RED WING EXHIBITS

When You Go to the State Fair Do Not Fail to See the Exhibit of Goodhue
 County—It's One of the Best

One of the features of the coming Minnesota State Fair, which opens September 2, will be the exhibit of the industries of Red Wing which will be made in the old Manufactures Building. The Red Wing products undertaken to fill the building with exhibits, showing processes of manufacturing in a dozen different industries. There will be machinery and workmen busy all the time during fair week and the exhibit will be one which will interest every visitor at the fair grounds. It is the idea that the Red Wing example will be followed by other manufacturing communities in the state in other years and that in this way the manufacturers of the state will be well advertised to the world.

POKEGAMA.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Anna Holstrom, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Holstrom, to W. F. Earhart, of Preston, Minn. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride-elect on the 28th of the present month.

Mrs. Fred. Norstrom has been on the sick list the past week, but is improving under the care of Mrs. Fritzen of the Sanatorium.

Roy Swanson, the eldest son of G. W. Swanson, celebrated his birthday by inviting a few of his friends to spend the afternoon with him last Sunday. They enjoyed themselves as only children can and after partaking of such a lunch as Mrs. Swanson is famous for, departed for their homes, wishing their little friend many happy returns of the day.

Miss Lydia Holstrom, who has been spending the week with Mrs. G. W. Swanson, returned to her home on Saturday.

Married at Brookpark.

A charming event occurred at the Miller residence, north of Brookpark last Wednesday afternoon, in the marriage of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Miss Clara, to Mr. Ralph E. Killmer. The day was a perfect one. The home had been fittingly decorated for the occasion. About 80 guests were present, serving being from out of town. The bride and groom were attended by three couples. Miss Hoagland presided at the instrument and rendered the wedding march. The service conducted was a beautiful and solemn one, Rev. Chas. W. Lawson, of Mora, a friend of the family, officiating. The presents received were very numerous and exceptionally fine. Following the ceremony a splendid wedding lunch was served. The young couple are receiving congratulations from a large circle of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Killmer left on the evening train for a wedding tour to Duluth and the lakes.

Birds on Small Wings.
In the attempt to discover some universal law of bird flight, scientists have been most concerned with a paradox, perhaps the most mysterious of the enigmas that the subject presents, says a writer in Everybody's Magazine. It is that in a number of birds and insects the size of the wings decreases in proportion to the increase in size of the body of the flying creature. The Australian crane, for instance, weighs over 300 times more than the sparrow, but in proportion has only one-seventh the wing area of the smaller bird. This curious fact is equally striking if we compare birds with insects. If the gnat were increased in size until it was as large as the Australian crane and if the wings of the insect were enlarged to maintain the proportion they now bear to its body, they would be about 150 times larger than the crane. It requires 1,000 square feet of wing surface per pound to fatten the bank-swallow but to sustain the tawny vulture, a monster bird in comparison, requires only 58 of a square foot of wing surface per pound of body. The albatross, weighing 15 pounds, has a spread of wing of 11 feet and 6 inches, while the trumpeter swan, weighing 25 pounds has a spread of wings of only eight feet. The stork weighs eight times more than the pigeon, but in proportion has only half as much wing surface.

Theodore Shantz reached up into some mysterious store of unknown information and, holding grabbed off a handful of wire or less, canined his hand, lay down a few qualities that a dog could have before a girl should think of marrying him, says Chicago News. Briefly, the description of the only man fitted for wedlock is this: He should be perfect mentally, morally and physically and also be some pumpkin financially. Mr. Shantz may be right, but as there are only a few that kind of man would first take ninal bargain counter, the great majority of the girls will have to accept him with a few flaws or go single. Of course, the girl who was waiting for that kind of man would first take the trouble to be perfect herself, but that might be a simple matter for her. Even then she might be happy with a man having imperfections provided she was too polite to notice them. The sensible girl figures it out that the best she can get is the average man and makes up her mind to be happy with him if he will fit her.

The Simple Life.

Wellington was one of the earliest exponents of the simple life. His sleeping chamber was plainness and simplicity itself. He always slept on a small camp-bed, was ever temperate and careless in his diet, and frequently stated that he believed his good health was due to the three years he spent under canvas in India, when he ate little but rice and drank scarcely any wine, says the New York Weekly. He continued to eat rice to the day of his death. He ate it with meat and almost with everything, and his intimate friends took care always to place a dish of rice on the table when he dined with them. He scarcely knew one wife from another, and could not discern bad butter from good. His indifference in the matter of food was proverbial, a contrast to the present day, when diet forms one of the principal subjects of conversation.

