THE COMING COUNTY FAIR

Gives Promise of Eclipsing All Previous Records—Many Attractions Added to the Program—You Will Miss it if You Fail to Attend the County Fair.

The Pine County Agricultural Society will hold its twentieth annual Fair at the fair grounds on the north side of the river a week from next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 25, 26 and 27.

This promises to be one of the best fairs ever held in northern Minnesota, and the management is leaving no stones unturned to make the Pine County Fair this year a record breaker. The race track and buildings have been put in first-class order for the coming exhibition. The premium list, which is published on the eighth page of this issue, will be found to have increased the premiums one-half in the horse and stock divisions, and a noticeable increase in several other divisions. The fair management intend to make it an object for exhibitors to bring their exhibits to the Pine County Fair.

The school children are asked to note particularly the Literary division of the premium list. The school board has agreed to give the children of the schools Friday afternoon off, and the fair management will admit all children of the county free of charge on that day, when accompanied by their teachers.

Exhibitors are requested by the society to have their exhibits in place as early as possible Wednesday, so that everything will be in running order when the gates are opened on Thursday. Attention of those having exhibits is especially called to the above, as no exhibits will be received after Wednesday noon, so bring in your cattle, horses, and farm produce early, so that you will be sure of getting it listed.

Besides the buildings on the fair grounds, the management has secured a large tent, which involves ample room for the exhibits, and being what you have that will show the wonderful advantages of Pine County. Those who visited the state fair have some idea of what Pine County can raise, but the state fair exhibit will not be a drop in the bucket to what will be seen in Pine City on September 25, 26 and 27.

The fair management has given out the following list of entertainments for the benefit of those who come to see the big event and many more pleasures that Pine County's real estate can raise.

THURSDAY.
A trotting race, ten for all, best 2 out of 3 heats. Winner, $20; second, $10.
Baiting race, from for all, best 2 out of 3, $15, $10 and $5.
Thursday is Farmers' Equity day, and there will be a number of speakers from that association present who will speak to the farmers

DEATH'S HARVEST

Oliver Wilcox, One of the Oldest Settlers of Pine County, Passes Away—John V. Tranka Dies at Beroun.

On Wednesday afternoon, at about six o'clock, after an illness of about six weeks, occurred the death of one of Pine City's oldest residents—one who was here when Pine City was a prosperous lumbering town, and who has seen it develop into one of the best agricultural centers north of St. Paul.

Oliver Wilcox was born in Erie county, New York, Jan. 7th, 1825, where he remained until 1857. Just before leaving his home in the east he was married to Miss Louisa Glover, who came with him to Minnesota in 1857, and settled at Sunrise. He came to Pine City in 1871. Four children were born to them, but only one is now living—Robert, who was elected probate judge three years ago. Mr. Wilcox leaves besides a loving wife and son, two brothers and three sisters. The brothers are John D., of this place, and Charles, of Sunrise, the sisters are Mrs. Sam Starkweather and Mrs. Soel Collins, of Sunrise, and Mrs. Frank Palmer, of Harris.

"Uncle Oliver," as he was familiarly called, has been failing for the past couple of years, but was only confined to his room for about six weeks. He and his estimable wife celebrated their golden wedding on the 11th day of last May.

Mr. Wilcox served in the war of the rebellion, enlisting from Sunrise at the call of his country. He was a kind and loving husband and an indulgent father, and his sad loss will be deeply felt not only by the immediate family, but by the entire community.

The funeral will be held from his late residence at 10:30 o'clock to-day, Mrs. Matthews conducting the services. The remains will be taken to Sunrise for interment.

The PIONEER extends its sympathy to the bereaved family.

At his home near Beroun occurred the death of John V. Tranka on Monday morning, Sept. 16. Mr. Tranka fell Sunday morning and received internal injuries of which he died. He was 69 years of age, and leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters to mourn his loss.

The funeral was held from the Catholic church at Beroun, Wednesday forenoon, Fr. Hovorka, of St. Paul, conducting the services. The singing by the Beroun choir was worthy of especial mention, it being of a high order. Father Hovorka is a brother of Fr. Hovorka, of the Beroun schools. Interment was made in the Beroun cemetery.

The PIONEER extends its sympathy to the bereaved ones.

HOPE FOR THE FARMERS

The American Society of Equity Insures Fair Prices for Farm Products at all Seasons of the Year.

We are testing our plan of controlled marketing by the actual shipment of potatoes to Chicago, Duluth and the Iron Range.

After a recent visit to headquarters at Indianapolis, and to our Equity Exchange in Chicago, followed by shipments there and to Duluth, I want to say to Minnesota farmers that they have started on the road to a greater prosperity! Under the American Society of Equity's plan, and in no other way, can the power of organized greed be abolished in some places and made amenable to our laws in all places.

United and co-operating with each other, first in town, or Local Unions, then in counties and states on the lines of the special products you are most interested in, you can secure that which you wanted alone but could not get, viz: a certain and steady market, with the price commensurate with your investment, your labor, cost of employes, and with the prices of manufactured articles that you have to buy. Those articles are priced to you and are about the same cost everywhere, because the makers are organized and agreed on that. Similarly, you may be agreed that the prices of various products shall be uniform and made profitable for the beautiful year as well as the lean one.

The plan of marketing may be agreed upon also, and most important of all, the distribution of the products from one state to another shall be controlled intelligently instead of ignorantly, with immense loss! All that is needed is an interchange of information between state officials and a concert of action in marketing. Today consumers of potatoes in central North Dakota pay $1 per bushel and producers in Minnesota a net in the S. of E., are selling them for 35 cents! Farmers should not be such silly sufferers. They should be marketing their produce more intelligently and profitably, at the same time reducing the cost to their fellow-men in North Dakota. How long is this situation to continue? So long as the farmer begrudges $2—paid to the A. S. of E. and a cent a bushel to market under its direction, and stays with the dumping farmers, and they pay ten men in their own community, each $1,000 each year and the kings $10,000 each to build warehouses and market their potatoes!

When this is done away with, Missouri apples will not rot in the orchard because the price is too low, and pick and northern people go without that precious, healthful food because they could not pay $4 per barrel, as was the case in the last crop. Agriculture will not be exalted, and farmers will be the laughing stock of fat office men, until business sense and business principles are used in co-operation for marketing the products of the farm, garden and orchard. What is being accomplished with potatoes, tobacco, peanutes and beans, can be accomplished with barley this season, and a beginning made on wheat also.

