MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY
Dr. John H. Gray in a Letter to a Student Tells What should be done for The People By The State U.

The following is a copy of a letter written by Dr. John H. Gray, of a department of political science, to a graduate of the University who had made inquiries concerning the work of that department. We secured Dr. Gray's permission to publish the letter because it sets forth so well the ideal which must actuate University work if it is to keep pace with the people of the state.—Ed.

The University ought, in my opinion to be run with three distinct lines in mind:

First: It ought to be sufficiently equipped with men and material so that the men could make some scientific discoveries and formulate the latest scientific truth. This would necessitate some relief from the traditional amount of class roomwork.

In the second place, the teaching force must be of that character and degree of learning which enables it to teach well those who come to the University. They must be trained and inspired.

In the third place, in a scientific age, such as ours, the University owes quite as important a debt to those who have attended the University and gone forth into the world with or without graduation, and to those who never have come to the organized efforts for discovering and promulgating scientific truth at the University—the one instrument best suited to that end.

Nor would I admit for a moment that I am asking for anything which would require even temporarily a large financial sacrifice on the part of the state. On the other hand, I am suggesting something which would be of the utmost financial advantage to the state to say nothing of higher and more important ends.

This would be well illustrated from a study of the effort of the Agricultural schools and colleges of our different states, and prominently of this state as well as the experimental work of the Federal Government at Washington. This agricultural work has added enormously to the wealth of the country, and so far as the producing line is concerned the problem, if not solved is now in hand for the farmers.

It remains for the department with which I am connected to support that work by teaching the farmer how to organize to market his products and when we say market we use that term in a broad sense, including transportation to station, sorting, grading, packing, insuring, looking after the commission business, and the transportation rates. The same principle applies to goods coming in for farmers use and consumption. The same sort of a service must be done for all of the commercial and trading classes in the cities.

Business has got to be so complex that it must be carried on, if it is to be successful, on strictly scientific principles, and when any vocation reaches that stage, it becomes absolutely capable of being represented as a form of training in our institutions of learning and ceases to be capable of being learned by practice without formal training.

Our ambitions, therefore in this department, are to organize along these lines, enlarge the department until we have men enough properly trained and sufficiently relieved from class room work to enable them to carry the latest scientific achievements in the field of Economics and Political Science to every group of citizens desiring such aid in the state, and until we have a sufficient force to have somebody experienced in all various lines of economic life, and until we have a body of experts offering a complete system of courses to a business career through both day and evening classes.

The amount of money required to start this work is relatively small while the economic saving to the people of the state in a single year would pay for all the work would cost in a generation. A study of what has actually been accomplished in this direction by the University of Wisconsin for that state would convince anybody of the possibility and desirability of this work.

Faithfully yours,
(Signed) JOHN H. GRAY.

You bet. When it comes to furnishing the best Building Material, at the lowest prices—you'll find us occupying a front row seat every time.

And it's a continuous performance, too. The man who once buys lumber and building material here, is usually never satisfied with any other place. He may find grades as good as ours some other place. And he might find as low prices elsewhere. But he won't find as good grades as ours, at as low prices as we ask for that grade. No sir! Not for a minute. To Save Our Eyes.

There is a Biblical injunction against hiding our "light under a bushel." Yet it is probable that in a short time, nearly everyone who has eyes or electricity for lighting will be literally covering the source of light with a metal shade that looks very much like a small bushel measure. For several years, lighting experts and more particularly specialists in eye troubles have described the evil effects upon the eye of the direct rays from our modern brilliant light sources. This has been made more evident by the introduction and general use of the new high candle-power metallic filament incandescent lamps. There have, therefore, been many attempts to devise a method of interior illumination by which the light is reflected once at least before reaching the eye. There is a considerable number of illuminations in which this "indirect illumination" is applied in different ways, the most successful heretofore being that in which the light is hidden behind brackets around the edge of the room and reflected towards the ceiling. It has been very limited in application owing to the loss, or absorption of light by the reflecting surfaces, explains the Technical World Magazine, but where the expense is not considered, very pleasing results were produced. Recent developments have made that which probably mark an epoch in interior lighting and will make indirect illumination a very general system. In order to make this method commercially available, that is, bring it within the reach of the man of ordinary means, two things were necessary.

The ordinary run of American poetry is steadily improving, and at a rate quite reasonable in the long history of literature, where a thousand stanzas are as a single line in the sight of the muse. Take a hundred magazines dated within the decade, and you will see how lucky the singers of our old colonial school were to be born early. But the tide has run to the west along the coast of Bohemia; in our colleges it has long seemed to be ebbing. Not even that noble immaturity which often appears in undergraduate prose has made itself felt in such undergraduate verse. Football, here, freshmen and college boys are the stock themes of 95 per cent. of such effusions, while the remaining five per cent. are college widows or burlesques on Horace.

The New Jersey legislature is considering a bill to prohibit children under 16 years of age from attendance at theaters unless accompanied by their parents or guardians. The nickel show has become a social problem in the east, and is in a way becoming a social problem in the west. Inhibition to teachers and parents is not decreasing under the influence of film picture exhibits and flashy popular songs. Boy bandits are becoming more numerous than ever. No wonder, exclaims the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin, that the New Jersey solons think it time that radical action should be taken to keep young America from growing old too fast.

Homer is said to have nodded, and even a veteran and gifted jurist like Chief Justice Fuller of the United States supreme court will occasionally be guilty of a "break." When swearing in President Taft on inauguration day, in repeating the oath he made it plain that Mr. Taft was obligated to "faithfully execute the constitution," instead of the oath of the president. Secretary of State Knox, who has a ready wit, stood by and is reported to have remarked in an undertone to the president: "Don't do it." Whether he did or not the constitution is quite safe from molestation.

Homesickness will be greatly encouraged by the announcement that the Interior department will soon throw open for settlement about a million acres of land which formerly belonged to the Crow Indian reservation in Montana. Opportunities to secure homes by entering upon government lands are growing fewer as the country fills up, says the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin, and in a comparatively short time the land rushes will be reminiscences to which future "old timers" may point as experiences that will never again be enjoyed by new comers.

A new watch has been brought out for use of physicians and nurses in counting pulse beats. The pressure of a button starts it and another pressure stops it and marks the time when a given number of beats have been counted.