Shipping men of both sides of the Atlantic have been much gratified by the announcement that the treasury department is asking for bids for the derelict destroyer which was authorized by the latest congress. This vessel, which is to be stationed on the North Atlantic, will embody the latest improvements in craft of her kind, and will be capable of cruising for 20,000 miles without replenishing her bunkers. She will be furnished, the Solemn American, with powerful searchlights and a wireless telegraph equipment, the latter to enable her to receive and give information as to the location of derelicts.

A 14-foot residence lot in New York is described by a local paper as "tremendously large." That may be a good sized frontage for little old New York, but it would be cramped quarters in the west, where people really live.

An accomodating scientist has evolved a ticket which will enable every one to be his own brewer. But there is one serious trouble with this cabled bear. It has to be kept on ice, and few people are able to take their new wagon around with them.

Since it has been discovered that a lady barger was doing a very active line of business with the men who had been to her, the police will raid her house in Oklahoma city. She leaves a widow and adopted daughter.

LESLIE M. SHAW TALKS ON FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS.

Sources of the People's Wealth Safe—Former Secretary of Treasury, However, Intimates a Period of Depression Is at Hand.

New York, Aug. 15.—Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, authorized the following interview on the present financial and industrial conditions Sunday:

"Our farms produce more than $6,500,000,000 per annum, and the value of our crops for exportation is even greater than that. Our mines yield more than $16,000,000,000, and neither of these sources of wealth has been exhausted. The output of our factories, in other than food products, is $12,000,000,000, and no new factories have been built in recent years, except those of the railroads, which are all in successful operation. The pay rolls of our factories and railroads aggregate approximately $3,500,000,000, and the scale of wages has not been reduced.

CONNOR'S RAILWAY HIT.

Wisconsin Commission Scores Practices of Lieutenant Governor's Roads.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 17.—That the practices of the state railroad commission were "unlawful, inequitable and socially and economically parasitic" is the conclusion of a decision handed down by the railroad commission Friday on a complaint lodged against the road by Nicholas Strever.

In its decision, the commission held that the party to whom power was openly advocated, the party in power under promise to remove the protective tariff from industries, and the free coining of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 was championed by prominent members of both parties. The country might have derived one of these sources of alarm, but it could not survive all three.

Going Too Fast a Gait.

"At this time no one questions our financial system and the tariff will not be touched for at least 18 months."

"Second, in view of the general war we are going in most desirable and the checking process has probably begun. It will require a fair measure of confidence and courage to prevent undue retardment in our industries. Capital cannot be forced into activity, but it can be forced out of activity. I have never seen the time when universal sanity was more essential to our well-being."

VENEZUELA IS INVADED.

Force from British Guiana Crosses Boundary and Seizes Balata.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Aug. 19.—Much excitement has been caused here by the invasion of Venezuelan territory by Capt. Calder in the command of a small frontier force from British Guiana, and his seizure of a number of balloons, the greater of the balloons used for incendiary wires, etc.) which it is alleged had collected on British territory.

Capt. Calder's force went down the Barima river and crossed the boundary into Venezuelan territory. Where Capt. Calder found the balloonists, demanded that the Venezuelan commander surrender to him 4,000 pounds of balata. The commander gave up the gum. He has made a protest, however, to President Castro and the British consul here against the seizure of the balloons and the invasion of Venezuelan territory. Frenchmen are entertained of retaliation at headquarters. There has been much trouble over the halata trade for some time and the British officials have made strong attempts to prevent illicit trading in the gum.

MINNESOTA NEWS

Interesting Items Gathered in the Gopher State

Camping on the Fair Grounds.

Secretary O. N. Cosgrove, of the Minnesota State Fair, has laid plans for a most delightful camping ground at this year's state fair. It will be built on the handsome grounds—the forty acres purchased this spring northeast of the main part of the grounds. There are some very fine trees on this forty and the tents will be set up among the trees and in a location which will be especially convenient to the new dairy and poultry buildings and the agricultural machinery division of the fair. A tent can be rented for about $2 for the week, and a season ticket entitling the holder to remain on the grounds during the entire week may be purchased for $3. A family tenting in this way can either do its own cooking in camping out style or buy meals at the various refreshment stands on the grounds. The camp will be entirely sanitary, as there will be an abundant supply of pure water, and the new sewer system will reach the camp ground some time before the opening of the fair. This year's fair will be held in the week of September 2 to 7.

GREAT $25,000 POULTRY BUILDING.

The management of the Minnesota State Fair is just completing a fine new poultry building, which will be occupied during the coming fair, September 2 to 7. It is the largest poultry exhibition building in the world and is admirably adapted to the needs of the poultry exhibitors. The architects, Thorl, Allan & Fisher, have secured a maximum of light and air and floor space at a minimum of cost, the building being 137 feet long and costing $25,000.

Strike Broken.

