WASHINGTON.

A BRIEF ACCOUNT OF WHAT WAS SEEN ON THE ROAD TO THAT BEAUTIFUL AND INTERESTING CITY, AND SOME OF THE HAPPENINGS WHILE THERE.

Editors to the number of 150, including ladies and children, took the Great Western train for Chicago on the 23rd day of last month for an eight days' outing, arriving in Chicago the following morning where the party took breakfast at the Grand Central station, and immediately after took the Burlington & Ohio R'y. for the trip to Washington. This road passes through Indiana and Sunday we had a good view of the country and the editors were unanimous in the conviction that of all the states we passed through there were none to compare with Minnesota in farming, as the farms are in a deplorable condition, most of the houses and out building being dilapidated and showing the past thirty or forty years of decay and ruin.

Ohio is the best state we passed through, and coming into the oil region where the derricks could plainly be seen from the cars, some of the party thought at first that the wind mills had been blown off the tower, before they knew what they were. Here the land is valued at from $75 to $200 per acre. There are about 5000 oil wells in all in this section of the country which are mostly owned by the Standard Oil Co. Coming into Pittsburg one sees a sight that he never will forget. The train runs close by the gigantic iron works, and a good view can be had of this mammoth industry where thousands of men are daily employed, and one can give but little idea of the magnitude of this industry, but needless to say it was a treat to see what we did.

Leaving Pittsburg we get a good view of the Alleghany mountains over which we now travel. The scenery is magnificent and beyond our power of description. At Sand Point we reached the summit of the mountains of 2500 feet above sea level. Here also we pass through a tunnel almost two miles long. Several other tunnels were also passed through but smaller ones. Mining and manufacturing are the principle industries of this region. At one o'clock we reached Cumberland, Maryland, where dinner was served. Cumberland is a town of about 20,000 people and is devoted principally to mining and manufacturing. From Cumberland to Washington the territories and towns along the Baltimore and Ohio are of much historical interest. The Chesapeake and Ohio canal courses its way along the Potomac and we get our first view of the tow boats. At Martinsburg, West Virginia, is where Stonewall Jackson carried away eight locomotives, hauling them by men and horses over the mountains, thirty miles south to be used on the southern railway. Every town along the line in this section has something of historic interest but as our space is limited it is impossible to mention them all.

We reached Harper's Ferry in the afternoon where a short stop of ten minutes was made to view the spot where John Brown made his memorable strike for freedom the slaves. The old fort in which he with a handful of his followers fought so bravely and where the first blood of the great civil war was shed is gone and in its place a monument to John Brown has been erected. The story of the invasion of Harper's Ferry is told by the government tablets alongside of the monument. The Ferry is at the junction of three states, Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia. Ten miles from Harper's Ferry the battle of Antietam was fought where 20,000 men were slain.

From Harper's Ferry to Washington, a distance of 150 miles, several places of historic interest are passed and as we leave the mountains and follow the banks of the Potomac river you pass many an old plantation that is in the same condition as when the boys in blue visited them with shot and shell. The land is rough and stony and is said that one can buy land here for $10 per acre. Peaches seem to be the only thing that will thrive well enough to make a livelihood out of. As you approach Washington you can see the dome of the Capitol, Congressional Library and, towering above these and all other buildings, the Washington monument.

Arriving at Washington we boarded a street car and rode to the Riggs House where we made our headquarters. We arrived in the capital city at 7 o'clock, just six hours late. After supper had been served the whole party went to the Library, there to inspect the finest building in the world; to describe it justifiably is impossible and to say that it is grand would be putting it mildly. The next day, Tuesday, the party took a trip around the city on the street cars, and in each car was a guide who explained the points of interest as they were passed, making a very pleasant trip for all, and enabling the editorial sightseers to see more during the ride than could have been seen on foot in a week. In the afternoon we could go as we choose and the Capitol, a magnificent structure, was visited together with the White House and other department buildings.

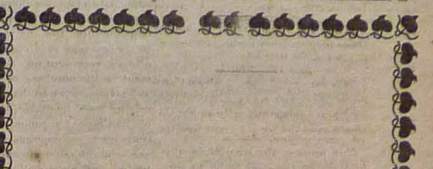

Washington Monument is 555 feet high, made of marble, and when you arrive at the top in an elevator, you can see the tablets presented by the different states. Looking out of the openings in the top you can see for miles around and view the beautiful landscapes, and all of the Government buildings, and also look down on the prettiest city in the United States, where neither telephone nor telegraph or street car wires can be seen, and the streets have the appearance of a marble floor. The streets are beautiful having beautiful shade trees, on either side, and well kept lawns. The city is governed by three commissioners who have the affairs of the city in their hands, and it is a notable fact that there has never been a scandal in the management during all these years to disgrace the name of the Capital of this grand and glorious nation.

It is needless to try and explain or go into details about all we saw in Washington, as pen and tongue cannot. All we can say is that if you want to know what it is and how it looks, go and see for yourself.

Thursday a trip was taken down the Potomac river to Marshall hall where a plank stand dinner was served. A trip to Mount Vernon, the home of Washington, was next in order, where could be seen furniture, the bed that this illustrious man died in; and last but not least, the tomb where rests the remains of the first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen. This is a beauty spot and to enjoy it one must see it. At Alexandria we visited Christ church where Washington worshipped and the old structure is the same today as it was at that period. We also visited the Masonic Lodge where Washington was Master, sat in the chair and held the same gavel that he did.

It is surprising to note the feeling that comes over one when he visits these old historic places, and he feels that he never could appreciate the grand and glorious unless he could see with his own eyes as books cannot describe one half. The boat on which we made our trip down the river is the same boat that was used by Lincoln as his flagship during the war. Only three years ago the upper part of the boat was rebuilt, but the hull and engine are the same, as is also the greater part of the interior of the cabin.

Saturday at noon we commenced our journey homeward, which was of but little interest, coming the same route we went, and arriving in Chicago six hours late—the reason the B. & O. Ry. Co. had for this was that our train was too heavy to handle through the many tunnels and curves that are made crossing

The largest pair of shoes ever manufactured for actual wear has just been forwarded to their destination by a firm of shoemakers at Rockland, Mass. The size of the shoes is "47" and they are nearly three inches long. Four common shoe boxes were required for packing them—two for each shoe. The buyer is Harry Murray, a negro working in a sawmill at Tirrell, Ark.

A carpet industry was started a few years ago in a poor district in Denver, and, commencing with a dozen women workers, it has grown to such an extent that the professor will prepare for several hundred people. The carpets are hand made, after the Turkish and Persian fashion, in rooms of small walled squares, and designs and colorings being most artistic and effective.

The Duke of Buccleuch, King Edward's host at Dalkeith, is one of six men who own between one-sixth of all Scotland, and there are customs still preserved on his estate dating back to King Alfred. Dr. Percé, of Marburg, addressed a brilliant gathering of physicians on the healing properties of sea water in cases of rheumatism of the joints and muscles. He has tested it thoroughly, and proved its efficiency in 600 cases. If a patient is suffering from rheumatism the stung part does not swell at first, nor until the sea water is frequently introduced. Then the swelling gradually vanishes. Dr. Percé allows his patients to be stung at first by a few bees, and then gradually increases the number.