A permanent national exposition at Madrid, for the promotion of which an organization has been formed in Spain, will have for one of its chief objects the stimulation of scientific method in agriculture and manufacturing.

SAVES PUPILS FROM A BIG PRAIRIE FIRE

MISS ELIZA THOMAS ADDED TO LIST OF HEROINES.

Flames That Sweep Edmunds County Do Considerable Damage—Fire Stopped in Time to Save Weecota.

Aberdeen, S. D., April 6.—South Dakota has added another hero to its list of heroines in the person of Miss Eliza Thomas, a school teacher, who, by her presence of mind, saved the lives of the children of the burning structure on a prairie fire which swept over a large section of South Dakota. The school house was directly in the path of the oncoming flames. Miss Thomas, when she saw the fire approaching, kept the little tots with her, inside. When the flames struck the school, she took the children out to their homes, some of them being burned over, where they were out of danger. Had the teacher allowed them to go to their homes, some would undoubtedly have perished.

The fire, which swept over a large section of Edmunds county, was stopped at a point northwest of Weecota from destruction. It started south of Roscoe, S. D., and was driven southward by a northwest wind. Thousands of dollars worth of property were destroyed. Just before reaching Weecota the fire struck the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad track, and fire fighters who had gathered from all sections of the surrounding country availed themselves of the temporary check to the flames caused by the grade to stamp out the conflagration.

"DRYS" GAIN IN MICHIGAN.

Prohibition Wins in 19 Out of 27 Counties.

Detroit, April 6.—"We have broken the backbone of the liquor traffic in Michigan," declared Sup. George W. Morrow of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league at midnight last night.

Definite returns at that time showed that of the 27 counties which were on the question of abolishing the sale or manufacture of liquor in their borders, 19 had gone "dry," seven had gone "wet" and one had voted for the remaining county, Jackson, had voted for prohibition by the slender margin of 30 votes. Before yesterday's election 11 of the 35 counties of the state were "dry."

The Republican state ticket elected yesterday is as follows:

Justices of the Supreme Court—Charles A. Blair, Jackson, and John W. Stone, Marquette.

Regents of the University of Michigan—William L. Clements, Bay City, and George P. Codd, Detroit.

Member of the State Board of Education—William J. McKone, Albion.

Members of the State Board of Agriculture—William H. Wallace, Saginaw; I. R. Aiferbury, Highland; J. S. Doherty, Claire; R. D. Graham, Grand Rapids, and W. L. Carpenter, Detroit.

STRIVES TO QUASH INDICTMENTS

Haskell's Counsel Alleges Irregularities.

Tulsa, Ok., April 6.—Gov. Charles N. Haskell, when called before the federal court yesterday to answer to indictments charging him with fraud in connection with Muskogee town lot cases, made a hard fight against the case coming to trial.

Judge Marshall of Utah, who is presiding, heard extended arguments by both sides in the matter of Haskell's demurrer and likely will render a decision today.

Governor Haskell's attorneys began their fight by asking that the indictments be quashed, charging Special Attorney General R. W. Witherspoon with irregularities in conducting the grand jury inquiry which resulted in the indictments. It also was charged that the grand jury had been illegally drawn, that a stenographer had been present in the inquiry, and that incompetent testimony had been the basis of the indictments.

These allegations were vigorously denied by the government counsel.

NEW RAILROAD TO THE GULF.

French Capitalists Interested in Line from Kansas City.

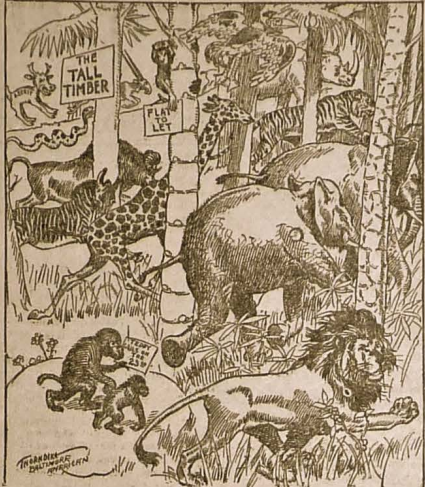

Kansas City, April 6.—That a new railroad extending from Kansas City to the Gulf of Mexico will be in operation within three years was the statement made by William Kenrick, who is constructing the Oklahoma & Gulf railway from Wagoner, Ok., to Calvin, Ok., and who returned from France yesterday. Mr. Kenrick secured the support of a number of French capitalists in the venture.

MOVING DAY IN THE JUNGLE.

IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

STANDARD OIL COMPANY BATTLES GOVERNMENT'S SUIT FOR DISSOLUTION.

ATTORNEYS ADDRESS COURT Hearing of Arguments in Case for Which 7,000,000 Words of Testimony Have Been Taken Begins in St. Louis To-Day.

St. Louis, April 5.—The full bench of four judges, comprising the United States circuit court of this district, began to-day to hear arguments in the case in which the United States government seeks the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The arguments in behalf of the government were made by Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul and former United States Attorney C. B. Morrison of Chicago. The oil corporation is represented by John S. Milburn of New York, Moritz Rosenthal and John S. Miller of Chicago; David T. Watson of Pittsburgh and John G. Johnson of Philadelphia.

Mr. Kellogg began the argument to-day with a vigorous attack on the trust.

Great Mass of Evidence. Seldom, if ever, has such a mass of evidence been compiled in a single case. The record, including the exhibits, already exceeds 7,000,000 words, all taken by one stenographer, Robert S. Taylor of St. Paul.

Printed, the evidence is more voluminous by several volumes than a standard encyclopedia. The major portion of the testimony was taken in New York city, John D. Rockefeller and John D. Archbold were the main witnesses called to the stand.

So large is the record that even a perusal of its digest by the court is impossible and must depend on the summaries prepared by the attorneys of the respective sides.

Hearing of Great Importance. The hearing is one of the most important and far-reaching civil actions that has ever been tried in this country.

The bill of complaint, on behalf of the United States, charging a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, was filed in November, 1906.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the parent organization, together with its various subsidiary corporations, and seven individuals—John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Henry H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne and Charles M. Pratt—arranged with having entered into an agreement, combination and conspiracy with one another to restrain trade and commerce in the purchase of petroleum, in the shipment and transportation of petroleum by pipe line, by steamship and by rail, in the manufacture and refining of petroleum and in the distribution, sale and shipment of the products of petroleum.

