VERY BAD ROADS.

Rural Route Carriers Have Difficult Task—Article That Should Appeal to Every Route Patron.

The following clipped from the Glencoe Register should appeal to every free delivery patron in Minnesota:

After the big storm, the 3rd of this month, we asked our mail route carriers how they found the roads. They reported "just fearful, and it was a tax on our lives and teams almost beyond endurance to make our rounds." They were not, as a part of their daily duties, to attempt the impossible, but felt their patrons would appreciate their efforts to go beyond what the government should demand of them in getting their mail to them. We wondered how many of the farmers on the five routes leading out from Glencoe, felt sympathy enough for their rural route carriers to turn out in the early morning of that storm, the first of this month, and with teams and shovels broke the roads in their districts, so their mail might be in on time. We presume there are some so mean as to sit by their fires and let their mail carriers break the roads in front of their premises to reach their mail boxes, under the plea, that is what they are hired and paid for by Uncle Sam to do, but we think that number, so dead to sympathy and righteousness in educated Minnesota, is very small. The most of the patrons along the routes are men who realize it is no easy snap to ride a route of twenty-five miles and over and deliver mail daily to the residents along the route, and they try to make it easy for them, as much as possible. One of their methods is to keep their roads in front of their premises in good passable condition, another is to speak a kindly word of encouragement and appreciation; another, to get a sack of oats in front of their mail box for their horses' eat in a while. These little acts of kindness lighten the burden of a mail carrier's life, and so long as they are of small cost to the persons, who are daily served by the mail carriers, should come, as sunshine, more frequently, to brighten their lives.

Three Crows—One Goose

The Blackley Enterprise tells a good one on a certain game warden who thought he smelled a mouse at Rock Creek some time ago. The story is as follows:

"It seems the game warden was suspicious that a merchant, who lives at Rock Creek, was dealing in game birds. With the majesty of the law to uphold and his loss to you, this warden, early one morning, came to Rock Creek and proceeded to make himself agreeable and to press himself upon a merchant. Just before he left he quietly came to the merchant and asked if he couldn't get two or three birds to take home. The merchant responded, 'Sure! I'll fix that all right, and hand a man to shoot three crows.' Game birds were carefully wrapped up, and as quietly given to the warden, who paid for them and departed.

"Whether he had crow for dinner when he reached his destination is not known."

Fire at Mora.

Last Saturday morning fire broke out in the second story of the building occupied by the Mora Produce Co. and the Hauge restaurant in Mora. Owing to the efficient efforts of the fire department and the excellent water system, the fire was confined to only two buildings. The loss is estimated at about $9,000.

Schedule Changed.

Last Monday morning a new schedule went into effect for the department of rural mail carriers upon their different routes from Pine City. Carriers on routes Nos. 1, 2, and 3 leave here at 9 o'clock a. m., while the carrier on route 4 leaves at 11:30 as usual. The new schedule is much preferable to the old one as it will allow the carriers time to return home a great deal earlier.

MCGRATH PAID THE FARE.

William Cunningham and Michael Sullivan Go to Jail For Not Going to Work.

Thomas W. Wells, who was formerly a well known barber and sprinter of this city but for a few years has been a denizen of Willow River where he wields a razor and also wears a star as a special peace conservator, came down yesterday morning with a star on his coat lapel and having in custody William Cunningham and Michael Sullivan, alias Fawn McMahon.

The prisoners, both young men, were accused of accepting $2.95 each from James E. McGrath for railroad fare upon condition that they would go from this city to Willow River and work in the woods for Mr. McGrath. That was January 20, they did not go to the logging camp designated and were arrested on a warrant placed in the hands of Officer Wells.

The young men, who are strangers in this city, were tried in the municipal court this morning and found guilty. Judge Doe imposed a fine of $25 each with costs or the alternative of 60 days in the county jail and they were locked up in default of paying the cash.—Stillwater Gazette.

Refreshments will be served and a good time can be anticipated by all who attend. The admission fee is twenty-five cents, and every body is cordially invited to attend.

