PINE CITY VS. DULUTH.

The Debating Teams of the Duluth and Pine City High Schools to Meet Before the Holidays.

Prof. Olson informs us that he has completed arrangements with the debating team of the Duluth High school to enter into a joint debate with the team from the Webster School of this place.

The Professor says that the debating team has not been chosen as yet, but that there are five or six that are being tried and that the best will be chosen. John Hunt who was on the debating team last year will be one of the debators, but the other two are to be chosen.

The Duluth High school ranks second in the state and the professor thinks that the school in this place should make a good showing against them in a debate. The subject to be debated is: Resolved, "That the Federal Government Should Subsidize the Southern States for the Education of the Negro". The subject is a good one and should be well attended.

It has not as yet been decided which side of the question we shall debate against but it does not make much difference as a great many things can be said for and against the question. Watch these columns for further particulars.

The professor is also trying to arrange a debate between the team from this place and the Sandstone team, but as yet has not been able to get a favorable reply. It is to be hoped that the teams from the two best schools in the county will be able to come to an understanding so that the citizens of the town will have a chance to see which of the schools have the best debaters.

The debate last year between these two schools was very entertaining and instructive and brought the schools closer together than they have ever been before. A good friendly debate is a fine way for scholars to get acquainted with one another and is good practice for the debaters. Let us have a debate between these two schools by all means.

John Hoier and two sons, Clarence and Vene, came down from Sandstone Monday morning, and drove out to Meadow Lane to assist in the threshing of the grain on their farm at that place. The Pennsylvania threshing outfit did the work.

CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS

Sixteenth Conference of the Minnesota Board to be Held at Fergus Falls, November 9th to 12th.

The Sixteenth Minnesota State Conference of Charities and Corrections, to be held at Fergus Falls, Saturday to Tuesday, November 9, 10, 11 and 12, is attracting unusual attention. This is due partly to the fact that the State Association of County Commissioners is to hold its annual meeting at the same time and place.

The object of the Conference as set forth in its Rules is "to discuss the problem of charities and correction, to improve the methods of dealing with dependents and delinquents, and to disseminate information relating to these subjects."

It is really a practical school in these lines of work. It promotes economy in the expenditure of public money while increasing efficiency in the administration of jails, alm-houses, lock-ups, hospitals, asylums, etc., and at the same time undertakes to lessen the need of such institutions, by influencing home conditions and broadening the common school course. The conference is of special interest to County Commissioners, relief agents, managers of benevolent societies, county and city superintendents of schools, sheriffs, judges of probate, county physicians and all engaged or interested in charitable or correctional work. Among the subjects to be considered this year are: An Education Which Will Tend More to Lessen Pauperism and Crime, discussed at length by Educators and Charity Workers; The Duties of the Public to the Insane, (what duties as individuals do we owe to the insane); The Treatment of Inebriety, the Care of the Aged and Infirm; Relief Societies in the smaller cities. In the County Officials' Section, The Relation of the County Boards to the County Schools, and an extended consideration of Good Roads. All who attend will have the privileges of the conference. Mr. A. J. Eckstein, New Ulm, is President, Mr. F. A. Whittier, Red Wing, Vice President, and Miss Eleanor Hanson, St. Paul, Secretary.

Our Forest Reserves

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: "Mr Newlands, of Nevada, is neither Cuero nor Soares, but when he said in his Memphis speech that persons outside of Congress must bring influence to bear to protect our natural resources, he drove a nail. Congress is responsive rather than aggressive in legislating for the people."

Senator Newlands, by reason of his long and active service in the United States Senate, spoke whereof he knew. And it is this great truth that is responsible for the American Forestry Association. It has persistently and consistently advocated the conservation and preservation of the natural resources of the country, and it is the only organization of this character which is national in scope and action. From the beginning the Association has stood for practical results. The enactment, in 1891, of the law whereby the President of the United States was authorized to establish, by proclamation, National forest reserves on the public domain, was largely due to its efforts. These National Forests now constitute an area greater than France or Germany and equal to that of all the States north of North Carolina and east of Ohio.

Almost all of our National Forests are in the Far West, others are imperatively needed in the East, noted in the White and Southern Appalachian Mountains. There being no public lands in the East, these forests cannot be "proclaimed," they must be created by Congressional enactment. The association is bending its energies to secure such legislation.

INSURANCE BULLETIN

John A. Hartigan, State Insurance Commissioner, Gives Valuable Pointers on Insurance Companies

The New Jersey Fire Insurance Company, of Newark, N. J., has withdrawn from the State. Its capital is impaired but it seems probable that the assets are sufficient to take care of the outstanding policies.

The Union Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Portland, Maine, will withdraw from the State after December 31, 1907.

In an opinion rendered to the Insurance Department during September, the Attorney General holds: That the offering by life insurance companies to prospective policy holders of an option on the stock of the company is in violation of the new deposit law.

The State Insurance Department is preparing, and will soon issue, a pamphlet containing all laws applying to township mutual fire insurance companies.

The licenses of the Finnish Mutual Life Insurance Association, of the Equitable Accident Company, of Boston, Mass., have been cancelled for non-compliance with the new deposit law.

The State Fire Marshal is sending out a circular letter calling the attention of fire insurance companies to the fact that the law, as amended at the last session of the Legislature, relieves the fire companies from paying the expenses of investigations made by his office, and also a circular letter to municipal officers asking for reports of all fires.

H. O. Wood has been indicted by the Grand Jury of Freeborn County for soliciting insurance without a license. The Insurance Department will prosecute vigorously every case brought to its attention where either the agent or the company is not licensed to do business in the state.

The Norwich and London Accident Insurance Association has been licensed to do business in Minnesota.

Fire losses in the United States and Canada for the first eight months of 1907, were $155,965,650.00. This is almost fifty per cent greater than the average for the last twelve years, excluding conflagration losses.