Gen'lman, your heads are worth too much to use simply as hat racks. Bring your honest good will to our meetings and let us use our brains together to advance the science and business of agriculture and elevate the one largest class in the United States, who, as producers of all the foodstuffs, and as buyers and users of manufactured products, constitute about one-half the total population. Every statesman and every merchant should be, and will be, favoring our promotion when undertaken. Railway officials and stockholders may see their gain and the end of crop shortage by our demand for transportation capacity during the entire year, as there is one crop per year and it takes a year to eat it up, and the marketing should be in the same gradual way.

The local union is the unit and center of all power. If its members will provide themselves with storage for the saleable surplus and not dump the crops in the local market but sell ten or fifteen per cent per month through A. S. of E. Exchange, they can get good prices for good crops in any year, have a continuous income and have to ask credit of no man.—R. H. ALDRICH, State Secretary.

Mr. Ogen is a brother of Mike Ogen, who resides on the Brunsvick road.

Historic Pageants.

Last year the town of Warwick, England, celebrated outdoors some of the most interesting events in its history by a pageant, in which hundreds of persons assumed the character and in appropriate costumes, performed the parts of historic personages. This year a similar pageant took place at Oxford, and more lately there was another at Romney, Mark Twain, who was one of the spectators of the Oxford pageant, remarked that America, which provides so many fine sights, had never furnished anything to equal that. The length and richness of European history of course offer attractions for such a pageant which could not be found in like abundance and not in such variety in America. Take, for example, the case of Romney—a town so small that comparatively few Americans know anything about it; yet its name was conferred upon it by the Romans, and its actual history goes back a thousand years. It was said that William Rufus was shot by a bolt from a crossbow, while hunting deer in the New forest, and his body removed in the rade cart of a charcoal burner, ignorant of the dead man's identity. In the pageant a lineal descendant of the charcoal burner acted the part of his ancestor, and his other part was taken by a lineal descendant of Walter Tyrrell, who is supposed to have shot the king. But, remarks the Yankee Companion, if such length of history as this is lacking to American cities and towns, there is nevertheless no dearth of interesting event and stirring episode which might well be produced in outdoor pageants, designed, as those in England have been, to give to the local history, and produced by the cordial cooperation of rich and poor, high and low, without thought of money-making. It is a matter of regret among many students of social development that in a paper read in its early days was one of the greatest of moral and educational forces, has completely failed to maintain its power. Might not the historical pageant be made to do at least a part of this neglected work?

Zoology's New Service.

Instead of going to geology and physical geography to throw light on zoology, Dr. Scharrf of Dublin has reversed the process. In a paper read to the zoologists in Boston he proceeded from the general principle that the distribution of animals now living on the earth tells the story of the formation and changes of continents. The fact that certain species are common to widely separated regions, such as Japan and the United States, points to a time when Asia was connected with North America by a land bridge near Bering Strait. It is furthermore probable that the widely differing species of eastern and western America prove that these regions were once separated by water. This theory is a striking example of the constructive imagination in science. Moreover, it is opposed to the hypothesis of Darwin and Wallace, who held that the animals of the world had an accidental origin. Dr. Scharrf's theory really takes us no farther back, says the New York Post, than Darwin did to the origin of species and the beginnings of life in the great process of evolution. Men of science are therefore to be congratulated, and with Dubof's hymn repeat their ignorance, ignoramus.

Perhaps one of the oddest suits piling from the anguish of a crushed heart is one brought by a jilted young man for damages in St. Louis, not against the sickle fair one, but against a railroad company. The employee of the company, who had been roughly treated on an excursion, and his sweetheart who was along, resented his lack of bravery in not resenting this treatment by dissolving their engagement. But he has managed deftly to convey a delicate rebuke to the fair hero-worshiper by suing the damages of her loss at only $200.

Dr. Charles McCutcheon of Tacoma has long felt that the woods of the Puget sound district are too silent and need the joyous songs of birds to enhance their beauty. A year ago he bought a number of skylarks in England and liberated them in Washington. They have thrived and multiplied, and to the pleasure of everyone, and now he is going to make a similar experiment with other kinds of birds. It is a good work and one which deserves to be crowned with success.

The curious assertion is made by a London correspondent of a New York paper that as King Edward's young wife, his Teutonic accent grows more guttural, and it has become difficult for those who see him only occasionally to understand his speech. The king's father was a German prince and it is a matter of course that he should be so familiar with the German language as with the English, but it would seem that after a life spent in England his speech would be free from a foreign accent.

H. H. ROGERS IS IN GRIP OF PARALYSIS

STANDARD OIL AND COPPER MAG. NATE HAS SUFFERED SEVERE STROKE.

Due to Business Worry—His Retirement from Active Life Problem—Relative Reveals His Condition in Boston Law Court.

New York, Sept. 17.—Information came from a sound source Monday that H. H. Rogers has suffered a stroke of paralysis. The president of the Amalgamated Copper company has been reported "ill" for about a fortnight, following his recent return from Europe, where he went some months ago to his health. But despite the trip abroad and the temporary retirement from all business affairs, the Rockefeller chieftain grew worse, an illness which culminated in the stroke of helplessness. It is said that the manate has been generally incommunicado for a fortnight, only his relatives and intimate friends being permitted to his bedside. One of these in a Boston court Monday afternoon confirmed the above and gave details of the financier's breakdown.

The recent order to close the Montana mines of the Amalgamated Copper company is supposed to have been given by William G. Rockefeller, who will take the position formerly occupied by Rogers as the field general of the Standard Oil party.

Will Retire Anyway. Even should Rogers recover, it is believed that he will not return to his place in the directorates of the various corporations with which he has been identified. It develops that the sensational slumps in all of the securities controlled by the Standard Oil clique were due largely to the indoor knowledge of what had happened to Rogers. A few friends, knowing what had occurred, took advantage of their information to sell stocks. Amalgamated Copper in these two weeks dropped some 15 points, Anaconda ten, St. Paul eight and the rest of the Rockefeller properties proportionately. The decisions against the Standard Oil company and the failure of the Rockefeller to stem the tremendous slumps in the company are supposed to have been contributory causes to Rogers' condition.

Condition Revealed in Court.

Boston, Sept. 17.—Upon the evidence of members of the family, Henry H. Rogers and the family physician that Mr. Rogers suffered a stroke last July, and has since been unable to transact any business. Judge Hammond, in the supreme court Monday, announced that it would be cruel to compel his attendance in court, and dismissed a motion to that effect.

The condition of Mr. Rogers was disclosed in the course of a hearing on a motion to dismiss the family of attending the trial of a suit against him for $50,000,000 brought by C. M. Raymond, of Somerville, for alleged violation of certain royalties in connection with the production of petroleum.

The hearing began last week, with the testimony of Dr. Charles P. Pratt, of New York, who testified that Mr. Rogers had suffered from a stroke last July, and was unable to attend his business.