A curious difficulty has arisen at Llandudno, Wales, where the lesson of a theater had undertaken to perform a historical drama written and performed in Welsh. The play is based on the career of the last native prince of Wales. The company had concluded the final dress rehearsal and the Welshmen were looking forward to the productions of Welsh life and language of six centuries ago—when the British censor of plays stopped in. His protest was that he had not seen a play which he can not understand. By "Lloerwyn ein Llyw Idr" he meant "The Wolf in Sheep's Clothing."

The first patent ever issued in this country was granted to one Samuel Winslow, in 1645, for manufacturing salt. The grant was made by the Massachusetts Bay colony in 1630 years, and was conditional upon Mr. Winslow's completing his plant within a year. Later the patent was granted to leave patents independently, as the original colonies had done. The first patent granted by the United States as a nation was given to Helen and Edwin, of Vermont, who claimed a patent for a method of making pot and pearl ashes.

FLOOD REQUIRES CLIMAX.

Many Lives Are Lost in the Waters That Surround Towns Opposite St. Louis.

SUMMARY OF DAMAGE ALREADY DONE.

Homes of Twenty-Five Thousand People Destroyed, Property Lost Estimated at $2,000,000—Several Towns Are Entirely Under Water—Much Stock Drowned.

St. Louis, June 9.—The towns across the river from here, including East St. Louis, Venice, Madison and Granite City, are making their final stand against the water. So far 25 lives are reported lost, and it is feared others will be counted among the dead before the waters begin to subside. The situation in this district can be summed up as follows:

River stage, 37.5 feet; stationary. Probably a slight rise by morning, when the highest stage will have been reached.

Over 300,000 acres of rich farming lands under water.

All of Venice and the greater part of Madison and Granite City under water.

Twenty-five thousand people rendered homeless.

Freight traffic completely paralyzed and passenger traffic practically so.

The shipping and manufacturing district of East St. Louis for three miles along the river front under water. Losses here are estimated at $1,000,000.

East St. Louis threatened with complete inundation.

St. Louis flooded only along the water front.

Entire property lost estimated at $3,000,000.

Another break in the Jay levee, 25 miles below Quincy, flooding the upper section of the valley.

Estimates Too Low.

It is more than probable that the estimate of $3,000,000 is far below the actual number. On all sides reports are found who tell of having seen houses turn over, plunging into the water, and the water to rise no more in the swift undertow, or of having seen men struggling in the water two feet from land, to receive assistance, who on exhaustion gave up and sank, or of women being drowned under various circumstances. But these stories are so varied that confirmation is impossible.

Some declare that when the flood shall have subsided and order shall be finally restored it will be found that 400 persons are missing.

Towns Under Water.

Reports from Venice, Madison, West Union, Newport, Houston and Granite City indicate that all are under water ranging from ten to 25 feet. Desperate efforts are being made to save the homes, many of which are marooned on sandbars and islands and in the more substantial buildings.

The heaviest loss has fallen on the island of Venice. Damage being estimated at $2,000,000. Calhoun, Ill., is deserted, the 500 citizens who were driven from home taking refuge in Alton, which is suffering itself, damage to property being estimated at $500,000.

KANSAS FLOODS.
Special Session of the Legislature Almost Certain.

Topeka, Kan., June 9.—It is regarded as practically certain that there will be a special session of the Kansas legislature within two weeks for the purpose of relieving some of the damage caused by the flood of a week ago in which 78 lives were lost and property valued at millions of dollars destroyed.

FLOODS IN MISSOURI.
Fifty-Eight Lives Lost and Great Damage Done to Property.

Spartanburg, S. C., June 9.—Reports from the Indian territory indicate that at least 58 persons perished as a result of the flood which swept the cotton mill district. The property damage is estimated at $5,000,000. Prompt relief is extended to the Paucet district.

BIG LEVEES BREAK.
Flood in the Mississippi at Keokuk and Vicinity Breaks All Records.

Keokuk, Ia., June 9.—The flood in the Mississippi at this point and south of here passed its crest yesterday and became the most destructive in the history of the upper Mississippi valley. The Hun and Clear River levees broke Wednesday and yesterday the districts protected by them are being inundated. The district includes 75,000 acres of the richest bottom land along the river and the loss is conservatively estimated at $10 million. The immense tract of Missouri bottom lands flooded in the week making the total area flooded over 300,000 acres. The loss in addition to the crop loss includes the damage to the levees, the loss of stock, and the destruction of buildings.

Cannet Via Prices.
Chicago, June 9.—A permanent injunction against the Indians and the United States government has been issued by Judge Kuhlman, restraining them from entering into a contract to fix prices.

Failed for Millions.
Toronto Ont., June 9.—The great banking firm of A. E. Ames & Co. closed its doors at noon yesterday with liabilities of $10,000,000.

PRESIDENT HOME AGAIN.

Arrives in Washington from Steamship Westward Trip and Recieves a Hearty Welcome.

Washington, June 6.—President Roosevelt returned to Washington at seven o'clock last night, after an absence of 66 days. During that period the president and his party traveled about 14,000 miles through states and two territories. He made 350 speeches. His reception by the people of Washington began at the Pennsylvania station and continued uninterrupted until he reached the White house. Here the president found a throng of admirers assembled in the grounds south of the White house and he made a brief speech to them from the rear balcony.

The president made the final speech of his tour at Indianapolis, during which he said:

"I have returned from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and now well-nigh back again to the Atlantic, and the thing that has struck me more than anything else was that I have been in the fundamental unity of our people. And another thing, I went on my trip a pretty good expansionist; I come back a better one, because, having seen out people on the Atlantic coast, in the Mississippi valley, in the great plains and among the Rockies, and on the Pacific coast, I feel as though the map can look at them and not see that they inevitably belong to the expanding, and not to the stationary, race of mankind. Our nation must play a greater part in the world. We cannot help it. All that we can decide is whether we will play that part well or ill, and I know you too well, my fellow countrymen, to doubt your destination in that case will be."

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.
Clothesburst in South Carolina Causes Enormous Damage—Death List Over Fifty.

Spartanburg, S. C., June 8.—The loss of life in Saturday's clothesburst and the resultant floods may reach 150, but it is feared they will be even higher. It is estimated that the loss of life in that state will be 50 or 60. The total property loss in the entire section laid waste by the storm loss at Paucet is placed at $1,000,000, summarized as follows: Mills Nos. 1 and 2 demolished, 28,000 spindles wrecked, 3,500 bales of cotton and 100,000 worth of goods in company's store damaged; grist mill, black iron gin, post office, shoe shop, blacksmith shop, dental office, livery stable and a Presbyterian church all swept away. More than 500 people are homeless and 4,000 out of employment.

GEORGIA CYCLONE VISITS.

Deaths from the Terrible Disaster at Gainesville Over 100—Some Entirely Injured.

Gainesville, Ga., June 9.—The 6,000 inhabitants of this city have just begun to realize the extent of the appalling disaster of Monday. Fighting from all available sources and giving priority to those reports which are believed to be trustworthy the following is a summary: One hundred and ten killed; 200 injured, and probably 20 will die; 800 homeless, their residences having been wiped out of existence; property loss of about $500,000, none of which was covered by storm insurance.