Good Concert.

The concert given by the Canadian Jubilee Singers in Rath's hall Tuesday evening was one of the best musical entertainments ever given in Pine City. All of the various numbers were roundly applauded and the colored artists always came back with some highly pleasing selection. The local Knights of Pythias are to be congratulated for securing so satisfactory an aggregation of entertainers, and they cleared a neat little sum for their efforts.

KNOCKED IN THE HEAD

The Waterworks Proposition Receives Defeat at Hands of Pine City Voters—Score 103 to 49.

That Pine City will not have waterworks for over a year at least is a fact. The voters of this village so determined by a vote of 103 to 49, Wednesday, when a special election was held to decide the feasibility of bonding the village in the sum of $15,000 for the purpose of installing a waterworks plant.

The election was a very quiet one, and no one who had not read the papers, would have dreamed that an election was in progress. Up to 12 o'clock about 80 votes had been cast and a total of 192 were registered at the count. The judges of election were John Atkinson and August Carlson, who had for their clerks Otto Becker and W. J. Gottry. The votes were quickly counted and the result was announced at about six o'clock.

Of those to whom we have spoken concerning the proposition, all were in favor of water works, but they were one in denouncing water works unless a sewer system could be installed at the same time. This is a very feasible theory, and in a year or two after the legislature meets and the charter of the village can be amended so that a sewer system can be legally installed, it is thought that there will be no trouble in getting the consummation of a complete waterworks system.

That Pine City will have water works in time to come is little doubted, but according to the opinions expressed by the majority of those interviewed, it can come about only through conjuncting sewerage and waterworks into one question.

A String Story.

A story, bordering on the "yellow" of a Le Sueur Lyre story, was contained in the Minneapolis Tribune for Sunday. The story concerned a sextette of Rush City sports men who, it is alleged, passed a most exciting night in the woods down in the St. Croix bottoms. The party consisted of Frank Froelke, James McGuire, J. J. Kinney, Wm. Dahlros, Thos. McQuire and Wm. Lind all well known residents of Rush City. In the Tribune string along the party's party of seven dogs started up a huge pack of wolves just at the edge of a tamarac swamp. A fierce fight ensued and the hunters reached the scene of conflict in time to see the last dog killed. The men began a feud with their Winchester-esters but to no avail and they soon had to retreat from the howling and snapping demons to places of safety. Five of the party, each started up a huge pack of wolves just at the edge of a tamarac swamp. A fierce fight ensued and the hunters reached the scene of conflict in time to see the last dog killed. THE ROMANCE OF ALICE ROOSEVELT

Pretty Love Story of the Gracious Daughter of Our President.

FETED AND PETTED, BUT NEVER SPOILED Congressman Longworth Has Proven an Ardent Wooer and Has Won a Great Prize—Purely Love-Match That is Typical of This Typical American Girl.

Washington—At high noon of Saturday, February 17, in the great East room of the White House, will end the distinguished social career of Miss Alice Roosevelt, and at the same moment there will begin the social career of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

Four years Miss Roosevelt has been the leader of the young social set—called as a rule the dancing set—of Washington, and in fact of the nation. During those four years she has been constantly before the American people, noticed and feted by them, and acclaimed by princes and rulers and nations the world over. Few, if any girl, the world has ever known have had so distinguished a career as this simple, unassuming daughter of an American president. No girl was ever wooed more ardently than she has been. The man who on February 17 will become her husband has been an almost constant attendant upon her for at least two of the four years she has been before the public.

Now ends the picturesque career of Alice Lee Roosevelt. Whatever she may do as Mrs. Longworth, of Cincinnati, she will always be remembered by the people who have elected her father their president just as Alice Roosevelt. What she did and what she was as a girl will always hold the first place, no matter what the future has in store for her as a matron.