The United States seeks perpetually to enjoin the defendants from doing any act looking to the carrying out of the alleged combination or conspiracy and to restore the Standard Oil combination.

About 400 Witnesses Heard.

Franklin Ferriss of St. Louis was appointed by the court as special examiner, and before him the testimony in the case was taken. Beginning on September 17, 1907, hearings were held in New York, Washington, Chicago and Cleveland, at intervals and at various dates. The government concluded its testimony on January 21, 1909. About 400 witnesses were examined, approximately 300 appearing for each side.

The issue is so important that, whatever may be the result of the trial before the circuit court, the case likely will be appealed to the United States supreme court.

ZEPPELIN AIRSHIP IN RECORD-BREAKING TRIP

Count Makes Attempt to Keep Monster Craft Among Clouds for 24 Hours.

Friedrichshafen, Apr. 6.—The Zeppelin airship ascended from here yesterday at 10:00 a. m. and made nine circuits around the lake in 24 hours' duration.

The destination of the Zeppelin airship is known only to those immediately concerned in the voyage, but was presumed to be Strassburg. At Biberach-Wuerttemberg, the airship maneuvered for two hours and a half.

The grace and ease with which the airship, with the count himself at the controls, sailed away from the shed at Lake Constance seemed to tell of the confidence of the owner that the monster craft will be able to accomplish the feat which he has been attempting for several years.

The airship had been repaired since the recent battle with the wind in the neighborhood of Munich, and the count before taking his place at the steering apparatus declared that he believed he would guide the machine to victory this time.

Conditions were better in the morning when the Zeppelin ship departed than ever before in the history of the count's attempts at a 24-hour flight. The air was clear and there was little wind stirring at the start. With the aerial navigator were a dozen army officers and several friends, and the craft rode the wind currents as easily as if there were no one aboard.

When the airship disappeared from the eyes of the Friedrichshafen friends of the count there was a general belief that the feat would be accomplished. This was by reason of the great showing of the machine against the adverse weather conditions last week.

ROOSEVELT LEAVES NAPLES.

Former President Arrives on the Hamburg and is Warmly Greeted by Great Crowd.

Naples, Apr. 5.—The steamer Hamburg, of the Hamburg American line, arrived shortly after noon today. Thousands of persons were at the pier to greet him.

The former president was greeted on board the steamer by the representatives of the city council, who extended to him an official greeting, and a party of ladies literally strewed his path with roses.

The German consul general extended the personal greetings of the emperor, and Ambassador Griseom represented the hundreds of Americans who have gathered at Naples and who would like to meet the former president personally. Mr. Roosevelt left on the steamer Adrial tonight for Mombasa.

Train Kills Two Veterans.

Goshen, Ind., Apr. 6.—Thomas Hitt and Samuel Merriam, Legionnaires, both old soldiers, were struck and instantly killed by a fast Lake Shore & Michigan Southern train yesterday. In attempting to get out of the way of a freight train they stepped in front of the flyer. The bodies were frightfully mangled.

Cousins Die at Same Hour.

Washington, Ind., Apr. 6.—James McCall of Salina, Kan., and Andrew McCall of St. Louis, cousin, died at the same hour Saturday. The bodies will be buried here, side by side. The men were crossing Indiana together on the same train when they were stricken ill.

San Francisco, Apr. 6.—According to advice received by the steamer Chiyu Maru, a party composed of members of the Japanese diet, now will visit the Pacific coast to study the Japanese situation.

TRUST CUT PAY

STEEL COMPANY'S SUBSIDIARIES PLAN 15 PER CENT. WAGE REDUCTION.

BECOMES EFFECTIVE MAY 1

Blash Means Saving of $25,000,000 and Gives Big Advantage Over Independents Whose Cut is Only Ten Per Cent.

New York, Apr. 5.—It has been definitely announced on the best authority that a cut in wages would be made by the various subsidiary companies making up the United States Steel corporation on April 15, to take effect May 1. There will be no wage cut by the corporation itself as promulgated from its officers in this city.

The subsidiary companies of the steel corporation have been holding back their announcement of wage cuts with the purpose of letting all the independent companies do their cutting first. This has not only the advantage of letting the independents accumulate the brunt of the odium for wage reduction and insures that there will not be an exodus of skilled trade workmen from the independent mills, but also serves a steel market coup of far greater importance than either of these considerations.

Gives Trust Big Advantage.

Inasmuch as the independents have cut their wage scales uniformly at the rate of ten per cent., the steel trust will be in position, if it announces a cut of 15 per cent. on May 1, to rearrange its price schedules so sweeping by that it will capture the entire steel market for months to come and insure an enormously swollen business for the coming year.

The United States Steel corporation paid out $160,000,000 in 1907. On that basis a cut of 15 per cent. means that the company will save $25,000,000 on labor alone.

Prepares for Strike on Lakes.

Buffalo, N. Y., Apr. 5.—The arrival here yesterday of a carload of non-union engineers, oilers and firemen is the first step in the preparation of the fight between the Lake Carriers' association and the various unions on the great lakes. It has been felt all along by the union men that a strike was inevitable. The Lake Carriers' association determined some months ago on an open shop policy, and the contracts for the coming year, which were signed by the Engineers, Firemen, Oiler and Water Tenders' association is one of the largest and best organized bodies on the great lakes, and it is said they could effectively tie up lake transportation.

Anthracite Miners Quit Work.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Apr. 5.—The first trouble in the anthracite region since the expiration of the three-year agreement has developed at the Keystone colliery of the Traders' Coal Company at the Ridgewood mine, about four miles from here. The miners had a dispute over yardage and the shifting of rock and as a result refrained from working yesterday. They have enlisted the assistance of National Organizer McClusky and District Board Chairman McLean in their effort to have their grievances adjusted.

The Men say there has been a gradual reduction in the prices paid for coal.

The men say there has been a gradual reduction in the prices paid for coal of work mentioned, but the officials of the company maintain that the same rates prevail as have been in force for a number of years.

Coal Strike in Canada.

