BIG MEETINGS ASSURED

Bede's Budget of Dates are Awaited With Much Interest at Henriette, Greeley,
 Kerrick and Sandstone

The Bede rallies which are scheduled to occur in this county during the first of next month give promise of being the greatest political love feasts ever shown a congressman from this district. The fact that Mr. Bede is a Pine county man, and that he is one of the illustrious men of the country, will tend to merit a great display of enthusiasm.

Word coming from the different places in which Congressman Bede will appear announces that big crowds are awaiting to give him the heartiest and best reception possible—and that means that rousing demonstrations will favor him.

At Kerrick on the 3rd of November a rally of especial interest will be held. We know this to be a fact from the terms of a letter received from that place this week. A large number of the prominent politicians of this county will be in attendance, and all of the county officials have a special invitation to be present.

It is also expected that this end of the county will tip up perceptibly on the 5th when Mr. Bede will appear at Sandstone where he is assured of a glorious reception.

The workers at Henriette and Greeley are also preparing for the feast of reason which they are to receive on the 1st and 2nd, respectively.

All of the above mentioned towns are Bede strongholds, which is proven by the magnificent compliment of votes accorded him in the past.

It has been the effort of the committee in charge of the dates in this county to give as many as possible an opportunity of hearing the Congressman, and the committee have done admirably well in their efforts to please. Remember the dates.

To Remove Logs.

The boom company's pile driver boat, Arcola, was here last week experimenting in the removal of sunken logs from the river bottom. It was found to be very easily done, and a company has been organized to prosecute the work. Millions of feet of logs are on the river bottom. The channel of the river will be in much better condition for steamboat navigation after the logs are removed.—Taylors Falls Journal.

SOME GOOD ADVICE

Market Gardeners and Farmers Urged to Thoroughly Plow Land—Increase in Army Worm Predicted.

The Entomologist of the Experiment Station urges upon market gardeners and farmers the need of thoroughly plowing land which has been in cabbage or cauliflower this year. There is no more serious menace to next year's crop than the stalks which are allowed to stand over winter and way into the spring; almost up to the time of setting out the new crop. For close to these stalks, and in the stalks, there are many brown puparia, from which will emerge the cabbage maggot flies next spring. These brown puparia should be exposed by plowing as far as possible, that various enemies and varying conditions of the weather may reach and destroy them.

It would little good if one man should plow his field and his neighbor just across the fence should not do so, for the crop of flies from the careless neighbor's field would undoubtedly lay eggs upon the cabbage or cauliflower plants of the more careful man. Co-operation, then, is necessary to insure success.

The State Entomologist also speaks of the abundance of the army worm during the last season, and predicts a possible increase in the next year. The army worm is a form of cut worm, which appears sometimes in large numbers, and travels from place to place in search of food. It attacks timothy and grain. In the summer time when threatening a field of grain or timothy, it can be checked by plowing two or three furrows on the side toward the advancing army of worms, the steep side of the furrow being next to crop to be protected. The worms congregate in the furrows and can be killed.

FUN AT THE LAKE

Preparations Being Made to Create Huge Summer Resort on Land Adjoining Fritz Sanatorium.

There will be plenty of amusement at Pokegama lake next summer; real enjoyment for the most particular.

J. S. Fritzson has decided to launch into the summer resort business, and already has five men at work clearing off ten acres of land to the south of the ravine adjoining the sanatorium grounds.

Of course the resort will be conducted apart from the business of the sanatorium. A lunch room will be built on the grounds, tents will be at the disposal of guests, and first class bathing facilities will tend to enliven those who love the water and beach. An apparatus for sliding into the lake from a high elevation will be constructed and should afford much pleasure; a large cable extended from a tree on the high bank to an anchor in the lake to which will be attached a car, will comprise the apparatus. Other pleasure devices will be added from time to time.

Ed Kendall, whose skill as a boat-builder is the source of much praise, has contracted to build two dozen row boats for the coming enterprise. Fritzson is bound to have the best, enough of the best, and a variety of the best.

And the old reliable steamboat which first plied the river and lake under the appellation, "Victor," and then assumed an alias, "Taxedo Belle," will be thoroughly remodeled and overhauled and will be christened, "Fritz." So "Fritz" will make schedule trips to and from Pine City, leaving the "en" to take care of the land-lubbers.