Not since Queen Victoria was married to Prince Albert 45 years ago has there been a wedding in which the bride has been the center of such worldwide interest as will be the case on February 17. The man who in her own right is the greatest of the powers, walked earth unaware of the fact, not a civilized government that will not be represented among the congratulatory letters, telegrams and cablegrams of congratulation which has poured into the White House since the announcement of the engagement has been remarkable.

It is not only that since the last White House wedding the United States has become a real world power; it is not only the prestige of Cuba and Manila and Porto Rico, it is not only the name of a father famed at home and abroad, it is also that fact that the president's daughter has just done what no other unmarried daughter of a president or king ever did before—completed a trip around the world which called forth attention from some of the greatest personages on the globe.

The Chinese empress, but lately tapped her on the cheek. Oriental courts feted her, while their European artists pictured her on their postcard cards as "the American princess." Royalty and aristocracy dined and wined her in Europe. No American girl ever lived before who was so widely known, both personally and officially. They will discuss her marriage in China and Japan and in all the islands of the sea between now and February 17, and in South African cities, and wherever the white or the yellow man rove, almost as much as they will at home.

There have been five weddings at the White House. The most recent was wedding dress have already gone through wonderful ups and downs, one authority saying it is to be of Chinese silk, the gift of the dowager empress, and another that Miss Roosevelt's grandmother's bridal dress is to be the light azure. The chances, however, are excellent that an American product from the humble little worm to the grand somebody who will fashion the satin will adorn the president's daughter the day she becomes a wife.

Bishop Satterlee, of the Protestant Episcopal church of which church the young people are both members, will perform the ceremony, assisted by other dignitaries of that church.

Many saturs. It has been frequently remarked that Miss Roosevelt can and does work as hard as her father. Americans like her for that; for her energy, vitality and that bounding joy in living which makes her enjoy everything so much. They like her, too, for the level head which has carried her through enough adulation and flattery to utterly spoil a less well-whispered that the fascinating little Italian countess was the attraction, but when she disappeared from Washington official life there were no tears and notable courtesies from the heads of all nations. It was Miss Alice here, and Miss Alice there, and the newspapers and magazines from all parts throughout the world will no doubt in relating just what Miss Alice did at every hour of the day.

In all of the pictures Mr. Longworth has always been the devoted. In all of the dispatches he was discovered as the hero in escapades and on every occasion where the president's daughter correspondents sent home it was Congressman Longworth and Miss Roosevelt who received the bulk of attention, while the staid old diplomat and statesman received attention equivalent to "others present were."

When the party returned to the United States it was generally supposed that the engagement would be announced. But Miss Roosevelt visited in New York and Mr. Longworth visited in New York, and all it seemed accidental.

When President Roosevelt gave forth the news from the White House that it was really so the queries as to engagement and marriage of the couple were at once put into the twinkling of an eye into a marvelous wondering as to plans for the wedding.

The bridegroom. And who might be this young Lochinvar who came out of Cincinnati and stole the heart and hand of the most important young woman in the United States?

He is Nicholas Longworth and a descendant of one of the pioneer citizens of Cincinnati, says the Commercial Tribune, of that city. His people have always been prominent, not only in the lines which go to make up a long fortune, but in the gentler arts. His forebears have been patrons of art, of literature and music. The women of his family have all made brilliant marriages, and it seemed but a matter of tradition that the only son and heir should do likewise.

But it is not alone on account of his ancestors that the present Nicholas is known, for he is quite an important man in his individuality. He was graduated from Harvard in '91, and is a man about 36 years old. While a thorough man of the world, he is yet as all true Longworths should be, to the music. He is a lover of music, and is a skillful performer on the violin. When he is in Cincinnati he is a constant attendant at the Symphony concerts and at all times is a liberal donor to musical interests. He is a great club man, belonging naturally to all of the important Cincinnati clubs and to eastern clubs, especially in New York city.

Everyone expected Nicholas Longworth to do something brilliant, just because he has been doing these things all his life. He has been a man about whom women have always speculated, especially because he has been so seemingly indifferent to them. In all of the 15 years since he left college, Mr. Longworth has been the particular object of match-making mamma's. His social position, his wealth, his standing as a man of brains—all these have been added to a fascinating personality, and the combination has been irresistible to the match-makers.

