BIGGEST DAY IN CITY'S HISTORY

July 4th, 1908, Always to be Remembered as a Red-Letter Day—Perfect Weather, Good Management, and a Big Crowd.

The Fourth of July has come and gone and Pine City celebrated the nation's birthday in a befitting manner, the surrounding country coming here by train and wagon loads, until it was estimated that there was between 7,000 and 8,000 people in the village on that day, which was the largest crowd by about 4,000 ever seen in Pine City.

At about sunrise the committee having charge of the firing of 133 guns awoke the citizens with the clamor attending a salute of this nature, and in a short time the small boys and those of greater stature commenced to make their appearance on the streets, which had already begun to pat on a Fourth of July appearance.

At about 7:30 the train whistle was heard announcing that the Gentry Bros Pony and Dog show was coming, and all hastened to the railroad to see that one feature of a circus that everybody enjoys, viz: the unloading of the chariots and live stock. There is always more or less excitement at this time.

After the animals and coaches were unloaded they were taken to the circus grounds near the cemetery, where the tents were soon pitched, and at about 9:30, after the special had arrived from Hinckley, with its three coaches loaded to the doors with passengers from Hinckley, Sandstone, Mission Creek and the country around these places to celebrate the Glorious Fourth in the county seat, the street parade, headed by the Pine City Cornet Band, was formed at the circus grounds, and marched on the principal streets.

Following the band was a float bearing the school children, drawn by four horses. R. P. Allen's four float followed the school children. This was followed in turn by the Smith Hardware Co's float, on which was mounted a three horse power M.V. engine which was running a cream separator and a pumping jack. A. W. Piper, the furniture man, had a float which was gotten up very neatly, and represented a well furnished parlor. The float that caused the most comment was the one gotten up by the March boys. It was the most comical vehicle ever seen in Pine City. It consisted of a large logskid with the axle on which it revolved set away to one side of the center of each head, and a framework attached, on which was a seat, which was occupied by the two boys, dressed, one as a man, the other as a girl. As the logskid revolved, the boys were first away up in the air, and then scarcely missing the top of the logskid. After this float was a comical one representing a barber shop, in which Peter Edlio was the barber, and James McLaughlin the victim.

The circus parade followed, which was very good, the ponies and dogs being especially numerous. Each chariot was drawn by shetland ponies, the lack of large draft horses being a noticeable feature.

After the parade the next thing on the program was the oration in Robinson Park by Senator Moses K. Clapp. The orator had played a selection to call the audience to the park, and at about 11:30 Chairman F. A. Hodge mounted the platform that had been erected just north of the band stand, and called the audience to order, and in a few well chosen remarks welcomed the people to our village, and said that a short program had been prepared for their entertainment. The first number on the program was a selection by the band, followed by a prayer by Rev. J. A. Padlock, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The usual followed with a selection of patriotic airs. Mrs. John Heywood then recited "Benedict Arnold at the Battle of Saratoga" which was well rendered and heartily applauded.

Miss Bessie Lambert sang "America" in her pleasing manner. At the close of the singing Chairman Hodge introduced Senator Clapp, who spoke very briefly, as it had reached the hour for dinner. The Senator spoke only for about 10 minutes, but he said more in that time that was good and to the point as well, than most men would have said in a speech of an hour's length. The subject of the Senator's remarks were "Sandwich," and his remarks were as good and cleaving as those ever uttered by the most eloquent divine. Rev. J. J. Parish, of the M. E. church, closed the exercises with the benediction.

The first on the program after dinner was the athletic sports, the first of which was watching the greased pig. The pig was furnished by the Kodym Bros., and was one of the fat, heavy kind, that had no life, and was easily caught about 25 feet from where he was turned loose in front of the Smith Hardware Co's store. A son of Henry Rohlf, who lives 2 miles southeast of here, was the lucky man.

The men's foot race was the next event pulled off, and was run from the railroad track to the street crossing in front of Hotel Agnes. The winner had a walkway and came in on the trot about twenty feet ahead of the second man.

The next event was the running high jump, in which there were seven contestants, the winner clearing the bar at 4 feet and 4 inches, downing all competitors by two inches. The running broad jump was the next event in which the contestants did some good work in that line, the lowest being 13 feet 14 inches and the highest 16 feet 7 1/2 inches. The jumping events took place on the farmers' fair grounds, as did also the top-skip and jump and the shot put.

The next event was the boys' foot race, which was run on the east side of the track in front of Stekl's hall. The race was for boys under 16 years of age, and there were so many entries that the road was filled from side to side. The race was well run, and it was hard to decide which was the winner.

The top-skip and jump was the next thing on the program, and there were several entries, and occasional much sport, there being those entered who did not know how it was done, and the contestants they went through were comical in the extreme.

The shot-put was another event that made considerable sport, but it was hurried along, as it was getting time for the ball game on the diamond on the north side of the river, between the Hinckley team and the local team, for a purse of $60.

During the first of the sports about 4,000 of the citizens and visitors were at the circus. Those attending report the circus and the trained animals as the best that they had ever seen.

At about 3:30, the crowd, having seen the sports, spilled of above, went over to the north side of the river to witness the game between the Hinckley and Pine City ball teams.

The Hinckley boys went to the bat in the first and succeeded in getting one run across the plate. The locals in their half after secured one score.

In the second inning both sides were blanked. In the third each received a score, as they did in the sixth. This ended the scoring for the Hinckley boys, as after the sixth inning they could do nothing with Powers delivery, but not so with the locals, for in the seventh they got on to Plaven, the hired pitcher that Hinckley got from Minneapolis, for a total of four scores, and again in the eighth, for one more, making the final score 8 to 3 in favor of the Pine City team.

The features of the game were the batting of Breckenridge, the Pine City short stop, who got 3 hits from three times up, and the three base hit by John Hurley, in the seventh inning, bringing in two scores, Joe Powers, the slab artist for the locals, is no stranger to the base ball fans of this part of the state, as he has appeared in a Pine City uniform a great many times three and four years ago, when Hurley's Barringtons held the championship of this part of the state. Joe's many friends in this place were pleased when they saw him in the box on the Fourth.

The following is the tabulated score and summary, which shows better than any words of ours the playing of the teams:

SUMMARY—Earned runs, Hinckley, 1. Pine City 4. 2-base hits, Jones, J. Lambert, Breckenridge; 3-base hits, Hurley; bases on balls, off Powers, 1, off Plaven, 2; struck out, by Powers, 7, by Flaven, 2; stolen bases, M. Brennan, Breckenridge 4; left on bases, Hinckley 3, Pine City 10. Umpire, Robt. Harte.

After the ball game it was announced that a wrestling match between Bitch Steinkamp, of Sandstone, and Henry Hoeller, of this place, best two out of three falls, for a purse of $50, the winner to take all, would be pulled off on the raised platform on the farmers' fair grounds at 5 o'clock. The base ball fans almost broke their necks in their haste to get to see the wrestle, as it was about a quarter to 5 when the announcement was made. Upon arriving at the fair grounds they waited until about a quarter of six before the combatants made their appearance. Will Lambert was chosen referee and Julius Dosey time keeper. The match was to be an hour's time in case neither one got a fall.

From the call of time until the hour was up Hoeller was on the aggressive and Steinkamp was only on the defensive, making but two moves in the aggressive. At the end of the hour the match was declared a draw, and each combatant got half of the purse.

A Quiet Wedding.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized at the home of Chas. Teich Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at her home ever since. She is an estimable young lady, and will make the man of her choice a good help-mate.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerd. E. Kruse, and is well and favorably known to the citizens of this place, she having come here with her parents about 10 years ago and has made this place her home ever since. She is an estimable young lady, and will make the man of her choice a good help-mate.

The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. August Teich, and is well known in this place, he having been born and raised in this village. He is an honest, industrious young man and will undoubtedly make the woman of his choice a good husband.

After the ceremony a delicious supper was served after which dancing was indulged in until the "dew smelt hours."

The afternoon joins with the many friends of the young couple in wishing them a pleasant journey o'er life's tempestuous sea.

Twenty-Five Years Married.

Sunday afternoon the relatives and friends of Wm. Peters, who resides with his family on one of the finest farms in Pine county, five and a half miles west of this place, on the Brunswick road, met at his home to help him and his estimable wife to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their marriage.

The afternoon was spent in visiting with old-time friends, and in the evening after a bountiful supper had been partaken of, dancing was indulged in until about midnight.

The following is a list of the guests from abroad: Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Kauffer and family, Mrs. M. Daffel, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kaim, Mrs. Anna Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Fr. Brandl and daughter, Aurelia, of St. Paul, Mrs. Jas. A. Humphrey, of Stillwater.