Who ready for business next summer the steamer will be better and safer than ever. She has been recalled and made thoroughly seaworthy. A dynamo for lighting purposes has been installed and powerful guns shall set at port and starboard, the forward light being capable of throwing its rays for a distance of five miles.

The 40-horse power engine will be run by Mr. Fritzson, who is an engineer of many years experience and for a term of six years he was state elevator inspector. He will have the engine moved forward about four feet in order to make room for two toilet cabinets in the rear. The passenger cabin will be larger and more roomy than the old one and arranged for convenience.

Every governmental regulation will be strictly adhered to. Not alone life preservers, but four buoys, two life rafts and two life boats will be carried on each trip, and four life ropes are to be placed in convenient places about the boat. Mr. Fritzson says he would not feel safe without proper equipment, and passengers can feel comparatively safe when the boat plows pitches or tosses through any sea that might come up on Pokegama.

The Fritzson property is one of the few spots at the lake. And we truly none will say bought but what the now beautiful ravine could be created into a veritable paradise were Nature assisted in its remodeling and development. It should be an ideal picnic ground, and Mr. Fritzson can expect his summer resort to not alone be a stamping ground for local parties, but also for large delegations of humanity who wish to get away from the "wild woods" of the larger cities.

Gov. Johnson Coming.

Governor John A. Johnson will speak at Ruth's Hall on Thursday, Nov. 1st, between the hours of 11 and 12. He will arrive here on the 10:55 train and leave here on the 12:28 train for some station south of here. On the afternoon of the 1st he will return home by the "limited" bound for Duluth. The governor is a gifted orator and will undoubtedly make a good impression.

DIED IN PASTURE

Martin Adler Found Dead Sunday Morning
 —Had Been Missing for Week—
 —Had Been Drinking Heavily,

Sunday morning while out in the pasture just east of the Lubrecht house north of town, John Junner happened onto the dead body of Martin Adler. Mr. Junner lost no time in notifying others of his gruesome discovery and the news of the fate of Adler, who had been missing for a whole week, was soon heralded about town.

The body was taken to the gymnasium room in the town hall, and there the coroner decided that his death was due to acute alcoholism and exposure. The man had been drinking heavily for some time prior to his disappearance and it was thought that possibly he had gone out into the country to "sober up." However, some concern was felt as to his whereabouts and searching parties were about to be organized. Martin was indeed a character about town. He came here about fifteen years ago and worked at different jobs. For the past two years he had dealt in old rags, iron, copper, etc., and had made considerable money, but prosperity was not for him; it eventually proved his undoing and hastened him to an early and fearful death. He was kind-hearted and the soul of honor in all his business dealings, and he earned the name of one but Martin.

Little is known of Adler's early life, excepting that he was born about 32 years ago and raised as a boy black and "newsy" in St. Paul. His mother and father died here, the latter passing away a couple of years ago. Only one sister survives him, and she is the wife of a preacher in Springfield, Ill. A brother is confined in the hospital at Fergus Falls.

The funeral services were held in the gymnasium in the town hall Monday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. J. J. Parsell. Aside from the pall-bearers only a few attended the services. The remains were consigned to the last long rest in Birchwood cemetery.

Killed at Hinckley.

Jos. Kruts was killed and John Verserk was injured at Hinckley last Saturday evening. Both were members of the extra gang working on the N. P., and were preparing to leave on a hand car for their homes at Baroum. It was quite dark and they were not aware of the train which was backing down the track.

Fred Spearing, foreman of the gang, shouted for them to look out and that jumped onto the hand car and ran the same quite a distance down the track before he was overtaken by the backing train and forced to jump.

The men were apparently confused instead of getting out of danger when they stepped right in the way of the cars.

Krofta was thrown under the cars and dragged some distance. Verserk was, fortunately, in such a position as to be only knocked to one side and clear of the wheels. The hand car was demolished.

A son of the dead man was drowned in Mission creek last spring.

A Close Call.

Sunday afternoon Andrew Johnson, the 12-year old son of John Johnson, residing at West Rock, had the palm of his right hand badly lacerated by the accidental discharge of an old muzzle loading shot gun. The lad was cleaning the gun when the accident occurred.