The object of the convention is to decide whether the union shall suspend pending the settlement of the difficulty existing in the coalfield basin.

Over 100 Lives Lost.
Marcellus, June 8.—A terrible shipping disaster occurred a little distance from this port at noon yesterday, when two passenger steamships, the Inouaire and Liban, both belonging to the Franchett Steamship company, of Marcellus, came into collision. The Liban sank and crew perished.

ILLINOIS COLUMBIAN AT JAIL.

Mob Takes a Colored Man from Jail at Belleville and Hangs and Burns Him.

BOY DRAGGED THROUGH THE STREETS.

His Crime Was Showing of Superiority to School for Refusing to Hand His Certificate as a Teacher—Lynchers Make No Attempt to Conceal Identity.

Belleville, Ill., June 8.—E. H. Wyatt, a negro who Saturday afternoon sent Superintendent of Schools J. B. Hertz because the latter had refused to give him a certificate as a teacher, was taken from the jail at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night by a mob of more than 1,000 furious men and lynched. Wyatt was dragged through the streets, the recipient of kicks and blows, to the public square, where it was strung up to a telegraph pole.

Burn the Body.
Meanwhile some one in the party suggested burning the body, and it was hastily brought. The corpse was cut down, placed on a pile of inflammable material, thoroughly saturated with oil, and set on fire. When it had burned a recognizable crisp the mob quietly dispersed.

Earlier in the evening a mob of Belleville people made an attack on the court house. The mob encouraged the authorities to believe that danger of a lynching had been averted. However, the residents of Freeburg, the home town of Prof. Hertz, had been organizing themselves and organizing. Shortly after 11 o'clock they began to arrive in Belleville in small groups, attracting no attention.

Jail Surrounded.
Joining with the Belleville people, they surrounded the jail, and while one party made a demonstration in front to divert the attention of the guards the main body made a swift descent upon the unprotected rear and battered down the doors. The jailer and his associates were speedily overcome and the mob swarmed through the jail. The door of the cell containing the negro was broken down and the mob entered, limp and trembling with fear. The cursing, howling mob struggled and fought for an opportunity to administer blows to the victim.

Just as he was being dragged from the building some one struck him a terrible blow on the head with a log, and he was probably never used to batter down the doors.

Victim Knocked Senseless.
This probably caused his death, or at least rendered him insensible to the blows which the mob had in mind for him. Dragging the senseless body a block to the square, it was speedily hanged to a telegraph pole. At first the mob was under the impression that the victim was an evading corpse, but this was not satisfactory to a majority of the exulting mob. They demanded a bonfire, and the body was then cut down and the lynching party made no attempt at concealment.

Failed to Identify.
Belleville, Ill., June 9.—At the inquest yesterday over the remains of Dave Wyatt, the negro lynched here Saturday night, the jury could not identify anyone in the crowd. It is believed that the lynching could be elicited from the ten witnesses examined. The coroner's jury could not identify a single person, and after hearing ten exculpatory affidavits, a verdict that Wyatt met his death at the hands of parties unknown was returned.

Lynching in the South.
Macon, Ga., June 9.—W. Copeland Winslow, Jr., whose father was one of the leading citizens of Georgia, was slain by a mob headed by a negro named "Benjo" Pearly on the former's farm near Fort Valley yesterday afternoon. The negro was captured and hanged by a mob.

Brothers Indicted.
Washington, June 9.—The Graft brothers, manufacturers of the patent box fastener, have been indicted by the federal grand jury upon a substantial charge of conspiracy. That was produced to secure the indictment of A. W. Machen, former superintendent of free delivery, who is charged with having accepted the bribes from them for securing the adoption of the fasteners.

Charges Blown Up.
Rochester, Minn., June 8.—The Baptist church in Byron was blown up by dynamite Friday morning at one o'clock. There has been a bitter feud between the churches ever since the minister, Rev. Mr. Utton, now of Lanesboro, resigned and united with the Methodist church. No arrests have been made.

Found Dead in Bed.
Caro, Mich., June 8.—William M. Bell, an eccentric bachelor who lived alone in a squat and wretched house in the north end of Caro, was found dead in bed Thursday. Friday over $10,000 was found hidden in his wardrobe. Government agents seized $20,000 and $9,000 was located buried in fruit cans.

New Capital Decried.
Jackson, Miss., June 8.—The handsomely equipped building, erected at a cost of $1,000,000, was formally dedicated Wednesday. The ceremonies were attended by a number of distinguished visitors and citizens.

OHIO REPUBLICANS.

Nominate Myron T. Herrick for Governor and Indorse President Roosevelt for Re-election.

Columbus, O., June 5.—In state convention yesterday the republicans nominated the following ticket: Governor, Myron T. Herrick, Cleveland; lieutenant governor, Warren C. Hubbard; auditor, Walter D. Galling; cashier, W. S. McKinnon; Ashbaugh; attorney general, W. H. Hampton; Ellis; supreme judge, Hugh Augustus M. Sommers; Springfield; school commissioner, E. A. Jones; State; member of board of public works, George H. Watkins, Pike.

The platform adopted was mostly devoted to state issues. Its opening paragraphs, in which President Roosevelt's candidacy for president in 1904 was endorsed, were as follows:

"The republicans of Ohio rejoice in the results of the republican administration in the state and nation. It has promoted the welfare of the entire country. Past achievements insure the faithful performance of new duties.

"We commend President Roosevelt's fidelity to duty, his adherence to President McKinley's policies, and his own ability to his high office showing him in every way worthy of election by the people to be their chief magistrate. We favor his nomination for a second term."

"The Ohio republican delegation in congress has honored the state in both houses. Senators Joseph B. Foraker and Marcus A. Hanna have splendidly maintained Ohio's leadership. The reelection of Hanna is a distinct national demand upon our state, and we hereby cordially promise him the united support of the entire republican party of Ohio."

BOAT CAPSIZED.

Five Persons Plunged into the Des Moines River at Fraser, Ia., and Drowned.

Fraser, Ia., June 9.—Five persons lost their lives here yesterday in the Des Moines river. The victims were: Mrs. Mary A. Hoover, Mrs. George W. Hoover, Mrs. Cora Hoover, Steve Corneille, Carrie Megatis and Nicholas Grometin. All but Coleman are Italians and were employed in the Fraser coal mines. Shortly before the noon hour Monday they crowded into a small boat to row across to Fraser. The boat reached the middle of the stream safely, but there it was caught by the current, whirled around and capsized. The men struggled in the water for a few seconds and then all disappeared.

President in Pulpit.
Washington, June 8.—President Roosevelt occupied the pulpit and preached a sermon on the brotherhood of man at the dedication of the new Grace Memorial Reformed church yesterday. In his address he accorded all persons who profess lofty ideals and under the cloak of the outward seeming commit crimes or sins. He pleaded that religious confession with deeds was an inequity, and urged that a helping hand be extended to immigrants for the sake of the citizenship of the country, and that brotherly love be a guiding principle of life.