Winnipeg, Man., Apr. 3.—The coal strike in the western Canada mines became general yesterday. All of the camps with the exception of Anglo-Saxon requested me to go to—the place that the new theory tells us doesn't exist, and mind my own business and a'nd mind his!

SUSPENSERS SAVE LIFE.

Miner Plunges Down 200-Foot Shaft, Catches on Projecting Timber and Companions Rescue Him.

Shamokin, Pa., Apr. 6.—Playing "tiger" about a 200-foot mine breach, James Kreiger and a lot more companions laughed and cheered. Suddenly, Kreiger slipped and disappeared down the breach. They ran for help and miners soon appeared with a rope.

In the fall Kreiger's suspenders caught on a projecting timber 50 feet from the surface. He grasped it and drew himself up until he sat on the post, whereupon the timber, though bruised, he waited for help. The rope was lowered, he fastened it about his arms and was drawn to the surface.

Indiana Hotel Reported Burned.

Louisville, Ind., Apr. 6.—Word was received here today that the White Sulphur Springs hotel, ten miles south of English, Ind., had been destroyed by fire. The hotel was destroyed by fire. The hotel was destroyed by fire. The hotel was destroyed by fire.

Rockies in Snow Struck.

Denver, Col., April 6.—A heavy snow storm prevailed yesterday over the entire Rocky mountain region.

THE CRACKING OF PAINT.

Property Owners Can Save Money by Learning the Cause.

Do you know what is wrong when paint peels, or cracks, or otherwise necessitates premature repainting? Well, sometimes it has been properly applied—the surface being lamp or too much dried. But, nine times out of ten, the trouble is caused by adulterated white lead.

To avoid all such trouble, every householder should know in a general way, when a surface is in proper condition to receive paint, what kind of primer and finishing coats different surfaces require, and how to avoid deterioration in materials.

A complete painting guide, including a book of color schemes, specifications for all kinds of painting work, and an instruction in getting the best results in painting materials, with directions for using it, can be had free by writing National Lead Company, 140 Broadway, New York, and asking for Houseowner's Painting Outfit No. 49.

This company, the largest makers of pure white lead, invite tests, by means of the blowpipe (included in outfit), or in any other way, of the purity of the white lead sold under their famous "Boy Painter" trademark. That trademark on a keg of white lead is in itself an absolute guarantee of purity and quality.

DUTIFUL SON.

"You young scamp! I've caught you smoking my cigars!"

"Yes, pa—er—er—you see I heard ma say that you were smokin' your pipe to death and er—I'm tryin' to save your life!"

The Strolling Blanche.

One of Blanche Bates' most intimate friends is telling a rather funny story about this clever actress.

"She came into my house one evening very much excited, and I said to her: 'Blanche, for heaven's sake, what is the matter? You seem to be all gone to pieces.'"

"Master enough," she answered, as her voice shook with anger. "I have been accosted by a man in the streets."

"Did that do you?" I asked.

"I hauled off and hit him in the face," she answered, and I said to him: "You dirty dog, would you speak to a defenseless woman?"

"And where do he when you said this?" I again inquired.

"Rolling in the gutter where he fell when I hit him," she said, in a surprised tone at my question. "Toledo."

The Secret of Success.

The motto of success was given in this tale of a "big" inquest:

A Swede among the miners in the west was noted for always striking pay dirt. His fellows thought that there must be some secret to the unusual success of the Swede and questioned him as to how he always succeeded in finding the spot where the good crop occurred.

"Well, Ay don't know of Ay can tell anything 'bout dat," answered Ole. "Ay only know dat Ay must keep on diggin'."—Milwaukee Free Press.

A Modern Miracle.

"I caused the dumb to speak to-day."

"How was that?"

"I was stopped in the street by a beggar with a white beard and a deaf and dumb placard on his breast, and when I expressed the opinion that he was an impostor he immediately recovered his speech and in vigorous Anglo-Saxon requested me to go to—the place that the new theory tells us doesn't exist, and mind my own business and a'nd mind his!"

SISTER'S TRICK

But It All Came Out Right.

How a sister played a trick that brought roy health to a coffee fiend is an interesting tale.

"I was a coffee fiend—a trembling, nervous, physical wreck, yet clinging to the poison that stole away my strength and in vigorous Anglo-Saxon requested me to go to—the place that the new theory tells us doesn't exist, and mind my own business and a'nd mind his!"

"One day my sister substituted a cup of Postum piping hot for my morning cup of coffee. It did not tell me what it was. I noticed the richness of it and remarked that the coffee tasted fine but my sister did not tell me I was drinking Postum for fear I might not take any more.

"She kept the secret and kept giving me Postum instead of coffee until I grew stronger, more tireless, got a better color in my yellow cheeks and a clearness to my eyes, then she told me of the health-giving, nerve-strengthening, life-saver she had given me in place of my morning coffee. From that time I became a disciple of Postum and no words can do justice in telling the story of his great deed. It did me. I will not try to tell it, for only after having used it can one be convinced of its merits."

Try this Postum's power to rebuild what coffee has destroyed. "There's a Reason."

Look in Pigs for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. It never changes, ever, and full of business interest.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

The Following is the First of a Series of Articles on the Minnesota Sunday School Association.

IS MINNESOTA'S GREATEST HOME MISSIONARY ENTERPRISE for its constantly seeking to carry every Sunday school in the state not only inspiration in the work but the newest and most practical methods of study and management. By means of conventions and institutes last year, we came in personal touch with 1000 schools, 400 pastors, 450 superintendents, 2000 teachers and 20,000 people interested in [hotter Sunday school work.

IT STANDS for Better Teaching, through Teachers meetings Teachers training classes, teachers reading courses, Institutes, Primary Unions, Summer schools, etc., and especially the special courses in the theological seminaries, designed to qualify pastors to train their own teachers.

IT BELIEVES in extending to all—no matter how young or how old, the benefits of the Sunday school and the House of God thru the House to House Visitation, Home Department, Cradle roll etc., and for carrying the open Word of God by the hand of a competent consecrated teacher to every man, woman and child in Minnesota.

We meet at Crookston May 4-6. Crookston is ready to entertain 500 delegates to the Sunday school convention. It is a school of instruction and inspiration for all the active Christian men and women of the state. Every Sunday school in this county should send delegates. Elect them now.