The following resolution was adopted by the Insurance Commissioners of the United States at their annual convention in Richmond, September 17th to 19th:

"Whereas deceptive and fraudulent insurance methods and promotions designed to evade the law are constantly being originated and placed before the public in various States of the Union:

Resolved, that in order that the people may be warned and protected against such impositions, and also enlightened as to stock and other inducements offered with, but not germane to insurance, the commissioners of insurance of the United States hereby pledge themselves, so far as possible, to investigate all irregular and wildcat schemes which come to their notice, to exchange with each other reports of such investigations and to give the facts the widest possible publicity."

The State Insurance Department has just completed an examination of the Manufacturers and Traders Ins. Co. of Minneapolis. This is the company which reinsurance the business of the State Dwelling Mutual Fire and Tornado Ins. Co. of Austin, Minn. The condition of the company was, on August 31, 1907, as follows:

Total Assets . . . . .	$3,898.63
Total Liabilities . . . . .	2,223.17

Surplus . . . . . $1,665.46

Numerous inquiries are received concerning the Modern Protective Association of Sayre, Pa., the National Protective Legion, of Waverly, N. Y., and the Pennsylvania Life & Accident Association of Philadelphia. These concerns are not licensed to do business in Minnesota.

Children's Library and the Home.
With the increased interest in the problem of children's reading, there arises a doubt which cannot very easily be dispelled. Despite the fact that the public library, the public school and the state are concentrating their efforts on the subject in a most commendable manner, their aims and purposes are at best only half concealed; while the cultural value of reading for its sake is being entirely overlooked. We find the library doing school work and the teacher doing library work; and together it is looked upon as their requisite duty to accomplish an amount of training which should be relegated to the special province of the home. Let us not regard the matter in a sentimental fashion. The parent has a first indisputable right to mold the initial stages of childhood; and it is because the parent has, to a large extent, become callous to the situation that the library organization has been forced to step into the breach. In the school reading has become stereotyped; it is necessarily prescribed, declared Monroe J. Moses, in the Outlook. In the library it should remain unfettered, provided always that the open shelves are stocked logically and not in quantity. But, in order to reach the ends of personal influence, the library should have the cooperation of the home, which, unfortunately, it is not receiving.

New York city's board of education has ordered an investigation to determine whether or not it is advisable to return to the rule of corporal punishment. Since its abolition some time ago a majority of the principals report that they cannot maintain good order and discipline moral standards without such inadequate means. Many members of the board desire a return to the old system which would permit a boy to be whipped is a dangerous retrogression, but they were not strong enough to prevent the order to inquire into the matter. It might well be adopted the plan practiced by Judge Stubbs in the Indianapolis Juvenile court, says the Star of that city, and give the parent an opportunity to trouble his own offspring in the presence of the principal as an alternative to having the child dismissed from school. Most parents would probably prefer this method to a rule which would permit the teacher to do the whipping. We do some things in these days better than the fathers did, no doubt, but Solomon's wisdom has not all been proved up.

Cheapskates of Human Life.

The accompaniments of death are truly deadly. In a little less than three weeks, ending on August 21, the traffic lines of Greater New York killed 42 persons and injured 5,500, of whom 14 were maimed for life or otherwise seriously injured. Out of this total 465 persons were injured in collisions with vehicles, 145 in collisions with cars, 405 were struck by cars, 641 were injured in boarding cars and no less than 1,263 injured in alighting from cars. It does not appear that the number for this period is at all unusual, as it comes to light through the fact that an official record for the number of accidents was only begun early in August. The astounding disclosures of the perils of daily life in the metropolis should certainly lead to a still further improvement of "modern improvements."

During 1906, 211,304 men, whose employment is that of digging coal, were idle. The output, however, was 27,512,003 tons in excess of the production in 1905. The demand has largely increased since because of larger population and extended industrial centers for steam. There was a reduced delivery of coal here last year, one of the causes being that there was a short supply and a delay in getting it ordered. One evident lesson is that the coal miners should be kept busy all the time. It would mean a largely increased income for them and would insure a reasonably adequate supply for the consumer.

Banker Ingalls of Cincinnati foresees financial disaster growing out of the unusual extravagance of the people. There is no doubt about the extravagance, either. Looks at the thousands of reckless persons who insist on having a fresh egg for breakfast several times a week.

Though there are no statistics giving figures, it is quite evident that the negro population of New York city is growing rapidly. In eight blocks on the Upper West side of the city are 540 negro families; all of whom have come to the city within three years.

The new highway extension is to cost an average of $25,000 a mile. The Hoosiers have not learned the American art of saving that cost by capitalizing the expectation of future savings.

DAMAGE BY PRAIRIE FIRES

FARMS IN WESTERN MINNESOTA ARE LAID WASTE.

Boys Playing with Matches Causes the Trouble. Damages Estimated at $50,000.

Barnevile, Minn., Oct. 19.—The worst prairie fire in years is devastating the northeastern part of Wilkin County. It seems to be doing all efforts to claim the land. Large tracts of farms have been entirely wiped out, and there seems no question but that others will go. The damage done thus far is estimated at not less than $50,000.

The fire was started by a boy who was playing with matches on the farm of Charles Fundcock, and all the buildings on that place, including the house, barns, granaries and sheds were destroyed. The wind was light, and the people living in the path of the flames had ample chance to escape, no lives having been lost as far as is known.

The entire region is very dry, and the flames spread rapidly. Ten large haystacks containing between 800 and 1,000 bushels of hay were destroyed in an hour.

The old Lavally farm and the Evans place are in ruins, and the farmers throughout the region which is burning are working hard to check the flames from spreading to the country. The lack of water is the chief feature in favor of the farmers, as the absence of rain for days past has converted the prairies into huge tinder beds.

Considerable alarm was felt for the safety of the town of Wilkin on the Northern line, as it was directly in the path of the fire but the town escaped without damage though the country all about it was laid waste. No other places will be reached until the flames have traveled several miles and, provided that enough ground can be broken up to check the fire's progress.

OAKES FIRE SWEEPED.

Nineteen Concerns in the Busy Town are Entirely Wiped Out.

Oakes, N. D., Oct. 18.—Fighting against terrible odds in the shape of a heavy wind and the lack of water supply, the firemen and citizens of this town battled for hours to subdue a fire which threatened to wipe out the entire business section.

