE NO PERMANENT HOME.

Americans Change Their Habitations Often Than Any Other Civilized People.

Americans seem to be naturally a migratory people. At least such would be the conclusion after a study of recent census statistics which show some remarkably interesting facts and among them the one that we are the greatest nation of rolling stones on the earth, but notwithstanding that fact, we succeed in gathering the moss of material prosperity.

The official figures showed that out of a native born population of 65,843,303 there are 13,663,651 living in states different from those in which they were born—that is, more than one person out of five has left the state of his birth to seek his fortune elsewhere.

If we count the 10,460,736 foreign-born residents we find that about one-third of the population has moved from the state or country of birth. These figures show our mobility to be in the ratio of ten to one, as compared with that of Europe.

The state of New York has lost 1,300,000 of her children who are now resident in other states, and has received from other states in their stead 1,000,000. This figure has a most remarkable record, which shows that she has children living in other states equal in number to one-half of her present population.

A HEAVY DEATH RATE.

Figures Demonstrate That Madrid Is the Most Unhealthy of All European Capitals.

Statistics recently published by the municipality of Madrid indicate that the Spanish capital possesses—one may "say"—an evil pre-eminence as the most unhealthiest of European capitals. Its death rate for the past five years has been about 23 per 1,000—much more than one-third higher than the average death rate of London.

Consumption is the chief cause of death, which is not surprising, for the keen, icy breeze from the Guadarrama, which, as the Spaniards say, "will not put out a candle, but will kill a man," must be fatal to consumptive patients.

The most serious mischief seems to be food adulteration and overcrowding, for 500,000 people are contained in 17,000 houses. That is a state of things for which there is no excuse, unless it be the "eternal want of pence" for there is room enough to spare on the vast plain which lies to the west, to build houses enough to accommodate any number of people. The municipality is going to take the matter in hand, but experience teaches us what that means in the land of "to-morrow—or the day after to-morrow."

PECULIAR CURRENCY.

Dollars of a Century Ago Used in Abyssinia—Bars of Salt Are the Small Change.

The currency of Abyssinia is something which to us Americans is given of by the Count Gleichen in his story of the mission to Menelik, and reprinted by Popular Science Monthly.

For standard money the people of Abyssinia use the Marin Theresa 1780 dollars, but for small change a very curious coin is used which is to be either a bar of hard crystallized salt, about ten inches long and two and a half broad and thick, slightly tapering toward the end. Five of these bars go for a dollar at the capital.

People have a particular abhorrence of dimness of the currency. If it does not ring like metal when struck with the finger-nail, or if it is cracked or chipped, they will not take it. It is a token of affection when friends meet to give each other a lick of their respective amols, and in this way the value of the bar is decreased.

The Largest Dome.

The largest dome in the world is that of the Lutheran church at Warsaw. Its interior diameter is 200 feet. That of the British museum is 120 feet.

Ancient Use of Perfumes.

The records left by the Phoenicians, Assyrians and ancient Persians show that among all those nations the use of perfumes was very common.

ADIRONDACK LUMBERING.

Interesting Considerations Regarding the Annual Timber Cut of Northern New York.

Note that the season of "log-driving" is at its height throughout the Adirondack region. It may be an interesting fact to know, says the Plattsburgh News, that the annual harvest of timber in the great forests of northern New York would require 450 miles of logging roads to end in a single log mill. Thirty million feet, log measure, will fill a river, ten miles of its length, and the annual cut of timber of all kinds is amounting to a million feet. These forests were for the most part stripped of their best pine 40 years ago, when the lumbermen cut nothing else. In those days the small demand for logs was supplied by lumber companies which were less interested because it would not profit unless packed, and as all the tanneries were situated near the border of the wilderness, it was too far to haul the bark. The Adirondack hemlock is inferior in size and quality to the hemlock of Pennsylvania, and owing to the unfavorable freight rates of that region hemlock could not be handled with profit. Hemlock is now being used in the pulp mills, and this has resulted in a larger cutting and an increased price.

YANKEE-LIKE.

Farmer Showed Native Shrewdness by Way He Sold Eggs—When Eleven is a Dozen.

Clerk Newton, of the Parker house, is telling a good story at his own expense, says the Boston Record.

When a small boy on the farm boys often sent him to the neighbors to sell eggs, and when their men failed to lay enough.

He noticed that the old farmer always held each egg before a lighted candle and examined it carefully. In his innocence of Yankee shrewdness, Newton supposed that this was prompted more by honesty and intention to detect whether the eggs were bad or not.

One day, however, when he counted his eggs, according to custom, there were only 11 in the basket.

With a determination not to be cheated, the lad trudged proudly back to the house, and quickly made known his discovery.

"Oh!" said the old farmer, "that's all right, my boy; one of them has a double yolk."

HOTEL FUNERALS.

They Are Infrequent, Because Objected to Landlords—Would Hurt His Business.

Landlords of hotels object to funerals, for their houses are eminently places of good cheer and on that sunshiny side of good cheer they are surrounded by sorrow, and when a guest comes under the roof of one of the landlords he uses all means possible to have the funeral services held elsewhere.

And, as a rule, the landlord has no difficulty in achieving that, because he is nearly always a transient guest, and it would seem both heartless and irreverent to bury him otherwise. But, if he is a resident guest (a thing that happens only twice in a thousand years), the landlord makes arrangements with the undertaker to have the services held in the latter's parlors.

And thus it happens, concludes the Baltimore Herald, that not one man in a thousand ever sees a funeral from a hotel.

Here's a Suggestion.

When you want a first-class daily newspaper.

One that excels in Northwest news.

One that strives to get the news of the Northwest, to print it first, to print it well.

One whose commercial and financial news and market reports are admitted to be the best.

One that is fearless and fair in its editorial discussion of live topics—republican but independent.

One that gives Bart's Arithmetic, the first book in arithmetic ever published.

One whose business paper is the best in the Northwest.

The Minneapolis Journal.
