Army and navy maneuvers in the United States are pronounced to be a bluff by other countries, but not by those who have felt the force of Uncle Sam's arms.

The gardens of the Palace La Grande, where Alfonso and Victoria spend their honeymoon, is celebrated in its fountain. One of them, the Bano del Diaze, spouts to the height of 130 feet. When the fountain was completed, Philip V., the builder of the palace, said:

One of the strongest endorsements of the Ogees as a law-abiding people was given by P. P. Calves in his speech at Hominy recently, says the Ogees (Okl.) Journal, when he said that out of the 2,000 on the roll there was at the present time only one member in prison, and there had been in the past period of ten years only a time when not an Ogees was behind prison bars. Out of a population of 2,000 this is a remarkable showing, and speaks well for the Ogees as a future citizen of the new commonwealth.

This latest news from the Crow reservation is discouraging. We do not like to hear that the genuine cowboys are dying out and that solemn, useful, common-sense persons from the middle west are taking up new lands, thus transforming a scene of gayety into one of plain, everyday, humdrum industry and thrift. Of course, we want to see the country prosper and bear it with us with progress. But we should like to preserve at least a little of the picturesque, the half-breed has been exterminated. There is hardly a bear left that won't eat out of your hand, and we to put Cinnamon Pets to driving street cars and hire gun fighters to foot pest?

In September the birthday of Pike Peak will be observed by the state of Colorado. When Lieut. Pike was captured by Spanish soldiers in February, 1897, he was relieved of several maps and manuscripts which were never recovered. They are supposed to have been sent by the governor of Santa Fe to the viceroy of the City of Mexico, and by him forwarded to Madrid. As the Spanish are careful about the preservation of historical documents and records, it is believed that Pike's papers are still in existence. At the suggestion of Representative Brooks, of Colorado, Secretary Hook has requested the Spanish government to institute a search for them. If found they will probably be returned.

ZION PROPERTIES GIVEN TO RECEIVER

JUDGE LANDIS NAMES REPRESENTATIVE TO OVERSEE INDUSTRIAL AFFAIRS.

Declares Volva Had No Right to Transfer Property Under Power of Attorney, Since Dowie is Aligned With It in Trust for the People.

Chicago, July 22.—John C. Hatley, not John Alexander Dowie or William Zion Volva, is to control the Zion City properties, Judge Landis Friday named Mr. Hatley receiver of the Zion Industries. He is to oversee the business end of Zion for an indefinite period. The court ordered an election of the Zion Trustees in September to select a general overseer to control the religious activities of Zion.

Given in Trust to Dowie.
Thus ended the long controversy over Zion. Money and lands given to John Alexander Dowie were given in trust. That was the essence of the decision. The judge declared the conveyance of property by William Zion Volva under power of attorney to be void. He quoted from writings of Dowie to show that the latter had always regarded the property as a trust and in ending declared that adequate compensation would be provided for Dowie by the court at some later time.

The court held that the transfer of Zion City by Volva and his power of attorney from Dowie to Graner was not worth the paper it was written upon.

Millions Involved in Decision.
Judge Landis' sweeping decision sets at rest the controversy growing out of the action of Overseer Volva in transferring the properties of Zion from John Alexander Dowie to Graner. Millions are involved, and all Zion, throughout the world, has breathed the efforts of the captain of the craft heeled over and was hit by a huge wave. The wind and the storm coming were more than the yacht could stand and it tumbled completely over throwing the 22 occupants into the sea.

Whole Battalion in Mutiny.
Loyal Troops Fire on Those Who Resist Arrest of Comrades.

Poltava, Russia, July 20.—A grave outrage occurred Saturday in the Sevsk regiment, following the arrest of a private of the First battalion, who was discovered with some other soldiers in a shed where the revolutionaryists are in the habit of hiding meetings.

After the arrest the entire First battalion, accompanied by a large crowd, paraded the streets in defiance of the military authorities. The soldiers proceeded to the artillery barracks, where they seized several guns and marched with them to the prison where the political prisoners are confined.

At this stage all the remainder of the Poltava garrison was called out. The loyal troops fired on the mutineers with machine guns as they were engaged in breaking down the gate of the prison. Several men were killed or wounded. The outbreak was not suppressed until two o'clock Sunday morning.

SUNDAY FISHERS DROWNED

EIGHT PERSONS MEET DEATH IN STORM OFF NEW JERSEY.

Heavy Squall Strikes Yacht as It Reaches Treacherous Sand Bar and Boat Turns Turtlet.

Angeles, N. J., July 20.—Two yachts coming in from the fishing banks capsized on Herford Inlet bar here Sunday and so far as can be ascertained eight persons lost their lives. There were 32 persons on one yacht and on the other seven were lost, and on the other, all of whom but one were saved. That not more fell victims to the rough sea was due to the heroism of Capt. Henry S. Ludlow, of the Herford Inlet life saving station, and a crew of five men. It was at first thought that from 14 to 25 persons had been rescued.

The weather in the morning was ideal and all the fishing boats took out large crowds to the fishing banks. After noon, however, a heavy breeze sprang up and the captains of the small craft hoisted sail and started for home. Most of the fleet got in without mishap, although others then had considerable difficulty in clearing the Herford bar.

The two that got into trouble were the sloop yacht Nora, which had on board Capt. Herbert Shivers, his mate and 39 passengers, and the sloop Alvin B. with a party of 13.
The Nora had gone to the fishing banks at Five Fathom bank about ten miles out to sea early in the day. When the wind began to freshen Capt. Shivers decided it was time to make port and with the assistance of a gasoline engine and a good spread of canvas he made good time toward Angeles. As the sloop bowed along the wind was getting stiffer and the sea rougher.