MEADOW LAWN.

Miss Florence Spelling spent Tuesday in the Lawn.

Ernest Holler was a caller in the Lawn Tuesday night.

Mr. Penhiter came out from Pine City Tuesday, returning Wednesday. Mrs. E. Rawie and sister, Mrs. Hackett, departed for Alden, Tuesday for an extended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Carrier and Mrs. Cynthia Scofield spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Scofield.

Miss Bernice Stivers visited with her aunt, Mrs. R. E. Hamlin, from Thursday until Saturday of last week.

Meadow Lawn was well represented at the celebration at Pine City Saturday. Every one seemed to enjoy themselves.

Wm. Davis and family, came down from Sandstone Friday, returning Sunday. While here they were the guests of M. T. Lahart and family.

Stick to the Job. It is the man who can stick to the disagreeable job, do it with energy and vim, the man who can force himself to do good work when he does not feel like doing it—in other words, the man who is master of himself, who has a great purpose, and who holds himself in his aim, whether it is agreeable or disagreeable, whether he feels like it or does not feel like it—that wins.

One of the results of the recent panic is the great increase in the number of stockholders in the dividend-paying railroad and manufacturing companies. Investors with money in the bank, attracted by the prospect of profitable returns, bought the stocks at the low prices prevailing a few months ago.

STIRRING SCENES AT CONVENTION OPENING

Democratic Gathering Is Formally Called to Order--Temporary Chairman Bell Makes Speech--Adjourn First Day's Meeting in Honor of Late Grover Cleveland.

Denver, Col.—Thomas Taggart of Indiana called the Democratic national convention to order at noon Monday.

After prayer by Rt. Rev. James J. Keane, archbishop of Wyoming, the official call for the convention was read by Secretary Urey Woodson, and the temporary organization was announced as follows:

Officers of Convention. Temporary Chairman—Theodore A. Bell, California.

General Secretary—Urey Woodson, Kentucky.

Assistant General Secretary—Edwin Sefton, Washington, D. C.

Assistant Secretaries—Charles S. Northern, Atlanta, Ga.; H. C. Richmond, Fremont, Neb.; C. A. Nash, Perry, Ia.; Edward Cahill, Springfield, Ill.; Will Reid, Ravenna, Wyo., and Frank B. Ross, Indianapolis, Ind.

Reading Clerks—William McEniry, Rock Island, Ill.; T. F. Smith, New York city; William E. R. Byrne, Charleston, W. Va.; J. Gavin Denver, Col.; Rees F. Horrocks, Little Rock, Ark., and Joseph L. Rely, Indianapolis, Ind.

Sergeant-at-Arms—John I. Martin, Missouri.

Chief Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms—J. C. Penn, Indiana.

Chief Doorkeeper—Eugene W. Sullivan, Illinois.

Tally Clerks—Ruly LaFoon, Madisonville, Ky.; V. Albert, Langdon, Md.; E. Murphy, Leavenworth, Kan.; Thomas H. Lovelace, St. Louis; Thomas B. Collier, Memphis, Tenn., and C. C. Ernst, Desatur, Ind.

Chaplains—Tuesday, Rt. Rev. James J. Keane, archbishop of Wyoming; Wednesday, Rev. C. F. Reimer, Denver, Col.; Thursday, Rabbi Samuel Kerch, Seattle, Wash.; Friday, Rev. P. T. Rimmer, Denver, Col.

Temporary Chairman Bell then delivered his speech, outlining the duties of the convention and the aims of the party. He said in part:

We have assembled at a time when the public conscience is demanding honesty of purpose in the men who undertake to direct the affairs of state. The public eye is keenly sensitive to every political movement, and our proceedings here will be approved according to the degree of sincerity appearing in the work of this convention.

There is a widespread belief, founded upon evidence of a convincing character, that the party in power has not been true to its trust. It has betrayed the common interest in the hands of the enemies of good government, thereby forfeiting its right and destroying its ability to rule in the name of the people.

Outlining the position of the Democratic party with respect to great corporations, the speaker denied that the party was antagonistic to anything but the abuse of corporate power. He said:

The Democratic party is not an enemy of all corporations. It recognizes their great value in the industrial world. Through the means of incorporation scattered wealth is brought together and given a driving force that it would not otherwise possess. Great enterprises are thereby undertaken and undeveloped resources of the country added to the wealth of the world.

oligarchy in house and senate has decided that nothing shall be done to weaken any advantage that corporations have gained in labor disputes.

The charge that the courts are being assailed is simply made for the purpose of diverting attention from the real issue. Heretofore it has not been considered treason of an unwarrantable attack upon the honor of the courts to define their jurisdiction, prescribe their procedure, restrict their processes and generally to fix the bounds within which judicial functions shall be exercised.

The position of the party toward tariff revision, Mr. Bell declared, was that where the tariff enables the trust to maintain a system of extortion the duty should be removed from all trust-made goods so that competition from abroad may compel reasonable prices to our own people.

Patently in the use of campaign funds was advocated, proper regulation of transportation companies urged, and government supervision over the issuance of railroad stocks and bonds demanded.

Election of United States senators by direct vote he asserted was one of the cardinal principles of the party.

The exclusion of Asiatic immigrants of any character whatever was declared a necessity.

Permanent Organization. The roll call of states for the membership of the committee on rules and order of business, resolutions followed, Henry D. Clayton of Alabama was announced as permanent chairman, and the rest of the temporary organization was made permanent.

Honor Member of Cleveland. Resolutions of respect for the memory of Grover Cleveland were adopted, and as a further mark of respect the convention adjourned until Wednesday.

Committee on Resolutions. When the convention reassembled Wednesday the report of the committee on permanent organization was submitted and adopted, and Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, permanent chairman, delivered his address.

The following is the committee on resolutions: Alabama, H. L. Martin; Arkansas, James P. Clarke; Arizona, George B. Stoneman; California, Isadore Dockweiler; Colorado, Charles S. Thomas; Connecticut, Thomas F. Neone; Delaware, William Saultbury; Florida, F. L. Mayes; Georgia, Albert H. Cox; Idaho, Fred T. Dolobis; Illinois, Samuel Aitcher; Indiana, John E. OUTLINE OF THE PLATFORM. Chief Planks as Agreed Upon by Majority of the Committee.

The planks of the platform agreed upon by a majority of the members of the committee are substantially as follows:

We favor an immediate revision of the tariff. Articles entering into competition with articles controlled by the trusts should be placed upon the free list.

We favor an income tax and a national inheritance tax to reach the "social fortunes" already in existence.

Both nation and states should ascertain present value of railroads, measured by cost of reproduction; prohibit issue of any more watered stock or fictitious capitalization; prohibit rail-

"Dunno," said he. He filled his pipe. "Dunno," said when I persisted, he turned me down cold."

"Perhaps your proposal wasn't ardent enough?" I suggested.

"Oh, it was fiery," said Jabez. "Hot as pepper. I told her she was the only woman I'd ever loved, ever looked at, ever thought of, or—"

"But, said I, 'you forgot, then, you were a widower.'"

MINNESOTA NEWS

Interesting Items Gathered in the Gopher State

More Are Found

St. Cloud—Are there still richer and greater iron deposits in Minnesota than the vast underground stretches of ore in the Mesabi and Vermilion ranges that have made hundreds of men wealthy and endowed the north star state with millions for generations yet to come? Is the so-called Curran range really an extension of the Mesabi and does the ore deposit become deeper as it runs from the great workings at the northwest end to the yet undeveloped southeast?

Such is the opinion of D. H. Freeman, who has located an iron field of unlimited richness between Randall and Fort Ripley, on property owned by himself and his associates, mostly St. Cloud men.

The new find begins at Randall, a small station on the Chicago and North Western Pacific, fourteen miles from Little Falls, and extends to Fort Ripley on the east side of the Mississippi.

It is a continuation of the so-called Curran range, but as Mr. Freeman asserts, it really is the extension of the Mesabi, the richest iron ore range in the world.

This newly discovered underground mineral belt ranges in width from forty to sixty acres and extends for a distance of fourteen miles, with a few short breaks. The ore is found at a distance of from 50 to 100 feet from the surface.

Governor Johnson Armed

St. Paul—It was an ugly looking six-shooter probably made it about the time of the civil war, that Frank A. Day, private secretary to Gov. Johnson, received in an express package from Arizona. It is estimated that it was for wear and defense, but that does not reduce its value, which is based on the fact or belief that it was belonged to one of the great ones of James, one of the gang of bandits who raided the Northfield bank back in the sixties.

