A WORLD'S FAIR AT HOME A SUNDAY EVENING WORSHIP

A State Public Enterprise Well Worth of State Pride—The Exhibition This Year Grandest Than Ever.

The Minnesota state fair has not only risen to the dignity of a national exposition but is now practically entered as a center for all the great attractions of the world.

Only such persons as sinborily restrict their vision to the scope of selfish interest, or, at the farthest, to the confines of immediate local surroundings, can fail to grasp the significance of such an institution as the Minnesota state fair. What figure does a period of twenty years when we compare the Minnesota state fair with the state fair of twenty years ago, who can longer stand his eyes to the coming magnitude of the institution?

Is not the Minnesota state fair at the center of the twin cities?

What does that signify?

That it naturally draws to itself and harmonizes the great agricultural, industrial and commercial interests that gravitate about this common center.

Are not the twin cities the geographical center of the North American continent?

What does that signify?

That we are now nearer to the trade of the great Oriental empire than either Liverpool, or Hamburg, or Marseilles; and when one considers the struggles of England, Germany and France over the "Eastern question" during the past 2,000 years, who will be so stubborn as to throw sticks into the wheels of Minnesota state fair advancement?

Some of our towns have grown almost silly over the matter of local matters, such as "Minneapolis Makes Good," "St. Paul Makes Better," "Out to Win," "Do it Now," etc., but a "World's Fair at Home" ought to "listen good" to every loyal citizen of Minnesota.

Putting Sawdust to Practical Use

Sawdust is one of the puzzling wastes in lumbering operations. The waste is serious too, for the keel—the part cut out by the saw in the mill and transformed into saw dust—always bears a rather high rate to the boards obtained. In cutting this stuff one-fourth of the log or even more, may be keel.

Efforts to turn sawdust into pulp for the paper mill have usually been unsuccessful on account of mechanical difficulties in handling. In several European countries, however, a new way has been found of turning sawdust to account. The sawdust, chiefly pine and fir, is ground with millstones, exactly as old-time mills made corn meal, or wheat or rye flour. Expensive machinery is not required, but it is necessary to take special precautions against fires which might start from sparks between the millstones.

The sawdust flour is sold to the dynamite factories to be mixed with nitro glycerin and forms the body or absorbent of that high explosive. It is also in demand for the manufacture of cheap blotting papers. The mills in the Harz mountains, in Germany, an important manufacturing center, are kept busy meeting this demand.

The price of the "flour" in Germany ranges from $7.50 to $12.50 a ton. It is shipped in bags, like meal, or in barrels of about 40 cwt. each, made by means of high pressure.

IN THE HOLY LAND

Rev. L. Buechler, Dean of Cass Lake, Gives a Graphic Description of His Travels in Palestine.

It is when one travels, making a trip as I have done, that one experiences the difference a life makes as to climate. I had left Cass Lake the beginning of January and although it could have been colder the weather showed all the signs of winter. It was only four days, and when I came to Washington D. C. the weather was as here in the beginning of September. We left New York January 16 and it was only eight days after the great twin screw steamer Carmalia had brought us out on the deep that we arrived at the beautiful Madeira, islands, and our feelings may be imagined when we landed at Funchal, the capital, and saw hundreds of orange and lemon trees heavy with the most luscious fruits, a flora of the most variegated flowers, and a fragrance that had a very pleasant effect after the sea and tar smell of the ship.

At Funchal we had dinner that day with the oranges that we were partaking of at the end of the meal not resting on fruit dishes, but the oranges and the lemons (the right kind of lemons) handed to us, as it were, by the arms of those beautiful trees—the arms, fruit filled, were actually hanging over the table.

Funchal is a very pretty city, with about 5,000 happy inhabitants living largely on the many tourists, in great part American, who come there on account of the, I dare say, unequalled climate. The city has beautifully paved streets, grand schools and many, and churches built with a true conception that the best of God should be the climax of their best efforts towards beauty and grandeur. It was, to say the least, touching to see how hundreds of children were gathering flowers Saturdays in order to adorn the churches for the Lord's day.

Funchal is very hilly and although there is no snow in the place one may enjoy a real sleigh ride. The ride is in an actual sleigh down a hill paved with very small stones. The sleighs are given their own momentum down to the valley. A rope fastened to the sleigh on each side is held by a man who holds the sleigh back and so prevents too much of a breakneck speed. Here we spent a few days and then went to Gibraltar, an English possession. A highly edifying thing that we noted at Gibraltar was that no team or carriage was allowed to pass any church denomination faster than a walk. In the neighboring Spanish city, Laina, Catholic, Gibraltar nearly all protestant. I am sorry to say there was not the same edifying feature.

Leaving Gibraltar we pass in view of the shores of Africa on our way to Genoa. From Genoa we went to Naples. From there we passed through the straits of Messina, which divide Sicily from Italy. We were able to very clearly observe the volcanoes Stromboli and Aetna. At Naples we were fortunate enough to see the famous blood of St. Januarius. It is the queer, by faithful and unyielding alike uncontestable fact of the blood of St. Januarius each year on his name's day. The Neapolitans proudly tell of how the carrying in procession of this blood of St. Januarius prevented the lava from Vesuvius from overwhelming the city and destroying the people. Not far from Naples is the destroyed city of Pompeii, where we notice how the inhabitants were taken entirely unawares. As we see them in the different positions of every day life they were in at the time, when without a moment's warning grim death overtook them. At the door of a noble family's residence stands yet the sentinel petrified, and so also petrified a boy in the act of eating a pancake. The city was certainly the rendezvous of Roman patriots who besides literature cared for nothing but eating and drinking and pandering to their passions. It was in the days in which a man who invented a new sauce was looked upon as a greater man than he who won a battle. Pompeii was certainly so rotten that a greater sink of corruption is unthinkable, and I only voice many historians' and scientific investigators' opinions when I say that his destruction was due to God's anger.