Capt. Shivers, from long experience, knew how treacherous is the Herford bar and approached it with his usual caution. The sand bar, which extends a mile from shore, just as he was about to go over it a heavy squall struck the Nora.

Despite the efforts of the captain the craft heeled over and was hit by a huge wave. The wind and the storm coming were more than the yacht could stand and it tumbled completely over throwing the 22 occupants into the sea.

CAN HE PREVENT THE EXPLOSION?

RIGID INSPECTION OF MEAT PLANTS

REGULATIONS ISSUED BY SECRETARY WILSON ARE MOST STRINGENT.

Packing Houses Must Be Clean in Every Particular and Animals to Be Slaughtered Perfectly Healthy in Order to Be Entitled to Labels.

Washington, July 22.—Secretary Wilson Friday made public the regulations under the new law governing the inspection of meat products for interstate and foreign trade. They do not, however, cover the subject of interstate transportation of meat or the microscopic inspection of pork for export. Regulations on these subjects, it was stated, will be issued later.

The general regulations provide that the scope of the inspection shall cover all slaughtering, packing, meat-canning, salting, rendering or similar establishments whose meats or meat food products, in whole or in part, enter into interstate or foreign commerce, unless exempted from inspection by the secretary of agriculture. All portions of the buildings must be whitewashed or painted, or where this is impracticable, they must be washed, scraped or otherwise rendered sanitary.

All trucks, trays, chutes, platforms, racks, tables, knives, saws, cleavers and utensils and machinery used in handling meats must be cleaned daily.

Employees must wear outer clothing of a material that is easily cleaned and made sanitary. All toilet rooms, urinals and dressing rooms are required to be entirely separate from apartments in which carcasses are dressed or meats and meat food products are prepared. Managers of establishments will not be permitted to employ any person affected with tuberculosis in any of the departments where carcasses are dressed, meats handled or meat food products prepared.

Butchers who dress diseased carcasses are required to cleanse and disinfect their hands and implements before handling healthy carcasses.

Reports on Sanitation.
Weekly reports on sanitation are to be made by the employees in charge of various departments to the inspector in charge of the station, who in turn must report weekly to the chief of the bureau of animal industry at Washington. But if any unsanitary conditions are detected by any department employe, such conditions must be reported immediately to the inspector. The provision relating to dyes, chemicals and preservatives is stringent.

New Inspection Rules.
The inspection of animals before slaughter, designated in the regulations as the ante-mortem inspection, is to be given to conform to the new law, and to give the secretary of agriculture authority to require that all animals suspected of disease or other morbid condition shall be slaughtered separately and apart from all other animals, under the careful supervision of federal inspectors.

Special provision is made for the destruction of food purposes of all carcasses and parts of carcasses and meat food products which, upon inspection, or reinspection, prove to be unclean, unground, unhealthful, wholesome, or otherwise unfit for human food. All such meat will be placed in a tank in the presence of a government inspector, and all openings to the tank will be sealed with a government seal by the inspector. Steam will be turned on. Before the carcasses are placed in the tank sufficient coloring matter will be added to render it impossible that the tankage can be used for lard or other edible product.

Trade Label Regulation.
The meat inspection law under which the regulations are issued, contains provision that no meat or meat food product shall be sold or offered for sale by any person, firm or corporation in interstate or foreign commerce under any false or deceptive name, but established trade names which are usual to such products and which are not false and deceptive and which shall be approved by the secretary of agriculture are permitted.

All stamps, labels and certificates showing that meat and meat food products have been inspected and passed are required to be affixed by a government employe or to be affixed by an employe of the establishment under the personal supervision of a government employe.

Certificates are required for exports of cattle, sheep, swine and goats, and the meat and meat food products thereof, and no vessel having on board any such animals, meat or meat food products for export will be allowed to clear by the customs officers until the certificate of the secretary of agriculture, showing that the meat is sound, healthy, wholesome and fit for food, is produced.

Free Access to Houses.
For the purpose of enforcing the law and the regulations, inspectors and other government employes under the direction of the inspector must have access to establishments at all times by day or night, whether the houses be tenements or not.

Labeling Carcasses.
The provision in regard to labeling carcasses which are found diseased and which have been condemned, are very complete. A system of tags numbered in duplicate, with reports to the inspector in charge, who, in turn, reports to Washington, will make it impossible for any carcass which has once been tagged by a department employe to escape the vigilance of the inspectors.

Running through the regulations is a carefully prepared scheme which will effectually prevent the entrance into sausage, curing, canning and other chopped meat establishments of any carcasses which were not inspected and passed by federal inspectors at the time of slaughter.

One of the important provisions of the regulations is the following definition: "U. S. Inspected and passed." This phrase shall mean that the carcasses, parts of carcasses, meats and meat food products so marked are sound, healthy, wholesome and contain no dyes, preservatives, chemicals or ingredients, which render meats or meat food products unclean, unhealthful, unwholesome, unclean or unfit for human food."

COREY SEPARATED BY NEVADA COURTS

WIFE IS GRANTED DECREE OF DIVORCE FROM LAWFUL STEEL KING.

Set up Claim of Desertion and Says Husband Desires He Had Decided to Live Apart If They Could Not Be Happy Together.

Reno, Nev., July 21.—Mrs. William Ellis Corey, wife of the president of the United States Steel corporation, was awarded a divorce in the Second district court of Nevada, sitting at Reno Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Corey was in tears when told that she had been given a decree and the custody of her 16-year-old son, Allan Corey, she lives at once to her home on Riverside avenue, where she says she will continue to reside. No evidence was submitted by the defense and there was no argument.

The question of alimony was not introduced. Mrs. Corey made an interesting admission, however, touching upon the cause of the case, stating that in May, 1916, several weeks before her petition for divorce was filed, she negotiated through her attorneys a financial settlement with her husband.