The "gunman" was received from Cleve Van Dyke, formerly executive clerk in the governor's office, and is a gift to Gov. Johnson. In a letter from Warren, Ariz., he stated that while in New Mexico recently he was given the revolver by Dr. Howard Crutcher, who had received it from Felix DeBello of Mexico. Mr. DeBello is a member of the Jesse James gang, which made the famous raid in Northfield. He states that the pistol was carried in that raid by Frank James.

Swept Thru Culvert

St. Paul—Swept thru a culvert by a rash of water, Henry Lynch, 12 years old, had a remarkable escape from drowning. The culvert is at 157 Eaton street. His mishap was reported by several employees of the department of public works, who reported the incident. The boy was swept thru a 15-inch culvert running under State street, between Plato and Florida streets. The culvert is a pipe about 100 feet long, yet sure was the rash of water that the boy was borne thru without being harmed.

The water here lifted the culvert to the tunnel so quickly that, as he afterwards said, "he did not know what struck him." A moment later the struggling form of the boy was seen at the end of the pipe and rolled over in the water and sand.

The boy was quickly picked up and sent to his home near by, unharmed.

Rainy Night Drowned

Crookston—William, with his wife, Mrs. George A. Ralph of Crookston, and daughter Dorothy, met with a peculiar accident between the Roseau river and Lake Umbagog. Mrs. Ralph had been visiting at Badger, in Roseau county, with friends, and was returning home to leave the liberation of the Roseau river and made the trip down with Mr. Ralph.

Between Carlson and Leassette they were thrown into a large pool of water by the breaking of the rear seat in which they were riding, and had a narrow escape from drowning. Mr. Ralph came back Crookston with his daughter.

NEWS NOTES

St. Paul—A street car missed A switch at Seventh and Wabasha and threw a lady into the street, but luckily the lady fell on a pillow.

Minneapolis—Firebugs made five attempts in one night to start dynamite fires in the heart of the business district. The aggregate loss will reach about $500. The fire marshal has started an investigation and several arrests may follow.

Crookston—Fifteen thousand people attended the first day of the celebration at McIntosh. More than 100 of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the settlement of the Thirteen Towns. Contributions from all parts of the state were at the celebration.

J. E. JACOBSON IS NOMINATED

FOR GOVERNOR OF MINNESOTA BY THE REPUBLICANS IN CONVENTION.

The Nomination Was By Acclamation, Young and Snider Withdrawing Leaving the Field Entirely to the Nominee.

Republican Nominees. Governor—J. E. Jacobson, Madison. Lieutenant Governor—A. O. Eberhart, Mankato, Renomination. Secretary of State—Julius A. Schmah, Redwood Falls, Renomination.

Treasurer—C. C. Dinahart, Slayton. Attorney General—George T. Simpson, Winona. Railroad Commissioners—Ira B. Mills, Moorhead (renomination); Charles E. Elmquist, Rush City.

St. Paul, July 2.—Jacob F. Jacobson of Lac qui Parle county received the tribute of a unanimous nomination for governor at the hands of the republican state convention in the Auditorium here last night.

Rival candidates withdrew early in the day, realizing that it was impossible to stem the Jacobson tide. After Frank M. Eddy had placed Mr. Jacobson's name before the convention, it was seconded by Attorney General E. T. Young and by Capt. R. P. Snider. Joel P. Heatwole, the other candidate, was not in the hall and did not appear, even after he had been appointed to a committee to escort Mr. Jacobson to the hall.

The convention was a record-breaker in its early stages, for speed and for enthusiasm. There were roars of applause for Jacobson at every stage and also for his magnanimous rivals. Every nomination was by acclamation until the end of the ticket was reached. A ballot was then necessary to elect Roosevelt and Taggart, as a worthy successor to President Roosevelt.

Second—An expression of pleasure over the nomination of William H. Taft, as a worthy successor to President Roosevelt.

Third—Indorsement of James S. Sherman as secretary of state.

Fourth—Indorsement of the entire national platform.

Fifth—Commendation of the services of the Minnesota delegation in congress.

Sixth—A demand for the revision of the tariff.

Seventh—Indorsement of the work on the Panama canal.

Eighth—Commendation of the policy of the United States in the conservation of natural resources.

Ninth—Demand for additional railway legislation.

Tenth—Approval of the tax amendment to the constitution proposed by the legislature.

Eleventh—Equal rights plank, with a resolution presented by the American Federation of Labor favoring the enactment of the employers' liability act.

Twelfth—A temperance plank, favoring the enactment of such legislation as would insure the strict enforcement of the local option and high license laws of the statute books.

Thirteenth—Commendation of the local option law.

Fourteenth—Favoring good roads.

The Temperance Plank. The temperance plank is as follows: That the prohibition of the sale, manufacture and control of the liquor traffic in this state, as is envisioned by the local option and high license laws in favor of which it declared in 1856 and subsequently enacted, and by many other acts of the legislature, in our statute, and we now favor and recommend such legislation as will strengthen these laws and insure strict enforcement.

A. J. Beckme of Zumbrota was selected for secretary and the following as assistant secretaries: C. B. Edlund, Austin; L. H. Brown, Wadena; T. W. Harris, and John A. Dalrymple.

Indiana Has $1,000,000. Ash Grove, Wis., July 2.—The first time in the history of the Chippewa Indians of Northern Wisconsin that more than an even million dollars are deposited in the hands of Ash Grove, Wis., Duluth and Bayfield. In 1900, only three years ago, the last lumber Indiana had $250,000, the Coeur d'Alene in Sawyer county $14,000, the Bad Creek Indians $95,000 and Lac Flanelle had $125,000. The Coeur d'Alene total being $255,000, which now in less than three years has increased to an even million dollars.

DENVER HAS A BIG JAMBOREE

THE CARNIVAL SPIRIT BREAKS OUT AND DELEGATES ENJOY THEMSELVES.

Crowds Cheer Johnson's Picture and Raise Hallelujahs When It Rivals Bryan's. Streets Illuminated and Congested.

Denver, July 2.—Denver's exuberance over the convention took on the name of a score of midsummer carnival last night. The brilliantly illuminated streets were filled throughout the evening with a throng that overflowed from the sidewalks into the streets and practically blocked all traffic at the intersections, where the ebullient flow of the passing multitude caused a congestion. The throngs of the downtown hotels were fairly choking with visitors and sightseers.

Everywhere a spirit of gaily prevailed, and while at times there was a decided political aspect to the celebration, it was in the main a merry-making of the people as a whole. The throngs of the downtown hotels were fairly choking with visitors and sightseers.

Politically decorated trolleys came fairly dazling the eye in the brilliance of their varicolored illumination of electric bulbs, made their way over the downtown streets with hands on board playing for the crowds. The revelry lasted until well into morning hours.

Political marching clubs, catching the spirit of the gaily, formed impromptu parades, and, carrying banners, marched through the streets to the cheer of the multitude.

In the hotel lobbies there occasionally was a conflict of interests. In one a huge banner bearing the picture of Gov. Johnson called out great cheering, which broke into a veritable whirlwind of opposing demonstrations when a large banner bearing a larger picture of Mr. Bryan was carried into the middle of the throng by an enthusiastic crowd of admirers of the Nebraskan.

Johnson vs. Bryan. For half an hour or more the cheering continued. Passing hands deflected into the lobby and pandemonium reigned. Tiring at last of the single scene of action the crowds moved on to other points and the celebration continued at high pitch.

The Fleet Sails. Leaves San Francisco On Its Long Cruise Around the World.

San Francisco, July 2.—With the turn of the tide yesterday, after the sixth noon, the Atlantic fleet of the United States navy, under the command of Rear Admiral Sperry's flagship Commodore, turned their bows toward the Golden Gate and the open sea and their long voyage to a home port in the Atlantic.

The last calls were made, goodbyes were said by officers to their families and friends, and when the sun peeped over the Berkeley hills, "Big 16," the battleships of the American navy, were ready to get away.

There were many thousands of San Francisco's population gathered on the high hills to watch the fleet's departure, but there was no official recognition of the event. A few bay craft gave shrill blasts of their whistles as a parting salute and the watching crowds silently waved adieu. Beyond this there was nothing to mark the sailing of the great sea forces more than the arrival or departure of other fleets.

LOSES HANDS AND EYES. Fourth of July Accident Terribly Grievous Twelve-year-old Lad.

Central City, S. D., July 2.—Throwing dynamite caps into a bonfire which they had built, may cost the life of Iver Rudd, a twelve-year-old boy of this place, who were celebrating the Fourth with his companions. Rudd had thrown in the caps singly and then to make more noise than in the whole box. The resulting explosion, while the boy was standing over the fire, terribly mangled his right hand and eye, as he lost the hand and eye, and both his hands will have to be amputated. He received a score of other injuries.