Has Been Ill Since July 22. In support of the claim that Mr. Rogers was too ill to appear, four witnesses were heard Monday. The first was Dr. B. B. Broughton, the son-in-law of Mr. Rogers. He testified that on July 22, when Mr. Rogers was taken ill in New York, his father-in-law had been unable to transact any business and had soon after that date Mr. Rogers told him that Broughton must pick up all his business and carry on the affairs to the best of his ability and knowledge and that he would not hold Mr. Broughton responsible for any mistakes. At this time, Mr. Broughton testified, the physicians had refused to allow Mr. Rogers to see any members of the family, not excepting his wife.

Face and Body Distorted. At present, he testified, Mr. Rogers' face is distorted on the right side, the left side of his body is out of its natural position and his speech is affected.

Henry H. Rogers, Jr., corroborated his brother-in-law in many respects. He said that there had been only a slight improvement in his father's condition since July 22, and that the only business he had done was to sign three blank checks and give a power of attorney to open a safe deposit box in New York.

Norman W. Nesbit, a New Bedford dentist testified that he had attended Mr. Rogers twice within the last six weeks and on both occasions he noticed that he had not changed and was very nervous.

The last witness was Dr. Pratt, who told the court that he would not state exactly what would be the witness' result of the attack of last July, nor to what it was due. He thought it might be apoplexy, or perhaps a clot on the brain or a slight paralytic stroke.

PEOPLE OF PARIS ENRAGED

SAVING OF SOLEILLANT FROM GUILLOTINE STIRS WRATH. Curious Demonstrations to Express Indignation of the Populace Are Led by Women.

Paris, Sept. 16.—The increasing indignation of the masses against the escape from the guillotine of Soleillant, known as the "monstrous villain and murderer," whose sentence to death for the atrocious murder of a 12-year-old girl was commuted last week by the traitor Fallieres. His imprisonment, was expressed Sunday in a series of the most curious public manifestations that have occurred in France since the revolution. The demonstration, despite the fact that several arrests were made, was almost entirely an orderly one. Many women participated. It was organized not so much against Soleillant, but to express the voice of the populace against the wave of unspeakable crimes committed on little girls which lately has increased to an alarming degree and which it is feared the commutation of the sentence of Soleillant will only temporarily check.

Several thousand persons were engaged in demonstrations at various points of the city, and especially large was the crowd in the Place St. Auguste near which lived Little Marie, the victim of Soleillant. The rage of the women of this district has been great since President Fallieres showed clemency to Soleillant. They assembled Sunday afternoon with their husbands and sympathizers and were augmented in numbers by a crowd of curious persons. Their orderly cries for justice were suddenly changed to cries of "Death to Soleillant" and "Down with Fallieres!" as the procession, led by a woman who carried a little girl on her shoulders with the purpose of indicating the object of the manifestation, moved to the Place de La Republique.

Soon the streets were choked by a vast mob, and the police reserves were called out to disperse it. The parade, however, assembled again, and several of the more violent demonstrators were arrested. Meantime other parades had been organized in different quarters of the city, one in the Place Vendome, at the ministry of justice. This also was led by a woman with a babe on her shoulders. The crowd shouted "Death to violators!" At nightfall this parade was dispersed by police, who feared that with darkness disorder would break out. Smaller processions traversed the grand boulevards of the city.

STUDENTS BEATEN BY TOUGHS.

Purdue University Boys Suffer at Hands of City Hoodlums.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 14.—In a riot between Purdue university students and city toughs here Friday, six students were seriously injured and 15 others were badly beaten.

Students were returning to the university from a dance in this city when they were attacked by a score of toughs. They were being badly beaten and the students ran to West Lafayette and gave the alarm. A large crowd of students and citizens responded and ran to the scene, where the six students were found unconscious. After a hot fight, during which students and toughs alike were badly beaten, five of the latter were arrested. The most seriously injured are John Miller and M. J. McChesney, of Charleston, W. Va., students.

Brownsville Affair Nearly Disrupts Convention.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Despite the efforts of some of the leaders to keep his discussions all matters political, the national negro Baptists' convention Monday, after a stormy session in the course of which President Officer Morris threatened to leave the chamber, hotly debated the Brownsville affair.

The committee on the state of the union had refused to eliminate from its report all reference to the question and had prepared resolutions on the subject which, it was learned, severely criticized President Roosevelt and strongly praised Senator Foraker for his stand here and taken. It was only through fear of disrupting the convention that the delegates, after supporting the purpose of the committee to submit the report, reconsidered and consented to a milder set of resolutions offered by the presiding officer.

The resolutions are as follows: "In common with all good citizens, we deplore what has come to be known as the Brownsville affair, and we trust that time will yet reveal the real responsibility for the crime. "The entire country is under a debt of gratitude to the Hon. J. B. Foraker and others who secured for the soldiers the right to be heard in their own defense."

ADMIRAL WALKER IS DEAD.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Aside from his generally distinguished service in the navy, Rear Admiral Walker, who died Monday at York Beach, Me., had had several important assignments, the most conspicuous of which was chairman of the isthmian canal commission, which office he held from 1892 to 1893.

MURDERED IN MEXICO.

George Rose, of Michigan, Slain by Bandits in Quanaquato.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 16.—A telegram received Sunday from Dwight Furness of Furnessville, Ind., who is in United States consular at Guanajuato, Mexico, tells of the murder there by Mexican bandits of George Rose, an American, and the injury to his wife.

The murdered man was a son of W. A. D. Rose, of Denton Harbor, Mich., and was 34 years old. He was graduated from the Michigan Agricultural college in 1896, and in 1900 was married to Miss Willing McGrath, of Salt Lake City.

Mr. Rose was connected with a Mexican mining and transportation company, of Guanajuato, Mex. In the capacity of a mining engineer. According to the telegram from Consul Furness Rose was shot by robbers. Whether he died instantly or lived some time after the attack is not stated. Mrs. Rose was also slain, but it is believed that she will recover.

S., Sept. 17.—Justice Longley, of the supreme court of Nova Scotia, Monday night delivered a decision in favor of the plaintiff in the case brought by the Dominion Iron and Steel company for the recovery of $15,000,000 damages for breach of contract in not supplying coal suitable for metallurgical purposes.

TWO FIVE DIE IN RAILWAY WRECK

Terrible Head-on Collision Occurs Near Canaan Station, Vt.

The Injured Number 27—Passenger Train on the Boston & Maine Crash Together—Confusion of Orders Blamed for the Disaster.

White River Junction, Vt., Sept. 16.—A fearful head-on collision between the south-bound Quebec express and a north-bound freight train on the Concord division of the Boston & Maine railroad occurred four miles north of Canaan Station early Sunday, due to a misunderstanding of the dispatcher's orders, and from a demolished passenger coach there were taken out 25 dead and dying and 27 other passengers, most of them seriously wounded. Nearly all those who were in the death car were returning from a fair at Sherbrooke, Quebec, 60 miles north.