Rev. S. M. Dick, D. D. Pastor Wesley M. E. church, Minneapolis will be one of the inspiring speakers. Dr. Dick is a capable and enthusiastic Sunday school man. It will be a great treat to hear him.

What is Cradle Roll Dept. of the Sunday school?

It is the true "Infant" class of the S. S.

It is that department which inlists the babies and those too young to attend the sessions of the school and places around them, the sheltering care of the church.

How should this Dept. be conducted?

Mrs. Frank Cadwell of Minneapolis who has had years experience is successfully conducting this department in her own school, will be at Crookston and give a practical demonstration of how to carry on this work. She will have an exhibit to show you of Wall Rolls, Birthday, blotters, certificates etc. Every Sunday school primary teacher in Minnesota should plan NOW to go to Crookston and get the help of these specialists.

DEER VALLEY.

David Franson is working for Mr. Olson, who lives near the river.

Mrs. William Stevens and family visited with her daughter, Mrs. J. Gillig, at this place last week.

J. C. Heineman is shipping his brother E. J.'s new house, as E. J. is busy sawing lumber at the mill.

Monday the old veterans gathered at Rock Creek to send in their quarterly pension papers, and in a short time will receive their allotment from the government. This will make the old boys feel happy once more.

John Tate and E. J. Heineman are through cutting and hauling logs to the saw mill. They have over a thousand logs at the mill and when sawed will have over 40,000 feet of lumber. That does not look as though the timber was all cut in

Deer Valley.

Miss Sarah Stevens was visiting her sister Mrs. Vivian Heineman and also Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Heineman last week. The young lady is one of the Valley's brightest young ladies, and she is a rumor about that wedding bells will soon be sounding. We all certainly wish the young lady a happy life.

When the Dunn and Marois saw mill was moved from this place it was thought that the lumber had all been cut from this section of the country, but since A. E. Stevens has put in his mill, there has been an abundance of logs to saw, and by the amount of logs around the mill they will certainly have the largest cut they have ever had.

Mr. Gallig and family moved onto their land in this place last Friday, and has nearly completed his new house and barn. E. J. Heineman and Mr. Gallig have a good many sections of land near here and are hustlers. They have five or six more new settlers that will locate here as soon as the roads are dry enough so that they can move in. They have built new houses on their land and others will follow them this spring.

BULLETIN NO. 71

Fodder corn is sown in drills so thickly that no ears are formed.

It is used instead of hay more especially with cattle and sheep and maybe fed with good results to horses.

In feeding value it is better than timothy hay, especially for dairy cows.

It yields from two to four times as much per acre as hay. It has yielded as high as eight tons of cured fodder per acre on the Experiment farm.

A crop may be harvested the same season it is sown which can not be done with hay.

It is a cultivated crop and has a value in this respect in that it tends to keep out weeds, quack grass etc., and this cultivation also improves the soil mechanically.

Fourteen acres is grown every year on the Experiment Farm.

It follows clover in the rotation, and is used as a feed in connection with clover.

In preparing the field for fodder corn the clover sod is manured and plowed in the spring it might be plowed in the fall with good results but it is deferred till spring for the winter supply of manure. The field is harrowed smooth, and the rows three feet apart. The drill is made to seed in three foot rows by stopping up all the cups but those three feet apart.

In the absence of a grain drill a garden drill may be used to good advantage, and this should be on every farm.

The corn is sown from May 15th to June 10th, owing to the condition of the season.

About three-quarters of a bushel of seed is sown per acre.

The field is harrowed frequently till the corn is up and then cultivated every week or ten days throughout the growing season.

It is harvested when it has reached its maximum growth or earlier if danger of frost.

The past year it was sown June 4 (late season) and harvested Aug 25. Its yield was 11.5 tons per acre green weight.

One hundred tons were put in the silo, and the balance shocked up in the field and cured for fodder.

The greatest amount of feed can be gotten from fodder corn and in the most nutritious form when put in the silo. Fodder corn made into ensilage has practically the same feeding value as if fed green from the field. It is one of the best feeds for dairy cows during the winter and easiest to handle, but owing to the cost of the silo and machinery, it is not recommended only to farmers keeping 15 or more cows and who can afford its first cost. During the life of a well constructed silo the entire cost of building, machinery and all the expense of growing the fodder, and getting it in the silo does not exceed $2 a ton, as a cost on the ensilage as a feed.

At the present time, however the silo is only for a few in this section of the state, but fodder corn may, and should be grown by every farmer.

Not exclusively of clover, but to feed in connection with it. Or it may be fed the fore part of the season, when it gives best results and clover the latter part. By growing fodder corn at least a third more stock can be kept on the same number of acres.

It should be planted on well drained land. The soil cannot be too rich.

This seed may be bought from any of the large seed firms, if not on the local market. Minnesota No. 13 has given the best results on the experiment farm.

Avenging of Joseph Dain

By GEO. T. PARDY

John Wilson Murray in a New Sort of Case.

On a cold, dark winter's night, March 1879, two men stole quietly along in the black shadow of the house walls in Yonge street, Toronto, Canada. Each of the midnight prowlers took an opposite side of the thoroughfare. They slipped swiftly and softly on the corner of Bloor street where the city limits end.

On a corner of Yonge and Bloor streets lived the Dains, rich drovers and butchers. The family consisted of Mrs. Dain and her three sons, Joseph, James and Malcom. The latter was a wealthy business man and carried large sums of money on their persons for cattle buying.

Upstairs Joseph Dain was sleeping soundly in his room, his trousers lying on the chair beside his bed. A slight noise, a faint creaking, awoke him from slumber and he opened his eyes to see a tall figure dimly perceptible in the gloom, standing beside his bed, rifling the pockets of his trousers, in which he had a large amount of money. A powerful, active man of fearless disposition, Dain was quick to realize the situation and act on his first impulse. Springing from the bed he clutched with the intruder and a short but desperate grapple followed. Exerting all his strength the robber looked up and saw the Dain's face, and the two burglars sprang out through the darkness, separating as they fled and running in opposite directions.

Headless of the menacing challenge Dain sprang toward the speaker, when a shot rang through the frozen air, and he reeled and fell to the ground with a bullet in his abdomen. Picking the smoking weapon the burglar resumed his former pace, and passed out of sight.