Holiday workers employed at traps by sent to the governor's office from the iron range, and the constantly increasing number of men returning to work seems to indicate that the strike is broken. Its effect will be seen in the next balance sheet of the state, according to State Auditor S. G. Iverson. He expects that the receipts from royalties on the ore taken from the mines will be doubled to meet the demand owing to the fall of the mines for several weeks during the season, which is now too long at best in the open pit mines. It is feared that the mines will not be in full operation and turning out the average product for a few weeks, and as the royalties are on the tons of ore taken from the mines the receipts from this source undoubtedly will be somewhat less than the amount anticipated.

Good Receipts.

St. Paul.—The state board of control transmitted to State Auditor Iverson the report of the receipts at the various state institutions for the month of July, with checks for the amounts. The total receipts at all the institutions were $75,900.17, distributed as follows: Colver, Anoka, Aug. 12, Hastings asylum, $62,25; Forget Falls Hospital, $49,25; Rochester Hospital, $616.65; St. Peter hospital, $4,125.45; Faribault, $5,55; school for the feeble minded, Faribault, $1,475.85; state training school, Owatonna, $399; state training school, Mankato, $1,432; reformatory at St. Cloud, $27,745.55; prison at Stillwater, $6,271.65.

BRIEF NOTES.

St. Paul—William L. Quiller, 403 Dayton avenue, manager of the Grand Marble and Granite Works, 177 West Fourth street, fell in front of his place of business mortally wounded from a pistol bullet in his abdomen. He died at the city hospital an hour later.

St. Paul.—There is no intention on the part of the health department to make any changes in the rules to prevent the spread of smallpox or other infectious diseases. This means that the health departments will be required to act before and that the State street infirmary will continue to be used for such cases.

White Bear—Carl Gausewitz, 23 years old, son of the Rev. Carl Gausewitz, former pastor of St. John's German Evangelical church, Margaret and Hope streets, and now of Milwaukee, died while he was bathing at Mahtomedi. His death is thought to have been caused by heart trouble, resulting from a shock.

Ellsworth—John A. Valler, an alleged deserter from the Eleventh cavalry two years ago, was arrested here by Capt. Nathan Meadly of the military police at Fort Snelling. The reward of $50 offered for his capture will go to Mrs. Valler.

Shawnee—Herman Zerkle, one of the best known young farmers of this part of the country, died suddenly after two days sickness. He was literally choked to death by a malignant growth in his tonsils which caused the entire body to swell up. A few years ago he married the young widow of Gustav Klockehead. His wife and two children survive. Her first husband was struck and killed by lightning in the spring of 1903.

Washington—Elaine V. Hines is appointed postmistress at Roosevelt, Roseau county, Minn.

THE TWIN CITIES ARE STORM SWEEPED

SOME MAY DIE OF INJURIES RECEIVED AT THE NEAR BY SUMMER RESORTS.

Lake Independence, near Minneapolis, was Hurt Worst of All. Losses Will Amount too $100,000. The Stock Loss is Heavy.

Minneapolis, Aug. 20.—Yesterday's reports of the Sunday night storm show that the cyclone surrounding St. Paul and Minneapolis was probably even a more violent windstorm than were the cities, the summer colony at Lake Independence, in the northwest corner of Hennepin county, suffering the most. Several persons were injured, and Miss Minnie Olson was probably fatally hurt.

The storm slightly demolished a number of the light summer cottages and a number of barns in the vicinity. The home of A. A. McRae was in the path of the storm, and it was there that Miss Johnson, a servant of Mrs. McRae, was injured. She was hurled against the wall of the building and her spine broken. It is not believed she can recover.

No one was killed, though the storm struck and dealt well to them from its moccings and thrown to twenty feet onto the land. Many of the summer visitors sought shelter in cellars, while in a few instances thick clumps of trees protected the houses. The hotel and the summer home of Dr. J. C. Litzenberg of Minneapolis were practically uninjured and the hotel was at once turned into a hospital for the care of the injured.

Young Woman Hurt.

A cotillion given by a group of young women was disrupted by the storm and badly damaged. Miss Cora Frankenstein and the Misses Poehler of Minneapolis were injured there. Two young men named Taylor were badly cut and others suffered bruises.

Burt Thompson, the manager of the summer colony, was buried into the hills in question a clear title to their land, and the storm will force them to sell it again owing to the failure of the state to issue a title to the land.

A committee organized by a group of young women who were displaced by the storm and had damaged Miss Cora Frankenstein and the Misses Poehler of Minneapolis were injured there. Two young men named Taylor were badly cut and others suffered bruises.

Burt Thompson, the manager of the summer colony, was buried into the hills in question a clear title to their land, and the storm will force them to sell it again owing to the failure of the state to issue a title to the land.

Much damage was done to farms in the vicinity, and cattle were killed in numbers. The largest trees fell before the fury of the wind, many being broken and others uprooted by the wind. Telephone wires were down for a distance of six miles around the lake.