Tells of Separation.
"I am a resident of Reno, Nevada," said Mrs. Corey, when placed on the stand, "and the wife of William Ellis Corey, the defendant in this action. We were married on December 31, 1912, at Pittsburgh, Pa., and lived together until May 1, 1916. At that time my husband deserted me and went to New York. I followed him and held a conversation with him in the Hotel Lorraine. It was there that he told me that he had decided to live apart. He said that it was impossible for us to live happily together and that I would never see him again."

She stated that she intended going to Europe for several months. There was no case. I talked with him about the matter and urged him to again resume his place in our home, but he refused. I have never seen him since."

Sister Opposed Brother.
Miss Addie Corey, sister of the respondent, was an interesting witness. She corroborated Mrs. Corey's statement that Corey had deserted his wife and told her she was abandoned. Her mother had made several ineffectual attempts to effect a reconciliation.

Her brother, she said, had lost sight of his home and abandoned his business and infatuated with the fast life of New York.

Do you consider Mr. Corey a proper custodian for his son?" she was asked.

"I do not for the reason that he is not a proper person for his son to associate with. He is an abandoned man and his associates are not fit companions for a young man of Allan's age. I do not think any wealthy New York man is fit to have charge of a boy of his age."

Roosevelt is OUT OF THE RACE.
President Will Not Accept Republican Nomination for Third Term.

Peoria, Ill., July 21.—A positive announcement from President Roosevelt that he will not be a candidate for the third term was made Monday in a letter addressed to Mrs. L. A. Kinney, of Peoria, by Secretary William Loeb for President Roosevelt. The text of the letter follows:

"Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 22.—Dear Madam: Your letter of recent date has been received and I thank you for the president's behalf for calling attention to the subject of my declining. I would say, however, that the president has nothing to add to the statement made by me in the light of the election in 1904. His decision as announced at that time is irrevocable."

This expression from President Roosevelt was called forth by an editorial in the Peoria Journal, which was called to the attention of the president through Mrs. Kinney, wife of a prominent Peoria politician. The editorial was in the form of an appeal to the president to accept the third term.

ROCKEFELLER STARTS FOR OHIO.
Oil Magnate Quits Pocomtoco Hills Estate for Home in Cleveland.

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 21.—John D. Rockefeller and his party left for Cleveland Monday night. Mr. Rockefeller came down to the depot from Pocomtoco Hills alone and waited about the depot for some time. Then John D. Archbold came up from New York on a way train, and he and Mr. Rockefeller chatted until the latter's train was due.

A 11:15 before train time Mrs. Maud Rockefeller, accompanied by her maid, arrived. Then Mr. Rockefeller's valet and two servants drove up with the baggage. Mr. Archbold said that Mr. Rockefeller would not be arrested or held there when he reached Cleveland.

THE HISTORY OF POLICE MAN FLYNN

HE SUPPRESS ANARCHY.
Copyright, 1904, by the Century Co.
Copyright, 1904, by Joseph H. Rowles.
On a boat to which Policeman Barney Flynn was once assigned there was a most troublesome character, there was a dangerous or harmless, according to the point of view. If he had been deprived of his tongue he certainly would have been harmless, for he certainly was as meek and unassuming a man as one could well find. If he had had a brain at all commensurate with his linguistic powers he also would have been harmless or perhaps even a power for good.

Policeman Flynn saw a crowd gathered about him one day, and listened to the language that was used. Then he gently allowed his way to the man's side, and suggested, "Ye better be movin' along."

"This a free country," roared the man.

"Ye right ye are," answered Policeman Flynn.

"Ye had a grudge against the world," said the man.

"I is as free fr ye to have as it is fr ye to come to. Niver a man-an is holdin' ye."

The man moved on. He said something about "the millions of the law" and "the bloodhounds of monopoly," but something in the expression of Policeman Flynn's face convinced him that it was wise to move on. Still, he lived in that vicinity and it was not his nature to remain long quiet. So a few days later Flynn found him holding forth in the same strain again, and again he forced him to move on. But the policeman was troubled.

"It is hard to know what to do," he told his wife. "He do be makin' a lot of trouble an' shirkin' up a lot of the ignorant gabazab, but if I run him in I'll ma-ke a martyr fr him, no law, an' that's no good."

"I'll be at the balance fr appearin' agin him in court, an' what wud I say to th' judge? Oh! I think I see meself."

"This is-a, says I to th' judge, 'is shootin' off his mouth an' sayin' he-ard things agin th' government?'"

"If ye think," says th' judge to me, "th' go-vernment is afraid fr th' idle vapourin' fr was misquid my wetch?"

"It is the worrin' fr th' thing that he says that he-ard things agin th' go-vernment. I've thim alone an' no wan I'll notice thim."

"This th' passers come out an' to talk fr th' policy fr rap-rapin' according to th' Russian plan an' th' has-arm that's done be it. An' that's th' Barney Flynn on th' carpet in th' cap'n's office fr makin' a fool fr himself."

Having thus explained the troubles that beset official Flynn in a way that will be appreciated by men in much higher position, Policeman Flynn prepared to drop the subject in order to give his confidential informant his pipe and his paper. But Mrs. Flynn was not at the end of her resources.

"Why don't ye ha-ave a talk with him?" she asked. "Ye might talk thim th' trouble he's makin' ye."

"This seemed so absurd to Policeman Flynn that he only laughed. Nevertheless, the idea took root, and one day, when opportunity offered, he opened a conversation with the anarchist.

"I sup-pose," he remarked, "that 't is so use discussin' th' matter with ye, but don't ye see ye're wrong, an' ye're only makin' trouble fr ye-self an' fr me?"