The conductor of the freight train was given to understand that he had plenty of time to reach a siding by the night operator at Canaan Station, receiving according to the superintendent of the division, a copy of a telegraph order from the train dispatcher at Concord which confused the train number and 34.

The wreck occurred just after the express had rounded into a straight stretch of track, but owing to the early morning fog, neither engineer saw the other's headlight until it was too late.

Names of Identified Dead. Those identified up to six o'clock Sunday night were as follows: Timothy Shaughnessy, Gastle Bar, Quebec; Mrs. Shaughnessy; Miss Annie St. Pierre, Isle Verte, Quebec; Fred M. Phelps, Oxbell, Tex.; Mrs. A. E. White, Sherbrooke, Mass.; Mrs. F. C. Blake, South Corinth, Vt.; Mrs. Margaret Lary, Manchester, N. H.; Miss Barrett, Manchester, Mr. Philip Gagnon, Sherbrooke; Miss Amina Giron, Nashua; Mrs. Webster, a dress maker living in Massachusetts; J. H. C. Pongor, Somerville, Mass.; Infant child of Irving Gifford, Concord, N. H.; child of Irving Gifford, Concord, N. H.; Mrs. E. L. Briggs, West Canaan, N. H.; John J. Duncan, Bethel, Vt.

The freight train was on a straight piece of track about a mile in length, and the Quebec express had rounded the curve into this stretch when each engineer saw the headlights of the opposite train, burst out of the fog. Both set their brakes and then jumped, while the two great locomotives crashed into each other and locked in a firm embrace, rolling into the ditch.

Crowded Car Telescoped. The baggage car in the rear was hurled back into the passenger coach like a great ram, and tore it asunder from end to end, cutting out the fog. Both set their brakes and then jumped, while the two great locomotives crashed into each other and locked in a firm embrace, rolling into the ditch.

The baggage car in the rear was hurled back into the passenger coach like a great ram, and tore it asunder from end to end, cutting out the fog. Both set their brakes and then jumped, while the two great locomotives crashed into each other and locked in a firm embrace, rolling into the ditch.

Fortunately, with the engines off to one side, the wreckage did not take fire. The train hands, who were accompanied by the passenger from the sleeping car, groped their way among the ruins and made a heroic work of rescue. Wounds were hastily bound up and coats stanchured by strips of bedding from the sleepers. The little band worked bravely in the dawning light before the doctors arrived.

The neighborhood is a sparsely settled one, but the few farmers were aroused and lent every aid to the work of rescue. The same word had been dispatched to this place and to Concord and Hanover and within an hour a large force of physicians was on their way to the wreck.

Montreal Express Saved. The accident was not without its heroes and one of these was Frank Ryan, a brakeman on the express. Ryan was caught in the wreck and had an artery severed. He was unconscious for nearly 15 minutes and when he regained his senses his first thought was of the Montreal express, which he knew was thundering down the wreck, with no brakeman in the rear to wave a warning signal. In a few words Ryan told of the approaching danger and the Montreal express was stopped only a quarter of a mile from the rear of the wrecked train.

Farmer Finds Mother's Body. Among the West Canaan farmers who aided was Benjamin Briggs, who was one of the first at the scene, and two hours later he drew out the body of a woman who was killed by the face. Mr. Briggs looked into the features of his mother, and almost collapsed from grief. Mrs. Briggs had been visiting friends in North and was on her way to Boston.

Lawyer Takes Too Much Chloroform. Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 17.—Judge Terry M. Richardson was found dead in bed at his home at Luverne Monday, the result of an overdose of chloroform which he had taken for a headache. He had gone to Luverne to appear in a murder case. He was a prominent lawyer and an expert coal miner for the circuit bench of this state.

Brownsville Affair Nearly Disrupts Convention.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Despite the efforts of some of the leaders to keep his discussions all matters political, the national negro Baptists' convention Monday, after a stormy session in the course of which President Officer Morris threatened to leave the chamber, hotly debated the Brownsville affair.

The committee on the state of the union had refused to eliminate from its report all reference to the question and had prepared resolutions on the subject which, it was learned, severely criticized President Roosevelt and strongly praised Senator Foraker for his stand here and taken. It was only through fear of disrupting the convention that the delegates, after supporting the purpose of the committee to submit the report, reconsidered and consented to a milder set of resolutions offered by the presiding officer.

The resolutions are as follows: "In common with all good citizens, we deplore what has come to be known as the Brownsville affair, and we trust that time will yet reveal the real responsibility for the crime. "The entire country is under a debt of gratitude to the Hon. J. B. Foraker and others who secured for the soldiers the right to be heard in their own defense."

NIGHTS OF UNREST

No Sleep, No Rest, No peace for the Sufferer from Kidney Troubles. No peace for the kidney sufferer—Pain and distress from morn till night. Get up with a lame back. Twinges of backache bother you all day. Dull aching breaks your rest at night. Urinary disorders add to your misery.

Get at the cause—cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney pills will work the cure. They're for the kidneys only—L. H. Deantell, carpenter, employed at the Pillsbury Mill and at 905 Twenty-first Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., says: 'In the fall of 1899 after using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the drug store, I felt warranted in recommending this remedy to sufferers from kidney troubles and backache. I had kidney complaint for years and the irregularity of the kidney secretions often caused me to lose my night's rest. I tried a number of different remedies without effect, but when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I felt better from the beginning and a few boxes completely rid me of all symptoms of any trouble. This led me to give a testimonial endorsing Doan's Kidney Pills and I have recommending them ever since.' Per sale by all dealers. Those who participated in the memorial exercises on Sunday Sept. 1st, 1907, were thanked through the columns of the PROXER.—We were commented on through the columns of the Hinckley Enterprise of Sept. 7th. We are here with the people, we are here for the people and we was here before, some people came, and will we hope remain until some unforeseen calamity like that of the Hinckley fire of Sept. 1st, 1894, severs the connection.

Last Friday morning at about two o'clock, lightning struck the barn of Claude Thoms, about 5 miles northwest of this place, and totally destroyed the same, together with about eighty tons of hay, and his grain, he having just completed threshing, one horse, one hog and all his farm machinery.

Mr. Thoms carried insurance in the Nessel Co-operative Fire Insurance company, and Friday afternoon J. Seftins, president, Frank Stahnke, secretary, and Henry Dosey, treasurer.

HER SECOND LOVE

By Mary Wilson

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Howles.)