At Osseo village and northeast of there the farms were windswept and devastated and several persons more or less painfully injured. Houses and barns were unroofed and trees pulled up. Lightning struck and burned the barn of farmer named Stetter. It was reported that the crew were all badly damaged at first feared.

The list of those injured at Lake Independence includes: Miss Minnie Johnson, back broken, probably fatal; Miss Cora Frankenstein of the Hotel Williamson, Minneapolis, bruised, not dangerous; Dr. J. Hermann, 611 Sixth street, south, Minneapolis, leg sprained; Miss Ella Poehler, 222 Gleason avenue, south, Minneapolis, leg cut in neck; Miss Selma Poehler, 221 Girard avenue south, collar bone broken; Miss Brennan, 1419 Sixth street, north, Minneapolis, shoulder broken; fifteen others reported minor injuries.

Covers Wide Area.

Reports received yesterday from various points throughout Minnesota and Wisconsin showed that the storm spread over considerable territory and worked havoc among the buildings and crops wherever it hit. In some instances streams overflowed as a result of the deluge of rain and almost every point reported some damage by lightning or flood.

It appears that there was no loss of life, the several buildings were hit and others badly damaged. Stock suffered in some places, and some horses and cattle were killed by lightning or drowning.

The total amount of damage done to property is estimated to be $100,000, as crops were beaten to the earth in some localities and many buildings were damaged, but the loss in no one place appears to have exceeded $25,000 or $30,000.

Center City, Minn., Aug. 19.—This place was hit last evening by a wind storm which was threatening, and which was followed by a heavy rain and lightning and a downpour of rain. Aside from the blowing down of a few trees, no damage was done.

Osterville, Minn., Aug. 19.—A severe electrical storm passed over this section last night, causing great damage to the uncut grain. Some fields of oats are lodged completely. Telephone service with the outside world is entirely cut off.

Belle Plaine, Minn., Aug. 19.—John Erickson, a farmer living north of this place, was severely injured when lightning struck him in the head while he was working in the field. He was bathing at Mahtomedi, died while he was bathing at Mahtomedi.

St. Cloud—Two more holdups at housebreaking have been reported to the police. The residence of Charles Michaelson at East St. Cloud was entered by a man through a raised window. Mr. Michaelson was sleeping in his room when he was awakened by the intruder. The man dove through a first out of the window and escaped into the darkness.

Crookston—After piling a wagon load of hay against the front of the building to deaden the noise, robbers last night broke through the rear door of the Farmers State Bank at New London, hung open the safe and stole $3,000.

St. Paul—State immigration commissioners began to secure data about Minnesota to carry on advertising campaign.

Crookston—High water above the Red river in the Red river at this place has become a serious menace to the city.

Blue Earth, Minn., Aug. 19.—A heavy wind and rain storm here this morning did considerable damage to standing grain. It was the worst storm of the season.

These Indians appreciate a good story when they can understand it and laugh as heartily at a joke that comes their way as anybody. They feel the loss of kin and their sympathies are strong and true.

A particularly bitter illustration of the sympathetic nature of the Indian was brought about lately at Norwich, Conn., when they visited that town.

About Norwalk are many relics and mementoes of the war between the Indians under Uncas and the Mohegans under Uncas.

Uncas on the occasion mentioned gathered about the monument.

The Indians in their warpath trappings and with their ponies, and here Col. Cody, in the simple eloquence of his speech, told the story of Uncas and his people.

After Col. Cody had concluded his remarks the Indians, without previous instructions from "Buffalo Bill," at signals from Rocky Bear and Iron Tail, chanted the wild and weird dirge with which Indian honors the memory of their dead.

It was a moving spectacle and one that much impressed the hundreds of Norwalk citizens who saw it.

As the last wails of the dirge died away a veteran bugler from the Sixth United States cavalry sounded "taps" and the ceremony of respect was over.

FAIRBANK'S SUMMER HOME.

Wife of Vice President Seeks Rest In Old Farmhouse.

home of Vice President and Mrs. Fairbanks.

home of Milwaukee Vice President and Mrs. Fairbanks for the next three months.

Mrs. Fairbanks' stay, while it may be short, will be a welcome change for the many country clubs so easily reached by automobile, and with enthusiasm.

During the past year she may find it hard to escape entering into the summer social life when she will avoid it.

The vice president during the time he is at home, will put in his time lolling about the farm, which has an area of 140 acres.

The house itself is weatherbeaten and in need of paint. Large chestnut trees stand high above and the lower portion of it lies in the pasture except in the front.

There are several rooms in the house which have not been occupied for years, but have remained locked. Many of the rooms are scattered everywhere. Even the chinaware and glassware are many years old.

Most of the rooms in the house are small. There is no gas or electricity, the cooking is done in a large brick oven and in most of the rooms are old-fashioned fireplaces of long ago.