In Capri we visited the famous grotto where the water is famous on account of its pronounced blue color. And now we are approaching Alexandria, and although in Africa, we had here a city before us of some 300,000 inhabitants, with electric light, automobiles and all modern conveniences. The same is true of Cairo. Cairo is a very interesting city with its celebrated museums, Ezbekieh gardens, bazaars. From here the pyramids, and the sphinxes are easily reached. After visiting in Jaffa the house of Simon the tanner, we arrived in Jerusalem. While

Worrying.

It is a fool who constantly worries. Along with worry goes pessimism, discouragement, downheartedness, lack of ambition. No man, however energetic, can worry much or long without losing his energy and becoming ill. Worry, after causing a man's mental collapse, will seriously affect his physical health, and the days of a man with mental and physical health gone may be recorded in small numbers. If you are worrying over conditions that cannot be altered, you are wasting time; you get lumpy and gloomy. You think you need a change. You can get it without a trip to some distant country. Change your habits of occupation. Take up some form of light and pleasant reading in the evening. Get interested in some thing that will give you a chance to get out of the rut and become enthusiastic about something besides making money or losing it. No man can think constantly about his business without coming to brood over it—and worry, declares the New York Weekly. You cannot have rest and recreation. It needs it just as much as your body does. A simple determination not to worry will not usually be sufficient. There must be a positive effort along some different line of thought. Besides deciding not to think of anything else, decide that you will think of something else, and find something else to think of. You surely have interests in life other than money-making, if you would cultivate them a little.

Eight new bishops were elected by the delegates to the recent general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in Baltimore, and plans were discussed for making the Methodist bishops more like the bishops of other churches. The Methodist bishops preside over meetings of the synods, ordain ministers and appoint them to their fields of labor, but they have no dioceses, and are itinerant. The sentiment in favor of establishing dioceses for the bishops is growing, but action on the change was postponed. The Protestant Episcopal bishops—there are more than a hundred in the United States—are elected in a convention of lay and clerical delegates of the diocese in which they serve. Each bishop is the head of the diocese, and has general control over the church within the territory, installs rectors and confirms all new communicants. The Roman Catholic bishops, who are appointed by the pope, usually from a list of eligible priests submitted by the diocese, hold all the church property in their name, and have a general oversight of all the ecclesiastical institutions. They have much more power than the bishops of any other church in America, although in the early days the Methodist bishops had things pretty much their own way.

A Chicago restaurant has retired from business after having accumulated a million dollars in his business in 20 years. He is retiring his success to his habit of giving his customers big portions for their money and never permitting them to go away hungry or dissatisfied. Heroin has killed a doctor from the city of New York. A restaurant keeper, remarks the Herald of that city, who attributed his prosperity to having out his plan into five pieces instead of four, thereby increasing his profits on his table 20 per cent. And his innocent memory is now embalmied in a fund for a great hospital for the sick and the needy, and which bears his name.

Properly for the fact, his bright prospects for the future, many had at a lower price, a business breakfast and a "full dinner pail" are all included in the promise of the field. Nature has done her part toward a business revival—the rest is up to us. If this promise is disappointed, says the New York Mail, it will be a case where every prospect, business and only the politician is left.

Many of the colleges and universities are in a low form. Leland Stanford is the largest non-sectarian institution to enforce prohibition with in the university domain. Intellectuals are forbidden in boarding houses and fraternities. Intellectual property restriction has long obtained at several colleges which are under the control or influence of the churches.

An Englishman traveling in this country says he can't understand the baseball stories in the newspapers, though he can follow the same fairly well at the park. These think he could grasp the niceties of French by smoking a French briar.

The fact that the end of the world has been predicted for 1911 will not discourage the people who like to pick presidential possibilities, and they are not expected to forego the pleasure of selecting candidates for 1912.

CURACAO PEOPLE

VENEZUELAN CONSUL TAKES REFUGE FROM BIG MOB IN WILLEMSTAD.

is Protected by Troops—Home of One of Castro's Henchmen, Attacked and He is Forced to Make Public Apology for Writing.

Willemstad, island of Curacao, July 27.—The people of the island of Curacao, Dutch West Indies, are strained to the breaking point.

Following a long series of what the press of Curacao regard as antagonistic actions on the part of President Castro, directed against themselves and the Dutch government, mobs gathered in force at this capital, Saturday night and Sunday and expressed their resentment in an attack upon the home of a Venezuelan who carried the derogatory title of "henchman" in front of the residence of the Venezuelan consul; surrounded the German consulate where he is taken refuge; and compelled the ordering out of armed troops so that the consul might be protected from injury.

The demonstration before the residence of the Venezuelan consul, Senor Lopez, occurred late at night, and although no actual attack was made, it is stated that two shots were fired from the consul's house, no one, however, being injured.

Public Apology Forced.

Prior to this, about ten o'clock at night, a mob numbering about 1,000 gathered in front of the dwelling of a Venezuelan resident who, it is alleged, had insulted Curacao in the Venezuelan papers; broke down the doors and windows and ordered an armed man to sign a paper which set forth an elaborate excuse for the publication of the statements with which he was charged.

The leaders of the populace also forced him to make a public apology from the balcony of his home, while the crowd gathered and a grand accompaniment. Furthermore, members of the man's family were compelled to play the Dutch national hymn, while the people belonging to the Dutch cruiser gathered to proceed at once to Venezuela to protect Dutch interests there. The German liner arrived here with J. D. de Rens, the Netherlands minister to Curacao, on board, who was dismissed from Venezuela by President Castro. It was only a few hours after the cruiser's arrival that the order for an immediate return to Venezuela were received.

The departure of the Venezuelan consul, Senor Lopez, has resulted in a cessation of the riots which grew out of the anti-Venezuelan sentiment here. The city was calm and the troops which were patrolling the streets were withdrawn into their barracks.

WANT TAFT BANNER DOWN.

Lincoln Democrats Wish It Removed on Notification Day.