In the meantime he who had stood as reentry on the outside of the house had run swiftly across Yonge street. Fat's will that he should trip over the extra ounce he was carrying, and fall headlong. Before he could regain his feet he was seized by a passing baker on his way to work, who held him until a policeman made his appearance on the scene and took the captured burglar to the lockup. Dain was carried indoors, attended to by surgeons and rallied considerably after the operation, although it was not expected that he would recover from the effects of his terrible wound. The omelet gilded by the Toronto authorities for the task of running down Dain's murderous assailant was John Wilson Murray, formerly of the United States secret service force and now in the employ of the Canadian government. Murray's first step was to visit the captured burglar in the lockup. His well-earned reputation in the criminal world stood him in good stead, for at the first glance he recognized the prisoner as Charles Leavitt, a desperate American burglar and thief. Buffalo was his home town, but the police there knew him so well that he seldom dared to visit the place. Looking carefully over the overcoat found in the captured burglar, Murray discovered the mark of a Cleveland tailor.

He at once started for the city in question, and looking up Leavitt's American record found that one of his intimate friends was Frank Meagher of Cleveland, a skilled burglar, clever crook and one of the ablest and worst "round ones" at the law. Leavitt was tried, convicted and sentenced to Kingston penitentiary for life. He submitted doggedly to his fate and sternly refused to give any information which might lead to the arrest of his comrade. Dain did not die immediately, but lived over one year and a day. According to English and Canadian law, a man cannot be convicted of murder and hanged if his victim lives for one year and one day after the crime is committed. Dain dragged out a lingering existence of agony for a couple of months over the year and then died. Hernia resulted from the bullet wound in his abdomen and finally killed him. Under the circumstances Meagher, if found, could be punished, but would not suffer the extreme penalty of the law.

Arriving in Indianapolis, Murray visited the penitentiary in company with Detective Muncie of Cleveland, who knew Meagher well, and they identified Armstrong as Meagher, thus making assurance doubly sure. The next step was to arrange for the removal of Meagher to Canada. Murray went to Terre Haute and secured the services of Daniel Voorhees of that city, one of the best criminal lawyers in the Hoosier state. He informed Voorhees that the state of Indiana had a criminal serving a sentence for a crime committed subsequent to the commission of a far graver crime in Canada, and that he wanted to take him back at once to pay the penalty of his prior deed. Voorhees took the case and accompanied Murray to Indianapolis, where a fine point of law had to be argued. The prisoner was in the Indianapolis jail, where he was kept, pending the outcome of the case, and had been informed of a conditional pardon and the case going against him. He was what is known as a "bad man" in every sense of the epithet. Three times in his career he had escaped from prison and had shot and killed a deputy on one occasion. He had a brother, Charles Meagher of Cleveland, also a thief, burglar, and desperate, resourceful crook. He had many friends, and Frank Meagher, then a fine looking, well-educated chap of 28, was highly respected and much admired among the denizens of the underworld for his daring and cleverness.

Murray was certain that the chances were all in favor of complete plans having been made to rescue him. He had all of his papers ready after midnight on June 20, and went direct to the jail. A train left at 4:35 in the morning and it was Murray's intention to get away on it with Meagher. It was about three in the morning when he arrived at the jail he knew an attempt would be made to rescue him. From the fact that he had gained possession of a revolver and club, it was easy to surmise that some of his friends were scheming to aid him. He thought of that 4:35 train, and turned to the sheriff.

"Just open that gate," he said, crisply. "I want to speak to him."

"Don't, don't," implored the sheriff. "He'll kill you sure! Remember, I warn you."

Murray looked at him grimly. "Open that gate," he said. "I'm going in there."

Yielding to the power of the other's determined will, the sheriff threw open the gate and Murray, without the slightest trace of nervousness, stepped inside and walked upstairs. When he reached the first landing the prisoner's voice rang out, sharp, tense and replete with deadly meaning.

"Stop right there, Murray; don't you come near me!"

Meagher halted. The shining barrel of the revolver, gripped in the man spoke. Murray's hands were empty, his revolver lying useless in his pocket.

"The prisoner will first to break his tension," Murray said suddenly, but without blinking his eyes. "I have no fit clothes. I'm a gentleman, and I won't go to Canada looking like a pauper."

Murray smiled languidly. "The sheriff has a suit of clothes for you, Frank," he said. "It's a pretty fair suit, but if it isn't good enough, I'll wait until you get one."

A look of satisfaction crossed Meagher's stern features. Murray, watching him, knew that he was playing for delay, and became more than ever determined to take him on that 4:35 train. Meagher leaned forward and hurled a torrent of insulting oaths at Detective Muncie, possibly hoping that he might create a diversion by picking a quarrel with the Cleveland officer. Muncie made no reply, and the prisoner again turned his attention to Murray.

"I've got nothing against you, Murray," he said. "But don't come a step nearer me."

Murray reflected. He half turned his back and sat down on the stair. If Meagher had looked away for a moment he could have slipped out his gun from his pocket. But the prisoner's eye never swerved. Murray answered hastily and turned his back altogether upon him.

"It's like this, Frank," he remarked, quietly. "I don't want to get hurt, but I want to pass Frank a couple of hundred dollars," was the reply.

"Take your money to hell with you," roared Meagher, apparently moved to a frenzy of rage by the failure of the plot to rescue him.

Keeping Red Jim covered, Murray ordered him to reach no lower than his breast pocket with his hands, and to count out the money where he stood. Meagher again shouted that he would not accept the money of a cowardly scoundrel of a man like that, and to count out the money where he stood. Meagher again shouted that he would not accept the money of a cowardly scoundrel of a man like that, and to count out the money where he stood.

"Sometimes the worst comes to the worst," Frank said. "Carroll, with an odd touch of quiet dignity, and people can't help themselves. This man Murray is a gentleman. He'll take no advantage of you and give you a fair show."

Thus speaking, Red Jim tossed the money at Murray's feet. "You'll have to excuse my not handing it to you," he said, apologetically.

"Good-by, Jim," was Murray's significant response.

Carroll hesitated, glanced again at the leveled revolvers, and nodded.

"Good-by, Mr. Murray," he said. "Good-by, Frank Good-by, Mr. Muncie."