Anna Gould Married. London, July 2.—Miss Anna Gould and Prince Louis Bagan were married at a registry office in Henrietta street of Covent Garden yesterday. A subsequent ceremony was conducted at St. Paul's Protestant church on Bond Square.

Truth and Quality

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elias's Compound are the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

JUMPING AT A CONCLUSION. Marriage Did Not Follow the Nineteen Year's Courtship.

In the amiable way of villagers, they were discussing the matrimonial affairs of a couple who, though recently wed, had begun to feel the yoke of Hymen a burden.

"It is all along of these happy marriages," said one candid old gentleman, who had been much to the fore in the discussion. "They did not understand each other; they did not know each other for a matter of seven years."

"Well, that seems long enough," said an interested lady listener.

"Long, yes!" But, yes, I was wrong. When a body's courtin' he canna be too careful. Why, my courtship lasted a matter of 19 years!"

"You certainly were careful," agreed the lady listener. "And did you find your plan successful when you married?"

"Yes, I'm sure!" said the old man, impatiently. "I understood her then, so I didn't marry her!"—Tit-Bits.

Ed. Koran came up from St. Paul Saturday to spend a few days at the H. Pranghofer home.

Dave Pranghofer seems to be behaving a bad case of the blues since Monday. Wonder why?

Miss Christina Cort, who has been at work in St. Paul for the past year arrived home last week.

Mrs. James A. Humphrey and children, of Stillwater, are visiting Mrs. Humphrey's brother, Frank Saumer.

Miss Alice Davis returned Monday from a visit with relatives and friends in St. Paul and other points in the state.

Mrs. M. M. Barnes, of Sturgeon Lake, came down on Saturday and visited between trains with her mother, Mrs. F. Blank.

The Fourth of July dance held in David Pangerl's new barn was largely attended, and all report having had a good time. The music was furnished by the Davis Bros.

Marius and Bertha Markusen packed their household goods and departed for Minneapolis, Monday. They expect to make that city their future home. We are all sorry to see them go, but wish them success.

Mrs. Frank Cort, who accompanied her invalid sister, Miss Carrie Seeger, to Paterson, N. J., three weeks ago, returned home on Wednesday afternoon. She left her sister on inmate of a hospital, and very ill.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Peters celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, at their home on the Evanswick road. A large number of relatives and friends assembled in the afternoon and evening and spent an enjoyable time dancing and visiting. At a late hour the guests departed, wishing that Mr. and Mrs. Peters might live to celebrate many more anniversaries.

Rev. Hayes, pastor of the M. E. church, is having a new porch built on to the front of that edifice this week.

Miss Clara Scholer returned from Park Rapids, the latter part of last week, where she has been visiting with her sister for the past two months.

Mr. Berglin commenced painting the Morrow residence this week, which when completed will add very much to the appearance of the Morrow place.

Richard Rudquist had the misfortune to sprain his knee by stepping into a ditch, while crossing a field in which the high grass covered the ditch from his sight.

Willie Challeen invited some of his schoolmates and friends to his birthday party which was held Wednesday afternoon. All those who were fortunate enough to receive a bid, report having had a good time.

Goes to a New Field.

Prof. Hovorka and family left Beroun on Thursday for Pisk, N. D., where the professor has accepted a position as principal of the Pisk graded school. His son Cyril accompanied the car by way of Superior. The professor and the rest of the family stayed with Joe Korvel's family at Pine City over the Fourth, Mrs. Hovorka became sick on Friday, due to an operation performed about six weeks ago. On Tuesday the family continued their journey to North Dakota. Prof. Hovorka remained to await the recovery of his wife, who left the sick bed on Wednesday, and is recovering fast.

A committee from the territorial Pioneer's association are to meet with the state fair board, and the question of celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the State of Minnesota will be discussed. The old settlers are very anxious that the state fair do something to commemorate this event, and it is quite likely the fair management will cooperate with the pioneer's association in arranging an elaborate program for one or two days during the fair.

The Reasons:
1st—Each horizontal extension of the ELLWOOD is a steel cable, consisting of two heavy wires intertwined.
2d—Each of these cables is tied to each other cable by a continuous heavy wire lapped tightly about every cable—not tied in a crooked "knot" or twist to weaken the strength of the tie wire at the bending point. (Wrap a wire around your finger and the wire is not weakened. If a wire is up in a hard knot and you cannot untie it without breaking, it is so much weakened.)

THAT IS ALL THERE IS TO ELLWOOD FENCE—
Heavy steel cables lapped about and held together by steel wire, forming uniform meshes. Simple, isn't it? No chance for weakness in any part; uniformly strong. The reason for the superiority of ELLWOOD FENCE is not hard to find. This company owns and operates its own iron mines and furnaces; its own wire mills and six large fence factories—either one of the six being larger than any other fence factory in the world. These facts should be convincing.

Bankers and Merchants Bookkeeping Institute

120-128-130 So. 3rd St., Minneapolis, Minn.

Bookkeeping, Correspondence, Business Methods, Practical Penmanship.

Training Office is the proper conception of the Institute, not Business School or College, which implies study. Bookkeeping is, not study, hence training. We provide standing desks, high stools, telephones, same as in a bank or commercial office.

Actual Bookkeeping We have adopted the Actual Bookkeeping System of Training, (not teaching) This is a business-like system, whereby commercial transactions are represented by tangible orders, checks and invoices instead of being copied from a text book, or other device. The Common Sense Method.

Bankers and Merchants have for years found it difficult to obtain all to secure competent bookkeepers. To obviate this difficulty the Institute was organized.

Our Certificate of Competency is a guarantee to the bankers and merchants of the northwestern states that the holder is a trustworthy, painstaking and reliable accountant. One that can and will MAKE GOOD.

You can Be a competent bookkeeper by working (not studying) two or three months in our TRAINING Office. No classes or terms. INDIVIDUAL instruction. Pamphlet free, explaining the What's The Difference?

ONE of your neighbors has a neat, orderly home that is comforting and restful to look upon.
ANOTHER neighbor has an untidy home, with everything in it out of joint. Even the poor housewife seems unstrung.
WHY? do you ask?
THE DIFFERENCE is just this: SYSTEM in the one home—no place for anything and nothing in place in the other home. And of all the rooms in the house the Kitchen is the index.

With an

Ellwell Kitchen Cabinet

You can swing the whole house into order. Just come in and look at them. A place for everything, and everything in its place, and it saves the wife half the work and worry of bade day.

Here's one of the Most POPULAR Styles:

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Miller departed Tuesday for Brookpark, to spend a day on their farm near that place.

The ladies of the M. E. church at the dinner and supper at the village hall on the Fourth, cleared about $100.

The village hall is now completed, and the citizens need not be ashamed to show strangers the edifice, but it has to be seen to be appreciated.

C. Holbrook, of Minneapolis, traveling for the Bankers' Life association, of Des Moines, Iowa, was a Pine City visitor the first of the week.

E. English, of Minneapolis, came up on Tuesday to look after the interests of the Midland Lumber and Coal company, of this place, of which he is president.

LeRoy Wotly, the McClellan paper man, of Duluth, was shaking hands with old friends here the latter part of last week. LeRoy is always a welcome visitor to Pine City.

The St. Paul Grizzlies and the local base ball team will cross bats on the diamond on the north side of of the river Sunday afternoon. Game called at 1:30.

A. R. W. Olsen, of the Pine Poker, spent the Fourth at his old home at St. Peter. He reports having had a good time, and says that there was plenty of water there. He returned on Tuesday.

Ross Rath, eldest son of H. J. Rath, who has been in the western part of the state and Winnipeg for the past year and a half, returned home Wednesday afternoon. Ross looks as though the western country agreed with him.

Remember that the presiding elder of the M. E. church will preach, hold the last quarterly conference, for the conference year, and administer the Lord's Supper at the M. E. church this evening. Everybody welcome.

Mrs. Frank Cort, who accompanied her sister, Miss Carrie Seeger to Patterson, N. J., about three weeks ago, returned home on Wednesday afternoon. She reports that she left her sister in a hospital at Patterson, and very ill.

E. K. Copper, presiding elder of the M. E. church in this district, who was to have preached, held quarterly conference and administered the Lord's Supper on Wednesday evening, on account of unforeseen circumstances, had to postpone his visit until tonight, (Friday).

John Kinney, who has been employed at Banning in the capacity of engineer for the past six or seven years, has accepted the position as engineer of the Pine City Lumber company's tug, "Dirty Bess," in place of Thos. Osgrove, who resigned in order to accept a more lucrative position with a jewelry firm.