Lincoln, Neb., July 27.—Lincoln Democrats will make an effort to have the Taft banner which is hung over the main street taken down on the day Bryan is notified of his nomination. The banner, which proclaims that Taft will carry Nebraska, has been an eyesore to local Democrats since it was first notified of its placement, when it was the subject of much discussion. The banner has been and is being destroyed. It has also been being without, however, any unfavorable comment on the part of Bryan men.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE NAMED.

Chairman Hitchcock Announces the Republican Campaign Officers.

Chicago, July 27.—Announcement of the new executive committee by Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican national committee, that the following gentlemen will constitute the executive committee.

Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut, T. Coleman Du Pont of Delaware, William E. Borah of Idaho, Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Charles Nagel of Missouri, Victor Rosewater of Nebraska, William L. Ward of New York, Edward G. Dineen of North Carolina, Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania.

Launch Swamped; Three Drown.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 28.—A gasolene launch, "The Merry Widow" carrying from 16 to 20 persons, capsized in a Lehigh river company's plant across the Monongahela river to their homes in the south side section of the city, was capsized shortly after six o'clock Monday night in 20 feet of water by waves from a real boat. At least three men drowned.

Pioneer Contractor Dies.

Kansas City, July 27.—John H. Stephens, a pioneer settler of the southwest, died at his home here of pneumonia Monday, aged 79 years. He spent the greater part of his life in Texas, where his name for many years was known in every cow camp throughout the state.

HUGHES WILL RUN AGAIN

TO ACCEPT RENOMINATION IF HIS PARTY SO WISHES.

Governor of New York Yields to Arguments of Friends—Will Speak in Ohio.

Saratoga Inn, N. Y., July 25.—Gov. Charles E. Hughes will accept a renomination if the Republican party of this state desires him to again be its candidate. In a statement made public Friday night the governor so declared himself and defined the reasons which he says are responsible for the action he has just taken.

The statement is intended as a reply to the many inquiries received by the governor regarding his attitude toward a renomination. He says the personal reasons which prompt him to say privately some time ago that he did not desire a renomination are not controlling and that "if renominated I ought to accept."

The governor declined to make any further comment for quotation, but made it clear that he regards the policies he has pursued since he assumed office on January 1, 1907, as a cause which should be continued. As he is sponsor for them, many of the governor's friends have expressed the opinion in letters to him that they can be carried out better if he is elected for another term.

It is known that the governor feels he has fulfilled his promises made in his telegram to the Republican state convention after his nomination and in his campaign speeches, that his administration would be free from so-called bossism and not conducted for any private interests.

That Gov. Hughes intends to take an active part in the coming national Republican campaign is evident from the fact that he has accepted an invitation to speak at Youngstown, O., on September 5, at which time the Republican campaign will be opened in that state.

BLOODY FRIDAY IN OMAHA.

One Murder, Three Suicides and Three Accidental Deaths.

Omaha, Neb., July 25.—Friday was a bloody day in and around Omaha and one murder, three suicides and three accidental deaths resulted.

At Central City, Oliver Starkey shot and killed his divorced wife and himself. Near South Omaha an unknown man appeared on the streets with a bullet wound through his head. He ran on the street and died. Old Sig Omaha street car and was fatally injured. J. J. Kramm, foreman of the mail works, committed suicide. The wife of a woman, Joe Higgins caught his foot in a frog on the Illinois Central belt line and was run down and killed. Near Kearney, George Roberts, a field hand, picked up a big rat denake while binding wheat. It was struck and will die, the physicians say.

"BILL" HAZARD IS RESCUED.

Taken from Nebraska Jail by Two Armed Friends.

Bassett, Neb., July 25.—"Bill" Hazard made his escape from jail at this place Friday. Several weeks ago he broke jail at Gretna, S. D. where he was held on the charge of stealing horses, and was captured last Thursday at Newport by Sheriff Marsh of that county and placed in jail here. Early Friday two men appeared at the jail and, with guns, held up the guard and forced him to open the cell door and let the prisoner out. The guard was then locked in the cell, where he remained until freed by the sheriff some hours later.

Funeral of Bishop Potter.

Competitors, N. Y., July 25.—The funeral of Bishop Henry C. Potter of the diocese of New York was held in this village Friday morning. The services were in the historic Christ church, where James Fenimore Cooper was buried in his life time. The body of the prelate being borne from "Fernleigh" where he died, through the churchyard where Cooper lies buried.

Mr. Stevenson's Condition Critical.

San Francisco, July 25.—It is reported that the condition of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson, who is ill at her home near Shiloh, Cal. is regarded as serious by the attending physician. She was injured recently in an automobile accident in Mexico.

TAFT'S POLICIES ARE SET FORTH

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE IS NOTIFIED OF NOMINATION FOR PRESIDENT.

Gala Day in Cincinnati—Replying to Senator Warner, Judge Taft Tells What He Thinks the Next Administration Should Do.

Cincinnati, July 25.—All Cincinnati irrespective of party affiliations turned out Tuesday to do honor to William H. Taft and witness his formal notification of his nomination for the presidency.

As far as possible, business was suspended and the event was made the occasion of a general holiday. The streets were finely decorated and there was frequent firing of salutes, from early morning.

Taking part in the ceremony were many Republican leaders, governors of several states and the local officials. Senator Warner delivered the address notifying Mr. Taft of his high honor conferred on him by the Republican party.

Mr. Taft's Address.

In reply to Senator Warner, Mr. Taft spoke at considerable length, his speech being a carefully considered statement of the issues of the day and his position thereon. He began by a discussion of the Roosevelt policies and gave the president high praise for what he had accomplished. Continuing, he said:

"The chief function of the next administration in my judgment is distinct from and a progressive development which has been performed by President Roosevelt.

"The chief function of the next administration is to complete and perfect the machinery by which these standards may be maintained by which law breakers may be properly restrained and punished, but which shall operate with sufficient accuracy and dispatch to interfere with legitimate business as little as possible. Such machinery is not now adequate. Under the present rate bill, and under all its amendments, the burden of the interstate commerce commission in supervising and regulating the operation of the railroads of this country has become so heavy that it is utterly impossible for that tribunal to hear and dispose in any reasonable time of the many complaints, queries and issues that are brought before it for decision. It ought to be relieved of its jurisdiction as an executive directing body, and its functions should be transferred to the quasi-judicial investigation of complaints by individuals, and by a department of the government charged with the executive burden of supervising the operation of railroads."