Statue of Hobart Unveiled.
Petersen, N. J., June 4.—The bronze statue of Garret A. Hobart, erected here in his honor by friends, has been unveiled. Mrs. Hobart, the widow of the late vice president, and her son Garret occupied seats on the platform with the statue. Gov. Franklin Murphy and United States Senators Keen and Dryden were also present. The orator of the day was John W. Griggs, attorney general in McKinley's cabinet.

Danger of Lynching Over.
La Crosse, Wis., June 8.—Telephone reports received from Sparta Saturday morning state that the danger of a lynching being lynch has passed for the time being. During the night the mob thinned out, and finally dispersed. OVER ONE HUNDRED LIVES ARE LOST.

The Steamer Liban Is Run Down by the Inouaire and the Former Sinks in Seventeen Minutes—Sixty at Marcellus Were In Vala—Story of a Rescue.

Marseilles, France, June 8.—The steamers Inouaire and Liban collided off this port at noon yesterday. The Liban sank, and more than 100 of the passengers and crew drowned.

Both vessels were passing steamers. The Liban, with 115 passengers, called on its regular trip for Basia, Corsica, Sunday morning. The Inouaire was coming into port. Mairé had the steamers from each other until it was too late to avoid the collision.

Races for Shore.
The Inouaire crashed into the Liban's side at full speed, cutting a great hole through which the water poured with a rush.

The captain of the Liban turned the steamer and ordering full speed ahead began a race to reach the shore. The Liban kept the course and then the fore part of the vessel plunged under the water and almost in an instant the ship had disappeared.

Stemmen Go to Rescue.
The collision was witnessed from the pilot boat Bleachamp, which was about two miles distant. The Bleachamp immediately reported to the spot to render assistance. The steamer Balkan and other vessels also drew near the sinking ship and made desperate efforts to rescue those on board. The Bleachamp picked up 40 persons, many of whom were at the point of exhaustion. The Balkan rescued 37 passengers, and up to the present it is known that in addition to the passengers 17 of the crew were also saved.

Work of Rescue Difficult.
Officers of the steamer Balkan describe the scene just before the Liban disappeared as being terrible. The vessel was sinking it was inclined to such an angle that the masts struck the water, causing an eddy which made the work of rescue most difficult. A number of the passengers were clinging to the foundering vessels and uttering despairing cries as it went down.

Story of a Survivor.
One of the survivors gives the following details of the disaster:

"When the Inouaire crashed into us a great panic prevailed on board. Attempts were made to lower the boats. The first one boat was got away, and in that I and a few others escaped to the Bleachamp. As the vessel sank bow first the passengers were covered by an awning. This, as the Liban foundered, became a cage in which the passengers were caught and dragged down beneath the waters."

Many of the rescued were injured in the collision. The Inouaire sustained considerable damage to its bow, but managed to reach port safely. Thousands of persons gathered round the morgue, hospitals and on the quays throughout the evening. Thus far only four bodies have been identified.

FOREST FIRES.

Flames Hagging in the Adirondack Mountains and Throughout New England.

New York, June 5.—The forest fires in the Adirondacks and New England are spreading in an alarming manner, and have cost millions in timber and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of summer cottages and camping resorts. Fires are reported in Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Connecticut and Massachusetts. Long Island to the east of here has been swept for miles. Over this city and all the region around the smoke is so dense that the sun is obscured. The big ocean going vessels felt their way in and out of the harbor, or else remained at anchor to avoid collisions.

Students Drowned.
Chicago, June 8.—Lester L. Miller, of Lincoln, Wis., student at the University of Chicago, was drowned in the lagoon at Jackson park, near the Spanish carnival.

Many Immigrants.
Washington, June 8.—The number of immigrants arriving in this country continues to increase. Statistics for the 11 months ending April 30 show the total for that year having been 2,011,000. The number of immigrants arriving numbered 883,272.

Heavy Damage by Fire.
Chicago, June 8.—The business portion of the town of New Lisbon was almost entirely destroyed by fire early in the evening of April 20. The fire which started in a factory, and spread to the buildings were entirely destroyed.

Five Killed.
Stillwell, Wis., June 8.—Nine persons were killed and three injured by a head-on collision of two Santa Fe railroad passenger trains near here.

LIFE'S DARKER SIDE.

Washington Has Its Poor Just Like Every Other City.

Profrisco's Next Door Neighbor Sometimes is Most Degraded Poverty—Shrewd Manipulators of Sympathy.

(Special Washington Letter.)
It is not poverty, any more, that is the subject of the current craze, but the simple statement of fact that "the poor live with you always."

There will be no poor people in the world when all men become communists and the disciples who "had all things in common." Until the coming of that millennium of communism the poor will live with you always.

When that condition shall have been developed, in the moral evolution of which we are a part, what will be the result? Will it be benevolence? Where no poverty exists there can be no benevolence, and ultimately no need of the benevolent faculty. Not less are the benevolent brains of the world to be turned to other uses, and some other faculty will be a nobler one, taking its place.

Men, women and children who learn to live by their wits impose upon the benevolent; so that on this account in all towns and cities charities are organized and intelligently managed. Not less are the poor, with only one arm, or with a door bell in this city and appealed for charity. He wasted money to help him get back to his home in Boston. In reply to an inquiry he said that his left hand had been caught in some machinery and his entire arm destroyed.

Before giving aid the citizen undertook to examine the stamp of his arm. The poor boy abashed from the examination. He stepped backward and soon began running away. He was caught by the citizen who displayed the badge of a precinct detective. The poor one-armed boy was taken to the station and his left arm, which was strapped to his side, was released. He had been making more than a good living by imposing upon the sympathies of the benevolent.

This is only one sample out of hundreds of thousands of devices in real life to profit by the credulity and sympathy of the charitable. And here another, fresh from the memory of the narrator, who has had more impulse than reason or common sense, from adolescence to maturity.

Out of the darkness of an alley in fashionable Washington two stalwart young men emerged, one of them saying in an audible undertone: "It is humiliation or starvation, and I prefer the humiliation." Then he came to the narrator and said: "I beg your pardon, sir, but my brother and I are hungry; and James is on a verge of suicide. We are seafaring of an old Maryland family; but our good clothes and it pennies are all we have left."

He showed that he had a few beautiful rows of teeth; also two honest dark brown eyes. His story was so interesting and so modestly told that he and his silent, moody brother were taken to a restaurant where they ate two big suppers; just as very hungry men would eat—ravenously. Then they were given much ready money as their benefactor could spare, and they departed with their stomachs full of good food, and their eyes filled with grateful tears.

Thirty-five dollars were in the pocket-book of their friend when he met the poor fellows; but there was no pocket-book at all when he reached in his pocket for it an hour later. The poor vice makes poverty despicable, and when poverty encourages vice. Careful study of this problem of systematic charity develops one singular fact; and that is, that the Christians who love their fellow men (in prayer meetings) are being and being housed in alleys. Their investments yield ten per cent. or upwards; and as they grow rich out of the hard earnings of the poor, they "thank God" that they are not as other men are. There are alleys which are respectable, but they are all paths downward to poverty and suffering. It is in the alleys that fuel and food are taken by the associated charities. Whole families dwell in single rooms of alley houses, and five families have been found huddled in one alley house of three rooms. Under such circumstances it is as useless to try to teach virtue as it would be to try to get an Apache papoose to understand the meaning of differential calculus. It is simply incomprehensible. In some of these alleys are in the rear of fashionable residences, and peevish stalks back of the brownstone fronts. In an alley one block from the main highway of Great Britain a family dwelt in a single room where the cooking, eating, sleeping, washing, ironing and quarreling are all done. In the same alley not long ago there were five cases of smallpox discovered. The alley houses have no cellars, no drainage, no modern conveniences. It is a wonder that disease does not become rampant here, when one has revealed these alley conditions.