But if he has cared at any time, he has certainly won his heart elsewhere than upon Alice. It was generally reckoned, as time flew by, that he had no heart, but the daughter of the Roosevelts has proven this conclusion to be false.

Mr. Longworth has two sisters, the countess of Chambrin and Mrs. Buckner Wallingford. The Longworth home, in Grandin road, Cincinnati, is one of the first of the old residences which graced that now famous part of Cincinnati. It is barely possible to see the house from the road, for it stands in a great grove of trees, and is approached by a road which will go over hill and vale before it reaches its bow at the front veranda.

The house is a brick one, and not particularly imposing, but it has a substantial and home-like look, and the broad piazza crosses the front and the rooms are rather small, but cozy have that undeniable air—a home where time has allowed the combination of good things with rare taste. There are orchards and arbors and gardens to the rear, and flower gardens galore. The trees are old and guard the house on all sides. In fact, there is nothing new about the place. Everything has been well seasoned with the passing of the years, and there is an old-fashioned grace about the place which bespeaks of generations in the plural.

Red Wing—Despite the unfavorable conditions of the roads, the annual tournament of the Aurora Ski club, held here, was very successful and some good records were made. Mangstadt, entered in Miss A, made the longest standing jump, 102 feet.

Bishop Carter of the Catholic diocese of Winona has consented to head the movement and has accepted the office of titular president of the league.

NEWS OF MINNESOTA.

Prize Apples.

Minneapolis—Apple raising, an unprecedented boom throughout the Northwest in the next few years if the efforts of the Minnesota State Horticultural society meet with success. In order to encourage the growing of apples the society has decided to offer five annual premiums of $100 each for the best winter seedling apples keeping at least until March 1 under ordinary cellar conditions and from trees planted during the coming spring.

The awards will be made in 1915, 1916, 1917 and 1918, and the territory included in the offer is a large one, for competition is open to anyone residing in the Western half of Wisconsin, the two northern tiers of counties of Iowa, all of Minnesota, South Dakota, North Dakota and Manitoba.

Several other rules governing this contest were passed by the society, one requiring that the entry for competition for this premium must be made within one year after the planting of the seed, while the contestant must state when and where the seed was planted, the variety of apple from which the seed was taken and where the apple was grown.

Only seedlings grown from seed taken from apples which were raised within the limits assigned for the contest will be eligible for competition.

Nearly Fatal.

Manitowish—Adam Johnson, eighty-eight years old, a pioneer settler of Grant township, almost lost his life by an unusual incident. He recently became a resident of North Manitowish. While coming from the cellar with a jar of preserves, Mr. Johnson tripped and fell. The fruit jar was shattered and one of the jagged pieces of glass penetrated his wrist severing a large artery, and causing an alarming loss of blood. It was some time before the accident was discovered. The life was nearly extinct before a physician arrived. After working over him for several hours, the physician succeeded in partially restoring the aged man, and announced that they are hopeful of his recovery.

Heavy Tonnage.

Duluth—Major Charles L. Potter, United States engineer in charge of Lake Superior, issued an annual report of the Duluth-Superior harbor, and all Minnesota and Wisconsin people, he declares, will be glad to read it. The freight movement during 1935 was 2,370,145 net tons of a total value of $198,721,584. This is an increase of 30.4 per cent over the movement of shipments in 1934, and the increase of value is more than $38,000,000. The harbor last year was 69.6 per cent over 1934.

Major Potter says in his report that considering the mass monthly freight movement during the winter months, the Duluth-Superior practically stands next to New York.

Riot Call.

Duluth—A riot call summoned the Hibbing police to the Uteia mine location, where they found that a despot fight between the three Austrian factions there had resulted in the fatal stabbing of Tony Bertoglati, who is now in a hospital. Eleven arrests have been made, all of the prisoners Austrian.