Railway Traffic Agreements.

It is asserted to note that the Republican platform expressly and the Democratic platform implicitly approve an amendment to the interstate commerce act which would authorize railroads may make useful traffic agreements, if approved by the commission. This has been strongly recommended by President Roosevelt, and will make for the benefit of the business.

Some of the suggestions of the Democratic platform relate really to the subordinate and ancillary machinery which have referred to, for instance, the so-called physical valuation of railroads. It is clear that the sum of all rates or consignments of the quasi-judicial character, should be limited to a fair profit upon the reasonable value of the property, and that any excess should be returned. It ought to be reduced. The difficulty in enforcing the principle is in ascertaining what is the reasonable value

HISGEN NOMINEE, GRAVES HIS MATE

(INDEPENDENT DEMOCRATS HONOR MASSACHUSETTS MAN AND GEORGIAN.)

Kansas Delegate Narrowly Escapes Violence When He Attempts to Endorse Bryan—Three Ballots Necessary.

Chicago, July 29.—The above ticket was nominated by the Independent Democratic party last night at its first national convention.

The friends of William Jennings Bryan made an attempt to bring his name before the convention and the man who attempted it started a riot and narrowly escaped a physical violence at the hands of the indignant leaders.

The man who sought to place Mr. Bryan in nomination was J. J. Shepard of Fort Scott, Kan.

He did not succeed in his mission, for, being called to order by the convention and questioned by Chairman Charles A. Walsh, he was promptly ruled out of order by the chairman and under guard of several sergeants-at-arms he was hustled out of the hall, while some of the incensed delegates vainly attempted to strike him with their fists and one of them swung at him savagely with a cane.

Wins on Third Ballot.

The nomination of Mr. Hisgen was made on the third ballot, his chief competitors being Milford W. Howard of Alabama and John Temple Graves of Georgia. Reuben S. Lyon of New York secured a complimentary vote on the first ballot, and William Randolph Hearst had forty-nine friends who voted for him on the first two ballots.

The nomination of Mr. Graves was made unanimously, all other candidates having been withdrawn.

The first ballot resulted: Hisgen, 399; Howard, 230; Graves, 213; Lyon, 71; Hearst, 49.

The second: Hisgen, 690; Graves, 189; Howard, 109; Hearst, 49.

ST. PAUL MAN MURDERED

Slayer Then Ends Own Life on Lonely Montana Ranch.

Forsythe, Mont., July 29.—Officials from this county returned from a point about 60 miles north of here and report the killing of Fred Rasche of St. Paul by Chester Thompson last Thursday night. Mr. Van Duzen ranch in the sheep hills. Both were sheep herders. After the murder Thompson rode away with two horses and was never seen. The officers here were notified. Arriving at the Van Duzen ranch Friday afternoon, they followed the trail of Thompson and found his horse at the Lyon shack, about four miles distant.

FAMOUS RANGE TOWN RAZED

Everts, S. D., Will Pass Into Oblivion on August 1.

Aberdeen, S. D., July 29.—The town of Everts, until a few months ago the greatest cattle shipping center in the country, will pass into oblivion on August 1. Not even a railroad track will remain to mark the place where millions of head of cattle have been cared for enroute from the great plains to the eastern markets, and scarcely a house or inhabitant will be seen there, where in former years it made it one of their greatest trading posts.

BURNED AT STAKE

Execution by Fire at Hands of White Mob in Public Square.

Dallas, Texas, July 28.—"Pat" Smith, a negro boy 18 years old, charged with assault at Clinton yesterday afternoon, was captured by officers today. After he was identified, the prisoner was hurried to the Greenville jail. Before arriving there, however, the mob of citizens overpowered the officers, took the prisoner and prepared to hang him. This idea was given up, however, and the mob burned him at the stake.

Roosevelt Peace Patron.

New York, July 25.—President Roosevelt has accepted the honorary presidency of the Peace and Arbitration League, which is the outgrowth of the North Carolina congress and which has as its objective adequate armament and effective arbitration.

TWIN CITY MARKETS.

Interesting Items Gathered in the Gopher State

The Great Northern Must Pay.
St. Paul—Gross earnings taxes paid to the state by the Great Northern road will be increased $60,000 a year if a decision filed by Judge O. B. Lewis in the Ramsey county court is upheld by the higher courts.

The suit in which Judge Lewis' decision applies has been in the Ramsey county court for years. It was begun by the state to enforce payment of the gross earnings tax of the Great Northern road at the rate of 4 per cent as provided by a law of 1903, and involves the difference between that rate and 3 per cent, which the company contended was its rate of taxation as fixed for all time by a territorial law.

For every year since the enactment of the law of 1903 the company has paid taxes at the rate of 3 per cent, and the state, to bring the legal question to a test, began the suit for 1905, the total tax at 4 per cent for that year being $120,733.33.

The beginning of the present Great Northern system was the old Minnesota & Pacific, for which the territorial legislature granted a charter in 1857, in which it was provided that the company should pay 5 per cent on its gross earnings in lieu of all other taxes. The railroad company has contended that under the terms of this charter it is exempt from the requirements of the law of 1903.

Lid on Dinners.

Minnesota—it is unlawful for salaried employees to sell liquor in their dining or buffet cars, a custom which has long been in practice. This is the opinion of the state attorney general's office, written Saturday afternoon by George W. Peterson, assistant attorney general.

The question of the right of the railroads to sell liquor to their patrons has never before been presented to the attorney general, but no permission to conduct a retail business can be found in any law, and in the absence of that permission the act is declared unlawful. The decision will affect nearly every railway line in the state.

"My opinion," says Mr. Peterson, "is that the sale is unlawful, and that chapter 16 of the Laws of 1906 does not contemplate the sale of liquor on trains."

