SHOULD CULTIVATE GRACE.

Meatal Cosmetic Recommended to Obtain Pretty, Manner, a Possesion Hidding Many Defects.

Many women are naturally graceful, and to them a pretty pose comes as simply as do other inborn talents to favored individuals. The firl who is awkward should first become aware of it—then cure her clumsiness. There is no more excuse for ungracefulness in a woman than there is for alovenil-to mad to be the same thing, applied to carriage instead of dress.

The girl who wishes to be thought pleasing in manner manulity is on, while her sisten, who scoffs at her effort to grieace, is the one who will be found among the wall fowers at almost any meat of the social accomplishments are to be affixed by a little effort, a little necessary mental and physical exertion, and sheer lainness to thane if any girl allows her charm to lag behind that of another.

Finalmess of the pretty manner, and if massage and physical culture do not improve the former defect it is well to try some mental commetic toward developing the latter substitute for beauty.

THE DEPTH OF FRAMES.

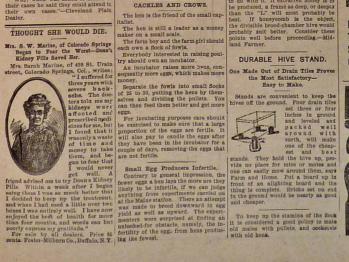

For Comb-Honey the Divisible Broo Chamber Hive Is Probably the Best.

Chamber Hive Is Probably the Best.

While all are agreed as to the desirability of keeping bees on movable frames, there seems to be a great diversity of the keeping bees on movable frames, there seems to be a great diversity of opinion regarding style and depth of same.

Movable frame hives may be divided into two classes as far as general principles go. One is known as the divisible broadles, or single chamber hive. As all hives and fixtures about the apiary should be of one style and size, the beginner ought to weigh well this hive problem before marrying himself to any particular one. He will find that changing from one to another is an expensive proceeding. The style or depth best fortained only by being on the spot and studying conditions.

Whether comb or extracted honey is to be produced also has a great deal to do with it. If extracted honey is to be produced, a frame as deep, or deepor than the "it." will most probably be best. If honeycomb is the object probably and better. Consider these points well before proceeding.—Midland Farmer.