Angello Jaenetti and Mary Harbo were married at the mine location, and one faction was represented among the guests and the other two were not. The latter butted in and a riot followed.

News Notes.

Rocheater—The home of Roy Bird on East College street was burned to the ground. The fire was caused by the breaking of a gas pipe. Bird hardly escaped with his child, his wife being at the revival meeting. No thing was saved.

Manitowish—Mrs. Henrietta Schlegel struck by the incoming Great Western passenger train while walking on the tracks, and sustained injuries that may prove fatal. It was necessary to amputate one leg, and one wrist was broken, besides other injuries received. Mrs. Schlegel was sixty years of age, is deaf and did not hear the train approaching, although it whistled loudly.

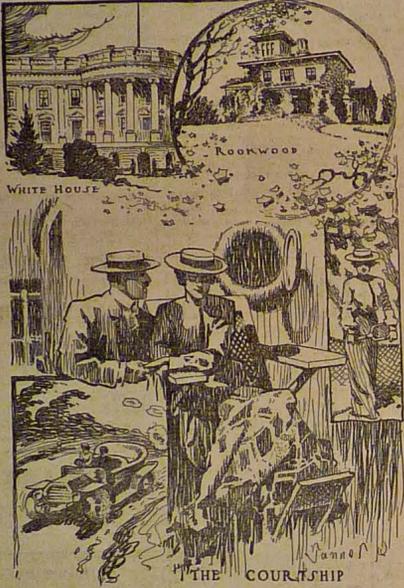

Moorehead—Petitions have been filed with the county auditor for the establishment of three more drainage districts in the northern part of Clay county. The board will meet on Feb. 13 to hear the petitions and to take such action as may be necessary to the establishment of the districts and the construction of the ditches.

Red Wing—The case of the city of Red Wing against George Kidder of La Crosse, charged with violating the peddler's ordinance of Red Wing, will be dropped, as City Attorney Wilson is of the opinion that the arrested man was a solicitor and not a peddler.

Red Wing—Despite the unfavorable conditions of the roads, the annual tournament of the Aurora Ski club, held here, was very successful and some good records were made. Mangstadt, entered in Miss A, made the longest standing jump, 102 feet.

poised woman, and made her choose a plain American for a husband.

There is not an unmarried titled member of any European royal house who has not been accused of designs on the daughter of the White House.

There have been rumors for years that it was scarcely possible for her to escape a titled husband. But she has made a love match—both she and Mr. Nicholas Longworth. There is any one incontrovertible fact in the whole affair, it is that. Did they not travel around the world together?

Mr. Nicholas Longworth has declared that there is no greater test of love than this. Have they not seen each other when the sea was high, and the heat of us grow uninteresting? Have they not spent long, slow days on English railway trains? And borne up the continent hotels and restaurants and strange and remote custom houses? Has she not seen him when the baggage was lost? Has she not seen him struggling with foreign waiter and men, one of the most trying moments that can overtake a man? Has he not head a crowd of people who have seen her unencumbered and pouring beer into a must acknowledge and history will record it. It is a love match.

One further proof of her level head has the president's daughter shown. She will take her wedding trip four months after, next June. No honeymoon in will she wear off her honeymoon. They will go to Oyster Bay or to Mr. Longworth's country seat until June. Later they will live in Washington, where the future Mrs. Longworth will be as much a leader among the young matrons of society as she has been hitherto in the dancing set.

The Old, Old Story. The story of the courtship is the same old story of love the world over. At first the fact that "Nick" had become a member of the inner circle of Washington society was given small credence, for that same circle is not very of approval, and although the ever-victorious Nick has a habit of getting wherever he wants it was not thought that he had so readily been the conqueror here in this instance.

But gradually filtered out the news that not only was he the accepted member of the dancing set, but an especial devotee of the president's daughter—that wherever she was there might be found "Nick" in the guise of the past two years. It will be remembered that no other man's name has even been mentioned in connection with serious attentions to Miss Roosevelt.