If this opinion is sustained by the courts the railroads are liable to prosecution in every county through which their dining cars run.

Grotesque Holdup.

Minnesota—A highwayman eclipsed all records for daring when he entered Striel & Glassbrenner's meat market, 303 Washington avenue south, locked the door, and demanded the refrigerator and food of the cashier.

The men entered the place when no one was there but the proprietor, and asked for some lead. To get this Mr. Glassbrenner had to go into the refrigerator. As he went in one of the robbers sprang for the door and closed it on the outside with the night lock.

The two men then went to the cash register, opened the drawer and took the money, amounting to about $40.

Glassbrenner at first attempted to open the door and falling in this he broke the glass in a window and fled. He was badly cut in doing so, but he crawled through the window and out into the market just as the men started on the front door.

Much Cash.

St. Paul—Minnesota had more cash on hand the 1933 than on any day since the state was organized. The total of $3,913,374 was credited to the state, all drawing from the fund at 2 per cent. The pile may get still higher, but never before has it passed the $3,900,000 mark.

Five pictures of each is due to the advance payments by the three large counties. The public examiner last year suggested that it would be fair to advance money on payments due the state, just as they do to the various cities and special funds. Not for a month or more after the taxes are received is the amount to the state figured, but by handing over a good share of what will be the state's interest, which formerly went to the counties for a month and a half or two months, now goes to the state.

Advance payments have been made by St. Louis county, $225,000; Hennepin county, $150,000; Ramsey county, $100,000.

Dainty Neckwear for the Summer

Not every woman can expose her neck, but the majority can, and will this summer. That is one respect in which woman can be more comfortable than man, for it is a relief to the whole system to get away from the suffocating stock and the high turned starched collar, with a line like a saw under the chin.

They are both too hot for summer weather. They are both uncomfortable. True, they must be endured by the woman, who through nature or carelessness has allowed her neck to become scrawny or encircled with dark rings.

The girl of the day, however, has an exceedingly good neck. It is an American characteristic. It may be from daily baths, from exercise, from the correct collar and waistcoat of the coat. Some of these harmonizing outer garments are made with waistcoat of contrasting fabric and color, and not a few have been displayed with waistcoats of cretonne and chintz showing some charming color effects.

Appropos of waistcoats for the woman who does not wish to be bothered with a removable waistcoat, and who still clings to the feminine desire for variety, a happy compromise has been invented by one ingenious designer, whereby the separate waistcoat may be buttoned into the under arm seams of a semi-fitting or loose garment, and to all appearances become an integral part of it. But with hardly a moment's work a different waistcoat may be substituted and the entire effect of the garment changed. So much for ingenuity.

While many trimmings are debarred of necessity from entering into the decoration of the coat designed for motoring, one sees huge croquet buttons, brandurghs of cords and braids, pendant ornaments, folds and pipings of color, as well as soutache trimmings curled into solid rings for the decoration of bands of self material, or for some of the separate waistcoat material, or for some of the separate waistcoat material, or for some of the separate waistcoat material.

These are not only in pictures and in writing. They have appeared on the large sweeping sailor which has large collar.

It is a little difficult to get the Byron collars, but they can easily be made. The Puritan collar can be bought at any counter where they sell clothes for young boys.

They are just such as are worn by a boy ten years old. They are put on dark frocks, especially worn with crockets and linen shirtswaits, and are widely used for separate shirtswaits under coat suits.

When Ethel Barrymore wore this collar in her role of Sunday it was copied by a few admirers, but now the fashion is a general one.

The majority of these collars are made of fine fabric. They are of lace and insertion, edged with a ruffle of lace. They are of hand embroidered muslin or ecru batiste, and some of them are of all-over Irish and chintz lace. They do not have the stiff, inartistic look of the small turnover collar worn by the belles of the civil war. They are cut on different lines and give far more grace to the costume.

They are quite wide, from four to six inches, and are shaped to a slight point in front where they open.

They can easily be made at home. Cut a good pattern out of brown paper, baste the strips of insertion and lace on it, and then finely whip together. Finish the edges with a ruffle of lace without many caters.

There are surely many pieces of good all-over lace put away in boxes which are not large enough for anything but such collars. By using them up you can make smart additions to your summer gown.

The fine lace ones are especially pretty on soft white muslin, blouse pretties, but they should not be worn with shirtswaits. They are also good on frocks of veiling and foulard, but should not be worn on the gimpes of blouses.

Long Coats Are a Fad of the Moment

The long coat is at its best this year, and utility is a minor point in its selection. It must be picturesque and eminently becoming, and it must harmonize with the costume worn with it. Long and loose and very slender in general effect, it has the modish empire waist, or else a snug-fitting back, and it is trimmed as long coats have never been trimmed before.

Pompadour, rajah and tussor motoring coats are now planned with costumes of similar material, the trimming entering into the decoration of the undergarment frock and being repeated on the collar and waistcoat of the coat. Some of these harmonizing outer garments are made with waistcoat of contrasting fabric and color, and not a few have been displayed with waistcoats of cretonne and chintz showing some charming color effects.

MRS. J. SHERMAN

IS BRILLIANT WOMAN AND AN IDEAL HOUSEKEEPER.

Washington Home of Republican Candidates for Vice-Presidency and Wife is the Center of an Intellectual Coterie.

Washington—Years ago Carrin Babcock was one of the belles of Utica. To-day she is the wife of the Republican nominee for vice-president, Congressman James Schoolcraft Sherman. In Washington she is known as a brilliant conversationalist and as the possessor of a keen intellect, familiar with all matters of current legislation. Her home, as long as she maintained one here, was the center of a little coterie of brilliant men and women.

In Utica the Shermans have an attractive home in Genesee avenue. The home stands in several acres of ground which Mrs. Sherman has surrounded with flowers. She has her greenhouses, which protect the flowers in winter, and each time that it has been necessary to leave Utica she has made it a point never to do so until the last flower has been taken in and cared for.

Among her intimate friends Mrs. Sherman has the reputation of being an ideal housekeeper. She puts up her own preserves and superintends the details of her marketing.