The charge severed the palmar artery and the boy would have bled to death had it not been for the presence of mind of those about him. A piece of suspender was wound round the wrist and this served to prevent the flow of blood until medical attendance arrived. The wound was ugly one but unless tetanus sets in nothing serious will result.

THESE AMENDMENTS.

Samples of the state and county ballots are now appearing in the different official papers throughout the state. The ballot containing the proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on by the people should receive the attention of every voter.

The first is an amendment purposing to benefit more especially the country districts, inasmuch as it would assist in the work of building good highways. Should this amendment carry the legislature could use its discretion in increasing the state road tax to one-fourth of a mill; whereas now it is limited to one-twentieth of a mill. It would also be left to the legislature whether or not there should be a state highway commission and whether the members should serve with or without pay. We do not see any reason why any tax-payer, who wishes to take a stand for securing state aid in the building of good roads, should not vote for the first amendment.

The second amendment also has many good features, but is not of vital import as the first and third on the ballot. It relates to the authorizing of an income tax, an inheritance tax, and a regressive tax on mortgages held by non-residents who are now exempt. It would at the same time repeal the gross earnings tax and empower the legislature to create a new one. "Let well enough alone," would be a good motto to adhere to in this matter of this proposed amendment; and we do not advise any voter to favor it.

No voter in the state who believes in a square deal should pass up the third proposal to be voted, to help support the upholders of our state's foundation. The farmers and market gardeners are the ones whom we support in this question of fairness, and unless we do make an effort in favor of them we will find that a great mistake has been made. The third proposed amendment effectively asserts that any person may sell or peddle the products of the farm or garden occupied or cultivated by him without obtaining a license therefor. The amendment if carried will be added to Article I of the Constitution, which is known as the Bill of Rights, and will, if adopted, be Section 18 of said article. The only change thereby effected would be to enable farmers or gardeners to sell the products of their farms or gardens, which they occupy or cultivate, within any city or village in the state by peddling the same from house to house without securing a peddler's license. We conclude from the present reading of the law that only those in the mercantile business can dispose of products from the garden and farm. And this is a correct interpretation. It is not on the square. First, we advertise to secure settlers to come and man this section of the country and then we tax them to sell their produce—such are the conditions of the present law. It is not as it should be, and the third and last amendment on the state ballot should receive the support of every fair minded voter in the state. Do not oppose the measure by neglecting to vote at all, but exercise your rights and duties of citizenship and at the same time take a fall out of the monopoly method as upheld by law as it now stands. Give the farmer a chance to peddle his produce from door to door. He can't under the present statute law.

Can you win? You realize that to win in anything these days requires strength, will power and determination. A man with a weak heart with disordered digestive organs is not in shape for a day's work or a day's play. Now can you expect to keep up the body and brain with strength building blood. Digests what you eat, relieves indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach pain, griping of the heart and constipation. Sold at Breckenridge's Pharmacy.

Nineteen years ago last Sunday the river was frozen over excepting a small place between the bridges where a flock of wild ducks were "sporting," says W. H. Russell. That was probably during a severe siege of Squaw Winter for Mr. Russell says that after a while the ice cleared away and the weather was very warm for that time of the year up to Xmas time. We don't quite remember the weather conditions of those pioneer days but we do know that had such freezing weather prevailed last Sunday there would have been many fields of tubers spoiled in this locality. Other late pickings or diggings would also have suffered Indiana Summer is due.

Through the efforts of Supt. Peter Arneson, the people of Pine City are to be afforded the opportunity of seeing the very best reproductions of the masterpieces of art of the different countries and periods. This meritorious exhibition of pictures will be held in this village for the purpose of raising funds for the purchase of pictures for the walls of the public schools. The exhibition will be held some time during the week of Nov. 12, possibly on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 16 and 17. An admission fee of 10 cents has been decided upon and none should fail to visit the exhibition. Watch for further announcements in these columns.

While hunting ducks at Pokagona last Sunday "Butch" Hoefer made a hole of various dimensions right in the middle of the lake. He was standing in the rear of a launch which Jos. Hurley was endeavoring to start. Jos. gave the wheel a tremendous whirl, the ducks dived the water into a swirl of beautiful bubbles, the boat made a lunge forward and "Butch" made his descent for deep water pearls. He had no more than made a surface impression, however, when Otto Kowalewski, who is always O. K., grabbed a watch chain which was dangling in the air, and as the chain wouldn't let go of the diver's clothing, the boy was saved, though "Butch" didn't get any pearls. Hoefer had a close call, and was glad—after pinching himself—to find that he was still among the live ones.