They rode together, they dined together, they danced together, Miss Roosevelt and Congressman Longworth were always attended by one Nicholas Longworth, for the shortest "little time it was and to give a few more months to girlhood, nobody knows. It develops naturally in any case the people most interested in minding their own business and of baffling even their most curious friends.

When the first buds of the spring of 1905 began to bloom and all Washington was scattering in the air the news of the engagement was made to the effect that about June the last Miss Alice Roosevelt would visit the sister of Mr. Longworth in Cincinnati.

This was almost more than the gossip could bear by equanimity. They got their heads together and planned an attack, in fact, the only cool and un-concerned people were the Longworth family and the friends of the bride, the famous old Longworth home in Grandin road, where, so the fates decreed, she was next to enter as the bride of the house.

Mrs. Longworth, Congressman Longworth's mother was at the time visiting her daughter Clara, Countess De Chambrin, in Paris, but the honors were most successfully carried off by her sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Buckner Wallingford. The visit of the Pennsylvania train at Torrence road was quickly helped into a smart little rumbust by Mr. Longworth and whisked off to "Bookwood," the famous old Longworth home in the Grandin road, where, so the fates decreed, she was next to enter as the bride of the house.

up the aisle of the royal chapel on about the same day of the same month in 1640 to meet the man of her own choice, the eyes of the world were indeed focused upon her.

There has never been so interesting a bride since then. Beautiful Alexandra, heralded by Tenyson, invoked the love and admiration which have never since faded her in England, where she stepped ashore to be King Edward's future queen. But her great plan's future queen. But her great plan's future queen.

When Alice Roosevelt and Nicholas Longworth are married the ceremony will take place in the East room of the White House, in the presence of four or five persons in the blue room. The most famous was that of Nellie Grant and Harry, which was a splendid and historic, which the wedding party stood on a raised dais under an enormous wedding veil in the huge East room.

A White House wedding opens a world of conjecture, nothing being considered as extravagant or unusual in fact or fancy when the design is to celebrate a affair, in which the bride and the marvels which will anticipate such detail of the preparations will only stop when normal propriety is exhausted. ED. C. GOTTRY, Editor and Prop.

PINE CITY, MINN., Jan. 26, 1908

The defeat of the waterworks proposition is conceded by many to be a stroke that will be exceedingly beneficial to Pine City. It will save Pine City tax payers many dollars by not increasing our financial obligations. At least the defeat of the proposition was pleasing to the majority, and if "everything happens for the best," undoubtedly the best has happened. The Birch City Post last week contained a lengthy article on the harnessing of dams by the different municipalities of this section of Minnesota. This looks good, the face of it looks good; but the harnessing of Chequamegon dam, the one Pine City would be interested in, would involve a sum of money that would stagger the most radical, would throw into a fit the most conservative. The sum needed to make Chequamegon dam serviceable would not stop at a hundred thousand dollars, and that would be gained by such an outlay of capital for so small a municipality? We respectfully submit the question to the Post writer. Pine City will have its own waterworks in time, and at the same time it will install a sewer system to take off the surplus water and to drain the streets of their pools of filth and overflow.

Will Block and Jacobson or Lord and Jacobson be the next to make a repetition of the Collins-Dunn prevention fracas? We hope not. One of those named is apt to be named as the next republican candidate for gubernatorial honors, and what we want is unity, as any one of the aspirants would be a credit as chief executive of this state. But some dark horse that is now a shut-out is liable to walk off with the prize. It remains to be seen.

SECRETARY HANSON will retire and Julius Schmahl, of the Redwood Gazette, has formally announced his candidacy for the office. He is a staunch republican; he has served three regular and one special terms of the legislature as chief clerk of the house, and his qualifications for the office of secretary of state are indisputably good. His nomination will mean his election.

BECK HOWARD inserts the following in the Mora Enterprise, which often fits very snugly: "Sometimes the printing of objectionable matter makes friends among those who are not in touch with the situation, while the failure to print it would call forth unpleasant comment from those who are in touch with the situation."