He backed out of the doorway, preceded by his three pals, and closed the door. Murray picked up the money and gave it to his prisoner. Presently the train stopped at a junction, and when it pulled out again Red Jim stood on the station platform, waving a final good-by.

Murray and his prisoner went through to Buffalo, thence to Lewiston on the Niagara river, and thence by boat to Toronto. As the steamer passed old Fort Niagara at the mouth of the river, and glided into Lake Ontario, Meagher stood on the deck. The American flag was flying over Fort Niagara, and Meagher raised his fettered hands and saluted it.

"Good-by, Old Glory, God bless you," he said, earnestly. "I suppose it's the last time I shall ever see that flag. I'd rather I was dying for it than for what I am."

He gazed after the flag until it was a mere speck against the skyline. The idea that he could still be executed for killing Dain had taken complete possession of him, and all his captor's assurances to the contrary failed to cheer him.

Having landed his prisoner safely in the Toronto jail, where he was held for trial, Murray realized that it would be necessary to obtain the evidence of Meagher's confederate, Leavitt, in order to convict the former. Leavitt, however, was sentenced for life, and being dead in the eyes of the law, was not competent to testify. Murray visited Leavitt at the Kingston penitentiary and learned that he yearned for liberty, and was willing to become a witness for the crown. On Murray's recommendation, the government commuted Leavitt's sentence to ten years, thereby making him a competent witness.

Leavitt accordingly told the story of the crime, in court, with the result that Meagher was sentenced to 18 years in the penitentiary. When Meagher heard his former ally testify he stood up and cursed him savagely.

"You traitorous hound," he said. "I'll kill you in this world or the next."

Leavitt was pardoned after Meagher's conviction, on Murray's suggestion that he would probably be killed by some of the other convicts, if compelled to associate with them. When he heard of Leavitt's living in Cleveland, and Meagher's threat of vengeance was still unfulfilled, but some day they may meet—and then?

"There's going to be trouble," said Murray, significantly.

Meagher was wearing leg boots, as well as handcuffs, placed him in the middle, and examined the chambers of his revolver. Muncie also inspected his six shooter, and the two saw nothing of importance.

"You want to remember one thing, Frank," said Murray to his prisoner. "If there's any break made somebody is going to get before we do."

Meagher did not reply, but a sudden gleam lit the depths of his somber eyes. He comprehended the meaning of the threat and knew that the speaker would keep his word.

An hour passed. Suddenly the front door of the car swung open and Red Jim Carroll entered with his three companions behind him.

"Halt there, Jim!" came the brusque order in Murray's resolute tones. Carroll stopped and eyed the threatening muzzles of two revolvers. Murray and his companion were standing erect, alert and threatening.

"Good morning, gentlemen," said Carroll.

"Are you in search of trouble, Jim?" demanded Murray.

Carroll grinned. "Not me," he declared. "Will you let me speak to Frank?"

"You may speak to him from where you are," concurred Murray.

Meagher, mindful of Murray's sinister threat, remained quietly in his seat. When his guards first rose to their feet he had started half up, but remotely at the shouting given him in time, sunk back again. When Carroll came to a halt at Murray's command the prisoner's face grew black with rage, and he cursed Red Jim and the latter's companions for a cowardly crew. Red Jim's hand slid to his pocket, but stopped half way when Murray ordered him to desist.

"What are you reaching for?" asked Murray suspiciously.

"I want to pass Frank a couple of hundred dollars," was the reply.

"Take your money to hell with you," roared Meagher, apparently moved to a frenzy of rage by the failure of the plot to rescue him.

No other medicine for woman's ills has needed such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weakness, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. Madonna Lilies and Other Flowers That Are Sacred

In these sunny days life grows radiant from the dust, a latent consciousness of wings stirs in the buried seed, and as if from the very gladness of heart the sap in the naked trees mounts upward, ever upward, into the golden light. The tiny leaves, close clasped together in the bud, flutter timidly apart to grow bravely green, and daunt their color on the passing breeze. The maple tree in the yard now heaves a voice out of the unseen, calling from the blue skies, bidding it come higher, and gladly does it make answer in the green tassels and shining leaves, telling of new growth and broader horizon.

Out on the old arbor, the rough and scraggy grapevine is sending forth little gray tendrils, reaching farther toward heaven and away from the earth that hides its foothold. How blithely does nature echo forth her yearly message to every waiting heart—her message of resurrection, joyous activity, high-mounting aspiration! Her myriad voices cry through every sense, to touch and penetrate the spirit with gladness and good cheer. New readings from the Gospel of eternal hope are seen on every side, in the growth of plant, the unfolding of leaf, the blossoming of flower. The woods are full of these shy spring darlings—violets, anemones, adonis, crocuses, primroses, and many a nameless wildling, all hurrying joyfully to deck the earth and celebrate the Easteride.

Certain flowers and plants have always been set apart as sacred things, and from the very dawn of history we fear of flower-decked altars and wreaths of sacrifice. The heathen temples were adorned with earth's fairest blossoms, scattered on the altars, and twined around the brow of priest and acolyte. The amaranth bloomed in deathless beauty upon the Olympian heights, the myrtle was beloved of Apollo, the rose, the lily, the mistletoe were favorites of legend and myth. The flowers once sacred to Freya, the spring goddess of northern mythology, were chosen for their spotless purity, in form and color. And when heathen myths gave place to Christian truth, these sacred treasures were transferred to the Virgin, and became symbols of the queen of heaven.

So it is that in every story of saint or madonna we find either the lily or the rose—the lily with its fragrance, its bending, bowing, waving bells, seems to whisper of purity and worship; the rose, with its faint and far-away odor, which seems to hint of eternal hope. One might almost fill a garden with flowers all named for the Virgin Mary, generally because they

For Mine

Across the world his message rings, And bearing it, men cease a while To muller strive for worldly things, Or cling to longings that ate vile, And, having wrought for good or ill, Pay loving tribute to him still.

Wherever slender stepples rise, Wherever meadow daisies are heard The love he taught still sanctifies, The nobler passions still are stirred; By every friendly look and thought, We spread the message that he brought.

The Christian Festival of Easter

For all the holidays in the year Christmas and Easter stand more prominently on the page of history than any others. Throughout all the mutations and vicissitudes that have entered into the world's history during the past two thousand years the two festivals that commemorate respectively the birth and the resurrection of the Master Nazareth still shine with a splendor that remains unfaded after the lapse of two centuries.