Eddy to Speak Friday.

Hon. Frank M. Eddy, ex-Congressman, orator, editor, wit, "sage of Sauck Center," and one of the handsomest (5) men in the United States, will address the people of Pine City and vicinity, on state issues at Rath's hall, next Friday evening, and, weather permitting, the hall will be crammed full.

The honorable Eddy has spoken at this place before, and is known as a "whirlpool" when he gets to going. There is no subject that he can not dwell upon for the intelligence and interest of his auditors, and he is right at home when he in the thick of political battle, relating and explaining why republicanism and its principles appeal to the majority of our commonwealth.

A male quartette will furnish the music for the occasion, and if the meeting next Friday night falls in any way we shall blame it onto inclement weather.

Voters: Turn out and get acquainted with a few political issues of the day. Bring your wives and sweethearts. They will tell you how to vote. Above all things don't miss the treat.

THE GREGORY DINNER

By MARJORIE BENTON COOKE

"Don't forget the Gregory dinner to-night, dear!" Mrs. Walton called after her husband, as he stepped into the rumbut.

"No," he answered, absently, as the new check rain. "I may be late."

"The devil, Walton, the president of our company, is to be in town to-day."

"Oh, dear! Do get rid of him somehow, for the Gregory's are so punctual!"

"Do my best. Good-by."

"Good-bye."

Mrs. Walton hurriedly attended to her household affairs, and went off to the club to play golf. At five o'clock, when she returned, with just time enough to dress, she was met by the maid, who said:

"Walton telephoned out, ma'am, a hour ago, for ye to come out to the club for dinner with him an' Mither Ashton."

Mrs. Walton put down her curling iron, despaired over every feature.

"Oh, the wretched! she cried, 'he's forgotten all about the Gregory's.' She fled to the telephone.

"Tell me now, Hollis, is this the Country club?" is Mr. Walton there? Well, and a caddy out with this message. Tell Mr. Walton that he's forgotten our dinner engagement, and that he must excuse himself to Ashton and me at once. Did you get that?" it's most important All right, good-by."

"Now, Maggie," she said to the maid, "when Mr. Walton comes to tell him to hurry just as fast he can, and I'll have him beat it maybe he goes there. He ought to be beaten." Then she stepped into the rumbut and departed.

An hour later a station hack dashed up to the Walton's at a break neck

"Well!" He Snarled.

pace, and the head of the house, hot flushed and irate, leaped out.

"What's the trouble?" he bellowed, as he reached his chair.

"How long has Mrs. Walton been gone?"

"About an hour, son. An' she left without ye wuz to hurry wif all yer might and main, she should be after us, but I haven't the ghost of an idea where she is."

"She never told me all-at-all, son?"

"Oh, well, it must be the Papers. Come to think of it, she did say the Papers—Papers—" he said, getting into the track, "you've got about two minutes to get me out of this."

Then he gave himself up to utter and soul satisfying disinterior. This social life—he was going to cut it out. No telling how Ashton would take being handed over to some strange girl, but although he had been very absent about it at the time on earth Louise didn't mention these things—they swung up to the Papers at a clattering gait and ran up to the door.

"Has Mrs. Walton arrived yet?" he asked.

"Mrs. Walton? She's not here, sir."

"Not dining here?"

"Why, no, sir. Mr. and Mrs. Page are dining in town."

"Try Bolton's," cried Walton, without a moment's hesitation.

The boy dashed off to the other end of town and up to the Bolton's.

"Has Mrs. Walton arrived yet?" he demanded.

"No, sir, she isn't here."

"Not dining?"

"No, sir. They're at dinner now. Will you come in, sir?"

"No thanks." "I'll try next door," he called back to the driver as he jumped the hedge.

He repeated the formula at the Suttons, with the same result, and his face had about reached the bursting point.

"Give it up," he groaned to the calman, who had decided, that he was drunk or insane, "take me home now, and—try the Gregory's."

Another John Gipton spirit, and they were there.

"Has Mrs. Walton arrived yet?" It was setting mechanical.

"By, yes sir," said the maid, "but she's gone."

"Gone? Gone where?"

The maid partly closed the door.