The blaze started in Jessen's mercantile store, spreading rapidly to the adjoining buildings and soon passed beyond control. The wind fanned the fire into a roaring river of flame which made a half block on Main street and then leaped across the street and destroyed another half block before it was possible to check its progress.

The citizens worked frantically to save the town, but it was not till several hours after the fire started that safety was assured.

The fire started at 1:30 in the morning, and on the rains were still burning. Nineteen concerns were burned out, and the total loss will not be less than $120,000, with an insurance no more than one-third.

The beast started in Jessen's mercantile store, spreading rapidly to the adjoining buildings and soon passed beyond control. # The School of Agriculture

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

The establishment of the Minnesota School of Agriculture at St. Anthony Park, midway between Minneapolis and St. Paul, in 1888 marked a departure from the established system. It was at once novel and interesting. The little home building, costing $17,000, with a capacity for fifty pupils, was not built without much hesitancy on the part of the regents. Many people looked upon it as a futile attempt to start the dry land of a few agricultural fanatics. The building was considered of ample size for office, library, class rooms, kitchen, dining room, and dormitory for principal, assistant principal, students, and assistant. Although it was well adapted to its purpose, furnishing the nucleus for what was destined to be the greatest school of practical agriculture in the world. Historically then, this building has great interest.

It is wished to epitomize the days in 1895. The wisdom of the change has been amply justified in the constant increase in attendance and the better spirit shown in the school by the commencing of the sexes.

From this humble beginning the school has grown to such an extent that last year its enrollment numbered 500—385 young men and 175 young women. It receives students from all over the world, and those they have finished the grades and given them a three years' course, October to March inclusive each year, the balance of the year being spent by the student in practical experience in the various fields of agriculture. It has never been questioned. It gives ample opportunity to put into practice what the lessons learned in the winter and test their value. It also gives the student a chance to earn during vacation, enough to pay his expenses during the school year.

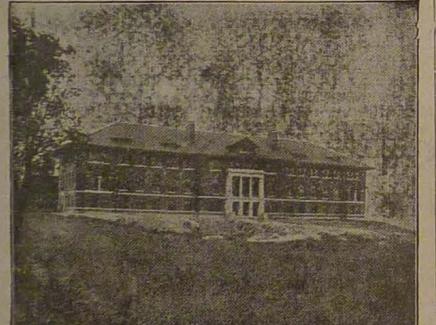

THE OLD HOME

growth of this splendid institution and show the abiding faith the people have in it, it could not be better done than in comparing the first building "The Old Home" with the magnificent new administration building just completed and equipped at a total cost in excess of $80,000.

The dreams of the most ardent enthusiasts in agricultural education are being realized and the farm boys and girls can find in this institution a place for training in their calling that is equal to that found in other departments of the university.

In the days of the origin of this school, there was no institution to which students could go for instruction in elementary agriculture. It's true that agricultural colleges had been in existence since 1863 but the farming community was deriving little benefit from them. The few graduates they turned out were professional men, seeking government or college positions, not thinking of returning to the farm. The establishment of the Minnesota School of Agriculture gave birth to a new idea in agricultural education. The regents of the state university, of which the school is a part, who focused this idea, undoubtedly believed higher and better than they knew. This idea was not the result of one man's thought nor the combined knowledge of a score of men. It was the result of a gradual, persistent growth, the unquenchable desire on the part of the farmers, business men, and others that the world not only educate their boys and girls in the so-called common branches but teach the solution of their difficulties as well.

The first school building was completed in the fall of 1888 and on October 22nd the doors were opened to the first young people from the country applied for admission and were received. The course of study was practical but much more limited than it is today. It met the requirements of that time but has been greatly enlarged and improved with later developments and demands. That the original curriculum was well thought out is evidenced by the fact that every branch taught then, is taught now in the same order and manner. After considerable agitation on the part of the public and deliberation on the part of the regents, girls were admitted on equal terms with the tendances, heat, light, room, laundry work, and three good meals a day. To give an idea of what the menu is, the following bill taken at random, is given:

Friday, November 23, 1906.
Breakfast—fakr'd barley, crackers, chipped beef and cream, bread, butter, steamed potatoes, coffee, tea.
Dinner—clam chowder, salt salmon in cream, green peas, Hubbard squash, pickled beets, bread, butter, potatoes, tea, milk, peach pie.
Supper—cold baked beans, brown bread, bacon, beans, bread, butter, tea, baked apples, milk, cake.
The cost of heat, light, laundry, board and room in the dormitories has never reached three dollars per week.

What the Boys and Girls Learn. Botany, the study of plant life, is one of the subjects given the first year, that the student may know how plants feed, grow, and reproduce themselves; and how to make use of them to make plants for his enjoyment. While the boys are engaged in blacksmithing, carpentry, military drill, and the study of general agricultural subjects, the girls are taking cooking, sewing, social culture and domestic science.

Who has not wished for the convenience and ability to weld a bolt during rush season when the binder was rendered useless by an accident? A trip to town may mean delay of hours when the remedy might have been applied in twenty minutes at home.

In addition to those named, which are given in the first few months of school, the year study English, physiology, study of breeds, laundry, natural science, dairy chemistry, dairy husbandry, fruit growing, farm accounts, stock judging, vegetable gardening, breeding animals, housekeeping, agriculture, animal husbandry, forestry, entomology, botany and zoology, poultry, handling grain and machinery, veterinary science, plant propagation, civics, dressing and cutting meats, feeding soils and animals, mineralogy, chemistry, chemistry, and domestic hygiene.

From a careful examination of the subjects it will be seen that each one has a special value to those engaged in agriculture.

"Art is the expression of one's joy in his work!" Play is labor, Work that has no joy is a drudgery. There is an absence of joy in all work that is not understood. To take the mystery out of farm life, unfold the secret of success, turn the face of the earth, bring the hand to the soil, see the creation of nature in her various forms is one of the chief factors in producing content in farm labor. The School of Agriculture does these things and this is the secret of its great success.

One cent of the great success of the school is due to the enthusiasm, intelligently, and joyously, with eyes trained to see, and minds able to direct the natural forces about them. No wonder then that farm life is robed of its drudgery. With a touch of the hand and a few words farming becomes a science, labor a joy, and the man who directs and performs it, the most contented and independent of men.