It is a mighty small thing that can't recognize the difference between criticizing a man's position and criticizing a man himself.—Sank Center Herald.

Yet we have a number of people of that calibre in our midst, and the worst of it is some of them are in charge of a newspaper.—St. Peter Free Press.

Is that a slam at the Trix?

No woman some papers can do the county printing cheap when they get their type set free.—North Branch News.

It's hard lines, Elbert, to be compelled to compete with corporations. Tread on their toes just a little harder, just to hear them squeal.

FRANK ROOT, of Sank Center (herald fame, tragically pass) "A country editor who offers prizes for subscribers acknowledges his paper isn't worth what he asks for it." But wasn't the city editors in the same boat?

A few more good settlers and able representation in the legislature, and northern Minnesota will show Mr. Journalist of southern Minnesota, who by the mustard.

REMEMBER, the penalty on personal property taxes is added on March 1st, and the penalty on real estate taxes is added June 1st. Remember.

As soon as legislative sessions begin drifting out, county officials begin boarding up the holes in their fences.

Politicians and the State University are too deeply affiliated, one with the other. They should be set apart.

The prevention of consumption is entirely a question of commencing the proper treatment so time. Nothing is so well adapted to ward off fatal lung troubles as Foley's Honey and Tar. For sale by L. E. Breckenridge.

They say—ah, well, suppose they do. But can they prove the story true? Suspicion may arrive from naught, And makes any every thought. Why count yourself among the they Who whisper what they dare not say?

They say—but why the tale rehearse, And help to make the matter worse? No good can possibly accrue From telling what may be untrue; And is it not a nobler plan To speak of all the best you can? —NAOMI.

The St. Peter Herald writer has evidently been consulting a heart trouble specialist, and finds that when a man is in love he wants to go out and whip wildcats, while a girl just wants to sit in a trance.

A "U" student became desperately sick one day last week and broke the news to father by way of an air ways welcome letter. An editor in the western part of the state got wind of the episode and after an interview with the fond father penned the following concerning the son's condition: "The morning of the day before he felt so badly he was afraid he was going to die, and towards evening of the same day he felt so much worse he was afraid he would not, but was much better when he wrote, and was planning to live and finish his education." The editor added: "He must have eaten a late supper of dead oysters." Must have.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best

"In my opinion Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best made for colds." says Mrs. Cora Walker, of Porterville, California. There is no doubt about it being the best. No other will cure a cold so quickly. No other is so sure a preventative of pneumonia. No other is so safe and pleasant to take. These are good reasons why it should be preferred to any other. The fact is that few people are satisfied with any other after having once used this remedy. For sale by L. E. Breckenridge.

Contracted Chronic Diarrhoea While in the Philippines

"While in the U. S. army in the Philippines, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. I suffered severely from this terrible disease for over three years and tried the prescriptions of numerous physicians, but found nothing that did me any good until I tried Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy, two small bottles of which cured me and I have since had no return of the disease."—Herman Stein, 212 N. Union Ave., Pueblo, Colorado. For sale by L. E. Breckenridge.

A SURPRISE

Members of the Degree of Honor enjoyed a slight ride out to the ideal farm home of Mrs. A. F. Rice last evening and tendered her a most happy surprise. Mrs. Rice is one of the prominent workers in the local D. of H. lodge; she has held office for the past three years, and is the out-going Past Chief of Honor. As a memento of their esteem for her and a souvenir of the occasion the members presented Mrs. Rice with a beautiful lamp.

THEY RETURN

Messrs. Ben Hurley and Wm. Lambert returned home on Sunday limited from Willow River, where they spent about a week among the loggers at Estly's camp. While there they hunted as much as the deep snow would allow, but they failed to land anything except a huge owl, which will be mounted and placed in the "Home Plate" buffet. Will fetched home a few interesting and blood-curdling wild cat stories, while Ben succeeded in capturing a well developed case of housewren.

Martin Gross was in the same crowd with Mr. Scofield. He also looks fully as hale as his partner, Scofield. Come again, boys.