(Copyright, by Joseph H. Bowles)

"I don't know—she and Mrs. Gregory went somewhere to dinner."

"Don't you know where?"

"No, sir, she didn't say."

"The devil," said Walton.

The maid closed the door entirely, she didn't want to take any chances. Tired and hungry, Walton got into the cab again. His had to have dinner—he'd go back to the club and look up the neglected Ashton.

"Sister," he said, and they clattered on as before.

Half an hour later he arrived at the club and made his way anxiously through the dining-room looking for the erstwhile guest. In the most secluded part of the crowded room a pale-faced person had loud and hearty merriment. It got on Walton's nerves—all this gayety, and he glanced at them peevishly. Then he stopped and gasped. Mrs. Walton was in the midst of her best story, and Ashton and Mrs. Gregory, too, were laughing heartily. Walton strayed to the side of the table, like Lear about to break into the bairn's speech.

"Well!" he snorted.

Mrs. Walton looked up at him sharply.

"Oh, here you are, dear. Where have you been?"

"Where have I been?" Where have I been?"

"Say how—do—do to our guests, and join us. Have a drink?"

It was the last straw. He bowed to Mrs. Gregory and Ashton and sat down.

"Mr. Ashton," he said, "I have not dined."

"Mr. Ashton said something about your suddenly having remembered a dinner engagement, and badly disturbing him."

"Well, you know why I disturbed him. The boy said it was urgent."

"The boy—the boy," she said, vaguely. "I'm sorry, Mrs. Ashton, with all the talk, so I picked Mrs. Gregory up and came along to dad poor Mr. Ashton about to dine with the bachelors."

"And your wife was good enough to rescue me from that dire fate. Again, interrupted.

"I'm delighted to hear it," said Walton, grimly. "And now if you don't mind, I'll begin at the first. I'm starved and I feel that I've earned something as a reward."

"If you will, get Mrs. Walton to tell you a specific story about the man who couldn't find the dinner he was invited to, you'll be doubly rewarded."

"No doubt, Mrs. Walton is an excellent story teller," he responded, solemnly, and something in his tone sent Mrs. Walton into paroxysms of laughter.

"Well," said Mrs. Walton, "after their meal, they reported, 'Well!' he said, and all his retuning.

Mrs. Walton began to laugh.

"It may be very funny for you to send me chasing all over Elmwood looking for an imaginary dinner, but I'll tell you, it's not funny for me."

"Of course, you are, poor, old martyr! You see, I thought the poor, old martyr!"

"It's not funny for me, either," she said.

"It's not funny for me

Anæmia, whether it results from actual loss of blood, or from an obstruction to stomach trouble, or whatever its cause, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood. They do that one thing and they do it well.

"A good many Miss Jessie Flunk, of 126 East Mill street, Akron, Ohio, "I suffered from nervous indigestion and when I was eighteen years old I was reined in by a doctor who said I was unwell, nervous, couldn't eat or sleep, was short of breath after the least exertion and was subject to fainting fits at study. I had a doctor of course, but I might as well have taken so much water for all the good his medicine did me. Finally my vitality and strength were so reduced that I could not walk far without getting out of breath. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were the only salvation I found. I could not digest any solid food and for weeks I did not take any other nourishment than a cup of milk. I was very sick in bed. I tried of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I stopped all other medications and began to take the pills. Soon my improvement was remarkable. My strength began to return, my stomach gave me no trouble and just as soon as I began to take solid food I gained weight rapidly. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved my life. I am perfectly well, have regained my normal weight of 120 pounds and I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a wonderful medicine."

DEER FEED ON PEACHES.

Connecticut Farmers Restive Under Depredations.

The Connecticut farmer is sleeping snugly curled up in his best mortgage, along comes a mild-eyed and wild-toothed deer and drags from the sagging limbs him after him, of peasant's clothing. And when the carcass of a deer's stomach is not at hand, it is impossible to estimate the exact amount of damage per deer per peach per farmer, but the total is so much that the attorney general of Connecticut has got to get to work, whether or not peaches are crops, says the Boston Advertiser. He says they are, and the farmers are beginning to try to collect damages from the state, which protects the deer until 1919. An act has been introduced from considerations of peach advertising, the animus of the agitation undoubtedly is the restlessness of the Connecticut smooth bore, while rusts on the walls, waiting for a gawk of venereal disease, are now introduced into the legislature of Connecticut this fall bills looking toward the opening of the deer season before 1919. The Connecticut farmer (backed by those city folks who are making use of him to further their own ends) would rather get a few deer than to continue to get from the state in damages a better price than he could ever get for his peaches in the market.