Of especial importance is the subject of dairying. This is a science that is proven of great value to the farmer who must kill and cure much of the meat used on the farm if he uses it all. The boy learns by actual practice how to prepare and cut up the various animals raised for meat and to locate and know the different cuts. This work could be done if it were done for the dining hall in connection with the school. It is also of great help to the dining hall, providing a good quality of meat at low cost.

Dairy School.

In addition to the regular school there has been established a dairy school to give instructions to the butter and cheese makers of the state who make their product on the factory plan. To enter the school one must have had some experience in a creamy-milk cheese factory. The course extends over a period of four weeks, usually beginning about the middle of November. The national reputation that Minnesota enjoys as one of the foremost dairy states in the union is largely due to the instruction given in this school.

Farmers' Short Course.

To enlarge the influence of the school and to meet the needs of farmers and men and women who busy with farm work the greater part of the year, a special lecture course has been provided known as the Farmers' Short Course. This course is open to all service being rendered to farmers. The course continues six weeks, beginning the second Monday of January each year. Some of the practiced subjects considered are dairy husbandry, animal husbandry, vegetable growing, sheep and swine; selecting, breeding, and managing farms; soils; farm mechanics including windmills, gasoline engines and the care of tools; farm implements and their uses; dressing and curing meats; farm horticulture; marketing; fruit growing; culivating and the general care of fruit trees, plants, and shrubs; veterinary science; poultry; entomology; plant life; business methods; and judging grains, dairy stock, beef cattle, sheep, swine, and poultry. The course is of special practical value and very interesting. In the study of beef cattle, the animals are judged alive, then killed, cut up, and the carcasses and their several parts scored in a large demonstration room, the entire class present. Of course, many different qualities are judged and then cooked that the most practical test may be made. All farmers are eligible to enter this course and enjoy its benefits without reference to their age or educational qualifications.

Honesty.

There is no man, but for his own interest, hath an obligation to be honest, but there is a time when it would be otherwise, but as a card cast up, he shall find it the greatest ease, the highest profit, the best pleasure, the most safety, and the noblest fame, to lay hold of the horns of this altar, which in all assay, can himself protect him.

Selling Days Not Over.

Just as a time when every one who is at all interested in the sea and ships is talking over the Louisiana, her size and her record, it seems a curious reminder of old times to catch sight of a new gold sign in the window of a small grocery store acting as a branch of a well known concern which announces a "Sailing Service to Australia and New Zealand."

A Vast Sum.

The amount of money which the government is called upon to redeem in the course of the years is continually increasing. In 1904, for instance, it totaled $12,000,000. This redemption is either for the purpose of securing clean, fresh notes or of getting change of some other denomination.

THE BIG BALLOON MAKES LONG TRIP

HERSEY, THE AMERICAN LANDS IN CANADA 700 MILES FROM ST. LOUIS.

The Others were Still Sailing. The German Balloon has Chance to Wrest Honors from the American Craft.

St. Louis, Oct. 23.—The beginning of the year is the greatest ballooning race ever held in America, the second and contest for the international cup. The balloon which has been built night by the building of the American Balloon United States at a point 12 miles south of Hamilton, Ontario near the shores of Lake Ontario. The United States is believed to have held the race at the time of landing, and in the opinion of the experts, the balloon had covered a distance of approximately 700 miles in an air line.

The United States is the present holder of the cup and of the record for the race, having established it in 1902, from Paris last year at 402 miles.

The pilot of the balloon is Major Henry B. Hersey of the United States weather bureau at Washington, who acted as aid to Lieut. Lahm, of the United States army. Lieut. Lahm, who piloted the balloon in its winning race of 1902, was too ill to participate this year.

The nearest rival to the United States is thought to be the big chrome yellow German crusading balloon Pommern which was last reported as having been built at Berlin, Germany. The Pommern passed over Cleveland during the afternoon and sent down a message reporting "all well." It is figured that the Pommern was but a little behind the United States during the afternoon and if she is due to return up after crossing the lake she may exceed the excellent record of the United States.

LAKE CRYSTAL RAIDED.

Five Stores Looted in and Cash and Goods Stolen.

Lake Crystal, Minn., Oct. 23.—Burglars, who are described as desperadoes, have broken into and all the money in the drawers and cash registers taken, but just how much is not known.

Thomas & Jones' hardware store, range and science were taken; Evans Brothers' hardware store, a diamond watch and two gold cases taken; John William's shoe store, one pair of shoes; Hans Moe's and Joseph Rask's saloons, money gone.

Marshall Ben Davis was on duty until 4 o'clock, and the robbers must have happened after that, as he saw no one on the streets. There is no clue to work upon.

Grain Inspection.

Washington, Oct. 23.—John M. Chamber has returned from his trip to North Dakota and has begun his campaign for the passage of his national grain inspection bill during the coming congress. In anticipation of the arrival of President Roosevelt on his annual trip this week, Mr. Chamber is arranging a lot of detail on the subject for presentation to the chief executive in the belief that some mention will be made of the subject in the annual message to congress in December.

Attempted Suicide.

Minneapolis, Oct. 23.—Arthur Williams, a fifteen-year-old boy, rather than go to the state training school there, where he otherwise would be sent, cast himself over a 22-caliber revolver in the juvenile court in the presence of Judge John Day Smith, who had just finished his examination of the lad. The prompt action of George A. Copeland, probation officer, in knocking the weapon upwards, alone prevented a tragedy.

Cummings Fights a Fire.

Des Moines, Oct. 23.—Fire which started early in the afternoon of Governor A. B. Cummings was extinguished by his excellency himself. The governor was awakened by the smell of smoke, and rushed down stairs, attacked the flames with water and a rug and had them under control by the time the department arrived. The damage was about $200.

Fairbanks Led to Pay.

Vancouver, S. D., Oct. 23.—The authorities in South Dakota proved the effectiveness here when Vice President Fairbanks, or rather his private secretary acting for him, was refused the privilege of sending a telegram over the Western Union wire on a "frank." The secretary had never encountered this obstacle before, but did not care to argue the point and paid the toll.