"I have a right to my views," asserted the anarchist.

"Sure ye ha-ave," admitted Policeman Flynn, "but ye ha-ave no right to be discussin' thim on others' terms."

"They force thers on us," protested the anarchist.

Policeman Flynn gave this phase of the question thoughtful consideration before replying.

"Was ye born in this country?" he asked.

"No," was the reply.

"Are ye a citizen fr yet?"

"No."

"Ye ma-ke me think fr a feily I heard fr," said Policeman Flynn, ever ready to seize a moral with story. "This fell had strung thers fr ruinin' his house, an' 't was all fr-right while he was ruinin' his own house an' not botherin' anny wan else. But was de-ay he moved over to a boardin'-house."

"Come in," says th' other boarder.

"No long as ye pay a moral an' live up to th' rules ye're glad fr to ha-ave ye."

"But I don't intind fr to pay no-

board," says th' man-an, an' I don't like th' rules."

"These do be winty fr us here that likes thim," says they.

"'T is no matter," says th' man-an. "I know more than all th' riot fr ye, an' ye'll back me up."

"Ye'd better be goin' on about ye-er business," says they.

"I will not," says th' man-an. "Here I am an' here I'll stay, an' if ye don't change th' rules to suit me I'll tear th' house down," he says. "Ye're all fools," he says, "an' I'm th' only wise man-an, an' I'm goin' to turn loose an' show ye a thing or two."

"He took him away in an ambulance," asserted Policeman Flynn, "while the anarchist was in the way of conclusion. 'D' ye see th' point?'"

"No," replied the anarchist.

"If ye don't like th' rules fr th' house ye're livin' in along with the lot fr people that was there before ye, ye're back into ye-er own house."

"But I have none," said the anarchist, at last grasping the point.

"This build wan," advised Policeman Flynn, "is a matter."

But, of course, all this wisdom was wasted upon the anarchist. He continued a furious anarchist, and never ever opportunitly offered, and Policeman Flynn continued to puzzle his head as to the best method of procedure in the matter.

"'T is a strange thing," he commented one day, "that so many different kinds fr things do be in th' same matter-contry, an' he had so, solemnly shaking his head, 'ye niver hear annythin' fr th' father. It him he-ard, it do, fr a fact. Joughn he fr broods some thim of nobber countries tur-nus out, it is like they was married an' divorced th' or th' other times, an' th' secret fr it all lies in th' pater-nity."

On another occasion he suggested to the anarchist, "Th' is-a that's always havin' br-icks in th' wa that's sun-pri-ved when he gets wan along-side fr th' head. If ye'll go home an' think that that it may save ye some trouble."

At last, however, the policeman outlined a plan of campaign. He decided to make a lettering anarchist was a man-an, while an anarchist on the move was harmless. "I is only where they shop that they ma-ke trouble," he said. "Movin' they fr movin' they ha-ave no chanst." It was after he had been obliged to order his particular anarchist to "move on" three times in the evening that this great idea came to him. He took the man by the arm and walked him along.

"Ye th' staff?" asked the man, bitterly.

"Niver," answered Policeman Flynn. "I'll not do ye that honor. 'Ye shud be fr ye-er own to ye a 'th' to 'stus.' He went on to give ye ha-ave no place fr it in ye-er head. Whin ye ha-ave business here ye can tell me."

"A Movin' Anarchist 'I Niver Bothers Any Wan."

It is an' 'I'll be all fr-right, but whin ye ha-ave none ye'll have fr to keep goin', I'll ha-ave none fr ye-er doin' on me."

He marched him to the end of his beat and watched for the next patrolman to show up.

"'T is th' anarchist that's been annoyin' me," he explained, "an' I'll not ha-ave him on me."

"But I don't want him," protested the other policeman.

"Pass him along. A movin' anarchist 'I niver bother anny wan."

Then he winked at his brother officer, and the latter, after a pause sufficient to enable him to grasp the situation, laughed and took the anarchist in tow. With a few words of explanation to the man he later passed on to third officer, and—well, he crept back to his home about two o'clock the following morning. Once afterwards the experience was repeated, and then the story reached the station.

"Barney," laughed the captain, when he heard of it, "you've solved a great problem. If I've retained an' sent you to Washington to see if you could handle it on a larger scale."

"Ye wud be anny nosa," answered Policeman Flynn, "only fr was thim."

"What's that?" asked the captain.

"After a bit th' gabble wud 'ern enough fr to get th' board an' write, an' th' politicians wud 'at lara one lay a hand on thim, asserted Policeman Flynn, thereby adding materially to his reputation for wisdom.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

O. C. GREGG HAS A METHOD TO KILL WILD MU TARD.
A Farmer Mysteriously Disappears from White Bear—Poles Win at Winona—Notes.

Minneapolis—Wild mustards, the bug-bear of the northwestern farmer, may be eradicated from grain fields by spraying the grain with a solution of sulphate of iron. This is the announcement of O. C. Gregg, superintendent of the state farmers' institution, who has been conducting a series of experiments on his farm in Lynd, Minn. Mr. Gregg declares that he has established absolutely that the mustard pest can be killed by using the sulphate of iron solution.

Farmers who have waged war against the wild mustard will appreciate the importance of Mr. Gregg's discovery. Securing a foothold in a rapidly it goes to seed. It will cover the soil within a few years.

Different methods of exterminating the pest have been resorted to, but none seems entirely satisfactory, as the mustard seeds are broadcast and the plant is prolific.

The method used by Mr. Gregg in killing the mustard is simple. When the grain was about four inches high and the mustard about three inches high, he sprayed his fields with the sulphate of iron solution and found the mustard was destroyed while the grain was not affected. The only difficulty he has encountered has been procuring machinery which would do the work of spraying cheaply and economically.