The colored people in the alleys of south Washington are worse conditioned than ever they were in slavery days. One of the old women said that she had been living on one corner upward of 20 years; that she had ten children and all were gone out into the world except the baby; that she had no knowledge of her own children; and that they never called on her. In slavery days, when families were occasionally separated by the masters, hands were held up in horror. But in these latter days, when poverty separates families, few people on the surface realize what is going on in the submerged tenements.

When asked, in his office, how he could endure hearing so many personal pleas, Mr. Weller replied: "I've been hearing hard luck stories so long that I understand them all before they are uttered. There are very few new ones to me. And yet each individual case is all the more pathetic because of its singularity; consequently I listen as though each case were something entirely new and demanding special attention." He entertains poor girls and women with the greatest ease, putting them under no obligations, and making them feel that they have made him happy by giving him an opportunity to help them. He is a diplomat as well as a philanthropist.

But he can be stern and just, as well as generous. The man or woman with a false hair brush might better take it somewhere else, for he will detect the least discordant note in the story. They who occasionally have the contrary to attempt to impose on Mr. Weller usually have their labor for their pains, and it is as sent by the pot court judge. In such cases there is no disposition to be merciful or to extenuate the wrongdoer. And so the word has gone around among the nobles that Washington is not a good place to go with any but genuine hard luck stories.

Secretary Weller says that the associated charities here, as in all other cities, does not stop short in its work when sympathy is relieved by the aid of the organization to ascertain where good characters are capable of being developed and to find employment for all of the worthy. In this the Young Men's Christian association cordially and effectively cooperates. It is a state reliably that not less than 1,600 families here are to-day supported by those whose beginnings were extremely unfortunate, but who were lifted up and given employment. Also, many beautiful girls have been taken from the view of the world, and helped to heaven.

There are many ladies and gentlemen who have their parts to play in this drama of humanity; and will tell about them some other day.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Freight Line Taxes.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson has notified the freight line companies doing business in Minnesota to report the amount of capital stock, real estate value, mileage and other information relating to the business condition of the companies on or before July 31 for taxation purposes, under the law passed by the recent legislature. Mr. Iverson estimates that the law will add from $5,000 to $6,000 to the state's revenues.

Freight line companies have not been required to pay taxes since Feb. 22, 1902. A law passed in 1897 and amended in 1899 required the companies to pay a flat rate of 2 per cent. This, the supreme court decided, was unconstitutional. The new law specifies that the rate shall be the average rate fixed by the state on other classes of property.

The law provides that the state board of equalization shall ascertain the value of the capital stock of each company in the state by subtracting from the company's entire capital stock the value of its real estate and taking a proportion of the result based on the proportion of the state mileage to the company's entire mileage.

School Land Sales.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson announces that no school land will be sold until next October. Mr. Iverson believes that the land is a good investment and should not be forced on the people. His plan is to offer it for sale only where actual settlement is contemplated.

The law makes the state auditor ex-officio land commissioner and prohibits him from disposing of more than 100,000 acres a year. There is about 1,250,000 acres of school land unsold situated mainly in Itasca, Cass, Atkin, Beltrami, Crow Wing, Mill Lake, Hubbard and other northern counties.

Last year 100,000 acres were sold at an average of 97.78 cents, $3.54 above the average price which had been obtained for the previous 40 years.

The permanent fund resulting from the sales amounts to $15,500,000. Mr. Iverson estimates the value of the unsold lands at $2,000,000.

Old Settlers.

The annual reunion of the Old Settlers' association was held at the rooms of the historical society in the city of St. Paul. Only nineteen of Minnesota's pioneers were able to attend the meeting. Although all of them have battled against the elements of a new country since 1849 they are all in good health. A request from the Territorial Pioneers was read that the Old Settlers hold an annual meeting in June 1 with the Pioneers. The matter was discussed at length and was finally laid on the table until the next annual meeting.

PINE CITY, MINN., June 12, 1905.

REPORTS from Russia are not reassuring.

SENATOR QUAY has announced his determination to retire from politics. Let us give thanks.

WHEN you come to tell us about those big fish you caught just bring along the fish.

It is estimated that Andrew Carnegie has given a way $100,000,000 for library purposes. He might do worse, considering his great wealth.

THE press of the country is gleefully giving the glad ha ha to Governor Pennybacker over his press muzzling bill. Poor old Penny.

OF course the St. Louis fair will be pulled off next year as advertised. The press of the country is merely giving them a little time to recuperate.

THEY might arrange an automobile race course in the Desert of Sahara. The ground there is flat and the place not much frequented by pedestrians.

IT is said there are only 50,000 really handsome men in this country. That does not leave many for the other forty-four states—Louisville (Ky.) Post.

SOME people seem determined to stir up sectional animosity between the north and south. Cut it out. If you can't live in peace in this country go over to Turkey or Russia.

VOL. 1, NO. 1, of the Forest Lake Enterprise, came to our desk last week with Howard Folsom as editor and proprietor. The Enterprise is good looking sheet and has a good patronage of advertisements, which adds to the success of a venture like this. Good luck to you Howard.

DR. NICHOLAS SENON, of the five American delegates to the International Medical Congress at Madrid, says that war in the near future will lose a large share of its horrors by the universal adoption of an anti-septic dressing for gunshot wounds. The new method of treating wounds provides for an immediate application for an antiseptic which prevents infection, and is a boon to humanity. It should be adopted by the police and fire departments of all cities and by the armies of the world. Since its use in the Spanish-American war in the Philippines this device has been greatly simplified and by its use on the battlefield wonderful results in preventing mortality are obtained.

HERE is what some of our most successful men think of advertising: I would as soon think of doing business without clean as without advertising. John Wanamaker.

Nothing, except the mint, can make money without advertising. Gladstone.

When you pay more for the rent of your business house than for advertising your business, you are pursuing a false policy. If you can do business, let it be known. Franklin.

Frequent and constant advertising brought me all I own. A. T. Stewart.

IT seems impossible to us to eradicate the tramp. The "hobo," like the poor, will America seem always to have with us. No matter whether times are good or bad the tramp is always trampy, or riding on bumpers of freight cars, and looking for a free living. The impression formerly prevailed that hard times made tramps, and that prosperity cured the country of the affliction, but as The New York Mail and Express remarks "It is now a well admitted thing that prosperity is unable to cure the tramp evil, and hard times makes the evil worse." The cities, especially the big cities with their heterogeneous population, are the whirlpool rapids that in the summer shoot out upon the rural communities hundreds of lazy, shiftless and vicious men, who do not even live by their wits, but are simply parasites upon those who toil for daily bread. The only remedy for this evil is to stop feeding the hobos. If an unfortunate asks you for a meal and is willing to work for it, charity should prompt you to give it to him. If he is not willing to work the best thing you can do is to set the dog on him. Tramps are not to love with dogs.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, June 8th, 1905.