MINNESOTA NEWS

Interesting Items Gathered in the Gopher State

Escaped.

St. Cloud—Anna Oestreich Jarmuzek, kidnapper of the Glauke baby, who was taken to the reformatory recently to serve sentence for her crime, made a sensational escape from that institution.

She had not been in the prison long enough to have her picture taken or to become very well acquainted with the officials in charge. She apparently thought of nothing but escape after being taken to St. Cloud, and she waited patiently until opportunity came.

That Mrs. Jarmuzek is shrewd is now fully believed by those who have had anything to do with her. She escaped from the pens of Minnesotaapolis by successive kidnaps, hiding a four-day-old child and staying in the city.

She next started the officials by jumping her ball after being indicted. She was captured at her home near Little Falls. Now she has escaped again, just like any determined wife, and with a good start fair to make the chase after an interesting one.

She was captured at Foley after a hard struggle with officers and returned to the reformatory.

Death of John D. Ludden.

John D. Ludden, one of the notable pioneers of the state, died at his home in St. Paul. He was noted for his interest and generosity in public affairs.

One of his acts was the presentation of a $10,000 gift to assist needy students through the state agricultural school. At a school meeting the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to call his servant to a merciful end, and to his eternal rest, now therefore be it

Resolved, by the faculty and students of the school of agriculture in chapel assembled, That we express our appreciation of his integrity, his ability, his noble spirit, his sympathies, and his usefulness to our school and to the cause of agriculture.

Resolved, That we express our sincere sympathy for his bereaved and surviving wife and other relations and friends and

Resolved further, That the secretary of the school be instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to the members of the bereaved family and to the daily papers of the twin cities.

Organize State League.

Minneapolis—There is a movement on to form a Minnesota state basketball league to take the place of the Twin City Basketball League of last year, which was organized in the same time of two years ago. The movement is fostered by G. T. Booth, who is sending out circulars to teams throughout the state, asking their opinions in regard to the matter and their cooperation, should they deem it a wise plan to organize such a league.

BRIEF NOTES.

St. Paul—Insurance experts say that fire protection in St. Paul is inadequate.

Winona—When passenger No. 504 on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad stopped at the station here Henry Nieland, aged 40, of Dane county, Wis., was found hanging by his suspenders, which had been attached to pipes in the tool room of the coach.

St. Paul—In an address on forestry at the high school, Forestry Commissioner Andrews, who had just returned from a visit to the Pillsbury Reserve with Professor Green and Mr. Detwiler, said that 285,000 three-year-old seedlings, mostly Norway spruce, were planted this spring on 185 acres, and that 55 per cent of them were found to be living.

Crookston—Augusta Frick, a maid employed at the farm of William Hammon, took down a heavy shotgun from a hook over the door, and the gun was discharged, the ball hitting the head of a dog shot near the master's feet. Prompt attendance on the part of members of the household saved the girl's life, as she almost bled to death.

Mankato—The general educational committee of the Evangelical Lutheran church, which has been in session at St. Louis, considering the proposition to buy the Park hotel property at St. James for the purpose of starting a college there, has decided to take no action until after it has submitted the proposition to the church throughout the country, to be voted upon.

St. Peter—Luther C. Ives, a pioneer resident of Leavenworth township, Brown county, is making preparations for an overall trip around the world. He has traveled forty-three years ago, when, suffering from an attack of typhoid fever, he was brought in an ox cart from Fort Wardsworth to Fort Ridgely with the supply train of George Brackett, an army contractor.

Duluth—Taney Conway, the brewer who killed Miles Mahar here Labor Day by a blow of his fist, and who was convicted of manslaughter in the second degree, is again a free man. Under the law there is an alternative of a prison sentence for a term of years or a fine of $1,000. The judge imposed the fine, and the amount was paid into court and Conway was freed.

St. Paul—As a result of the campaign waged by W. H. Williams, state labor commissioner, the number of persons leaving the state for employment is continually decreasing, and with the hearty co-operation of the local school boards the laws relating to the employment of child labor are being enforced better than ever before. Contributions for the campaign were received from 100,000 persons, and the amount was paid into court and Conway was freed.

Moorhead—A local man went threatening with a team belonging to himself and partner. When he got home he sold the team and his partner had him arrested and sent to jail.

Ransom—G. H. Erdel, a saloon keeper, is wanted by the sheriffs of Ransom and Cass counties, N. D., on the charge of soliciting orders for liquor in North Dakota.

Linwood—Mr. and Mrs. Ola Slatengren, pioneer settlers of Chicago county, recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home.

PINE COUNTY PIONEER.

ED. C. GOTTRY, Editor and Prop.

Entered in the Post Office at Pine City as Second Class Matter.

PINE CITY MINN., Oct. 25, 1907.

Don't be a knocker—push!

The country can rest again, Teddy has killed his bear.

When morals count as merit, the world will be better for it.

Many a man has a dollar watch attached to a seven dollar chain.

The fancy vest is to be worn again this winter. Just listen!

Goon looks are a great thing, but good morals beat them all to pieces.

It isn't always the best looking girl who makes the best batch of bread, but a shrewdly dressed girl never inspired an appetite.

CLARENCE DARROW is said to be one of the homeliest men in the United States, and from what we have read of him his looks do not belie him a bit.

It isn't always the richest garment which covers the truest heart, but it is a safe guess that the fellow who wears cheap jewelry hasn't many brains beneath his hat.

It may be that all labor is honorable, and that the dignity of labor is all that is claimed for it, but the ability to hire someone else to do the disagreeable things beats dignified labor all to pieces.

EMMA GOLDMAN's wit with rage because the Immigration office has given it out that she will not be permitted to return to the United States. What beats us is why she would want to return to a country that is as bad as she paints this.

NEXT to the parent, the teacher in our public schools has an influence for good or bad over the rising generation. Teachers should not forget this fact and their deportment should be such as to command itself to the child who is watching the teacher's daily life.

The feverish anxiety with which some people have watched the papers lately to see what was happening down in the canebreaks of Louisiana is equalled only by the feverish anxiety of a few interested people in the result of certain conventions to be held in the near future.