Mr. Gregg will discuss his experiments at the farmers' institutes to be held next winter.

Disappeared.—The police of two cities are looking for August Buschman, who has disappeared mysteriously from his farm near here. He left his farm a week ago with considerable money in his possession, and although a systematic search has been carried on since it was discovered that he had not returned, not the slightest trace of him has been found.

The discovery of his lengthy absence was made by a man who happened to pass the farm. The horses and cows in the barn were making doleful noises as though in great distress, and when he went to investigate he found that they had not been fed or watered for several days, and that several of them were in a dying condition, owing principally to want of water.

Restrain the Hogs.—Complying with the persistent demands of several thousand Polish residents, the city council ordered the hog limits changed so that hogs cannot be kept in the city anywhere near residences. A committee of Poles issued an ultimatum two weeks ago that if this action were not taken they would tear down the obnoxious fence and drive the hogs to Central Park. Fearing a violent demonstration, the council complied with the wishes of the Poles.

At the Fair.—Unquestionably the largest and most attractive amusement offering of the season in the northwest is the Gregory's big pyrotechnical spectacle, "Moscow," which will be presented at the Minnesota state fair during the week of September 11-15.

A much augmented company of dramatic players, pantomimists, dancers and acrobats, numbering over 200 people, is required to produce the interesting and historic Russian subject.

Lawyers Meet.—The American Bar association will for the first time hold its annual meeting in Minnesota, and the chosen dates are the last three days in August, and the place, the capitol building in St. Paul.

A Decent Tramp.—Fishes—Overcome by cramps while bathing in Cedar Island lake near Sparta, Arthur Magee would have been drowned had not a rugged hobo, who was asleep under a tree on the shore, heard his cries and plunged in and dragged him to safety. After taking the man to the shore the hobo ran to nearby house and summoned help and then disappeared without giving his name.

Born in Prison.—Stillwater—Mrs. James Brennan, who was sent to the penitentiary from Minneapolis for the murder of her three step-children last fall, gave birth to a girl baby. Mrs. Brennan's mother will care for the child after two or three months. This is the second child born in the Stillwater penitentiary.

News Notes.—St. Paul—The new workingmen's party organization, organized and nominated a county and legislative ticket.

Stillwater—The general store of Albert Le Rue of Lake Umbagog was burglarized early this morning. The residence of Arthur Stevens, the postmaster, adjacent to the post-office, also was entered.

Fairfax—A man who gave his name as Crowley, but whose real name was Thomas H. Dornody, was drowned at Cannon Lake.

Rosemount—A horse driven by A. Groth, living south of Rosemount, became frightened at an automobile yesterday evening and upset the buggy throwing first Mrs. Groth and then Groth to the ground. Mr. Groth was severely injured and his wife had an arm broken.

Hamlet—A rear end collision in a passenger train between a freight train ran into an appeal freight train, occurred on the Great Northern one mile east of Hamlet.

Adrian—Dr. Sullivan was re-elected school director for a term of three years and James Chas was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. C. C. May.

PINE COUNTY PIONEER.

ED. C. GOTTRY, Editor and Prop.

Entered in the Post Office at Pine City as Second Class Matter.

PINE CITY, MINN., Aug. 3, 1906

Announcement

To the Voters of Kanabec, Chisago and Pine Counties:

At the solicitation of many of the representative citizens of this legislative district, but more especially at the earnest request of many of the voters of Kanabec—my home county, I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination, at the coming republican primaries, as one of the representatives from the 2nd district.

If nominated and elected, I shall endeavor to merit the confidence placed in me by laboring for the best interests of the district. I am, heartily in favor of and shall advocate and vote the so-called rock-wool demerage legislation, reduction of freight and passenger rates and revision of our present unjust tax system, which makes the poorer classes bear more than their share of the burdens of taxation.

I believe that Knute Nelson has ably represented this state in the United States senate and is entitled to another term. If given the opportunity it will afford me pleasure to vote for his re-election.

HENRY RINES.

BENNETT CITY.

No less than thirty people called at the mine Sunday.

Mrs. Anna Kraus returned from her St. Paul visit Tuesday.

Bert Butler, of Bruson, spent Sunday at the Guphill home.

Lew and Harry Davis have stopped work at the mine. They expect to start for the harvest fields this week.

Chas. Stone moved his family from this place Wednesday. Mrs. Stone will spend some time with her parents, while Clarence goes west for the harvest.

Last Saturday Hines Kruse joined the diet of launches and took a boat load of Pine City's training school teachers to the entertainment planned for them at Historic Pookama.

Our great city feels as if quite a calamity had overtaken it. Its chief enterprise, the mine, is being removed to the suburbs this week. A new shaft is to be sunk a mile further down the river in the hopes of finding copper at a less depth.

Tuesday Pete Edin decided on a change of work and gave up his place as one of the head miners at the mine. If Pete had remained until next month he would have been here a year without losing a day or half-day's work, except Christmas and the Fourth of July, when the mine shut down. That is a pretty steady life underground.

MEADOW LAWN.

Elbert Barnum was a Meadow Lawn visitor last week.

Mrs. Eva A. Perkins, of Lakville, is a guest at the Lahart home this week.

Mr. Dosey, of Bush City, was in this vicinity last Friday, insuring some of the farmers.

Little Homer Smith had the misfortune of losing his little finger last week with an old dipper handle.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Carrier, of Huslatowa, spent Sunday with Mrs. Carrier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Clyns.

POKEGAMA.

J. E. Norstrom left on Wednesday on a business trip to Minneapolis.

Roy Winchester spent Sunday with his family at the lake. He returned to Minneapolis Monday.