Developments in the postoffice scandal are coming thick and fast. August W. Machen, late general superintendent of free delivery, has been indicted by the grand jury on nine separate counts and will be brought before the criminal court at its fall term. Thomas W. McGregor and C. Elsworth Upton, both subordinates of Machen and both noted for their intimate relations with their chief, have been arrested and admitted to bail, for defrauding the Government in the purchase of mail bags for rural free delivery routes. In the last case it is claimed by the officials representing the Government in the purchase of mail bags at 90 cents each and have been received from the maker, O. E. Smith of Baltimore, a commission of 40 cents each. Numerous other claims are being followed up and it is expected that an appalling situation in the division of free delivery will be revealed. Of $18,000 paid to Smith $8,000 has been returned to McGregor and Upton.

One of the most important events of the past week has been the practical turning states evidence of one of Machen's closest friends who is almost throbbing information on Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Brewster with the hope, no doubt, of evading prosecution because of the assistance he is in a position to render in the ferreting out of friends in which he himself is not implicated.

A prominent official of the Department said to your correspondent today, "The important feature of the situation is not the fact that the Government has been systematically robbed, but that the whole corrupt ring is an anarchy, rebellion against decent government, and must be rooted out, root and branch. Drive every bribe taker must be made an example of in order that the corrupting influences of the Machen ring may not permeate every branch of the Government's service."

President Roosevelt returned home Friday evening, apparently refreshed from his long trip in the west. He was received by enthusiastic crowds which lined Pennsylvania Avenue from the station to the White House and which cheered outside the White House until Mr. Roosevelt was compelled to come out on the veranda and made a brief address of appreciation. The President dined alone with his family that evening and Secretary Hay and Secretary Cortelyou were the only callers received during the evening.

The Naval General Staff has decided that it will be impossible to do anything for the various naval reserve organizations this year. Numerous inquiries have been received from states with lake and sea coast lines but to all a uniform reply is sent, stating that the navy Department has no ships to spare. The training ships are all in use in the training of enlisted men and the regular naval vessels are all engaged in sea maneuvers, etc. The naval militia will, therefore, be left to its own resources during the summer.

The army is being scandalized by an unusual number of misdemeanors. That such a period of scandals should follow the promiscuous appointment of lieutenants as a result of political influences rather than on merit, is not altogether surprising, nevertheless the list has already attained deplorable proportions. Lieutenant Paulker of the Eighth Infantry has had to resign because of financial irregularities. Lieutenants Mustang of the Coast Artillery and Lacour of the Sixteenth Infantry have deserted after defaulting. Lieutenant Bushfield, Seventeenth Infantry, has been captured trying to desert, to escape the results of forgery. Lieutenants Robinson, Thirtieth Infantry and J. F. McCarthy have been tried for financial short-comings. Lieutenant Love, Thirteenth Cavalry, has been reduced in rank for juggling the canteen account. Lieutenant Betah Smith of the Seventeenth Infantry is before a court martial, one officer has been dropped for desertion and five others have been dropped "for the good of the service." Secretary Root is as inexorable as the law in such matters and persons who will entertain an excuse when financial defaulters are once proven.

The rapid disappearance of the more valuable timbers of the United States has led to a new form of economy which already gives great promise. This is, briefly put, a scientific method of seasoning with a view to making timber as immune from decay as possible. As the presence of moisture is essential to the development of the fungi which causes decay, the thorough drying of the timber in advance of its use goes a long way towards preserving it. Added to this the Bureau of Forestry is experimenting with various substances by which the wood can be prevented from absorbing moisture after it has been completely seasoned. While it is not claimed that the clearer timbers, previously seasoned and treated will outlast the denser timbers similarly treated, it is maintained that even pine so treated will outlast white oak untreated and unseasoned. In the past, railroads have been in the habit of laying green ties but it is believed that costume will abandoned hereafter.

One of the pleasing events of the President's return to Washington was the call made upon him on the succeeding day by the members of the General Staff in full uniform. Headed by general Young and accompanied by General Corbin and Bliss, whom it is believed will be associated with the staff after its formal organization on August 15, the brilliantly uniformed officers, the flower of the army, made a striking picture. The President was unusually felicitous in his informal response to their words of greeting and appreciation of their selection as members of the staff. It is regarded as more than likely that General Carter will be detailed acting adjutant general of the army when General Corbin assumes the position of chief advisor to General Young.

The Government has won a great victory in the Columbia Court of Appeals in two suits involving the right of the Postmaster General to determine what is and what is not entitled to the use of the second class mail privilege. The Court's ruling will exclude books, sheet music, etc. published periodically and only technically coming within category of newspapers or magazines.

Dr. E. C. Hoffman, of Finlayson, was a business visitor in this village a few days this week.

While in Minneapolis this week Henry J. Rath had a narrow escape from serious injury. He was in the car which had one end smashed to pieces by the stone and iron which fell when part of the bridge at the depot in that city, gave way.

Fortunately only one person was hurt and that only to the extent of a broken arm. Henry says that he had just moved from his seat in the doomed end of the car to the other end when the crash came, thereby escaping what might have been a serious injury. It is better to be born lucky than rich Henry.

Upwards of twenty-five Knights of Pythians and their wives and sweethearts boarded the noon train for North Branch to attend the district convention, on Thursday of this week. A fine program was rendered at the social session in the afternoon, different numbers being rendered by people from Cambridge, Taylors Falls, North Branch and Pine City. In the evening a session of the lodge was held when the third degree was conferred on two candidates. Grand Chancellor Robertson was present and addressed both meetings. During the evening the visiting ladies were entertained at cards. After lodge a dance was given while waiting for the train. It is needless to say that all had a good time.

First Game of Season.

Hurley's Barringtons crossed bats with the Brahm team last Sunday, and a very good game was played considering that our boys had not been on the diamond before this year. They outplayed the visitors in every respect and at the end of the fourth inning it looked as though the visitors should have a shut out, the score standing 4 to 0. The Brahm boys succeeded in getting in 1 score in the fifth inning, and on account of some ragged playing by the locals, scored 3 runs in the seventh and 3 in the ninth, netting 7 runs to their credit. Our boys scored 2 runs in the second, 2 in the third, 3 in the seventh, and 2 in the eighth, making a total of 9 runs.

It showed that the locals were too much for the visitors and had our boys had the proclaire the visitors had there is no doubt but what they would have given the Brahmites a shut out. Jack Lambert pitched a good game for his first one this season, and although a trifle wild at times, he made good at the right

Shambourer—Pofel.

At St. Mary's church in this village on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, Miss Mary Shambourer, of the town of Rock Creek, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shambourer, and Frank Pofel, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pofel, of this village, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. F. Buehler.

The bridal party were supported by five bridesmaids and five groomsmen, all carrying beautiful flowers. The bride is well known in this village having resided in this county for some five or six years, part of the time making her home in a village where she made scores of friends who are pleased to congratulate her on the choice she has made. The groom is well known here and is held in high esteem by his many friends. He has lived here all of his life and there are none better known in this village than he is, at present holding the office of village recorder, also a position with the Pine City Milling & Electric Co., where he has worked steady for the past three or four years.