Now that the politicians of the country have entered upon their periodical campaign of regulation and reform, wouldn't it be a great thing if some of them would draft a bill to regulate the ambition of the peanut politician and pass a measure to regulate the methods of the reformer.

WHEN President Roosevelt in an address to a body of students said
"Don't fudge, don't budge but hit the line hard," he struck the keynote of honest school athletics. School athletics should develop honest, manly, tearless men, and if they fail to accomplish that purpose they are of no use in our public schools. The "shame boy" has no place in American business life. It is the boy who enjoys snappy outdoor sport for the sport there is in the game that counts, and the school is the proper place to develop him.

A MEETING of the Federation of Labor recently held in Chicago narrowly escaped a spirited dispute by sidetracking a resolution introduced for the purpose of placing the federation on record as favoring a law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the state. The friends of the measure claim that the resolution would have passed and the conservative Chicago Record-Herald in a recent editorial commenting on the incident observes that the sidetracking of the resolution was an adroit move by the enemies of the resolution, brought about by expert parliamentary tactics because of the fear of testing the temper of the meeting on the question. There is no question but the trend of public sentiment is strongly also against the liquor traffic and the time is not far distant when one or both of the political parties will be forced to incorporate strong planks in their political platforms on this question. The south-to-day is demanding that the Democratic party place itself on record as favoring national legislation prohibiting the importation of liquor, an article of interstate commerce, into territory from which it is banished under the local option statutes. Iowa has one of the most stringent liquor laws in the northwest and this tendency is to draw the reins tighter and tighter in that state. The Minnesota legislature will at its next session consider a bill similar to the Iowa law. Wisconsin has passed advanced measures along this line and its Supreme Court has recently handed down a decision which has been the source of much rejoicing in the camp of the anti-saloon men. In every state in the Union there has been much discussion along this line in the past few months. The newspapers and magazines are alive to the fact that this is one of the live issues and they are discussing it as never before.

Third party prohibition is as dead as a door nail, but practical regulation of the liquor traffic along lines which will ultimately lead to the total prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicants is a live issue and in receiving the serious consideration of many men who are neither prohibition cranks, nor hot-heads.

Work of Incendiarism.

Wednesday evening fire was discovered at the farm of Mrs. Francis Kubicek, 11 miles northwest of this place. Upon investigation it was found to be the frame dwelling house recently occupied by Henry Davis, who moved out about a week ago.
The house was a story and a half frame building 20x26, and was built about 10 years ago by Mr. Kubicek.
It was insured in the Nessie Co-Operative Insurance Co. for the sum of $245. This is a severe loss to Mrs. Kubicek, and the one who did it should be dealt with to the full extent of the law.

"We never repent of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule which I follow every one excepting during this hot weather, because it is hard for people, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodal for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. # A BICYCLE ROMANCE

By FRANK M. BICKNELL

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Hello!"

"Yes, mother."

And the young girl, who had been sitting in one of the bay windows, laid down her work and disappeared from the view of the young man who had been watching her from the other bay window, and who now took up his work and tried to go on with it.

Numbers 39 and 41, Walnut Street, formed a double house, a pleasant though unpretentious quarter of the ancient city of Whitewell. Number 39 was occupied by Mrs. Martha Higginson and her small but select boarding school. Number 41 had been vacant up to within a short time, but a family had lately moved in, consisting of a middle-aged man and woman and a girl of 18—presumably father, mother and daughter. It had been learned that the name of the family was Mayhew and that the male head of it, who appeared to be a confirmed invalid, had served gallantly in the Civil War as a soldier and a leader of volunteers. Also that he was now in receipt of a pension in supposed repayment for the loss of the health he had left behind him in the Virginia swamps. To eke out this necessary rather scarce income, Mr. Mayhew had recently come into his inheritance, which might be said to consist of the fact of his being seen during a part of every day industriously painting pottery in the front bay window.

Wentworth Derricott, bachelor, aged 26, had been in search of a permanent home, for nearly a year. By occupation he was a reviewer of published books and a reader of unpublished ones. Derricott longed to make Miss Bell Mayhew's acquaintance. No doubt he would get to know her eventually, for he was in the habit of regularly calling in the course of time, and, in the course of time that call would be returned, and thus gradually a way to an acquaintanceship between the two households would be paved. But all that form and ceremony was out of the question.

Derricott had begun accustomed to look upon himself as a hardened and hard-hearted bachelor. Now, on a sudden, he discovered that there was a soft place somewhere about him, the presence of which he had not suspected. The joys of matrimony, which he knew began to show dim before dreams of the delights of married bliss, which, as yet, he knew not.

He was not habitually an early riser, but one morning, in consequence of work neglected the day before, he got up with a start and found that he was very much obliged to be of some importance to him. He had just finished his preliminary toilet and seated himself for doing a stint before he could be disturbed by the breakfast bell when, chancing to glance downward, he saw in the mirror which a nurse arranged his attention. A young lad in a becoming blue suit was in the act of mounting a bicycle in front of No. 41. He thought he never had beheld a more pleasing spectacle than Miss Bell Mayhew—for of course it was she—pedaling away with such a sprightly gait, as though she had the world at her feet all his eyes as long as he was vouchsafed the privilege. After she had ridden away out of sight he resumed his work, or tried to do so, but it is to be feared that the much he had hoped to accomplish proved in the end to be only a trifle.

He remembered that he had a bicycle himself, and he determined to give it, and himself, much more exercise than formerly. That very day he got the machine downstairs and put it in order.

He did not always ride in the morning, and he never ventured to start out at the same time that she did. He carefully refrained from doing anything which might even remotely cause her annoyance, or lead her to suspect how glad he would have been if they could have met in their daily "conversations" in company. He frequently met her, though—he did not feel that duty called upon him to avoid that—sometimes going, sometimes returning twice or three times from home. On the last-named occasions he would be compelled to stop to be dazed, for since they saw each other so often, why were they not, in a manner, acquaintances?—only she never gave him the chance, or seemed to show the slightest inclination to encourage such a "familiarity."