George Richardson, who has made his home with his sister, Mrs. J. E. Norstrom, for the past year, left Monday for North Dakota.

Unnecessary Expense.

Acute attacks of Colic and diarrhoea come on without warning and prompt relief must be obtained. There is no necessity of incurring the expense of a physician's services in such cases if Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is at hand. A dose of this remedy will relieve the patient before a doctor could arrive. It has never been known to fail, even in the most severe and dangerous cases, and no family should be without. For sale at Breckenridge's Pharmacy.

For Sale Cheap.

One 10-h. p. engine and 30-hp separator, weigher and blower attached. On terms to suit purchaser. Call on A. Biedermann, Pine City, Minn., and look it over.

Rate Twin Cities to Shoshoni and return will be $23.00, leaving Minneapolis 7:10 a. m. and St. Paul 7:40 a. m. excepting Saturday and Sunday Shoshoni will be reached the next night.

For further particulars, address, T. W. TEASDALE, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn. July 20.

Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first natural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold at Breckenridge's Pharmacy.

Lots of big fish in the sea. Be lots more of them caught too, if better tackle was used. None better than Breckenridge's, at Drug Store.

"Make Hay While the Sun Shines." There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may attack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best-known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal. For sale at Breckenridge's pharmacy.

Scrub yourselves daily, you're not clean inside. Clean inside, mean clean stomach, bowels, blood, liver, clean, healthy tissue in every organ. Moral: Take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Breckenridge's Pharmacy.

Old mauls would be scarce and hard to find. Could they be made to see How grace and beauty is combined By using Rocky Mountain Tea Breckenridge's Pharmacy.

A FROST AND A THAW. WITH A LOW-NECK DRESS

BY ELLIOTT WALKER.

Dorcas Cope ran into the pantry with her bonnet pressed hard over her mouth.

"The end is comin'," she muttered behind the tightly closed fingers. "I simply can't endure him any longer."

Under the scanty rays of light brushed mercifully back from the anxious brow, her eyes, strained, fixed and hopeless, presently roved with a slow despair from the yellowed wall-paper to the clean, worn dresser, where stood the shining tin in readiness for the morning's milk. Drooping her head, Dorcas gazed at them queerly.

"Forty years I've lived pain right here. Oh! what ain't I done right here? Stood and worked, and thought, and planned, laughed 'til my sides ached, and miserable summer and winter, rain and shine. Lord! Lord! Lord!"

She clasped her forehead, groaning bitterly, with her tears, unconsciously counting the well-used household implements hanging neatly on their nails, and the array of canisters and small spice-boxes hanging from the ceiling. "To drop dead would be a mercy," she whispered. "If I dared—"

Picking up a keen-edged bread knife, the woman patted the sharp point with a finger, smiling grimly while she poked her corset ribs.

"If I had a heart, 'twould be about here, I s'pose. Pahaw. That's no use. If you get to thinkin' of that—No! While the fit's on me I'll tell him. Just as I am. I'll go out to the barn and tell him I'm goin'." From his actions lately, he ought to be willin' enough. My soul when did it all start, and what for? It's like a wall of ice, beginnin' with a drop and growin' growin', 'til we're froze apart as wide as the poles. He knows it. I know it. It's beyond ever makin' Nuthin' to do but one thing.

Across the yard, unattended of the dew still soaking the uncut grass and the fact of her low heel-trotten slippers, Mrs. Cope marched staidly, blind to the early sunshine, deaf to her favorite bird's sweet only upon the words burning in her brain.

"I'll be cool and calm," she kept saying, numbing her lower lip. "I'll say, Beecher, when the time comes, if there's any comfort left on earth for either of us we'll never find it together. And he'll say—well, not much, I guess. Why no word of comfort? This knife over here," she added, surprised. "I thought I put it away."

The great barn door creaked and creaked dimly as Dorcas squeezed through, pushing an aperture sufficiently wide to allow ingress for her narrow figure. "He's like a wall of ice," she said to herself, with an added irritation at the delay, as she peered about. "The cows ain't out yet. What's that ladder over there? What's—"

A low, dreadful cry burst from her. Then she went up the ladder like a mad creature, bent and greatly alarmed and slashed with the bread knife.

Beecher Cope fell heavily in a heap. Half sliding, half dropping, his wife descended with a perilous agility, threw to him, over the noose from his neck, rolled him over and sank to her knees.

"Dorcas Cope, don't you cover up! Cut these strings and I'll get up!"

"Promise me you'll never try this again! If not, I'll leave you tied, Beecher Cope. I'll call to the neighbors—!"

"The Lord hearin' me, I've said enough, Dorcas."

Her face was like a white flat as she snipped the bonds, helping him stagger stilly to his feet, and took his arm.

"Come right in the house, Beecher," she said, quietly.

The stern-featured old man waited submissively by her side. He had not trembled at the prospect of death, but now he shuddered, leaning against the woman with his head lowered.

"You'd a ben well left and provided for," said Dorcas doggedly. "Folks would say you was ungratefully. I ain't shooed up some, but I ain't crazy. I meant it. Lavin' don't seem quite so bad as it did." He gave a grim smile, adding, "I meant it the way to go, but you'd have ben a better off, Dorcas. Can you say you wouldn't?"

"You ain't explainin' this," cried his wife, "I s'pose you're doin' it for my head 'ac'in me, but I know it. What have I done?"

"You've froze me!" exclaimed her husband indignantly. "I dunno how to tell it, but that's it."

"And you've froze me," returned Dorcas, her hollow cheeks flaming. "It's your own doing. I'll tell you this—I went to the barn to say that I meant to leave you—that I'd rather live in a refrigerator than go on and wear a looker now to show 'em anything to you nowadays—no more than a cow. Froze you, indeed! I've been stiffened up and frost-bitten till I haven't even a whim left to shed for a sick baby!"