The Pine City cornet band have decided to practice but once a week, owing to the fact that three of their musicians live out in the country and have to drive from six to nine miles after the rehearsal. Wednesday has been decided on, as practice night and when the weather will permit the practice will be held in the Park, but when stormy, in the village hall.

County Superintendent Blankenship has issued diplomas for completing the common school course to the following pupils of Prof. Hovorka, of the Beroun school: Emma Chalupsky, Josie Chalupsky, Albert Hovorka, Charlotte Hovorka, John I. Hovorka, Jos. W. Hovorka, Anna M. Sebesta, and Rosie Sebesta. The following pupils of Miss A. Hovorka received diplomas: Maud Anderson, Estella Anderson, Gustie Fernal and Emma Topinka, of Dist. No. 45, and Myrtle Butler, of Dist. No. 25. Upon Prof. Hovorka's departure, he left the state certificates and diplomas with the director, Jos. Sebesta.

Senator Clapp spent Monday in Duluth on legal business.

Riviere's potato bug killer, Paris green, and Bordeaux mixture, for sale by the Smith Hardware Co.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the season, and our citizens commenced to think about going camping at the lake.

Al Pennington and two children drove over to Mora the first of the week, to see Mr. Pennington's sister, who was reported very ill.

Roy Fritzen, eldest son of Mr. and Dr. Minnie Fritzen, of Pokegama lake, arrived home Thursday morning after spending about 10 months on the Pacific coast.

Mrs. M. S. Collins, daughter and sister, Mrs. Wm. Monant, of Chipewaga Falls, are visiting with Douglas Greeley and family at their cottage at Pokegama lake.

W. E. Poole, who has been at Snow's photograph gallery at Manitowish, for the past four or five months, returned to his home in this place the latter part of last week, to remain for a few weeks.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian church will give a lawn social on the lawn at the Robert Derr residence next Wednesday evening, at which time ice cream and cake will be served. Everybody cordially invited.

W. C. Warren, of the Hinckley Enterprise, was one of the many from that place who came down to spend the Fourth. He was also some keeper for the boys from Hinckley during the ball game that afternoon.

Miss Daisy Russell departed on Tuesday for St. Paul, where she and her father, Frank, will go to house-keeping, Mr. Russell having secured work at his trade, that of painter, in the saintly City. We wish them success in their new home.

The grocery stores have decided to keep their stores open on Wednesday evenings so as to give those who cannot get away during the day a chance to buy their groceries during the week. And also for the benefit of the farmers during their busy season.

John Fisher and wife, who have run a laundry in Pine City for the past four years, moved their laundry machinery and household goods to Sandstone the first of the week, where they will start a laundry in the quarry city. We wish them success in their new home.

"Salvation by Works" will be the subject at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. In the evening a union service will be held in the M. E. church. Subject, "Motives in our Religious Life." The following Sunday evening a union service will be held in the Presbyterian church. J. A. Pannock, Pastor.

The steamer is now running on schedule time, leaving Fritzen's sanatorium at the head of the lake at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m., and the dock at this place at 11:30 a. m. and 5 p. m. Fare 25 cents for single trip or 35 cents for round trip if party goes or comes on the same trip. Cards announcing the schedule and prices have been printed and will be posted in conspicuous places about town and at the lake.

On Tuesday evening at about 10 o'clock, while oiling the lower part of the Pine City Lumber company's mill, Henry Hammer, the night millwright, had the misfortune to have the sleeve of his jacket catch, and before help arrived he was wound around the shaft, badly bruising his right arm and lacerating the muscles of his left arm. Dr. Wiseman was called, who dressed the wounds and made him as comfortable as possible.

L. A. Elbert, of Tacoma, Wash., who was station agent here about 16 years ago, has been shaking hands with old-time friends for the past week. Mr. Elbert came east to attend the Shrimers' convention to be held in St. Paul next week. Mr. Elbert informed us that when he was so near his old home he could not resist the temptation to visit it once more. He said he had no idea that Pine City had grown to be such a nice place, and had improved so much. He made the Pioneer sever- al calls during his stay.

TALES OF LAKE AND RIVER

BEING THE CHRONICLES OF SOME FRESH WATER SALS

BY GEORGE TICKELL

MRS. FRANK STROEBE

A MARTINET OF THE LAKES

"As to this getting married and set ting down," said Capt. Boggs, "I've figured it out that I can't lose any thing. There's a bit of property to be considered, too, and then I ain't as young as I used to be."

"You're not," said the mate of the Uncas, heatedly. "Nor as lively on your feet, you ain't. You've let fat get something there, and got hair there left on your head ain't worth mentioning."

"Never mind about my hair," returned the captain, indignantly. "Taint hair but brains wot counts. And yours is mostly slash, and as I can see a man had to know something to hold his job when I was a mate."

"I wouldn't have thought so," retorted Mr. Brennan, "supposin' you cut out the history of your life and get down to business."

"Well, it's this way," said the captain. "You stand by to give me a hand and I'll do the right thing when I get the money."

"You've got to handle me like a wot to handle you like a underling." The mate's under jaw stopped short in its pleasing task of masticating a freshly-cut cube of tobacco, as the owner glared open-mouthed at his superior.

"You've got to handle me like a wot," he said in amazed astonishment. "Like a underling," repeated the captain, with a satisfied air. "Underlings, Bob, are persons under you servants, nigger funkies, and such like that you can bash about and treat like dogs. Maggie asked me if I was harsh with my underlings, and I didn't know you need a little liquor. Hand out the bottle and we'll talk this thing over."

"Still grumbling over the cold justice shown to his feelings, Mr. Brennan secured the desired retreatment from an adjacent locker. As the contents of the bottle waxed beautifully less the captain's arguments became more eloquent and convincing, and the mate gradually acknowledged the beauty of the proposed scheme.

"'Mebbe it is, and mebbe not," said the mate, sulkily. "But I dunno as I care to be rated with dogs and blast me if I mean to be used like one."

"I'll be all right," pleaded the captain. "Can't you understand? I jist pretend to knock you about a bit."

"That's what you do," remarked the mate. "But when the marriage is over," said Boggs confidentially. "The mother a widow and old Bardell left her well fixed. Maggie's an only child and has a nice fortune countin' when she gets hitched."

"How old is she?" inquired the mate.

"Past 20," returned the captain. "His mate indulged in a sinister leer."

"Why you might be her father," he commented, cheerfully.

The captain's red face took on a purple tinge.

"That'll be enough of your sass," he growled. "This is not comes of my confidencin' to let you in on my private affairs."

"I didn't ask you to," retorted the mate. "Taint my fault if the truth hurts so as well as you? But wot's to prevent her thinking that I can hang my men if I want to, providin' you do my best? She and her mother's goin' to take a trip to Chicago with us, and I'm the whole thing on this boat. Are you on?"

"If you're figurin' that I'm goin' to wear handcuffs to oblige you, I ain't on, and you'd better sign another mate, and not lose any time about it, either," said Mr. Brennan, decidedly.

"Who's talkin' of havin' you wear handcuffs?" inquired the captain indignantly. "I'll all be make-believe, as I'm tryin' to explain, if you only listen, and not keep buttin' in with fool remarks."

"Fits away, then," said the mate, resignedly. "I'm listenin'."

"First of all," resumed Boggs, "we've got to make arrangements for the reception."

The mate uttered an exclamation, and was about to speak, but checked himself, and sat regarding his commander with a patient, wondering stare.

"When they come aboard," pursued the captain, "you line up 12 of the crew at the gangway, six to each side, and you in the middle. I'll stand back by the funnel, and when they pass through the lines you wheel round and lead 'em up to me. Then all of you swing your hands to your heads—regulate navy style, and I'll salute back. After that you form a guard of honor and show 'em to the cabin."

The mate expectedly "figgered," "sounds rotten to me," he remarked, disparagingly. "A girl with the sense of a rabbit oughter be made sick by such fool play. But it's your funeral, do on."

"You don't know her, Bob," said the captain, strong in his superior knowledge. "She'll take it as a big compliment. Maggie's bin readin' novels that's full of such stuff, and the more she reads on the better she'll like it. Another thing, you mus' tip off the crew that there's to be no familiarity with me. They mus' salute whenever they pass me and not speak unless they're spoken to first. And don't you come none of them free-and-easy back-slappin' day you hear of some one else that by a sign that ain't bad. The game it 'ud be if a bullet slipped in accidental and you plugged me."

"There ain't no law could touch me if I did," responded Boggs, impatiently. "Long as I didn't mean it, that's I dunno but what Maggie'd think all the mors of me. Gals like a man wot's summat reckless."

By a powerful effort of will the mate swallowed the lump that had arisen wrathfully in his throat.