In the room reserved for the vice president there is a huge armchair stuffed with cotton and decorated in many colors. Over the big fireplace are two little closets which are to be found only in older New England homes.

ident's room are several old English prints representing scenes in the past of Jesus.

Among the mementoes mentioned are monuments over the graves of Miantonomo and Uncas, who were deadly enemies. Miantonomo was slain by a brother of Uncas after he had been captured by the latter, though the execution was pursuant to an order from white authority. Uncas was friendly to the white settlers.

NEW ALABAMA SENATOR.

Ex-Senator Johnston to Succeed Late E. W. Pettus.

Birmingham, Ala.—The successor to Senator E. W. Pettus, who died recently in Hot Springs, N. C., will be Frank G. Dyer, of F. Johnson of Birmingham.

At the state primaries last year candidates for the senatorial seats were voted on and Senator J. H. Bankhead received the highest vote. He was therefore chosen to fill the vacancy when the late Senator died.

Mr. Bankhead's stay, while it may be short, will be a welcome change for the many country clubs so easily reached by automobile, and with enthusiasm.

Miss McFadden had been rusticking with the family of Senator Clamp at their cottage on Lake Pokegama, since Saturday. The brilliant young lady considers the Senator one of her warmest friends, and enjoyed the outing at Pokegama. We are greatly indebted to Miss McFadden for a copy of her poems, "Rhymes of the Trail and Road."

J. F. Stone and wife came up from Rush City to spend a week or so at the Breckenridge cottage at St. Elmo, Pokegama lake. The Colonel went down Monday to assist in getting out the Post. He will return the latter part of the week. When Mr. Stone went home he took a large armful of dull with him, which he is going to make a barrel of dull pickles. When they are ready Col., we will expect an invitation down to sample them.

The base ball dance given by the Rock Lake Base Ball team at Erickson's hall, Rock Creek, last Saturday evening was a success, both socially and financially. Quite a large number from this place and Rush City were in attendance. The refreshment was furnished by the young ladies of Rock Creek and vicinity and was enjoyed by all. The base ball boys cleared about thirty-five dollars which will be used to procure uniforms for the team.

I had kidney complaint for years and the symptoms of the kidneys were always present. I slept poorly at night's rest. I tried a number of different remedies without effect, but when I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I got better from the first服. A few boxes completely rid me of all symptoms of any trouble. A WET TORPEDO

By CHESTER BARNETT

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The charged rails and oiled oak trees threw up quivering rays of heat to melt the iron-bound flames of the sun. Hains rode to John Hains that the two forces met and fought at the height of his heat. Perspiration streamed out of every pore of his face and his eyeballs burned. He shifted the kit of trackwalker's tools from the weary shoulder to the other and said, "I'll walk to the east shade of the rugged Arkansas oak trees to right and left. Though not a breath of air was stirring on the track, gentle breezes swayed the branches of the oaks and poplars and rustled the leaves of the hucklebush.

As he walked, he noted the barbed-wire "right-of-way" fence which lay in the shade and gazed on the weary Hains with placid contempt.

Hains looked up and down the track. He had walked steadily for 17 minutes without rest, and nature began to rebuke him in sight and sound.

But Number 4, a long-drawn point, and it was an even chance that the road master would be riding with the engineer. If so he would have a sharp weather eye on for trackwalkers. With a gentle Arkansas oath Hains urged onward.

It is to reward his virtues ten stout fathoms of steel were laid in the woods that grew up disheveled along the right of way; he saw a velocipede. Hains started, and joyous resolve lighted on his features. The speeder believed to the bridge which man who had been the track walker passed 20 telegraph pole high. What was to bind him from using the machine? He would ride the remaining two miles of his track and replace the speeder on his way back. With the joy of his soul suddenly rescued he moved the lock from the wheel.

The rails clattered off pleasantly under the sweep of the man's powerful arms and a grateful wind fanned his hot forehead. Four miles to the rear he could see the smoke of Number four's engine belching lazily on the air. "Black lake water is black," he said aloud. "Reckon I can make it to the cut 'fore she gets here."

He mounted and sped along swiftly, keeping a practiced eye out for loose bolts and low joints. He pulled out onto the long curve of track 29 which led to the bridge. He saw an object on the rail at the end of the bridge caught his eye. He grasped the bridle and hore down hard. But it was too late to stop. As the wheel of the speeder crossed the object there was a deafening report of a torpedo. A man jumped into the track in front of Haines.

"All in-here are you done here?" he demanded, furiously.

"What's a wrong with the track?" asked Hains, quickly reaching into his pocket for another torpedo to place on the rail.