The old couple gazed at each other. Lord tickled the wooden dock on the old doll-covered mantel. One minute, two minutes. Then the husband spoke slowly.

"Was you thinkin' of a separation, Dorcas?"

"I'd like to come to that pass with me, Beecher."

"For good and all?"

"Yes, sir."

Cope's feet shifted forward and he hitched his chair nearer.

"Most ten years ago," he said, solemnly, "I remember my thim mendin' a fence, and I come to you to have it done up. You did it all right and kind enough, but there was somethin' in the way your face looked and your fashion of turnin' away, disputed-like, that hurt my feelin's dreadfully."

"Twas as if you hated to touch me, or have me touch you, and it bit into me. Thinkin' I, if I've got too old for comfort and bein' fussed over, so be it. All day I lay 'feelin' in my back-side to see what I'd lost, but things was all there. What I'd lost wasn't in my clothes. And I tried to ease away the feelin', but it wouldn't. I was hated to go in to me—somehow—"

"I recollect that mornin'," rejoined the woman absently. "My nerves was all on edge with neuralgia. Was that the day you set readin' your paper after supper, and I come to you to put my arm around you, meanin' to give you a kiss, and you turned your head away quick and shirked from me? It made my heart stop beatin'! I was so surprised, and mad. Say I to myself, 'The next kiss comes from him.' It never—"

"Punny you should have remembered that," muttered the farmer, stroking his chin whistler thoughtfully.

"Punny you should have remembered your thumb," Dorcas pulled out her spectacles, adjusted them carefully and looked at him.

A MUDDY COMPLEXION

Sallowness is not always caused by a lazy liver, except as the torpor of the liver itself is caused by some other trouble; it is often caused by nervous trouble, poor circulation, and a badly nourished skin. Such skins are generally dry and leathery, and the "sallow" may be either distributed evenly all over the skin, or in spots of more or less darkness. The skin of the hands and arms shows the same color. Here is a remedy recommended by one who has tried it.

"First, you will have to quit scowling back at the sour face you see in your mirror each morning, and the day must be begun with a brisk exercise to get the sluggish blood into circulation. If possible, a spoon or towel wash with cool water should be taken every day.

"Then, should be taken, as an air bath for the lungs, to rid them of the stagnation the night's rest has brought them. To get up, dress hurriedly and start into the day's work in the kitchen may be industry, but it is not exercise, and will not take the place of the course prescribed. The bath and exercise and deep breathing takes but a few minutes' time—about the same as you would spend yawning and trying to get awake—and you should count it as your first duty of the day. You will work all the better for its performance. Every night, wash your face with a pure soap and hot water, using either the hands or a wash cloth, rinsed well in cool water to remove all soap and then bathed in vinegar (which will leave it chemically clean). When dry rub in the cold cream or skin food with a rubber finger to get a glow on the skin, rubbing until oils are absorbed. This treatment must be followed up by attention to diet and hygienic habits, abstaining from pastries, sweets and anything full to the digestive organs, and eating not too heartily of easily digested meats. A regular treatment at odd times, now and then, will not avail; it must be regularly attended to."

THE FAVORITE WAIST.
A Very Pretty Variation on the Peter Pan Waist and Yet of Charming Simplicity.

The charming negligee skirt waist here illustrated has the practical utility of the tailor made, yet it can easily be developed into one of more dressy appearance. The design is pictured in handkerchief linen, with French hand embroidery. The front and back are plain, except for slight fullness at waist line. The closing is in front, finished with six small buttons and button holes. A small handkerchief pocket is shown at the left side. Neck completion is afforded by a low turnover collar and four-in-hand tie to conceal neck closing. Deep gaudy cuffs are provided for the elbow sleeves.

Batails, silk gingham, pongee, or any popular material composed of fine fibers would be very satisfactory.

Buttons in Vogue.
Buttons are about elaborate as they can be, whether of metal, pearl or bone, and there are some charming novelties in linen-covered ones. Some of them are completely covered, others have, perhaps, a single flower of flower in the center, and still others show a Dresden effect, the tiny flowers giving a very dainty appearance.

The Torch in Summer.
As the torch has become such a favorite at-home-looker in summer, every year new designs and materials are brought out for furnishing. The shops show a profusion of rustic torches. Some pieces are heavy and awkward, but there are a number of pretty, thin and tablet and even torch.

HIS ONE WEAK SPOT.
Prominent Minnesota Merchant Cured to Stay Cured by Dean's Kidney Pills.

O. C. Hayden, of O. C. Hayden & Co. dry goods merchants, of Albert Lea, Minn., says: "I was so lame that I could hardly walk. There was a weakness of the back, and constant pain and aching. I could find no rest. It was so uncomfortable at night. As my health was good in every other way, I could not understand this trouble. It was just as if all the strength had gone from my back. After suffering for some time I began using Dean's Kidney Pills. The result acted at once upon the kidneys, and when normal action was restored, the trouble with my back disappeared. I have not had any return of the trouble for sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y."

STOCK-LOADING CHUTE.
Can Be Permanently Located Near the Scale House Where Animals Are Weighed.

In addition to having a set of wagon scales snugly housed, every farm should have a loading chute, so that when live stock is ready for market and has been weighed, the animals, especially hogs and sheep, can readily be driven into the wagon and drawn to market.

In the accompanying illustration is shown a plan that has been adopted with considerable success by a reader.

A HANDY STATIONARY LOADING CHUTE.
of the Prairie Farmer in Livingston county, Michigan. His loading chute is built at the side of the scale house, so that when the hogs or sheep have been weighed the door can be readily opened and the animals urged into the chute and then driven into the wagon.