"Summat reckless!" he repeated in a voice of bitter irony. "An' the law couldn't touch you, eh? And wot about me? Where do I come in at? Dye think I'm clump enough to hire out as a blasted target for a leather-headed, loveless scow skipper to plump lead into?"

"Go easy, Bob," said the captain, soothingly. "Your nerves is a bit shock and you need a little liquor. Hand out the bottle and we'll talk this thing over."

"Still grumbling over the cold justice shown to his feelings, Mr. Brennan secured the desired retreatment from an adjacent locker. As the contents of the bottle waxed beautifully less the captain's arguments became more eloquent and convincing, and the mate gradually acknowledged the beauty of the proposed scheme.

He ventured to caress it gently. To turn loose this cannon when my crew tried to murder me?"

"How about your mother and the girl, while her mother groans in horror. "Did—did you shoot anyone?"

"Had to," returned the captain, bravely. "It was their lives or mine, you see."

"I had no idea such terrible things happened on the lakes," said Miss Bardell, thoughtfully. "Strange that the papers never mention anything about it."

"Dead men tell no tales, and a captain ain't no exception," responded the voracious Mr. Boggs. "Sides which the owners are rich men with lots of influence and whenever there's any talk about it they manage to keep it hushed up, so that the public don't get to hear of it."

"But there's your mate," suggested the girl. "He's a sure and quiet, a good-looking fellow, and not a bit like a ruffian."

The captain eyed her suspiciously. "Looks all right," he commented grumpily. "Brennan's as bad as the rest, only he knows what to expect if he bats his eye at me."

"You're not a ruffian, but her behavior to the mate that night was extremely gracious, and much to Boggs' surprise she paced the deck with her feet in a command, and nearly an hour, while the captain glared wrathfully at them from his station on the bridge. The highly gratified Mr. Brennan was not unconscious of the interest he had awakened in the breast of his fair companion, and he improved the shining hour by dwelling tactfully on the hard fate of seamen condemned to stand the abuse of a tyrannical captain.

"A holy terror, that's wot he is," said the mate. "There ain't a harder man sailin' the lakes. I wouldn't have the weight on my conscience as he's got—not for a whole fleet of steamers. It's a awful thing to have human blood on your hands. And the men ain't to blame; there's not one of the crew that 'ud hurt a fly. But he's got the ear of the owners and he's got him up in all his devilments. Mebbe I'm too soft-hearted for this life, though, and anyway I oughtn't to speak agin him to you."

"Why not?" demanded the aroused Miss Bardell.

"Oh, well," said the artful mate, hesitatingly. "I dunno. When a girl in love with a man it ain't exactly right for another fellow to run him down to her."

"Has he been telling you that I'm in love with him?" inquired Miss Bardell, with the dawning light of battle in her brown eyes.

"I didn't say so," returned the mate.

"But you meant it, though," said the girl, sharply. "And I jist tell you that I'm not. Horrid beast! Why, he's worse than an Uncle Tom slave driver. I wouldn't marry a man like him if he was worth a million, at the way I've seen him act on this trip. What would he treat a wife like?"

"I fancied I heard him say you was full of heroes," remarked the designing mate.

"Heroes!" repeated the girl, scornfully. "I don't call it heroic to bully a poor fruit caddy, but and torture a poor fruit caddy on the banks of the Sacagawea river."

you is scandalous, shoving you around and insulting you whenever he feels like it. I don't see how you can stand it. I don't believe a really brave man would put up with such conduct."

The mate flushed.

"I ain't afraid of him," he asserted, doggedly.

"Well, you act like it," rejoined the girl, crisply.

"See here," said Brennan, "I show you before the trip's over that I ain't afraid of him, may I come and see you when we're ashore?"

"Do that," said Miss Bardell, decidedly. "and—and you can come to see me as often as you like."

Her hand rested for a moment in the mate's bare palm and he ventured to squeeze it gently. The pressure was faintly returned.

As the Uncas neared Chicago her commander excelled all his previous efforts in the terrific role of fresh water martinet. The cabin-boy crouched like a frightened hare at his approach and the deckhands led before him in the path of a hurricane. The dinner table to meet with his approval, he summoned the trembling cook to his presence and with extraordinary vigor, ending the harangue with an order to the mate to convey the honored guest to her cabin. He followed Mr. Brennan, standing at attention, suffered his features to relax into a sardonic grin.

"You ain't afraid of me," he said with insolent emphasis, "and can't be makin' a monkey of yourself."

The captain answered what he supposed to be his cue, by producing his revolver and presenting the shining barrel at the mate's head.

"Stun, by heavens!" he roared, while the widow shrieked aloud at her daughter gasped. "Another word, you bound, and I'll blow your brains out!"

The mate took a step forward and a loud report rang out. His next move occurred grievously from the schedule arranged, for before the smoke faded a heavy fist collided violently with the captain's jaw and he dropped with a resounding crash. Brennan picked up the body and gave him and thrusting the weapon into his pocket assisted the fallen martinet to his feet.

"You ain't fit to be trusted with firearms," he said, curtly. "Open your head to me again, I'll knock it off your shoulders."

Boggs stared stupidly at the traitorous destroyer of his hopes and then turned to the women, who were gazing upon the heroic mate with intense admiration.

"It was all a joke, Maggie," he said, appealingly, but Miss Bardell-thid her nose at a scornful angle and walked away, holding her mother's arm.

"Look here," said the infuriated one to the grinning mate. "What kind of a game d'ye call this? Wot does it mean?"

"It's all a joke, as you said just now," explained Mr. Brennan, blandly. "Can't other folks have a little fun as well as you?"

"Watt till we're ashore," stormed the incensed captain. "I'll show you what it means to assault your superior officer, my lad!"

"Oh, all right," responded the mate, lightly. "Praps you think the law allows you to pull a gun on a man for nothin', and remember, I've not witnessed that you tried to shoot me."

He turned and made his way to the cabin, where Mrs. Bardell and her daughter sat discussing his act of valor.

When the Uncas' two passengers disembarked at the Wells street bridge Capt. Boggs stood watching them gloomily a prey to the contending emotions of humiliation and rage. Between the widow and her daughter stood the tall, erect figure of the dejected mate, his visage wreathed with an expansive smile.

A Remarkable Recovery.
Mrs. Frank Stroeb, 11, F. D. I. Appin, Wis., writes: "I began using Pears a few months ago, when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck, could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and felt no desire to live. It is a great relief to find life in a different light, as I began to regain my strength."
"I certainly think Pears is without a rival as a food and strength builder."

Romance and Reality.
"Let the youngsters have their romance—an' it'll be all the better for 'em if they get a purty good dose on it, but don't hide from 'em the fact that there's somethin' in the shape of trouble a waitin' for 'em up the road." said Mr. Billy Saunders. "Not big trouble, but trouble all the same. It's a fact of rough places, an' they ain't times when you have to leave the big road an' take a short-cut through the brush. The briars here to keep from slippin' in the middle might smother you. It ain't no use to deny it, trouble is seasonin'. I never knowed it to hurt anybody but the weak-minded, the willful an' them that was born to be puny."
—Joe Chandler Harris, in Uncle Sam's Magazine.

Hurt a Convict's Pride.
A church missionary had a letter recently from a convict begging him to reform the writer's wife, who was also in prison.
"The convict—who is serving a long term—was very anxious about the matter, because as he said, 'It was an credit to him to receive letters from such a place as prison.'"
Another convict, in the course of a letter to his brother, a pauper, remarked: "Well, I think goodness is have never sunk so low as the work-house yet!"—London Daily News.

"Bowed Magnificently to His Visitors." In which he finally promised to play his part. A stipulation that his officer should personally superintend the loading of the death-dealing weapon was cheerfully acceded to by the triumphant captain.

Mrs. Bardell and her pretty daughter, arriving on board the good ship Uncas the following morning, were flattered and surprised by the manner of their reception. Capt. Boggs, resplendent in a gold-braided cap and jacket, the latter glittering with highly polished brass buttons, swelled perceptibly with exultant pride as he bowed magnificently to his visitors. He himself regretted the fact that the Uncas, being engaged solely in cargo traffic, carried no other passengers who might have witnessed his exalted state. The dignity of the proceedings was somewhat marred by the irrepressible grins of the deckhands who formed the escort of the party, but with this trifling exception all passed off smoothly.

From the moment the Uncas cast off from the wharf at Buffalo and commenced her voyage, the autocratic sway of Capt. Boggs assumed truly gorgeous proportions. The crew, entering into the spirit of the thing, cringed before his scowl like the abject subjects of some savage monarch. His slightest orders were issued in a voice of stentorian tones and with excessive emphasis, so much so that the helpless cabin-boy, who was deemed unworthy of initiation into the secret of the thing, was reduced to a state of terror-stricken misery under the conviction that his master had become suddenly insane.