A WOMAN'S KIDNEYS.

Women have much to do, so many pains, so many critical periods to go through, that it is important to keep the kidneys well, and avoid the various symptoms of kidney disease. Mrs. Charles E. Smith, of 22 Warren Street, R. I., says: "My kidneys were weak from childhood, and for eight or ten years past my back was very painful and I had many annoying symptoms. When I began taking Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills I weighed only 120. To-day I weigh 165, and am in better health than for years. Doan's Kidney Pills have been my only kidney medicine during four years past. They bring me out of every attack."

Sold in all dealers, 50 cents a box. Foster-Millburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Rulers Look for "Rainy Day."

All the European kings and queens have money invested in foreign countries. Every year the earl and duchess of Russia turns a large portion of their private savings over to British and French banks. King Leopold of Belgium has a universal reputation, and not an enviable one, as Leopold & Co., rubber merchants. He founded the Congo Free State and is one of the largest rubbers and ivory dealers in the world. He is also one of the cleverest of financiers, and knows his way about all the houses of Europe. King George of Greece speculates largely in agricultural products, follows carefully the fluctuations of the financial market, and is anxious in putting his money into good things. The sultan of Turkey declines to trust any Turkish bank with his savings, which are nearly all deposited in British banks.

Russia Today.

The Marquis de Custine once defined the Russian government as "an absolute monarchy tempered by despotism." The present situation is described by Captain Wallasewsky as "an anarchy, tempered by a state of siege."

Woman Bank President.

Mrs. Elizabeth Davison, of York Harbor, Me., on the death of her husband, assumed his duties of president of the National bank of the country.

SWINE BREEDING HOUSE.

Convenient Structure for Farm Where Several Brood Sows Are Kept.

On farms where several sows are kept, the pens are constantly kept and must be confined in small lots with separate pens a pigsty constructed as shown in the plan is a special use. In this house there are eight separate pens, each complete with a sleeping floor, trough and a lot 40 feet wide and as long as desired. The lots extend away from the pigsty so that they may be plowed and planted to forage crops if necessary, without disturbing the other lots.

The pigsty, says Farm and Home, is fitted with a pair of scales, a feed cooker and a feed mixing vat. The floor is of concrete and a screen door and wire-mesh feed can be stored. The feed bins open upon the second floor into larger bins where a quantity of meal feeds or grains may be kept. The sleeping platform consists simply of 2x4 scaffolding placed edgewise across the pens. The floor of the pens is within which clean straw bedding is placed. A pigsty similar to this is being used on many large farms and in several of the experimental farms of the country.

ORIGIN OF THOROUGHBRED.

Can Be Traced Back to Arabian, Turk or Barb Stock.

The American thoroughbred is descended from the English thoroughbred, and the latter is made up by stock originally from Arabian, Turk or Barb stock. The English stud book for thoroughbreds is not open to any horse that has an out-cross of common blood during the past hundred years or more, and it is closed if one having an out-cross 15 years back would be recorded. A reference to the lists of horses in English racing stables at the time the thoroughbred was brought to the front will show that the origin depended mainly upon the horses brought from the orient, and of these three general classes mentioned.

The Americans have greatly improved on the original thoroughbreds by selecting and to some extent by crossing with Arabian horses of the type, and especially the stallions imported late of years, for our breeders have formed the opinion that they can do little more for the breed by importing Arabian horses. By selection and breeding the thoroughbred is now so highly developed that the best horses in more foreign bloods, even of the Arabian breeds, there is danger of deteriorating it.

The American trotting horse was developed from the hamstrung, or rather a maimed form of the thoroughbred. Cross selection has made this horse the most important of the thoroughbreds, not only for races, but also for the saddle and carriage.

STOCK NOTES.

The more pigs a sow has, the more feed she needs.

Cows, pigs and the separator are a great trio.

Sold your last? Bought a good price this year, didn't it?

Pigs should be crowded so they will be fat and ready for market early.

Slopes of middling and skin milk are among the best foods for growing sows.