The house had been miserably dark and cold to me those Uncle Dennis died. The three little girls along to me in the most pitiful way, and my heart almost broke for them when the lawyer told me that they would have nothing in the world after everything was settled up. They came to me when the lawyer was gone, sweet little Mary, and Bea and Ben, the jolly twins. I couldn't tell them then, their grief was too new, and besides how could they understand? It was on the third day that a letter came from Charlie, and my heart lightened even before the envelope was opened. The letter was like all of his bright and cheery, only this, of course, was tinged with a little sadness on account of my recent bereavement. In the letter he urged a speedy marriage, and I was so sorry to be obliged to tell him that the children were left without a penny, and that I could not leave them. I felt sure of Charlie's sympathy, for Uncle Dennis had told me that they both. He had taken me, a little orphan girl, and cared for me as though I had been a daughter. And having known Charlie for years, I was cured for the boy a position that had been of great advantage to him. Of course I expected him to feel for the little ones of his friend. I had been writing Charlie often. I saw him as he walked quickly up to the door, and myself ran to let him in. How handsome he looked in the city clothes! He had a good head and safe as he kissed me. Then we went in the parlor, and all it happened. Even now, after so many years, I can not think of it quite correctly. He had a plan and at once unfolded it. The children could go to an asylum, and we could be married at once. When he had said this the room seemed to be whirling round with me. I pressed both my hands to my head before I could answer.

"Uncle Dennis died and put me in an asylum, Charlie. I cannot send the children to one. I will not."

Charlie laughed, his handsome eyes on my face.

"Then what are they to do?" he asked.

"They will go where I go!" I replied.

Again he laughed.

"Now, Alice, wouldn't we cut a pretty figure in a New York boarding house with three children?" he asked. "I can take care of them, really. They are older; I can't leave them, I am a good nurse; I can make enough money, and Margaret will live with them; she could not leave them any more than I can."

Charlie made a little gesture of impatience.

"Allie, all that is sheer nonsense. I don't want an old maid for my wife, and so do you think my mother would receive a girl who had been a common nurse?"

The pain in my heart had grown to a terrible agony, but all the time I felt the joy at the thought that I was not obliged to go to Charlie's cruel plans. I don't know just what I said, my head was so hot, and my hands were so cold, but I know he stood before me, his cruel, handsome face was all I could see, and I longed to go away from him.

"Choose between me and the children, Allie," he said, and for answer I took my pretty, diamond ring off and laid it on the table beside him, then, for fear he might know some thing of what it cost me, I raised my head and bravely left the room.

How I cried and sobbed when I knew he was gone! After that there wasn't much time for grieving over lost lovers. I know how impossible it would be to find work in our dear, sleepy little town, so we took the children, Margaret and I, and went to a larger, busier town. We rented rooms and before long I secured a position as nurse to Miss Ellington, a wealthy invalid.

So my new life began. I tried in every way to bridge the gap between the poor lady, and at last, from doing so much for her, I began to love her dearly. Then my work was light indeed. Many were the presents she sent the children, and had them sometimes to come for tea with her.

But in spite of it all, my life was not very bright, and I missed the gayety young people love. One evening, Dr. Murray, who was treating her, and with whom I had become good friends, came in with a great basket of roses.

"See, Miss Ellington, what I've brought you. Now, will you do something for me?"

"Tell me, I would be indeed heartily to refuse," she said, bending over the roses.

"Well, Patil is to sing to-night, and I wanted your permission to ask Miss Wilder to go with me to hear her. The words fairly took my breath away. I was so surprised that I failed to hear Miss Ellington reply, but in a moment Dr. Murray turned to me with his rare, sweet smile, and asked me to go with him.

After that I went out often, sometimes for a drive in the country, and the spring opened, when we always brought flowers to Miss Ellington, and to the children at home.

One day the doctor said to me: "Miss Ellington is much worse; be careful not to leave her alone; but don't let her know you are watching any closer than usual. I do not want to disturb her; there is no need, all her preparations are made; I myself witnessed her will a year ago, and no one was ever more fit to die. Every cent of her money is to go to her church, as she no doubt told you. So now the most we can do is brighten her last days, and I am glad you are here, for no one could care for her so tenderly."

"I love Miss Ellington very dearly," I said; "I can hardly bear to think of losing her." I added, realising something of what my loneliness would be when my friend and mistress was no more.

"I suppose," the doctor said, quietly, "that this is hardly the time or the place for love making; but I want to tell you, Allie, that I love you, and I want you to be my wife." I looked up wonderingly into his face. His kind eyes were smiling at me.

"Why, Dr. Murray, I never thought of such a thing as that."

"Then think about it now. I have thought of little else since the morning I first saw you. Do you think you could be happy with me?"

I remembered how his presence always reated and comforted me; how safe and happy I felt when he was near.

"You wouldn't like to marry any one else, would you?" he asked, before I could think of anything to say.

"No, indeed, I would not," I replied. "And you wouldn't like to have me marry some other girl, would you?" he went on, the smile deepening in his eyes. "I don't think I said anything, but I remember, he seemed quite satisfied, and then I thought of the children. 'I love you, Dr. Murray, but—' 'If you do, then you belong to me, so look me no bits,' my little girl. You must be very submissive now, and when your duties here are finished, will find a pretty home somewhere and arrange for the children. I hope they will love me. I think they will, when they come to live with me. And then I cried and told him 'Alice Wilder, the dear friend who was made life tolerable to me, so I was comforted.

When the sun rose a few mornings later, the doctor was no more. They sent for me, in a few days, to go to the quiet, lonely house, Sarah met me at the door, and cried softly as she showed me into the dim old parlor. Several gentlemen were in the room, and one of them came forward to welcome me. I never could remember just how it happened, but I was made to understand that Miss Ellington had changed her will, and that she had left everything to 'Alice Wilder, the dear friend who was made life tolerable to me, so I was comforted.

Then one day Charlie came. He kissed the children, and was so bright and merry that I was quite bold to see him, when the little ones were gone, he turned to me, his hand some face tender and smiling.

"Allie," he said, "I can't live without you; there's no use trying; haven't you missed me?"

"Only at first," I replied. "I have been too busy for a long time now. The door bell rang. 'Ah, there is Dr. Murray,' Charlie said, the happiest little introduction you, and I know you will be glad that I am to marry so noble a man." Dr. Murray came in then, and in his grave kindly way he talked with Charlie, while I sat quietly room, flaring the two men, and I wondered if I had really loved Charlie as the old days.

For the Hostess

Towel Shower a Practical and Acceptable Gift to Bride—Suggestion for Wooden Wedding Celebration.

A Towel Shower.

A towel shower for a recent bride was both practical and acceptable. There were 13 intimate friends, so they each contributed the price of a towel and the hostess purchased one dozen of the same pattern with the large paper-mache letters and cotton for marking.