Mrs. Sherman was born in the town which is now her home. She was the daughter of L. H. Babcock, a prominent lawyer. She attended the Utica seminary and later became a student at Balliol school.

Col. Eliakin Sherrill of the One Hundred and Twenty-sixth New York Volunteers, to whom a monument was erected at Gettysburg some years ago, was Mrs. Sherman's maternal grandfather. Col. Sherrill was shot and killed at Gettysburg. Mrs. Sherman's maternal grandmother was Emily Edredge, said to have been a direct descendant of Pocahontas.

If Taft and Sherman win next November the Shermans will return to Washington and take a house for the winter. With them will come Mrs. Sherman's mother, Mrs. Babcock, who makes her home with Representative Sherman, and the two sisters Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. J. C. DeLoe and Mrs. L. B. Moore, may spend the season here.

The family of Representative and Mrs. Sherman includes three sons, one of whom is married and has a charming little daughter, Ellen. This little maid is the bright particular star of the Sherman home and the idol of her grandparents. Mrs. Sherman has an attractive niece who, if the Republican ticket is elected next fall, will spend a great deal of time in Washington.

The Shermans have been married about 28 years and they have an ideally happy home. Among the women of Washington Mrs. Sherman is particularly popular. She has a charming personality, an affable manner and a delightful spirit of hospitality. Her invitations are never declined.

Last winter Representative and Mrs. Sherman lived at the New Willard and entertained only in the most informal way. Their dinner parties were limited to only a few guests, because of the ill health of both Mr. and Mrs. Sherman.

In Bohemia. Thomas A. Daly, the Philadelphia poet, responded, at a recent "shad breakfast" to the toast, "Bohemia." "Bohemia is a pleasant place," said Mr. Daly, "but a steady lull is better, on the whole. A heavy shower drove me the other day into a favorite Bohemian resort on Peanut street. Bohemians surrounded me, young and old, and they were drinking beer.

"As the water hurried to and fro, I noticed that every little white hair on my nose before a shad and scrawd something on it. I walked over to the side and saw a great multitude of queer phrases such as:

"'Old Shad, let Black Underwear, (to) Prings pants, 25c, One Black and One Red Stock, 10c.

"I noticed that every little white hair on my nose before a shad and scrawd something on it. I walked over to the side and saw a great multitude of queer phrases such as:

"'Well, sir, said he, 'I don't know the names of most of these things, so, who I give 'em tick, I have to take note of some peculiarity of their get up, sir.'"

PRIMITIVE IRRIGATION METHODS.

Companies Organized Will Improve System in Old Mexico.

St. Louis—The new irrigation law which was recently passed by the Mexican congress already has led to the inauguration of a number of irrigation projects in different parts of that country. The fact that the law carries an appropriation of $25,000,000 to be paid in subsidies to those who place land under irrigation, serves as an incentive for the establishment of improvements of this character.

One of the largest of these irrigation enterprises under the new law is being financed by a syndicate of St. Louis. His son, David H. Francis, Jr., is actively interested in the project and has been spending much of his time in Mexico of late. The government will pay a subsidy of $25 per hectare of 2½ acres on all land placed under irrigation. It is stated that a system of canals and ditches will be built to cover every part of the tracts of land that are to be irrigated and that great electric pumping plants will be installed to raise the water out of the lake. The cost of the construction of the system of irrigation will be almost offset by the subsidy.

A number of applications for concessions to establish large irrigation plants under the new subsidy law are pending in the department of fomento of the federal government. Minister Olegario Molina of that department recently signed a contract with Joaquin Redo, a wealthy business man of Mazatlan, for the establishment of a system of irrigation in the state of Sinaloa. Mr. Redo binds himself to plant 25,000 acres under irrigation within ten years from the date of the contract.

Primitive methods of irrigation are in use in many parts of Mexico. Some of these irrigating plants have been in operation continuously for more than 150 years. The water is raised by means of cumbersome water wheels operated by the native peasants. The capacity of the buckets on these wheels is small, but a considerable quantity of water is lifted in the course of a day's operation, and several acres may be irrigated from one water wheel. The demand for modern pumping plants has increased very rapidly during the last few years, and it is not unusual to see a gasoline engine at work alongside of one of the antiquated water wheels.

SEQUIN EMBROIDERY

Here is a very effective design, suitable for ornamenting a small theater bag. It may be worked entirely in sequins and ribbon and sequins. A very dainty bag may be made of cream or pale tinted satin, lined with silk of the same color or white, and we have seen very charming little bags made from the tops of very long white kid or cream or rose-colored gloves. These would form an excellent foundation for such work. Sequins of various shapes and sizes may now be obtained in gold, silver, steel, mother-of-pearl, and various colored metal, so that quite a pretty combination might be employed in working the design given. The stars or beads would in any case look well in small gold sequins. The flowers might be in silver, mother-of-pearl, bronze, pale blue, green, and gold sequins, and the stalks worked with gold fine thread.

Mr. Poole announces that he will have his post cards for sale at Breckenridge's Pharmacy in a short time.

Finger Marks on Ale Glass Restore Lady Hart's Gems

Master of Scotland Yard Solves Intricate Jewel Mystery

By GEORGE BARTON

Marvelous Insight of Sherlock Holmes' Prototype Reveals a Professional Bandit in Man Servant of Sir Archibald Hunter—Tells Tale of Thirsty Thief's Digits on Receptacle and on Cab Door Furnishes Connecting Links in Queer Robbery Solution. d d d

John Sweeney, for many years an inspector-detective at Scotland Yard, long ago won a reputation on both sides of the Atlantic. He became connected with the English police when quite young, and soon earned a transfer to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation which is better known to the American public as "Scotland Yard." The case of the Hart jewels, which he was assigned to investigate, followed by English detectives than a specimen of Inspector Sweeney's individual skill. The case of the Hart jewels has been assigned and some remarkable results taken with the construction of the facts, but the main facts, though presented in composite form, are true, and demonstrate that Sherlock Holmes has his prototypes in real life among the professional police of Great Britain.