There is no philosophical reason why acidity of food should give any better returns than sweet foods.

There must be an unsound cow, sheep or hog sent to market from the farms of this country.

Feed the farm by the way of the good cow.

Cultivate your garden. Never let it stand still after washing until it smells as fresh as the morning dew.

Sows can be kept in smooth, slightly conditions, and yet fulfill all the requirements of abundant milk production.

Nature never designed that an animal should sink down to a skeleton, which is never done if a proper supply of food given.

BIG DEMAND FOR HORSES.

This country is having a big need to grow horses enough for the home market. Few horses are being exported.

This is a good time for farmers to raise a few.

THE BROOD SOW.

Selecting a brood sow, be sure that she is straight and heavy in the limb, short in face and nose, heavy in jaw, with good heart and keen measurement.

When to Select Brood Sow.

Never make your selection for a brood sow until a reasonable age has developed the good and bad qualities that are sure to come out.

FEEDING AND SELLING MULES.

How They Should Be Dressed With to Get the Best Results.

The southerner requires fat mules, the fatter the better. Flesh and animal's planter's eye. Sleek-skinned animals are also in demand. In the 14-hand mule to the 15.2-hand farm mule.

More miles are given the preference in the south, but north, east or west this is not so. The wise feeder will keep these facts in view when buying young or adult mules.

An animal should be avoided. Such are marmal feeders and seldom fatten. This is also true of colts. It is possible, says Orange Judd Farmer, to feed with reasonable certainty which colts will feed well and which will not. The colts that are to be sold should be fed on the same as ordinary care can be depended on, while the one that is sunfed, rough and thin is a doubtful feeder. Some of our feeders raise their own stock mules, buying colts and yearlings, then pasture them and fatten them, as cattle are raised.

Fattening usually begins in early fall and continues until the end of the year. Many carloads of two-year-olds go south.

The feeding is best done in steady plowing and planting to forage crops if possible. Corn is the principal fattening element, but bran and shelled oats act as a loosening agent and produce a good coat. Such feeds should be given in the proportion of one part bran or oats to three parts corn.

Soy beans are a promising meal feed, being the equal of limed meal. In rearing and fattening mules, the shearing should be attended to often. The mane falls over badly when allowed to grow, and the tail is apt to become a great nuisance.

When receiving a mule that has been shod, remove the shoes, especially those on the hind feet, the first thing. Mules will kick each other, but if there are no shoes, no harm is done.

Shoeing as may be possible, if only a time or two. Many consider a mule broken that has had only one or two lessons in the wagon or plow. Mules should be kept, during the fattening period, confined to the stable. Good feed and a very liberal proportion of grain.

The above is the rule to follow.

HORSE KICKING IN STALL.

Device by Which He May Be Rendered Harmless.

The kicking horse is not only dangerous but destructive, but the way to control him is a perplexing problem sometimes. A South Dakota correspondent of the Prairie Farmer suggests a device for controlling such a mal.

The horse kicks with only one foot placed a strong sinewline about him and at B put in a strong ring. Fasten a strong foot strap below the fetlock joint C on the foot with which he kicks. Then run a rope from ring C through ring B to a ring fastened to the opposite front foot at D. When he kicks he will jerk this front foot under him. If he kicks again, the device will run up the other hind foot through the ring B, down through ring D and fasten on the other hind foot.

It is a simple device, but it works.

MEADOW LAWN.

S. Smith and N. J. Edridge drove down from Sandstone Saturday evening, returning Monday morning.

Mrs. Clara Dil went to Alden, Tuesday noon, where she was called by the serious illness of her sister.

Twin Prices are Fixed.

The prices of binder twine at the state prison will be the same for next year that they were the past season. Warden Henry Wolfer and the state board of control have agreed upon the rates as provided by law.

The prices will be: Standard, 500 feet to the pound, 81 cents per pound; size, 500 feet to the pound, 81 cents; standard and manila mixed, 500 feet to the pound 94 cents; pure Manila, 600 feet to the pound, 104 cents per pound.

A great many applications are being made for blanks on which to make out orders by clubs of farmers. The prices being named the orders may now be filed for delivery next season. The estimated output will be 13,500,000 pounds for the coming season. That is not expected to be enough to supply the demand of the farmers of the state—Stillwater Gazette.