On the afternoon for the "shower" all came with their thimbles and each girl embroidered a letter on a towel, so when refreshments were served 13 beautiful pieces of linen were placed before the bride.

Just a word as to the wearing qualities of these paper-mache letters, concerning which there seems to be a divided opinion. Personally I have found them most satisfactory having used a tablecloth and napkins for five years that are marked in this manner. If they are closely and carefully worked they will outlast the original material and that is all that is necessary.

The refreshments consisted of salmon salad, tomato canapés, tea, coffee and "Greek" bread, served on small tables on a vine-covered porch.

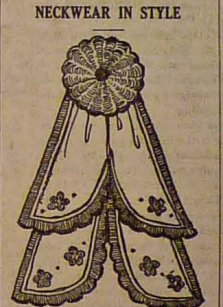

for days often, unbrained, if it is possible to braid in two plaits and having attempted with alcohol before even attempting to comb the least bit, the work will be accomplished in half the time.

For a Paper Bazar.

Now is the time when all church societies, clubs and organizations are on the qui vive for money making schemes. A coterie of girls, the eldest not yet 16, have conceived this unique plan. They will include holding a "paper bazar" at the home of one of the members early in November. There will be only articles of paper for sale, which will include shaving blades, safety razor holders in all colors, napkins, flower-pot holders, water-proof paper, drawer sachets, paper dolls, with quantities of ward-ropes, note books, almond and bonbon holders, lace paper dollies, etc. Subscriptions will be taken for magazines. There will be also lemonade straws which may be used for this. First of all, an assortment of postcards, Japanese novelties of paper and kindergarten materials for amusing children. The booths are to be decorated exclusively with paper and the attendants are to wear caps, aprons and collars of colored crepe tissue. The affair promises to be most successful.

Waists for Autumn.

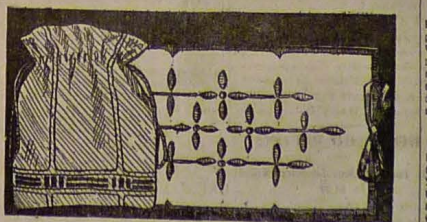

Quaint and novel ideas appear in Harper's Bazar in the separate waists for the autumn. Now that the system of lingerie blouses is almost over, and your thoughts are turning toward planning the autumn gowns, it is well to consider the claims of the washable wool waist. There are many materials which are made of paper and a large assortment of postcards, Japanese novelties of paper and kindergarten materials for amusing children. The booths are to be decorated exclusively with paper and the attendants are to wear caps, aprons and collars of colored crepe tissue. The affair promises to be most successful.

Heavy linen, heavily hand-embroidered, Ecorse with two tones of rose and dull blue.

Ebony-backed brushes may be cleaned by wiping the handles and back with a little boiled linseed oil which should then be carefully removed with a soft cloth. When there are silver initials on the back of an ebony brush, polish them with a little dampened whitening, taking care that none of it touches the ebony, as it is hard to remove from the grain of the wood.

Blotter for Desk

The desk blotter shown in this sketch was made of heavy gray linen, embroidered in two shades of green. The embroidery pattern of this blotter may also be drawn with a ruler and pencil. Draw three parallel lines, the middle one being a little longer than the other two and running up the center of the blotter. Then draw a crosswise line at the middle of the longest parallel line. The crosswise line will also bisect the other two. Then draw two vertical parallel lines, one on either side of the crosswise line already drawn, making two more divisions, making five in all, and in like manner make the divisions on the shorter parallel lines. Then make the round dots, using the end of a lead pencil as a guide, and then the rest of the design may be quite easily drawn on freehand, using the ruled lines as a guide.

The edge of the blotter was buttonholed in the green embroidery silk, and bows of green ribbon were tied at either end, this ribbon being laced through holes in the pad and the blotting paper, and served to hold the latter in place.

WHAT FATHER AND HARRY ACCOMPLISHED

AN ILLINOIS MAN WRITES REGARDING HIS SUCCESS IN WESTERN CANADA.

Change in Homestead Regulations Makes Entry Easily Accomplished.

"Nothing succeeds like success" is an old and true saying having many applications in Western Canada. The following letter is an illustration. The writer, Mr. Geris, left Chicago a short time ago and the success he has achieved may well be gained by anyone having kind energy by locating on the free homestead lands in Western Canada. A change recently made in the Canadian Land Regulations, known as the Homesteads Act, makes it possible for any member of a family to make entry for any other member of the family entitled to a homestead. For instance, a man may now make entry before the local agent for his father or for his brother or brother-in-law or for his son or sons, or for a sister or daughter who may be the head of the family having minor children depending upon her for support. A sister, daughter or mother are also entitled to make entry upon a homestead. The only fee required is $10.00 for each entry. A great saving in railway expenses is thus made.

Head what Mr. Geris has to say: "I left Chicago for Edmonton, Sask., Aug. 4, 1907.

Dear Sir:—

"Thinking a letter from us Northwest settlers might interest you, and I write you a few lines, and let you know we are progressing across and well pleased with our new home.

When I think of the many hard working, industrious men east of the Rocky Mountains who are struggling for a living and doing the strenuous, laying up practically nothing for old age and the thousands of acres of land here yet to be given over to the most capable of our farmers, the country will soon be covered with a net work of railroads and it will keep them busy hauling the output of grain. It is certainly encouraging to us settlers.

Two years ago, Harry, my son, and I as you know unloaded our car at Saskatoon and drove 130 miles to our claim. Last fall we had only 15 miles to haul our wheat to railroad and as you see, the prospects are we will have a railroad at our very door and a town nearby. This district can support a good town and it will be well patronized.

Harry arrived home at 12 p. m. last night after going fourteen miles to blacksmith to get his machinery and harness out. The shop was full of work and it was eight p. m. when Harry left for home and parties still in line to have work done. We will need stores nearer and good mechanics.

We are all enjoying the best of health which is a great blessing. When we left Chicago over a year ago last year we had only one year of soil health was so poor that I almost despaired of raising him, but he is certainly a hearty, healthy little fellow now. We have fresh air has done him worlds of good.

So to sum up the whole. Why should we not be glad we made the "break"? A good farm, stock raising, health and an independent life. What more can we expect?

Did we have to make an effort? You can bet we did and hustle, too. Should you run this way now you should get this fall, we should be pleased to let you shoot prairie chickens off our grain stocks.

Our stock and chickens wintered fine. I have a yearling heifer, who would hold her own in any 'fat stock show'. She has never had a drop of milk since she was two months old and has never had a mouthful of grain. A gentleman who saw her made the remark, 'The best heifer had ever seen here and it was a wonder that would hardly believe she had never had any grain.'