After the ceremonies at the church the wedding party adjourned to the home of the bride's parents where the wedding dinner was served, and dancing was indulged in for a few hours.

Owing to the heavy rains the dance that was to have been given at Rath's Hall, has been postponed until some evening next week when Mr. and Mrs. Pofel expect their friends to come and enjoy a good time.

Those from our of town who attended the wedding were: Mrs. A. Pofel, Rutledge; Mrs. Chas. Pofel, Miss A. Pofel, Mrs. Shetka, St. Paul; Mrs. Kuchiska, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bazil, Mrs. Jos. Bazil, Jr., Mr. Jos. Bazil, Sr., Mr. John Karas, Montgomery.

The many friends of both the contracting parties join with us in wishing them a long and happy journey through life.

WESTERN CANADA'S IMMIGRATION.

Rapid Settlement of the Wheat Fields Lying North of the 49th Parallel.

[From the Chicago Record-Herald.]
Canada has anticipated a very heavy immigration this year, and she now has figures to show that she is actually doing it in a way to meet all her expectations. In the first four months of this year the doors of the Dominion opened to 40,772 persons, according to a report prepared by the committee on agriculture and colonization of the Canadian parliament. This is almost twice as large as the immigration in the corresponding months last year, and fully three times as large as in 1901, the respective figures being 22,452 and 13,304.

"Most of these newcomers have been attracted by the wheat lands of the Northwest Territories. They have moved direct from Winnipeg and they have turned that city into a great camp, in which they have been fitting themselves out for the last stage of their adventure for new homes.

"Of the immigration of this spring a little over a third has come from Great Britain, the figure being 16,457. This is three times as large as the British immigration of the corresponding months of the preceding year, and it is within 2,500 of the number of immigrants that the United States attracted from Great Britain and Ireland in the same period this spring. As to the remainder of the immigrants into Canada, 12,770 settlers came from the United States, a 50 per cent. increase over the preceding year, and 10,445 from Continental Europe, a 40 per cent. increase.

"These 40,772 immigrants into Canada may appear trifling in comparison with the 1,770,000 persons who entered the United States in the same period, but they are proportionately more important to the country. Canada's population is one-fifteenth of ours, but her immigration is now two-fifths as large as ours. It is worth remembering that Canada's immigrants are almost entirely of Anglo-Saxon and Teutonic race, while our immigration is now two-thirds made up of Romance and Slav elements.

"Speculation is natural as to the future of Canada in her relations to the United States when her Northwest territories are filled up, but the one absolutely certain fact of the near future is that Canada is to have a great competitor in the grain markets of the world."

The above editorial article taken from the columns of the Chicago Record-Herald of May 20th shows the condition of the Canadian immigration, which as pointed out, has had a constant growth—a marvellously increasing growth—for the past six or seven years, until this year, it is confidently assumed the increase to Canada's population by way of immigration, will exceed 100,000. This is accounted for by the great agricultural resources which abound there. It is no matter of surprise, in view of the matter-of-fact experience of the tens of thousands bear ample testimony to the wealth and riches in store for all who choose to accept of the opportunities offered.

POULTRY AND BEES

CLIPPING QUEEN'S WINGS.

Breeders Should First Practice on Drones, Then Worker Bees, and Finally on the Queen.

To the veteran it may not be necessary to give any special instructions. But even some of these may be surprised to see that some other veteran's way of doing it is better than their own. The problem of clipping, to the beginner, especially if he has never accomplished the feat, seems very difficult, and for his benefit especially, I show the method that I ordinarily employ.

After finding the queen on the comb I take the bees just enough to make them stick their heads in the cells. This gets many of them out of the way. Then I reach for the queen. It must be one quick grab. To chase after her with the fingers, occasionally touching the wings, makes her nervous, as well as your self, and the result is, she will start self.

HOW TO CLIP THE WINGS.

on a row, and then you may as well give up the job, if you do not wish to run the risk of missing her. In another time, when she stands in the center, several bees caressing her, make one grasp for the wings with the right hand, just between the abdomen and the thorax. Do not be afraid of crushing the wings; but be careful to avoid pinching or puncturing the queen on the comb, especially squeezing her soft abdomen. If you catch her right, she will be as shown in Fig. 1. She will bend the abdomen over and reach with her hind legs around behind in the effort, just as shown, to push the fingers away. With the left hand, catch hold of her between the thumb and fore finger in such a way that the finger will be on top and the thumb beneath. (See Fig. 8) If you grasp her by the thorax, you need not be afraid of hurting her, for this position of her anatomy will stand considerable pressure without injury. With the right hand, take a pair of scissors and clip one wing at about the point shown in the illustration (Fig. 3); but do not clip both wings at the same time, and do not clip the queen back on the comb, be very careful not to let her drop. Let her down gently on the comb, or raise the comb and let her crawl from the thumb on to the comb.

I have seen some veterans who preferred to grab hold of the queen as shown in Fig. 2. She is first picked up as shown in 1, then she is caught by the legs as shown in 2. While a veteran can hold a queen in this way, the average beginner would be liable to squeeze too hard and pull her legs off; then if you grab one leg only, the queen will revolve round and round in the twist it is off, and in all probability take wing. The plan shown in 1 and 3 is the safer to employ.

There will be times when one does not have handy a pair of scissors. Very well; he is to pick the queen up as shown in 1; then hold her with the left hand, as illustrated in the right hand, place one of the queen's wings on the corner of a live body or hive cover in such a way that the knife blade will cut through into the wood, severing the wing. I do not know but I would about as soon have a common knife, if it is sharp as scissors.—Gleanings in Bee Culture.

Making Use of Wheat Chaff.

Wheat chaff is not only an excellent absorbent, but it renders the floor warm and comfortable. It is but a small matter to clean off a floor that has been covered with an inch or so of chaff, as it brings with it all the droppings, and leaves the floor smooth and clean. It is better than dirt in one respect, for it does not get into the cracks, as the dirt does, but keeps on the surface, and when the floor is swept, a few grains are thrown over the chaff, and this is what you should aim for. Do not allow the drinking water to get on the chaff, however, but keep the material dry, and there will be less liability of roup and colds.—Farm and Fireside.

Stocking Ducks and Geese.

The best time to stock ducks and geese is when they begin to drop their feathers. It is better to pluck them than to have their feathers scattered in every direction, but the practice of plucking them every time the feathers are renewed is not always economical. It takes vitality and a varied assortment of food to reproduce feathers, and as this is a drain on the system the females will not lay. You cannot always have the feathers and eggs.—One or the other must be sacrificed.—Farm and Fireside.

DUCKS NEED WATCHING.

Must Be Treated Early Where They Bring or Serious Loss is Sure to Result.

The young ducks must be treated to know how to keep their wings from feeding and looking after. The unprincipled fowls enjoy eating corn with their neighbors' hogs, but the neighbor does not care about feeding a flock of growing ducks that do not belong to him.

Besides, it is dangerous for the ducks to be foraging around where hogs are. An old mother hog soon develops quite a fondness for duck meat after once getting a taste. The neighbor does not care about feeding a flock of growing ducks that do not belong to him, and they will soon consume every duck within reach. We have known them to run down grown ducks and eat them.