In building a chute in this way the matter of measurements must be governed largely by condition. This height must be according to the wagon. It will be well to have considerable length, so that the slant will not be too great.

Strong posts must be set in the ground so as to support the frame. The bottom should be of plank with cleats across so as to provide footing. The sides may be made of lath lumber, but should be high enough so that whatever is being loaded cannot jump out.

WATER IN THE PASTURAGE.
Vital Importance of Having Fresh Water and Plenty of It for the Stock.

Few farms are provided with an abundance of good, fresh water in the pasture fields. Water may be obtained in most farms without going into very heavy expenses. Cows require a great deal of water and they should have it as fresh and pure as possible. Where water may be obtained at a reasonable depth it is economy to sink a well as near as possible to the corners of four fields. A zigzag fence and a long trough may be reached from each pasture, or a short pipe underground may be used. Wind mills are cheaper for pumping than any other power. A small mill will keep the trough full most of the time. The few days when it is necessary to pump by hand are just about sufficient to give a man a correct idea of the value of the mill, and he also can get a good deal better idea of the amount of water the cows will drink. Cows having water constantly before them will drink a great deal more than they will if obliged to travel some distance to get it, and they will give more milk in proportion, says the Standard Guide. A few pounds of milk additional each day will easily pay the interest on the cost of the outfit.

HOG REAPERS.
Do not keep the hogs in one lot till it gets dusty.

A good sow in perfect health always loses flesh while suckling a litter of pigs and needs to be well fed.

Usually the hogs with coarse, straight hair will fatten more so rapidly as the one with the soft, fine hair.

As a rule aged brood sows are the most prolific, the best mothers and produce the most vigorous offspring.

The excess in pigs is often caused by an abundance of fat about the internal organs, and especially around the heart.

Every farrowing sow should have a shelter to herself and be put in it in time to get acquainted with her surroundings.

To make hogs most profitable a steady daily gain must be secured from the time the pig is farrowed until it is marketed.

Pigs often lack vigor because the brood sows are kept too fat. A good, thrifty condition is much better for the pigs than too much fat.

Give the pigs a fair start in life by feeding them a good milk product. This is something in preference to than skim milk mixed with shorts. All waste from the kitchen can be used as a food for the pigs, but a well barrel that is never empty and never clean impairs the system of a hog and his owner's profits.

Feeding Milk.
Milk as a food for pigs has a feeding value far beyond its actual food elements if given in the proper combination with other matters, but it is a great waste to raise pigs exclusively upon it, no matter how plentifully available. Middlings and grain should be fed with it, and so double the number of pigs kept with the same amount of milk.

A friend in need usually needs all he can squeeze out of you.

THE CAMERA FELD.

Man Was Not Satisfied with Ordinary Amusement Like Taking Pictures.

A well-known criminal lawyer one day mentioned to a police court just as a case was called. It appeared that the defendant had a little camera and the judge glanced about the room to see whom he might assign to the case.

"I'll take it, judge," the late comer said, wishing to pass a few minutes. "By the way, what is the man charged with?" the attorney presently asked.

"He's a camera fiend of the worst sort," Mr. Brown, the judge said with a slight smile. "I expect to send him to the workhouse for about three months."

"What?" the lawyer shouted, indignantly. "Your honor must be joking. Send a man to the rock pile for three months for a little camera amusement like taking pictures?"

"Well," the judge said, mildly, "he don't take pictures much—it's the camera he takes."

FOUR YEARS OF AGONY.

Whole Foot Nothing But Froud Flesh—Had to Use Cuticura—Cuticura Remedies the Best on Earth.

"In the year 1899 the side of my right foot was cut off from the little toe down to the heel, and the physician who had charge of me was trying to sew up the hole. My foot was well on success. At last my whole foot and way up above my calf was nothing but proud flesh, suffered so long ago for a little time. I tried different physicians and all kinds of ointments. I could walk only with crutches. In two weeks after on God's earth, I am working at the present day after five years of suffering. The cost of Cuticura Ointment and Soap was only $4. In every case of 'hills' were more like $50. John M. Lloyd, 718 S. Arch Ave., Alliance, Ohio, June 27, 1905."

Sunday Rest in Italy.
The question of Sunday rest is being agitated seriously in Italy, and a commission has been appointed to study the matter. It is recommended that as far as possible an uninterrupted rest of from 22 to 24 hours should be insured to all the working classes, and that in case of public services, the men who worked on Sundays should have one day of every year of rest, and domestic servants being entitled to a full holiday a week. The law does not apply to fishermen.

Harriman Lines to Become Floral Executive Routes.

The Union Pacific road in Chicago are planning to build several large greenhouses along the main lines of this company in Nebraska, Wyoming, Utah and other districts, with the object of having at every table an every dining car of freshly cut flowers at every meal. In addition to table and other decorations it is planned to grow flowers on a scale sufficient to supply a free distribution of roses, carnations and carnations, or other reasonable flowers, not only in dining cars but to passengers on every car of every train, and in winter as well as summer, the idea being to make patrons feel that the flowers are a part of the trip, and not a mere and not precious little souvenir.

The greenhouses will probably be located at Grand Island, Neb., Cheyenne, Wyo., Denver, Colo., Salt Lake City, Utah, and in the territory of the Sunset route in the south the company has no trouble in getting outdoor flowers at every meal. In these districts the scheme of flowers for passengers and car decorations is being enlarged upon. Dining rooms along all lines are to be supplied free with plants and blooms. The California and southern resources with the greenhouses will be along the central route will put the Union, Southern Pacific and Oregon Short Lines in a position where they may become known as the floral and appealation officers of the Harriman lines good to merit.

A friend in need usually needs all he can squeeze out of you.