This is a great country for growing all kinds of vegetables and we are certainly enjoying our garden. The flavor of the green peas is especially fine. Last season Mrs. O. raised a lot of them, and we have enjoyed them up to the fresh crop.

I am sorry I did not have time this past season to attend to transplanting trees, but will keep the land I have prepared worked up for next season's planting. I received a number of small trees (ash and maple) from the Government Experimental Farm at Indian Head. I put them around the edge of the garden and they are doing fine. I also received quite a lot of other seeds, such as wheat, potatoes and rutabagas roots which will be planted soon.

It is useless for us to bother with garden flowers as wild ones grow in profusion. We are located near a fine creek, the water local agent for his farm for bathing and washing. We have a well of water near the house, 23 feet deep and 21 feet of water all the time, though it is harder than the creek water.

Land which could be bought for five dollars per acre three years ago is now worth $14 per acre and steadily advancing each year.

All kinds of improvements are going on. Steam plows and large threshing machines are already in use. There are being graded bridges being built across rivers and creeks. Last year I took my family, also wagon, across the Saskatchewan river in a row boat, saw my own boat and party safely across. has been let for $200.000 bridges at that place.

The C. N. R. have run their final survey from Estabrook to Calgary, running west about one mile north of us. The C. P. R. have run a survey, which runs northeast pass about 500 feet from the river. Both surveys are raising sixty to eighty bushels of wheat, thirty to forty bushels of oats, it certainly seems a pity the two cannot be brought together. But I will repeat, this country is only for the industrious and thrifty; also I might add, it requires some capital to start.

A man should have at least a team of three good horses; better to have mares so as to have some colts coming along each year. It is best to bring them with us as young horses are high. It should be able to purchase a plow, disc and drag, harrow, drill, binder and hay rake. Of course several taking up claims or buying land together can divide up the purchase of the above machinery and exchange work. This plan will work well for a few years or until crops will warrant each individual to purchase a full outfit.

We have 480 acres of good farm land as lies in the famous Cut Knife district. Every foot can be plowed. Last year our oats ran 60 bushels per acre. I sold them for 50¢ per bushel on the place.

The indications are for a good crop this year, though we were very late in season this year. The late spring. Last winter was the coldest known in this country by the oldest settlers (some who have been here 35 years). It was a comfortable house and plenty of firewood, which we hauled four miles, we passed the winter quite pleasantly. The air is clear and dry. Some of the days I come from work, I was surprised to find the thermometer registering 40° below zero. Though we never keep fire at night, we had nothing freeze in our cellar.

Our stock and chickens wintered fine. I have a yearling heifer, who

PRACTICAL BUDDING METHODS.

Same Advice Which May Be Kept for Next Year's Use.

There are numerous styles of budding, but only the one in the most common use will be described here. Budding is one of the most economical forms of artificial reproduction, and each year witnesses its more general use. Some nurserymen go so far as to use it as a substitute for all modes of grafting, while in the propagation of the dwarf pear, budding is economical in the amount of wood used from which to take buds. In this method, a single bud does the work of two or three or more upon the scion used in grafting. But while it is economical of wood, it is expensive in the use of manure, a necessity being required for each tree, while with the piece-root system of grafting, two, three or more stocks can be made from a single seedling.

The operation of budding is simple, and can be done with great speed by expert budders. The expense of the operation is, therefore, not more than

OIL STOVES IN HOTBEDS.

A Guggestion Which Will Prove Valuable Next Spring.

For years, says a writer in Rural New Yorker, I had a hotbed 15 or 18 feet long to start tomato plants. It was heated by two one-wick oil stoves, and was a perfect success. After I found how one can have an oil stove heated to grow pepper, tomato plants, egg plants and the like to perfection. The hotbed must be elevated on blocks of wood high enough so that a person can get under it to care for the lamps; it should be sheltered from the winds, but not near enough to any building to cause danger. If the hotbed should get on fire, the accompanying diagram represents the glass area. It is a false bottom made of sheet-iron and resting on iron rods run crossways of the hotbed. O is the true bottom, made of wood, and distance about six inches from the sheet iron bottom; D and E are small boxes, each big enough to hold a one-wick oil stove. A two-wick stove is better, but the hotbed is fitted with a door in which are bored a few holes to admit air. The door is placed on the sheet iron bottom to a depth of six inches, the warm air circulates between the wooden bottom and the sheet iron one, but no air from the stove ever reaches the interior of the hotbed proper. The woodwork at the under side of the hotbed should not be too tight; a few small cracks should be left, or there will be no circulation of air for the lamps, and they will smother. I once showed hotbeds made like this to an Englishman, the private gardener to a rich man. This gardener makes his hotbeds by the help of manure. I told him after I got the hang of my oil stove hotbeds I had had a failure. He said, "You are, then, ahead of me, for with all my care my manure beds are not always a success, and it is some work to make them."

TOMATO BLIGHT.

Is Fungus Growth That Begins Attack in the Seed Bed.

Tomato blight is due to a fungus, which attacks the plants for the most part in the seed bed. This being the case, there can be no remedy for the plant after it has been attacked. It is true, for the reason that the fungus grows on the inside of the plants and evidently enters only the rootlets of young plants. By sowing the seeds of a young plant with a microscope, the threads of the fungus may be seen clogging the cells where they interfere with the passage of food material. At the present time, then, we see no hope of ever being able to combat this blight successfully in the field. But there is a method of prevention by improving the sanitary condition of the seed beds. With this end in view, we believe it will pay to thoroughly clean and disinfect the frames or beds in which the seeds are planted. This may be done by washing or spraying all of the parts after the dirt and soil have been removed, with a strong solution of copper sulphate. Then fresh soil and manure should be procured, which should also be sterilized. This can be best done by steam. This may be done at small cost by fitting up a small system of two-inch iron pipes which are to be placed in the bottom of the bed made for the purpose. Three ten or 12 foot lengths of pipe will be ample, and small holes must be drilled in them to escape. The pipes are now placed parallel to each other and connected at both ends, so that they are about 18 inches apart. The apparatus may be connected to a traction engine or other available source of steam supply. Soil should be filled into the bed over the pipes to the depth of about one foot, then the surface covered with gummy smoke or some similar material. If steam is turned on for an hour, the low organisms will be killed, and plants which will be practically free from blight should be raised in soil which has been treated in this manner.—W. Paddock.

The Farmer's Vegetable Garden.

The farmer's vegetable garden is growing in popularity with the farmers, and their families have the greatest amount of comforts in their farm life. A half acre devoted to this work can be made a constant source of pleasure and profit. The vegetables in place, not only on account of the large amount of produce, but also on account of the large amount of information it will yield up relative to what treatment of the soil will give the best results. Such a garden should be very heavily manured, so that it will be always at its best for producing crops. We would put on manure both fall and spring, and see that the manure gets into the soil. Such a garden if properly worked can but be profitable and be a constant source of delight.