On the second day a report by the mate to the effect that one of the men was ill and unable to work stirred the commander into a frenzy of royal rancor.

"Tonsie him out!" he roared, tempestuously. "I'll have no skulking aboard my ship."

"Ay, ay, sir," rejoined the submissive Brennan, touching his cap respectfully.

"Stop a moment," thundered the captain. "If he ain't up and haulin' inside of ten minutes, into the irons with him, the extra heavy ones."

The mate departed, and Miss Bardell, who had listened in round-eyed to turn loose this cannon when my crew tried to murder me?"

"How about your mother and the girl, while her mother groans in horror. "Did—did you shoot anyone?"

"Had to," returned the captain, bravely. "It was their lives or mine, you see."

"I had no idea such terrible things happened on the lakes," said Miss Bardell, thoughtfully. "Strange that the papers never mention anything about it."

"Dead men tell no tales, and a captain ain't no exception," responded the voracious Mr. Boggs. "Sides which the owners are rich men with lots of influence and whenever there's any talk about it they manage to keep it hushed up, so that the public don't get to hear of it."

"But there's your mate," suggested the girl. "He's a sure and quiet, a good-looking fellow, and not a bit like a ruffian."

The captain eyed her suspiciously. "Looks all right," he commented grumpily. "Brennan's as bad as the rest, only he knows what to expect if he bats his eye at me."

"You're not a ruffian, but her behavior to the mate that night was extremely gracious, and much to Boggs' surprise she paced the deck with her feet in a command, and nearly an hour, while the captain glared wrathfully at them from his station on the bridge. The highly gratified Mr. Brennan was not unconscious of the interest he had awakened in the breast of his fair companion, and he improved the shining hour by dwelling tactfully on the hard fate of seamen condemned to stand the abuse of a tyrannical captain.

"A holy terror, that's wot he is," said the mate. "There ain't a harder man sailin' the lakes. I wouldn't have the weight on my conscience as he's got—not for a whole fleet of steamers. It's a awful thing to have human blood on your hands. And the men ain't to blame; there's not one of the crew that 'ud hurt a fly. But he's got the ear of the owners and he's got him up in all his devilments. Mebbe I'm too soft-hearted for this life, though, and anyway I oughtn't to speak agin him to you."

"Why not?" demanded the aroused Miss Bardell.

"Oh, well," said the artful mate, hesitatingly. "I dunno. When a girl in love with a man it ain't exactly right for another fellow to run him down to her."

"Has he been telling you that I'm in love with him?" inquired Miss Bardell, with the dawning light of battle in her brown eyes.

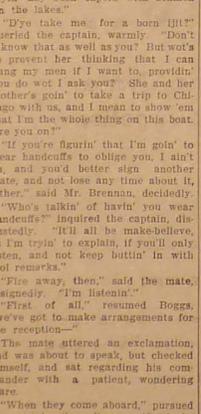

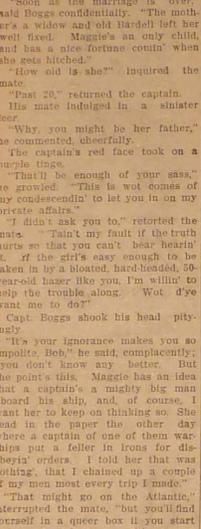

"I didn't say so," returned the mate.

"But you meant it, though," said the girl, sharply. "And I jist tell you that I'm not. Horrid beast! Why, he's worse than an Uncle Tom slave driver. I wouldn't marry a man like him if he was worth a million, at the way I've seen him act on this trip. What would he treat a wife like?"

"I fancied I heard him say you was full of heroes," remarked the designing mate.

"Heroes!" repeated the girl, scornfully. "I don't call it heroic to bully a poor fruit caddy, but and torture a poor fruit caddy on the banks of the Sacagawea river."

Ship Subsidy in Mexico. The Mexican government has granted an appropriation of $1,000 a round trip to a steamship line which will ply between Galveston, Tex., and points in the state of Tabasco. Two trips a month are to be made. The transportation company agrees to cultivate and develop the banana and other tropical fruit trade, it being stated that many Americans have also started fruit culture on the banks of the Sacagawea river.

bit and holler at you. Before we make Chicago we'll have a row be- tween the women, owing to you not carryin' out an order quick enough. Then I'll pull out my gun and shoot you."

The mate uttered a howl of indignant horror, and half rose to his feet, clenching a fist of formidable dimensions.

"Sit down, Bob," expostulated the mate, placatingly. "Don't get riled; I'll only fire a blank cartridge, and make out the shot missed you. Then I'll spare your life and order you back to duty, and wishing to still blood when ladies are present. Maggie's fair nitty over heroes and gallant officers, like wot she's read about, and if that don't win her, nobble will."

Mr. Brennan gave vent to a subdued growl of protest.

"I don't fancy them tricks with firearms," he said doggedly. "Most every

THE DESERTER

By Emmett Campbell Hall

Copyright, by Storyline Pub. Co.

The long gray column crawled slowly along the white road—the April sun blazed fiercely in a speckless sky. The convulsive shiver of the ramping regiment raised a cloud of dust that hung heavy in the still air, and then settled slowly. From time to time expectant but listless glances were directed to the rear.

Suddenly a bright speck flashed for an instant upon the hill in the rear, and a moment later a torrent of blue-clad horsemen poured over the crest and swept down the road. The column faced about, spreading out into the fields. It was troublesome to climb the rail fences, so they pushed them down.

In a swirl of sabers that flashed prettily in the bright sunlight the horses came on. A sharp command was spoken and a host of sabers leaped from the gray line, a haze of smoke was slowly dissipated and the hills gave back an echo to the crash of the volley—a bugle called shrilly.

In strange postures a litter of men and horses were scattered over the ground. Farther back the retreating cavalrymen bent low on their horses' necks.

With unconcerned weariness the gray ranks fell together and tramped on the road of Northern Virginia was used to cavalry routes.

At the tag end of the column a longlimbed mountaineer slouched, a disconsolate look upon his sunburnt face. Occasionally he gave vent to a long and complicated oath.

"How much longer is this fool business to keep up?" he groaned helplessly to a comrade. "I'm blasted tired of running, myself. No Baker never was a runnin' fool, I know!" He lunged into military alliance.

Far back in the white road the dead man made black dots.

When night came the men simply dropped down on the dusty grass by the roadside. Far in the rear twinkled the campfires of another army.

"Look at them fires," said Jim Baker, indicating the distant lights. "Them fellers air a-bilin' coffee!" He cheered savagely on a mouthful of parched corn meal.

Out of the darkness came the sound of a galloping horse and the sharp "Halt! Who goes there?" of the picket. A muttered word, and the "Pass on, friend!" of the sentry.

Soon a whisper passed from man to man, a whisper greeted by some with tears and by some with curses; a truce was ordered—the army was to surrender.

When the roll of B company was called in the camp dawn, Jim Baker failed to answer to his name.

"Anybody seen Jim?" the sergeant asked at large.

"Seed him last night," a soldier volunteered.

"Wouldn't thought it of Jim?" was the muttered comment in the ranks. "never would a thought Jim would be a deserter! Lord! that sho' will kill Jim's old paw. He fit with Jackson in Mexico—told Jim never to come home if he had to come with his tail betwix his talis'."

The color-sergeant raved and swore. Nowhere could he find the tattered flag that he had placed beside him the night before.

When the rolls of the army of Northern Virginia were turned over to the army of the Potomac they bore after the name "Jim Baker," the single shameful word, "Deserter."

Two ex-confederate soldiers climbed the winding path that led to a cabin perched on the side of the mountain.

"Bill, I jest can't tell him!" the taller of the two exclaimed, as they neared the cabin. "Mo' on like he'll fill us full of hotshot fer sayin' so—won't believe it!"

"Ef he wasn't sho' ter find out sooner or later anyhow, I'd say he was killed, but it wouldn't be healthy fer us when he did find out, if he is!"

A white-haired old man came out from the cabin and seated himself on a bench. His face was crossed by a thousand wrinkles and he had plainly passed his three-score-and-ten, yet his step was like and his eye bright and quick like a hawk's.

The two men approached the cabin and seated themselves on the log stoop.

"Howdy, boys?" the old man asked.

The two each took a chew of "dog green" and meditated. The shorter was evidently of the quicker nature, for he soon became aware that he had been spoken.

"Jest tollerable, thank yer, Mr. Baker. How yo' comin' on?" he replied.

"Tollerable, thank yer," old man Baker responded.