Sir William and Lady Hart had the reputation of being the most hospitable pair in all of Great Britain—and that is saying a good deal. They had a beautiful country seat in the south of London where they entertained on a palatial scale.

On the occasion to which the present story refers Sir William and Lady Hart gave a particularly elaborate affair. It was a seven-day house party concluding with a brilliant ball. There were some 40 guests in all, and four of them at least were related to the royal family.

On the evening of the final day—it must have been a Friday—there was a great ado over the preparations for the ball. No one was more excited than Lady Hart herself. And well might she be, for on that occasion she was to wear for the first time a magnificent creation from Paris. Besides, she was to deck herself out in the Hart gems. Anyone who has ever had the pleasure of seeing these rare old family heirlooms need not be told that they are both unique and costly. My lady had been busily engaged in her boudoir with her maid for over an hour. She was all ready for the ball. Everything was in place except the gems—her lay on the dressing table ready to be fastened in Lady Hart's corsage. The clock on the mantel pealed out seven silver strokes. Lady Hart looked at her maid. She was a compassionate woman. She said:

"My child, you look thoroughly exhausted. I'm through with you for the present. I can attach the jewels to my dress without your aid. Go to your room and rest and report to me again at midnight."

The girl thanked her mistress and left the room. Lady Hart gave a final survey of herself in the long pier mirror. It was satisfactory. But the feminine desire to set the judgment of some one else took possession of her mind. She picked up the jewels and was about to put them on. The large one was magnificently bejeweled with a glittering framework of pearls. It was a great, beautiful pair of the finest diamonds. Two others, in the forms of crescents, were pure pearls. Altogether they represented a modest fortune. Lady Hart hesitated for a moment. She wanted to know what another woman would think of her Parisian gown by herself. It was the famous gems. Lady Sutherland, her special friend, was near by in a room on the other side of the corridor. She laid the jewels on the dressing table and tripped out of the room. She was gone less than five minutes.

The Hart gems were gone!

THE HART GETS WERE GONE!

with him an ordinary drinking glass—a dirty glass that looked as if it might have contained stale ale the night before. He had picked it up in one of the rooms of the house and the care he bestowed upon it almost bordered on the ludicrous. He seemed particularly anxious not to permit the glass to rub against anything.

An hour later a chance visitor at Scotland Yard might have witnessed an ordinary drinking glass. The experiment was a success. The operative discovered on the glass the imprints of four fingers and a thumb. The marks were perfectly distinct and the finger and thumb prints had been reproduced perfectly on sensitized paper.

A visit to the office of the railroad company resulted in finding the conductor who had charge of that particular train. He remembered that one passenger had boarded the train at the station.

"Did he go on to London?" he was asked.

"No," was the response, "he alighted at the first station this side of London."

The trail was becoming interesting. It was followed until it led to the station this side of London. The only cabman at that station was awakened from his slumbers to answer the questions of the detective. He was a typical "night hawk." Yes, he had answered, he had one customer that night. Could he let the representative from Scotland Yard look at his cab? Most assuredly he felt compelled at such examination. The remarkable oil vehicle was found in a stable. A careful examination was made. The result was remarkable.

Most startling of all the prints on the cab door and those on the unwashed glass were identical.

"Cabby," said the detective, "you know where you took your customer last night?"

The cabman harnessed up his vehicle and drove off with the detective as his passenger. In about ten minutes he halted before a mean-looking frame house in the suburbs. Sweeney alighted and rapped at the door vigorously. After a long wait, a smooth-shaven man in his shirt sleeves responded. The detective was keyed up to his responsibility. He did not give the man time to speak, but said sharply:

"Good morning, Mr. Martin."

The man drew back.

"How did you know?" he began, then changing his manner to one of defiance, he cried: "My name's not Martin."

"Oh, yes, it is," was the cheerful response, "you're John Martin."

"Well," was the dogged response, "what do you want?"

"I want Lady Hart's gems," snapped the detective.

That night John Martin was behind prison bars and Lady Hart's precious gems had been restored to her. John Martin proved to be a professional thief. On numerous occasions he had acted as an extra servant at house parties. Forced references and a month of faithful service enabled him to get a position with Sir Archibald Hunter, who was the respected younger son of an aristocratic but not particularly wealthy family. In due course of time he formed one of the inhabitants of Sir William Hart's house in the name and capacity of John Martin, valet and attendant to his master, Sir Archibald Hunter. Martin made a great show of instructing the servants, but his sole object was to become intimately acquainted with the geography of the house. Under the guise of carefully examining possible exits in case of fire, of arranging where hydrants should be stationed, inspecting the windows, doors and staircases, and the general structure of the house, Martin was not only able to get an accurate idea of where the various rooms were situated but he became acquainted also with many points of detail important to his contemplated enterprise.

He left Sir William's house with his master on the night before the conclusion of the house party so that his alibi in that connection was secure enough, but he made it a point to return on the following night. Being well known to all of the servants he met with no obstacle and actually found his way to the corridor of the second story leading to Lady Hart's room. He had not thought of robbery at that particular moment, but the sight of Lady Hart leaving her room and the jewels lying exposed on the dressing-table proved too strong a temptation for his avaricious nature. He quickly slipped in, put the jewels in his pockets, and then calmly mingled with the other servants. Later on he was the man who went out to the gate-keeper and instructed him not to permit anyone to leave the house that night, and after sending the man on a fool's errand, he coolly marched out of the grounds. He took the first train to the London suburb and hoped by the next day to be able to dispose of his loot. His one mistake was in pausing in the servants' hall long enough to drink the ale out of a dirty glass. The impress of his fingers on the glass and on the cab door at the suburban station proved to be his undoing and furnished food for contemplation in the long term of penal servitude to which he was sentenced.

A SURGICAL OPERATION

If there is any one thing that a woman dreads more than another it is a surgical operation.