It is much easier to manage ducks than chickens when a rain is coming. The ducks may be driven and the chicks must be coaxed. The chicks will enter in all directions when one attempts to drive them, while the ducks seem to have a leader and the gang stays together.

It will soon be time to begin plucking the old ducks if you have decided you want feathers instead of eggs. They won't produce both. They won't lay very many eggs anyway when they wear weather comes, so that likely it will pay better to save the feathers. If one has no use for them at home, there is always a ready sale for them, often right in one's own locality. There are so many people who cling to feather beds, even if they are out of date; and there are many who would rather buy feathers than to bother with a flock of ducks or geese. The strong smell that new feathers have will leave them if they are thoroughly aired for a few days before using them for beds or pillows.—Farm Journal.

OATS FOR CHICKENS.

One of the Most Valuable Feeds for Farm Poultry of All Kinds, in All Ages and Conditions.

I consider oats one of the best feeds for poultry of all kinds and ages. They are easy to raise, and are sold in all sections of the country. Oats are so many people who cling to feather beds, even if they are out of date; and there are many who would rather buy feathers than to bother with a flock of ducks or geese. The strong smell that new feathers have will leave them if they are thoroughly aired for a few days before using them for beds or pillows.—Farm Journal.

INEXPENSIVE COOP.

It Can Be Made by Even an Inexperienced Person and at a Trifling Expense.

An inexpensive chicken coop can be made from a 10-foot hemlock board, a few feet of shingle lath for frame and two or three wall lath for slats, as I will briefly describe. Cut board into three 24-inch lengths for sides, two 30-inch lengths for roof and one 18-inch length for back. Cut one of the 24-inch lengths from top of left of bottom of right to form the sloping sides, as shown in the illustration. Use lath to cover joints in roof. The rest is self-explanatory.—Farm Journal.

POULTRY PARAGRAPHS.

Light, nutritious and easily digested food is what fowls in confinement need.

The man who is too mean to provide a comfortable coop for the hen and brood doesn't deserve success.

Feed little chicks on a clean board, which should be often cleaned and dried in the sun or by artificial heat.

If eggs become rotten it is absolute proof that they were fertilized, that a germ of life started and then died.

Brooder chicks never have gaps, which proves that filth gathered from the yards is the cause of the trouble.

The more nearly the roosting house comes to being actually clean, the less will be the liability to disease among the chickens.

Geese are natural grass-eaters and will do very well in a good pasture, providing they are well supplied with drinking water.—Commercial Poultry.

Tested by Time.

Mrs. Robert Broderick resides at 1915 Virginia St., in the apartment known as "Lundy," Texas, tells an experience that will interest every reader. It shows as well that Doan's Kidney Pills are lastingly beneficial. She says:—"Up to the early part of the year 1903 I had been a sufferer from kidney troubles for some time. My back was aching, my head became worse and worse until it was a daily burden that interfered with every duty. I was much afflicted with headaches and dizziness, and was unable to rest well at night. In May 1902 after using Doan's Kidney Pills I made a statement for publication, declaring that they had entirely relieved me of the pain in my back. There since then had a year's time in which to study the effects of the medicine, and I have had slight touches of the trouble since, the use of the pills has always driven away all signs of the disorder and I have been able to do my work as usual. I know that a box of Doan's Kidney Pills is worth its weight in gold. I have been practically permanent in its effects, and I testify that I have been benefited by its use. DOCTOR ADVOCATED OPERATION—PE-RU-NA MADE KNIFE UNNECESSARY.

CATARH is a very frequent cause of that class of disease popularly known as gonorrhoea. Catarrh of the prostatic gland produces such a variety of disagreeable and irritating symptoms that many people, in fact, the majority of people, do not realize that they are made by catarrh. If all the women who are suffering with any form of female weakness could write like Dr. Hartman, of Columbus, Ohio, and give him a complete description of their symptoms and the peculiarities of their troubles, he will immediately reply with complete directions for treatment, free of charge.

Mrs. Eva Barth, 133 East 12th Street, N. Y. City, N. Y., writes:

"I suffered for three years with leucorrhoea and ulceration of the womb. The doctor advocated an operation which I dreaded very much, and strongly objected to undergo it. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am today in perfect health and have not felt so well for fifteen years."—Mrs. Eva Barth.

Mrs. EVA BARTH.

Mrs. Maud Steinbach, 1909 12th St., Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"Last winter I felt sick most of the time, was irregular and suffered from nervous exhaustion and severe bearing down pains. I had so frequently heard of Peruna that I wondered if it could be performed so I sent for a bottle and in four weeks my health and strength were entirely restored to me."—Miss Maud Steinbach.

Every where the women are using Peruna and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

the mountains. The Great Western road is always noted for being on time and we came into St. Paul on schedule time.

We would like to give a more detailed account but space will not permit. All we can say is, go where we have been and take the same route we took and you will return home with a broader view of our nation and the eastern country.

ANCIENT TITLES INVOLVED.

Romance in Peenace Claims Made by Two Sisters, Countess of Yarborough and Countess of Powis.

The romantic claim of the 'sister princess,' the countess of Yarborough (Baroness Conyers) and the countess of Powis, to the ancient baronies of Fauconberg, Darcy de Knayth, Darcy of Darcy, Darcy of Aston, Darcy of Gillingdale, and Meinhill of Meinhill has come before the committee of privileges of the house of lords.

Both ladies are already rich in titles. The elder sister is Baroness Conyers in her own right, and also the Baroness Yarborough of Lincoln and the Baroness Worsley. The younger is coheiress in the barony of Conyers, and also Viscountess Clive of Lawlow, Baroness Herbert of Cherbury, Baroness Powis, Baroness Clive of Walcot and Baroness Clive of Plassey. But the barony of Fauconberg, if established, would be the oldest in existence. There is no rival claimant to the titles; the only question raised by the crown is whether the baronies can descend to any but heirs male.

The circumstances upon which that question turns are these: The baronies, created during the Scottish wars of Edward I and II, existed in the male line until the fifteenth century, and then were carried by the daughters into the families of Darcy and Conyers, only to become extinct in 1635. But then a cousin, Sir George Darcy, fourth Lord Conyers, petitioned King Charles I. to restore to him as heir male the original barony of Darcy.

ART MUSEUM TO NATION.

J. Pierpont Morgan May Give His Splendid Collection in London to United States.

There is excellent authority for stating that J. Pierpont Morgan is planning to build a splendid art museum and present it to the American nation. Mr. Morgan's private art collections are by far the rarest and most extensive owned by any individual in the world. A friend of Mr. Morgan said to-day: "Mr. Morgan has spent more money for art objects probably than the dozen other most lavish collectors in the world combined. It is his desire that they shall be made available for the American people. He is planning to house all his collections in some one place, and it is very likely that the great museum of art which he will establish will be offered as a gift to the American nation, or be made the foundation for a great national art gallery."

In the last seven years Mr. Morgan has believed to have purchased fully $7,000,000 worth of art treasures in Europe. The most valuable of them are scattered over continental Europe and England, the American tariff having stopped him from transporting them to this country. If he were to give his treasures to a public institution they could be brought in free of duty.