Presently he looked them over curiously.

"How yo' fellers git off?" he asked.

"Didn't have ter git off—air done—we all is lickered," the taller one said heavily.

The bushy brows of the old man lowered.

"Don't 'pear to see Jim with yo'alls?" he said.

The shorter man nodded his companion and the latter rose.

"Old man, yo' know I's been a fren' of Jim's all my life," he said with a certain rueful eloquence. "But I tell yo' of I had a knowin' in that war I's employed my own inter-him to a kept yer from this. Jim deserted the night

HORTICULTURE

NEAT BERRY BASKET CARRIER.
It Will Help the Picker in Moving the Smaller Boxes.

The size of this carrier depends upon the shape and size of baskets used and the number of it is used to accommodate. As many as two dozen of the oblong strawberry boxes can be carried, or any smaller number.

A Picker's Box Carrier.

Itself, and four sections of broom handle attached as legs at the corners, long enough to lift it well above the vines and tapered at the ends. One of the carrier is made of an iron barrel hoop passed entirely around the carrier and fastened to the bottom and sides, making a strong, light and easily constructed handle.

COMBATING INSECT PESTS.

Grower Who Has Found Hot Water to Do Good Work.

There are three kinds of caterpillars which are especially injurious to cabbages, the imported cabbage worm, the cabbage pluta and the zebra caterpillar. This may be taken as their order of destructiveness, the first easily surpassing both of the other.

The imported worm multiplies rapidly. There are several broods during the season, so that it is present from early till late. If the worst of extermination were to include the adult it might often save trouble and loss. It is a butterfly and easily distinguished from others.

The front wings of the female are white with two black spots on each and a spot on the hind wings. The male is similar but with one black spot on the front wing. The insects are easily caught in butterfly nets. Children will gather in scores of them some years, when there is a small reward offered.

The worm gets its growth in about two weeks, when it leaves the cabbage plant and seeks a secluded place to pupate. In about ten days more it comes forth a butterfly. The whole span of its life from egg to adult is thus completed in less than four weeks. If boards are placed near the plants, one end slightly elevated so that the worm can go under freely, chrysalids may be obtained. They will be found with the lower end attached to the board and held close to it by a silken thread, and the body near the head, reminding one of a papoose strapped on a board.

These chrysalids may be gathered, but it is best not to crush them for two reasons. First, because there are chrysalids of harmless butterflies which may be mistaken for them and which there is no need of killing; second, because if any ichneumon flies develop they should be allowed to live. It is better to keep the pupae in a box till the butterflies are out, then kill the right ones.

Of the many remedies for killing the worms, I find none more serviceable for the few cabbages in the home garden than hot water. If the temperature is a few degrees less than the boiling point it does not harm the leaves and if it is above 130 degrees it is death to the worms. By going over the plants occasionally they are easily kept free from the pest. Kerosene emulsion or the arsenates may be used on young plants, but I do not find them necessary.

Occasionally we hear people say that the cabbage worms have eaten into the heads. However, this is not the imported worm, but the pluta, which is easily distinguished from it. In color it is light green, with lighter stripes running the length of the body. It crawls by looping. The adult is a dark gray moth, but as it flies at night or on cloudy days it is often met with.

Fellow That Doesn't Spray.

One of the complaints that come to this office is that the orchards that are sprayed and taken care of are infested with insects from orchards that are not sprayed and are not taken care of. Sometimes in a community of orchardists all will spray but one, and that one will permit his orchard to be a breeding place for all kinds of insects that ravage the orchards. There is nothing to be done in such a case but to apply moral suasion. The passing of laws does no good, for there is no general machinery for enforcing laws. It is assumed that citizens will take on themselves the enforcing of laws, which they will not do. The fellow that doesn't spray should have the good sense to look into the matter and take effective measures to prevent his orchard from becoming a detriment to others.

Empress Yields Her Turn.

The celebrated Dr. Metzger of Amsterdam, who more successfully treated the empress of Austria, had only one waiting room for all his patients, whatever their rank or condition. Each had to wait his turn. On this the doctor rightly insisted. Once a poor woman who happened to be in the waiting room turned to her neighbor, a lady of distinguished appearance, notwithstanding the simplicity of her attire, and said: "How long we have to wait, to be sure. I dare say you have a little child at home, too?" "No," the woman got back you will have to sweep out your rooms?" "No, I have folks who do that for me." "Indeed! But you'll want to get dinner ready?" "Not even that, for I dine at the hotel." "Very well, as you have nothing particular to do, you might let me have your turn?" "Very willingly," replied the lady, who was the empress of Austria.

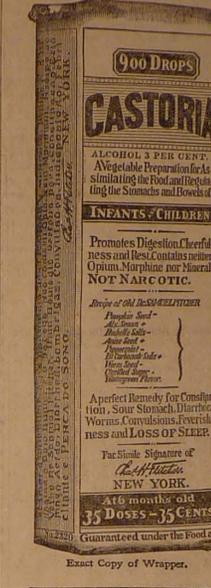

"Fulter's Earth"

Fulter's earth is an earth so-called because of its use formerly by fullers or blanchers of cloth to absorb the grease and oil collected by the cloth while being woven. It is an all earthy hydrated silicate of aluminum, greenish in color generally, though sometimes bluish, white or even brown. It is found in the Dolomite or Jurass series of rocks, that is, in the third of the five divisions into which geologists divide the earth's crust. The maximum depth of a deposit of fulter's earth is 400 feet. It is found in this country in commercial quantities.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

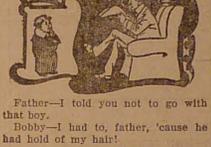

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
Dr. B. Dwyer, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."
Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."
Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."
Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."
Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Four Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."
Dr. H. P. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."
Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

DOCTOR SAID "USE CUTICURA"

In Bad Case of Eczema on Child—Disease Had Reached a Fearful State—His Order Resulted in Complete Cure.

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. BIGGEST DAY IN PINE CITY'S HISTORY.

After supper the circus again gave a performance and the merry-go-round had a crowd of youngsters as well as older ones, until time for the fireworks, which, owing to a misunderstanding, did not come up to what it was intended to be.

The naval parade, the log rolling contest and the boat races were not pulled off.

After the fireworks the day's entertainment came to an end with the Firemen's ball in Stekl's hall in the evening. Cafarella's Minneapolis orchestra furnished the music. The dance was not patronized by the home people to any great extent, but the hall was comfortably filled by those strangers who were waiting for the early morning trains. Those who did attend all report having had a fine time.

This was the best Fourth of July Pine City ever saw and one long to be remembered by her citizens, has passed and gone into history as the largest and most orderly crowd of people ever seen at one time at any place in Pine county, or at any place between the twin cities and Duluth, there being between seven and eight thousand people inside the village limits.

A Farce Game.

The local team of base ball players and Willow River gave an exhibition four innings, of what a farce the national game could be made, on Sunday afternoon. It rained until 2 o'clock, and the grounds were wet. Whenever the ball touched the ground the horse hide cover became so saturated with water that the pitchers had to just toss the ball enough to carry it over the plate, and the batters were striking their heads off at the empty air whenever the pitchers succeeded in getting a ball as far as the plate, which was seldom, for each pitcher passed more men to bases in the four innings played than they would ordinarily in four or five full games. At the end of the fourth inning, when the last ball had been dug out of the wet grass, the score sheet showed that the Willow River boys were the winners by 6 to 4.

Music Pupils Entertain.

On Wednesday evening the pupils of Miss Jessamine Allen gave an entertainment in the Presbyterian church, known as a "Concert by the Pine City Symphony Orchestra."

Each number on the program was well rendered, and shows that Miss Allen takes a great deal of pains with her pupils.

The concert was not as well attended as the quality of music rendered should justify, but those who did hear it were well repaid for the time and money spent.

One of the best features of the entertainment was the rendering of the "Mocking Bird with Variations" by Miss Alice Myers, of Bush City. This little Miss played this difficult selection without a skip, and received the applause she so well merited.

Indian Wedding at State Fair.
In a letter received by C. N. Cosgrove, secretary of the State Fair from Major C. B. Jackson, Indian agent at Mission Agency in South Dakota, it was suggested that a marriage in the Indian village, which is to be established on the Fair Grounds during Fair week might be an interesting feature of the fair.

Maj. Jackson, who is to bring 300 Sioux from his agency, to the fair, writes that there are several couples in the party who have indicated a desire to be married on the fair grounds, and it is quite possible that this feature will be arranged for. The event will receive ample publicity through the newspapers so that all who wish to see one of the brave warriors joined in wedlock to coy and winsome squaw, will undoubtedly have the opportunity at some time during the fair.