"That's the ticket," said the other in a relieved tone. "I didn't have another torpedo, and we were very serious to have the engineer stop. Now take off your automobile and step this way," and to give his words weight he pointed a gun into Hains' stomach. The gun slowly obeyed as he glanced rapidly at the torpedo he had placed on the track.

"Hurry up, you loghead! I don't think you're trapping me. The train's comin' now and we're due down the track about a hundred yards. Besides we've got to decide whether to make you a cabin or let them feed you to the fishes in Black lake." Hains looked at him with hanging jaw as he lifted the speeder off the rails.

"Hold on!" commanded the other, suddenly. "On second thought I reckon I'll ask you to carry me down to the cabin. All aboard!" he remarked, facetiously, as he took his seat behind the reluctant Hains. They made the better speed by reason of the gun Hains felt pressed against the small of his back.

At the cut four other men stepped out from the underbrush and waited for him.

"Who set off the torpedo?" asked one who seemed to be leader.

"Oh, this gal o' mine did it accidentally," answered Hains' captor. "But he furnished another one in consideration of enjoying the benefits o' the gun. We'll do the rest, Jim."

The leader of Hains curiously.

"Gimme a gun and let me in on this," demanded the captive.

This raised a general laugh. But the leader called the men aside to a whispered consultation. Judgment passed, Hains was furnished with a gun. It became the less that he was filled with terror and shame.

"How much do you think we will make, fellow?" he asked, natively.

"Oh, about five thousand spicenommy," answered the man who had brought Hains into camp. "Lucky you, though, or the devil wouldn't stop that engineer. He goes through here like a bat out o' hell."

At mention of the torpedo Hains' jaw fell.

"Good Lordamighty!" he gasped. "What we were? I put down the wrong one. That's one o' me as fell in the water key yesterday."

"What?" came an enraged roar from the five.

"I didn't mean to do it, gentlemen, but I took it out the wrong pocket. See, it's just like this un," and he

WHEN THE CHILDREN COME

A Little Problem of Married Life

By William George Jordan,
Dolliestar, New York.

ARE PHYSICIANS' PRESCRIPTIONS NOSTRUMS?

To one not qualified, and few laymen are, to discriminate intelligently between physicians' prescriptions, proprietaries, nostrums, and nostrums, it may seem little short of a crime to hint even that physicians' prescriptions are in any manner related to nostrums; nevertheless, an impartial examination of all the facts in the case leads irresistibly to the conclusion that the medical preparation compounded and dispensed by a physician is, in the strict sense of the word, a nostrum, and that the average, ready-prepared proprietary remedy is superior to the average specially-prepared physician's prescription.

According to the Standard Dictionary, a nostrum is "a medicine the composition of which is kept a secret." Now, when a physician compounds and dispenses with his own hands a remedy for the treatment of a disease, is it not the authoritatively stated that probably 60 per cent of the physician's remedies—the names and quantities of the ingredients which constitute the remedy are not known to the patient? Hence, since its composition is kept a secret by the physician, the remedy or prescription is unquestionably, in the strict sense of the word, a nostrum.

But there is a resemblance that cannot be stifled that his comfort and ease might have at least standing-room on the floor of discussion; he hates the suburbs, he does not relish a long railroad ride night and morning, but at first he succumbs, buys a monthly ticket and is brandied as a communter.

When the children come these problems have to be met and worked out by both; neither can do all. The husband must make "allowances," maintain the home, provide for the wife's health and self-delight; he should not take himself and his grievances too seriously. He must take brawling views and throw away the microscope with which he is studying the wounds of his wife collected on his vanity. If he wishes to have a son, he may go along as it did old, old, despite his shadow the light of the new joy may cast, he should do more than his share toward keeping up all the traditions of the old sentiments. He should, if he possibly can, relieve the burden of housework and drudgery and add care of her invalids and dependents, so that the close lines of the old comradeship may never be broken. A rose or some trifling gift that means nothing, but the thought it message may bring instinctively the smile, the glow, the love-light in the eyes, which he misses, and in the returning he may find new happiness that will never come to his sulky demand as a right.

To the wife may come the need of care to prevent the child even temporarily eclipsing the husband. As she grows more and more under the inspiring dreams of the motherhood, she may fancy a 20-year's panacea of its growth and progress until she grows hungry for the old alness of importance; he misses the little tenderness, the graceful attentions, the novelties of sweethearts, the little nothing that make up the all of loving. And in his failure to get her may forget to give.

The mother, absorbed and concentrated in the loving care of her child, which has become so nearly all her world, may let motherhood eclipse the tender love of her husband. She may some day wake to realize on a strange sudden light that she is missing certain customary graceful attentions and caresses—the small coin of love—that the goodby kiss in the morning is forgotten or botched posturally, and finds many other little points of attention missing that a short time ago made bright spots of memory on the golden thread of her daily living.