We can state without fear of a contradiction that there are hundreds, yes, thousands, of operations performed upon women in our hospitals which are entirely unnecessary and many have been avoided by LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

For proof of this statement read the following letters.

Mrs. Barbara Glass, of Kingman, Kansas, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "For eight years I suffered from the most severe form of female troubles and was told that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has saved my life and made me a well woman."

Mrs. Arthur R. House, of Church Road, Moorestown, N. J., writes: "I feel it my duty to let people know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from female troubles, and last March my physician decided that an operation was necessary. My husband and I were urged to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to-day I am well and strong."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulcers, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, and backache.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

THE MANSION OF FORGETFULNESS

By DON MARK LEMON

(Copyright, by Literary Pub. Co.)

Four months after the salt waves had laid at his feet the cold form of his love, came the news that Herbert Munson was the possessor of a startling secret. He had, it was stated, discovered a Purple Ray that would wither and destroy certain human cells of neighboring cells. This rumor was followed by the still more amazing report that Munson had erected the Mansion of Forgetfulness, to which all who would free their minds of a hopeless passion might repair, and, in one brief hour, forget.

And, sure enough, here they came—those who loved not wisely but too well, those who loved deeply but hopelessly, and those who loved the dead and could endure their grief no longer—and the Purple Ray "plucked from the memory its rooted sorrow" and they went forth from the Mansion of Forgetfulness unscarred and fancy-free.

Yet he who showed others how to forget would not himself forget. It was agony to know that she was dead, and he would never see her face again, yet he chafed from forgetfulness as the soul shrinks from oblivion. Try as he would, he could not drag himself from the haunted hills of memory, though he remembered that the world without was wonderfully fair, and other women, perhaps as lovely as she, were waiting there to love and to be loved. No! Let others forget, he would not! Not that he lived in hope, for had he not kissed the salt foam from her dead face? But that memory was all that remained of a love who was no more.

He watched them come and—watched the many, ah, too many, pile lady. "I have come far, and the worst is only a few steps farther on." "Come, then," and the master led the way to the room of the Purple Ray.

An hour passed, when the door was opened and the velvet visitor came forth and descended the broad staircase. She moved quickly and lightly, and at the foot of the stairs she laughed merrily as she again met the master.

"Have you forgotten?" he asked.

"Forgotten! I know that I have forgotten something, but why am I here, yet I do not know what I have forgotten."

"So they all say!"

A flash of rosy light shone from a slender window overhead, halving the path like a saint.

"How beautiful everything is!" she exclaimed. "Why do I wear this veil? I will no longer!"

So saying she loosened it, disclosing a face young and exquisitely fair. The man shrank back as if pierced by a bolt.

"My God, it is her spirit!" he gasped.

"No, no!" protested the visitor. "I am not a spirit, and I fear I am too, too human."

"You are Morella!" whispered the man, staring before him like one peering through intense darkness.

"I am. Who are you that ask?"

"Morella! I thought you dead!"

"I kissed you dead and then the waves swept me away and I saw you no more."

"Some fishermen once found me on a sandy beach, where they said I had faintly. Who are you?"

The man drew back his cowl.

"Look! There was no light of recognition in the other's eyes. 'My God! the Ray has blotted out all memory!'"

"Pray tell me what you mean, and let me go," came the passionless words.

A groan was the only reply, and the man hid his face in his hands.

"You seem to know what I have forgotten. Has it aught to do with you?"

"O, Morella, it were better that I thought you dead than to know that you have forgotten! Do you not remember your hand? Does it not awaken one recollection of other days?"

The girl gazed blankly at the ring on her hand, and shook her head.

"Has the Ray blotted out every fair only to forget! For to think, dearest, do you not remember that day in Naples when we pledged eternal love for one another?"

"I remember no betrothal." A deep look of pity came into the speaker's eyes when she saw the pain her words had caused. "If remembrance is so sad, why do you not let me forget?"

"My love," she groaned, "you are making the world darker to me than to dying eyes! You ask me to forget! You!"

"You forget that I have forgotten!"

The man groaned in utter anguish. As she turned to go he stayed her by a gentle touch.

"Do not tell that memory!"

I, too, go and tell that memory!"

LIVE STOCK

STOCK YARDS ON FARM.

Convenient Sorting Pen Should Be Arranged.

Many farmers would handle more live stock if they could do it easily, but the laborious and costly way most farmers have of handling, sorting, and marketing live stock, together with the small profit therein outside of maintaining the fertility of the farm, has kept many from following the business.

Every farmer handling live stock needs a stock scale, dipping tank, loading chute, branding, marking and shearing chute, also a place in which to catch wild colts or cows, etc. This plan is good, and cheap, considering the capacity it gives. In weaning calves, pigs or colts several small lots are a necessity. A farmer may easily lose the price of the whole system of lots by not having adequate means of handling and weighing his lamb in buying or selling same.

I used nine-foot posts and native lumber (ending) 1 1/2 x 6 inches, writes a farmer in Wallace's Farmer. In circle of chute I used fencing 3 x 6 inches (fresh saved elm).

The dipping tank A is made of an eight-inch brick wall laid in cement and cement plastered, with bricks projecting two inches in inclined walk out of tank to make steps. B is a trap door nailed to an axle which runs in recess in wall of cement tank. Chute to which a wagon is backed up to load live stock can be set at D. When dipping tank is not in use I have a movable platform or floor to place over it so that the chute can be used for loading, branding, marking, etc.

"I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and what two years ago through close application to work and a boarding house diet, I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a day at a time."

"A friend suggested to me the idea of taking Grape-Nuts, which I did, making this food a large part of at least two meals a day."

"To trade it a free from brain-ache, dyspepsia, and all the ills of an overworked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income." There's a Reason.

Costly Popularity.

France's cruiser Leon Gambetta is named after the famous politician, who died on December 31, 1882, in the time of his intense popularity. Gambetta had an experience which he was wont to tell against himself. In Paris admirers unyoked his horses and dragged the carriage to his home. Gambetta would narrate this with an air of pride, and he would add, with a smile: "But I never saw my horses again!"