The experience of Capt. John L. Ely, of Co. "I contracted kidney trouble during the Civil War, and was one of the soldiers who finally developed into a chronic case. At one time I had to use a crutch and cane to get about. My back was lame and weak, and besides the aching, there was a distressing retention of the kidney secretions. I was in a bad way when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills in 1901, but the remedy cured me, and I have been well ever since."

"GONE TO THE DEVIL."

London Inn Responsible for Origin of Common Saying.

The old inns of England have been responsible for the origin of many common sayings. An instance of this is the proverbial phrase "He has gone to the devil." On Fleet street, London, near Temple Bar, was once a tavern which was known by the strictly old-fashioned name, "The Devil and Saint Dunstan." It was famous for its good dinners and excellent wines, and received a large patronage from the lawyers of Temple Bar. It was familiarly known as "The Devil," and when a lawyer left his office to go there, he usually left a card on his door, "Gone to the Devil." There were some who patronized the tavern with the neglect of their business, and the notice was so regularly exhibited on their doors that it finally came to be used to characterize the man who was losing his grip and going to destruction.—The Sunday Magazine.

MR. JOHNSON NOT TO BLAME.

Good Old Lady Understood How the Mistake Occurred.

There is a good old lady who cannot resist speaking well of all her acquaintances. On Thanksgiving day she told the colored man who did chores about the place that she had a chicken in the yard and help himself to a chicken. The man obeyed with alacrity and was most profuse in his thanks. There came a day or two later the lady's husband informed her that on Thanksgiving day neighbors had seen Mr. Johnson seize two choice hens from the lady's yard.

A Little Courtship Comedy.

A good-looking, well-to-do bachelor of Manchester was being teased by a young woman of his acquaintance for not being married. He said: "I'll marry the one of you whom on a secret vote you elect to be my wife." There were nine women in the company. Each one went into a corner and used great caution in preparing her ballot and disguised her handwriting. The result was that there were nine votes cast, each receiving one. The man remains a bachelor, the friendly lady is broken up, and the women, all mortal enemies, united in the one determination that they will not speak to the man again.—The Tatler.

The Truth.

Gobaa Golde descended painfully from his 90-hour power limousine. "I wish to purchase," he said, "an engagement ring." "Yes, sir," said the eager clerk. "We have just imported a superb ring, six-two ruby hearts surrounded—" "No," said the aged millionaire, in a distinguished voice; "no, that won't do. There is only one heart concerned in this affair. The girl is marrying me for my money."

FOUND OUT.

A Trained Nurse Made Discovery.

No one is in better position to know the value of food and drink than a trained nurse. Speaking of coffee, a nurse of Wilkes Barre, Pa., writes: "I used to drink strong coffee myself, and suffered greatly from headaches and indigestion. While on a visit to my brother I had a good chance to try Postum Food Coffee, for they drank it although in place of ordinary coffee. Two weeks after using Postum I found I was much benefited and finally my headaches disappeared and also the indigestion. "Naturally I have since used Postum among my patients, and have noticed a marked benefit where coffee has been left out and Postum used. "I observed a curious fact about Postum when used among mothers. It greatly helps the flow of milk in cases where coffee is inclined to dry it up, and where tea causes nervousness. "I find trouble in getting servants to make Postum properly. They most always serve it before it has been boiled long enough. It should be boiled 15 to 30 minutes after boiling begins and served with cream, when it is certainly a delicious beverage." Read "The Hogs to Wallville" in pks. "There's a Reason."

WHY HE WANTED LAW.

Man Had to Be Poured into Paths of Righteousness.

Congressman James E. Watson of the Sixth Indiana district told a story while in town recently about the operation of the pure food law and the reasons he wanted it. He expressed the theory that more people would be good if they had to be. "It was while we were wrestling with the pure food bill at Washington," he said, "that I got a letter from home, written by a man from whom I bought a large quantity of maple sirup. The man who bought five barrels of brown sugar at the opening of the maple molasses season. So I wrote him a note suggesting that advocacy of a pure food measure seemed odd from a man who bought five barrels of brown sugar before beginning the manufacture of his pure maple sirup. "Never feazed him. He turned my letter over and read on the back 'I know, but I want the law to make me do right.'—Indianapolis News."

THREE BOYS HAD ECZEMA.

Were Treated at Dispensary—Did Not Improve—Suffered Five Months—Perfect Cure by Cuticura.

"My three children had eczema for five months. A little sore would appear on the head and seemed very itchy. I used the best ointment I could get, but the baby had it about a week when the second boy took the disease and a few sores developed, then the third boy took it. For the first one month I took them to the N.—Dispensary, but they did not seem to improve. Then I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and in a few weeks they were all cured. When their heads were well you could see nothing of the sores. Mrs. Kate Keim, 513 West 29th St., New York, N. Y., Nov. 1, 6 and 7, 1906."

Disillusion.

The American contractor stood at the base of the great pyramid and looked at the venerable monument in disgust. "It is a big pile, all right," he said; "and it has stood for some months, but if a man in the United States should turn out a job of stone work like that the papers would roast him from Newboken to Hegewald." Turning away disappointed, he consoled himself by taking a ride on a camel, which animal he found fully up to all the descriptions he had read of it.

Disparity.

The two young women, who had not met for a long time, embraced each other with much fervor. "How are you, Kate?" "I am well, and have got married a rich widower. Is he much older than you?" "Well, there's considerable difference between our ages, Clara. In fact, he's a war veteran."

"Spanish war?"

"Oh, no; he wasn't in that."

"Civil war?"

"No—er—Mexican."

How to Him.

The leading lady of a road company, playing in one of the smaller cities in Ohio, concluded that she would avoid some of her less popular scenes. She accordingly rang the bell, and when the hall boy appeared said: "Bring me up a hot iron." In course of time the road manager handed, and when the lady answered his knock he said: "I wouldn't get it for you, lady."

"And why not?" she asked, mystified.

"The bartender said he didn't know how to mix it."

It is quite easy to perform our duties when they are pleasant and imply no self-sacrifice, the least of principles is to perform them with equal readiness when they are onerous and disagreeable.—Langford.

What the Post Says.

After their honeymoon at Niagara Falls they came back and settled on the old farm. "Gladness, Bill!" said Cynthia. "Why are you in such a bad humor?" "Making better is blamed hard work," growled Bill, snatching the heads from his brow. "Oh, cheer up, Bill. Don't the post say that it is 'here that makes the work go round?'" "Yes, but, look, it don't make the churn go round."