On one very early, before sunrise in fact, he went out for a ride. "She'll not be stirring for an hour yet," he thought, "and I can get home again before she starts."

What was his surprise, however, while traversing a favorite bit of road, known as the Shelton Turnpike, to spy a familiar figure not very far ahead. It was Bell Mayhew, moving along at a leisurely pace, when suddenly her wheel struck a stone and the next moment she was lying on the ground. Derricott hurried to her assistance, and, quickly extricated her from her reclining position as he appeared, and he saw that she was in great pain.

"Miss Mayhew," he exclaimed, "you hurt!"

"I think I have sprained my ankle," she said.

"What can I do?" he asked, rather awkwardly. "You must be got home as soon as possible."

He placed the injured girl on her bicycle and by pushing it and leading his own wheel he managed to get her

During the ride home few words were spoken.

He got her safely housed and delivered over to her mother's care.

A sprain is often worse than a fracture, and Derricott was not surprised.

It was not quite so in Mr. Mayhew's case, yet her ankle was found to be hurt seriously enough to keep her from using it for many days. All through the long summer, much to her regret, she remained a prisoner within doors. Mrs. Mayhew, who naturally was grateful to him for the service he had rendered their daughter. The daughter herself evidently appreciated what he had done, although she was more shy in expressing her thanks than were her parents. As the same summer passed, she became a more and more frequent caller, until he counted that day a blank when he had not spent at least an hour in the fair invalid's company. After a short time she had resumed her chin painting and she discovered that he could not be induced to leave her alone to paint and bring them from the firing establishment which, before the accident, had been in the habit of visiting on her bicycle.

I saw a great deal of her, but, as it happened, whether by chance or design, never either Mr. or Mrs. Mayhew in the room with her whenever he called.

Toward the last of October Bell's ankle had grown strong enough to be used with care.

"I should so much like to have one more ride before it turns cold," he

Mrs. Osborn's Letter

The Most Noted Modiste in America Describes the Fall and Winter Styles.

Drawings by Carl Kleinschmidt.

Skirts are long, graceful, sweeping, and the coats of stamped and embroidered velvets beggar description.

Text and Illustrations Copyright 1897, by the Delineator, New York.

It would require a language replete with synonyms for beauty, softness, depth of color and high lights of sheen and silken lustre to describe the season's furs. Mink, sable, ermine, lynx and seal have now appeared in combinations so unexpected in sizes and qualities as to be attractive. I have been assailing for years the surprising and stupendous weight of the clumsy fur-lined cloth coat showing the fur merely in the collar and cuffs—a burdensome weight, and suitable only for some inmates of wealth. For myself and design—well, I must confess that I look on a woman as lacking in intelligence who is willing to hide the prettiness of her figure beneath the shapeless mass of cloth and fur, with its overblown and degenerate proportions. The texture of the fur itself, however, must speak for itself. Here is sealkin of a thickness well beyond Madame's velvet plaid! Here is sealkin of a thickness well beyond a shoulder line and wide armhole. They are in reality nothing but capes, cut quite short, so that they are caught together to form sleeves, and long in front and back where they are belted in by a crush girdle of leather or silk. In the latter case the embroidery appears against the collar, and is combined with soft lace to form under-cuffs in the wide sleeves. Needless to say that this kind of a jacket one only wears with elaborate gowns of exquisite fabrics.

This season finds me to the papa-skin coat, a garment that I have been desirous of wearing with disfavor. Till now it has always been associated in my mind with the calico pony and dappled gray of the harness and carriage shop window. But in its manifestations this fall, the hardness and stiffness of the papa has disappeared and it has become supple and elastic, and a most comfortable article of wear. The growing scarcity of caracal, I trust, will be the first to herald and advocate the Louis XIV. vests of broaded silks that are now sanctioned by Parisian mandates. The collarless jackets that permit one to wear a separate scarf to match the muff are finished with broad or narrow piping.

Again the coats are ingenious adaptations of the long kimono, shoulder line and wide armhole. They are in reality nothing but capes, cut quite short, so that they are caught together to form sleeves, and long in front and back where they are belted in by a crush girdle of leather or silk. In the latter case the embroidery appears against the collar, and is combined with soft lace to form under-cuffs in the wide sleeves. Needless to say that this kind of a jacket one only wears with elaborate gowns of exquisite fabrics.

I am glad to be one of the first to herald the return to popularity of sealkin. It is one of the most beautiful furs we have, and I have always resented the fact that they can't be had on par with mink. This year one gets an intoxicating fragrance from their fine fiber. There is nothing like the sealkin's indolent, regal charm of a beautiful woman, or more distinction to a plain one to such an extent as furs. Load a woman with jewels and she will appear at best like a jeweler's show window beneath an arch of light. Wrap her in furs and you will invest the most insignificant woman with the dignity of a queen.

Before I leave the subject I want to say another word about sealskin. It is one of the most beautiful furs we have, and I have always resented the fact that they can't be had on par with mink. This year one gets an intoxicating fragrance from their fine fiber. There is nothing like the sealkin's indolent, regal charm of a beautiful woman, or more distinction to a plain one to such an extent as furs. Load a woman with jewels and she will appear at best like a jeweler's show window beneath an arch of light. Wrap her in furs and you will invest the most insignificant woman with the dignity of a queen.

You will notice at once that furs in every shape and form are softer, more pliable than ever this year. Even a year ago in selecting my own furs I took pains to secure unbroken hairs in their natural state with no kinks or coils. They were rare, but now they are on all sides. The muffs are larger than ever this year, but the difference is imperceptible because of the extensive trimming of tails and heads.

Lap robes and evening wraps open fields of brilliant designs. Many of the ultra-smart make it a point to have their own furs and carriage rugs matched. Lap robes, coats, hats, etc., are also admirably shown in Mr. Kleinenschmidt's drawings, but I could hardly admitably show in them what he left to be said. As you can see from the drawings the skirts are long, graceful, sweeping. The tunic skirt that makes its regular annual appearance, is with us once more with a new promise of real acquiring a vogue in its simplicity and the material of which it is made. The stamped velvets, the raja silk woven with stripes of silver and gold, the tufted textures, the rajah silks woven with stripes of velvet are but a few of the new and exciting novelties. Fashions are something terrifically new in the almost unprecedentedness that this magnificence in every department of dress represents. Trimming is more lavishly used than ever, and trimmings on trimming are the order of the day.