If their past life together were not always roses and sunshine, they may have made up their little misunderstandings, smoothed over difficulties, and let new love and kindness take out the sting of a memory. But now

A belt most effective in its simplicity and altogether new is in all over English embroidery over a cleft blue silk. It fastens with a harness buckle in mother-of-pearl.—Dress

In the old village of Brookfield in Northamptonshire, England, is a wooden trumpet, five six inches in length, and having a bell-shaped end and two feet one inch in diameter. The trumpet is made of ten rings, which in turn are made of smaller parts. The use of this trumpet, which is of the kind are known to exist at the present day—was to magnify the voice of the leader in the choir and summon the people to the church service. At the same time in use of this extraordinary "magnifying trumpet," but the vicar of the church takes care of the ancient relic and is fond of showing it to all visitors.

Painfully Exact.
A New York woman tells of a prosaic circumstance, who married a widow of Greenwich possession, her own right the sum of $10,000. Shortly after the wedding a friend met the farmer, to whom he offered congratulations. "It's a good thing that means $10,000 to you," said the friend.
"Not much," said the farmer, "not quite $10,000."
"Why?" exclaimed the friend.
"I understand there was every cent of $10,000 in it for you,"
"I had to pay $2 for a marriage license," said Malachi.

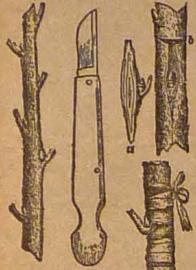

HORTICULTURE

BUDGING.

The Operations Which Are Necessary to Success.

Budding consists in taking a bud from one tree and inserting it under the bark of another. It has been used to take the place of grafting and is practiced in a commercial way in propagating peaches, plums, cherries, roses and certain varieties of ornamental trees and shrubs. It is essential that the bud and stock unite firmly. To have a successful budding, the cambial layer of the stock must be in a state of active division, indicated by the ready separation of the bark from the wood. The union of the two, the bud and the stock, takes place at the edges of the bark of the inserted bud; for this reason the bud should be inserted as soon as it is cut from the twig so as to avoid drying out. In climates having severe winters budding is most satisfactory when performed near the end of the growing season. The buds should be plump and mature when taken from the stock, or about one-half year's growth. The "bud stocks" may be cut the day the buds are to be inserted, trimmed and wrapped at once in a damp cloth to prevent drying on. Trimming consists in cutting off the leaves, saving a bit of the stem to use as a handle in inserting. In cutting the buds, use sharp knives; inserting them, use a sharp awl; and, below bud, cut upward just behind bud, removing but little of wood, coming out about one-fourth of an inch above bud. (See fig. a.)

To insert bud, make T-shaped incision in stock about two inches above ground. (See fig. b.) With the spurts of budding knife loosen the lips of bark in angle of the T cut and slip in the bud. (See fig. c.) The bud must be held firmly in place by a bandage wound above and below, being careful to leave the eye of the bud exposed. A small piece of wet baste, caning wick or waxed cloth may be used for tying. Raffia is usually employed. If the bud "takes," remove the bandage in about ten days by cutting loose on back side of stock to prevent the hindering of growth of bud. Cut out of stock a week or two cut off the stock just above bud to stimulate the growth of new bud.

Peaches are budded in the same year that the pits are planted. As soon as the seedlings are large enough to hold a bud they are ready for budding.

After budding, examine the stock frequently and remove any suckers that may start at base of seedling.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

Spray grapevines with Bordeaux to prevent rot, etc. We told you about Boils of the red rust in the black or blackberry patch. When it appears, at once dig out and burn the infected plant.

Remove the old raspberry canes as soon as they have fruited; also remove weak, superfluous, and ones that all seem to attack at once.

Continue to cultivate and hoe the strawberry plants set this spring.

When enough runners are secured in each row, cut off all others just if they were weeds.

Beware of eating blackberries to the sun and they are picked. Sunburn turns the black, shiny fruit to a rusty, dull, unpleasant-looking red. Get the berries into packing shed or crate as soon as possible, and then into a cool cellar until shipping time.

Extra fine grapes are secured by freezing, cut the cluster, and bunches or where bunches are too close together, and then encasing each remaining bunch in a paper bag. Cheap, ordinary paper bags, plugged or tied into place, will do. Bagged fruit escapes insect ravages, ripens better and earlier, and is choice in quality and finer in appearance.—Farm Journal.

Walnut Forests Not Common.

The walnut is nowhere a gregarious tree, but usually occurs in scattered groups or as isolated individuals among other cultivated trees. Within the limits of its range there are regions where it is almost unknown, while within a few miles it may be common, although conditions in both regions seem identical. In the river valleys of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Kentucky, it is found associated with the maples, hickories, oaks, hawthorn, and other hardwoods of the region, although not always intermingling closely with them. West of the Mississippi the walnut is confined to river valleys and moist situations. In this western region it is found associated with the coffee tree, green ash, hickory, basswood and white alder.

Pinching Back.

Pinching back the new growth is another method of obtaining a good deal of sap for the formation of fruit. About the time the peaches or other stone fruits are half formed, take a sharp pair of shears and clip off about half of this year's growth of wood with all parts of the leaf. This retards the growth of stem and leaf and the sap is forced into the development of fruit.

COOLING FRUITS.

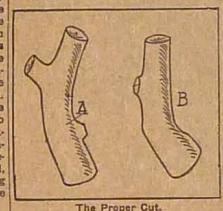

Find That They Keep Better in Ship-ment When So Treated.

Cooling summer fruits before shipment now seems likely to become the general practice for a good many forward-thinking agents have discovered that it is the proper paper. Within a few years all important fruit-shipping stations will probably be equipped with cooling apparatus and the car will be able to cool down the fruit within on their loads. Two or three years experience seems to show good profit in cooling the fruit before starting its journey in hot weather for the percentage of decay is largely reduced by this process. Experiments have been carried on in this country with varying success and before it is started, and with the interior of the car thoroughly cooled before it is loaded, show a marked lessening in the quantity of ice required for the car to complete the journey. At the same time, says Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., the fruit is much better condition than when placed on board when warm and then cooled after the car has been closed up, a condition that to a certain extent causes sweating of the fruit, inducing decay. If the fruit is thoroughly cooled and covered and ice can also be added, the result is reduced to almost a minimum and the cost of cooling is practically one-half.

HOW TO CUT WHEN PRUNING.
Don't Leave a Long Piece of Branch Sticking From Tree.

When a branch is cut off, the exposed wood has no power to heal itself as the wood cells are dead, but the cambium, which is a mass of thin-walled cells out from the cambium layer (the living layer between outer bark and wood) and covers the wound. The covering is a protection to the weather, fungi and insects. The greatest mistake in pruning is to cut the branch too far from its origin. If a large stub it left, it can never heal over, as no food passes up to this point.

The cut should be made as close as possible to trunk of trees, b, from which it originated, says Farm and Home. The wound at this point will be larger but will heal sooner; the food in passing down the cambium layer is constantly passing out and pushing out, callus over it. Large wounds require several years to heal even though the tree is well cared for. Small wounds may be covered with something which will shut out the rain and disease. Any good paint makes by far the best covering. Tar, wax, white-wash, etc., are sometimes used but are poor substitutes for paint. The picture shows a common way of cutting, which leaves a long stub, also the right way to cut close.

WHAT'S THE USE?

To Pour in Coffee When It Acts as a Vicious Enemy.

Fathers have found without feed for many days at a time but no one can go without coffee. "For a long time I had been sleeping well, often lying awake for two or three hours during the night but now I sleep sound every night and wake up refreshed and vigorous," says a Calif. woman.

"This is because I began to drink coffee. I used to drink coffee but I finally cut it out and began using Postum. Twice since then I have drunk coffee and both times I passed a sleepless night and so I am doubly convinced coffee caused the trouble and Postum removed it."

"My brother was in the habit of drinking coffee three times a day. He was troubled with sour stomach and I would often notice him getting soda from the can to relieve the distress in his stomach; lately hardly a day passed without a dose of soda for relief."

"Finally he tried a cup of Postum and liked it so well he gave up coffee and since then has been drinking Postum in its place and says he has not once been troubled with sour stomach."

Even after this lady's experience with coffee her brother did not suspect for a time that coffee was causing his sour stomach, but easily proved it.

Coffee is not suspected in thousands of cases just like that but it's easily proved. A tea day's trial works wonders. "There's a reason."

Pineapple for Consumption.

There is no case of indigestion, no matter how severe, so easily obviated as that will not be speedily relieved by the use of Kotol. The main factor in curing the stomach of any disorder is rest, and the only way to get rest is to let it digest the food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We recommend Kotol as the best medicine for indigestion and dyspepsia, as possible by the use of a Little Kidoo For Indigestion and Dyspepsia which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Breckenridge's Pharmacy.

Don't accept a cough cure that you may be told is just as good as Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup, because it is not. There is a marked difference. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts gently upon the bowels and clears the throat system of cough and cold. It removes all irritants from the throat and relieves irritation. Sold at Breckenridge's Pharmacy.

"We never repent of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States. This rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We recommend Kotol as the best medicine for indigestion and dyspepsia, as possible by the use of a Little Kidoo For Indigestion and Dyspepsia which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. John Riles, prominent dealer of Vilmington, has for long been selling DeWitt's Kidney and Liver Pill, about a year, and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. There are dozen people here who have used them and they give perfect satisfaction in every case. I have used them myself with fine results. Sold at Breckenridge's Pharmacy.