JOSEFA WILSON OSBORN.

FOR THE BEAUTY SEEKER

If you would have clear eyes and complexion drink plenty of water, either plain or with a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt in the timber. This is particularly effective if taken each night just before retiring.

Sulphur water has a wonderful effect on the skin. There are many good preparations of liquid sulphur which can be taken internally and if possible any one suffering from a really bad skin should try to spend a few weeks each year at some sulphur springs.

Scars in Favor.

Scars are much affected among those fond of antiquities. Your scar may not be a genuine aniquity, but so long as your friends don't know it, it's all right.

SUN BAD FOR BLONDES

New Mexico and Arizona, where the sun shines almost daily, are trying places for blonde girls, especially young ones, says Dr. V. E. Watkins, the United States army who served in that section of the southwest for three years. The nervous system suffers particularly, from a slight lack of self-control to a profound nervous depression. Many a girl is compelled to eat and sleep constantly, and even makes a trip east about once a year for curative purposes.

Hydrocynic acid has a wonderful effect on the skin. There are many good preparations of liquid sulphur which can be taken internally and if possible any one suffering from a really bad skin should try to spend a few weeks each year at some sulphur springs.

Redness of the face is often caused by a wrong diet. Spicy, rich or greasy foods cannot be assimilated by all stomachs and are more frequent causes of bad complexions than the owners of those complexions and appetites like to think.

NO STAIN ON HIS RECORD.
That's Where the Driver Had the Best of the Preacher.

A New York clergyman, who often spends his vacation in fishing the streams of the Adirondacks, was on one trip adopted by a handsome set ter dog, which insisted on following him from camp to camp, as he moved along the trail.

One day he met a party of men working upstream with a native guide. The guide immediately recognized the dog as his own property.

"Trying to steal my set ter are you?" he shouted at the driver. "I'll have you to jail for that. There's a law of the woods just as big as you are."

The clergyman endeavored to explain that he was an unwilling companion of the dog, which had refused to be driven away, but to little effect until he added a two-dollar bill to his argument.

"It's queer what strange things happen to a man up here," he said to the stage-driver who later carried him away from the woods. "That is the first time I ever was accused of stealing a dog."

"What?" replied the driver, sympathetically, and added, after a moment's pause. "For myself, sir, I have never been accused of stealing anything!"—Youth's Companion.

SKIN SORE EIGHT YEARS.

Spent $300 on Doctors and Remedies, but Got No Relief—Cuticular Cures in a Week.

"Upon the limbs and between the toes my skin was rough and scaly, and always sore and tender. I had to stay at home several times because of this affection. Up to a week or so ago I had tried many other remedies and saw many doctors, and spent about three hundred dollars, without any success, but this is to-day the same old day. I have a doctor in Cortland, N.Y., who has given me a liniment (costing a dollar and a half), which have cured me completely, so that I can again attend to my business. I went to work again to-night. I had been suffering for eight years and have now been cured by the Cuticular Remedy within a week. Fritz Hirschaff, 24 Columbus Ave., New York, N.Y., March 25 and April 6, 1906."

Delicate Shade of Meaning.

A keen return is credited to the late Dr. Haig-Brown, master of Charterhouse.

His brother-in-law, Dr. Porter, the master of Peterhouse, another famous English school, wrote him, inquiring if his precise meaning in a certificate that a boy's character was "generally" good.

"When I say generally," he replied, "I mean not particularly."

Your Rent Money Will

Buy a Farm in the Texas Pan Handle

Do you know that you can take the money you would pay for next year's rent and buy a farm in the Pan Handle country of northern Texas, Western Oklahoma and eastern New Mexico?

Those fellows down in the Pan Handle don't rent. You can bet your bottom dollar on that. They can take the money you'd pay for next year's rent and buy a farm out there. The rent money'll cover the first payment. The crops will take care of the other payments and make you a good living besides.

They don't have crop failures out there. It rains enough to grow most any crop. You can dig down 25 to 50 feet most anywhere in the Pan Handle and strike good water.

FOR RENT
You never saw better crops anywhere. A Pan Handle farmer thinks he's no good if he doesn't get 40 or 50 bushels of corn to the acre, 20 to 30 bushels of wheat is nothing unusual, and they figure right along on getting 60 to 80 bushels of oats. You ought to see the alfalfa—2 to 2½ tons to a cutting is what they get from an acre and they cut 3 and 4 times a year!

The land is a dark chocolate loam 5 to 8 feet deep, with a clay subsoil and it ought to raise good crops.

Think of land like this, ready for the plow, selling for $10 to $15 an acre. It beats anything I ever saw.

It won't be so cheap very long. It's selling for more now than it was this time last year and I know what I'm talking about when I tell you it will be higher next year.

The Pan Handle is filling up with the best people you ever saw.

The climate is so fine they thrive on it. Lots of schools and churches.

How do you stand outside of the Pan Handle farmer? At the end of the year what have you got to show for the rent you paid? Nothing.

What's the Pan Handle farmer got? A fine big farm nearly paid for—and getting more valuable every year. Who's got the best of it?

Why don't you go down to the Pan Handle and do the same? It would pay you to take a trip down there just to look around.

It doesn't cost much—only $20 from St. Louis, Kansas City and $25 from Chicago round trip. The Rock Island-Frisco lines have four routes to the Pan Handle—one goes through a different part of the country.

I have got a book about Texas that's mighty interesting reading! Another friend of mine, who is a member of the Oklahoma State Legislature, will tell you a lot you want to know about the Pan Handle country before you go.

The Rock Island-Frisco Lines have no load for sale, and are looking for settlers for the districts, but unfortunately, the railroads alone can't do it.

Land companies are specific sections where conditions are especially favorable for new settlers. If you would prefer some other section, then Pan Handle country is the place to go. Write me for specific information. You are most welcome.