The Christian festival of Easter is not only a celebration of great antiquity, but many of its popular observances are clearly of pagan origin. In northern Germany the ancient Teutons were accustomed to celebrate the feast of the Goddess Ostara, who was the personification of morning, or the east, and also of the opening year, or spring. This custom continued to be observed down to the beginning of the present century. The pagan rites instituted by the Germans were brought into England by the Saxons, and under the name of Easter the Teuton divinity was honored by the Anglo-Saxons with joy and feasting about the same season of the year that the Christian Easter festival observes.

It was about the year 68 A. D. that the formal institution of the celebration of the day by Christians took place. To the followers of the Risen Lord the heathen season of rejoicing at the rising of the natural sun and the awakening of nature at the death of winter was easily suggestive of joy at the rising of the Son of Righteousness—the resurrection of Christ from the tomb. It also followed as a natural result that the devout adherents of the Christ in their reverence for the day upon which was performed the greatest and most sublime of miracles should continue to set it apart, each week as a day for divine worship, to the utter exclusion of the Sabbath of the Decalogue.

The rites and ceremonies that characterize the celebration of the Easter festival, although modified somewhat in this age, still retain many of the features that marked it in earlier years. In the early church the ceremonies lasted eight days. Courts of justice were closed and alms were dispensed in the churches to the poor and needy. Popular sports, theatrical exhibitions and dancing were indulged in. These latter frivolities, however, were abolished by the reformers of the sixteenth century. Our Anglo-Saxon ancestors held daily services in the churches from Palm Sunday to the beginning of the Easter festival. People danced and feasted with the Easter kites and the words "Ee Surrexit" (He is risen), to which greeting the reply "Vere Surrexit" (He is risen indeed). The chief solemnity of the occasion was the celebration of the Lord's supper.

In Russia Easter Sunday is a holiday that exceeds all others. At midnight of Saturday a metropolitan or priest, preceded by a cross-bearer and boy bearing holy water, vessels and candles, and followed by a solemn procession, issues from the church, and going round the wall sprinkles it with holy water. He then pronounces a benediction upon thousands of large, round, silver covers, pyramids of bread with palms stuck in them and eggs in great quantities. This ceremony signals the close of Lent, and the return to Easter Sunday. Joyful voices of the faithful are heard crying out: "Christus vero Chris" (Christ is risen) and the response: "He is risen indeed." The kiss upon their cheek is then given by all; this salute being given and received by emperor and serf alike.

Electric Lighted Easter Eggs. The very newest thing in Easter eggs is to be seen in the toy shops these days, consisting of an enlarged reproduction of the ordinary egg with a tiny electric light apparatus concealed somewhere inside it. There is a peep-hole at one end, and as you put your eye to it you press a button. Then the interior of the shell is flooded with light, showing a scene of eggs or less brilliancy and gaiety.

President Taft's White Steamer

PRESIDENT TAFT AND HIS FAMILY IN THEIR WHITE STEAMER

When the announcement was made several months ago that Mr. Taft would use an automobile during his term as President, much rivalry developed among the leading manufacturers for the honor of selling him a car and the public watched with interest to see what Mr. Taft's choice would be. The knowing ones predicted that the White Steamer would be selected and they pointed out that President Roosevelt had used White Steamers for two years at his summer home at Oyster Bay and had recommended this make to Mr. Taft as the most desirable.

When their labors were completed, the officials reported unanimously to Mr. Taft in favor of the White, and accordingly, a car of this make was immediately ordered from the manufacturer, The White Company of Cleveland.

The new car was delivered to Mr. Taft in Washington a few days before his inauguration and since that time it has been in almost constant use. There has not been a day when the President or some member of his family have not been riding around the National Capital in the new car. It is hinted that Mr. Taft likes fast traveling and that when he rides out into the open country he does not always insist that the speed of the car be kept within the legal limits.

This prediction proved correct, although Mr. Taft did not rely solely on Mr. Roosevelt's recommendation. This custom continued during the past two thousand years the two festivals that commemorate respectively the birth and the resurrection of the Master Nazareth still shine with a splendor that remains unfaded after the lapse of two centuries.

W. J. Urquhart, manager of the western branch of the White Company, 239 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., said recently to a correspondent of this paper: "We are receiving many inquiries each day asking for full details regarding the construction of Mr. Taft's car and in reply we are sending copies of our catalog. Mr. Taft's car is exactly like any other Model 'M' 40 horse-power White Steamer, except that the car has the United States coat of arms painted on either door. In other words, when we make a car for the President of the United States there is no way in which we can make it any better than the car which you or anybody else can purchase from us. "Some of those writing to me about Mr. Taft's car say that although they are very desirous of having a car like Mr. Taft's, they are afraid that such a car is somewhat larger and more expensive than they desire. In reply to such letters, I point out that our Model 'O' 20 horse-power car is exactly like our 40 horse-power model, except as regards the size of the different parts. The principle of construction is exactly the same and the smaller car possesses all the desirable qualities of our larger model. In other words, one can secure an exact duplicate of Mr. Taft's car for $4,000, or a car of the same qualities, but of smaller dimensions, for only $2,000. Judging by the demand for White cars, a good proportion of those desiring to purchase automobiles are quite content to trust President Taft's judgment as to the best and most desirable make.

MAKES WORK EASIER
Pine City People Are Pleased to Learn How It's Done.
It's pretty hard to attend to duties with a constantly aching back. With annoying urinary disorders, Doan's Kidney Pills make work easier. They cure backache. They cure kidney ills. Samuel Heath, Pine City, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been my standby for years. When I first began their use, I was in misery as a result of kidney trouble. While at my work if I did any stooping, sharp pains would shoot through all parts of my back. The kidney secretions were also very scant and I had a difficulty in passing them. I was subject to dizzy spells, when everything would turn black before me. I was weak and nervous and at last had to quit work. Finally I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Breckenridge's Pharmacy and in a short time I was rid of the trouble. I have used this remedy on many occasions since and consider it the best in the world."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

ROCK CREEK
Henry and Alfred Smith were helping Alfred Hanson bail hay on Monday.
Henry Smith has been on the sick list for a couple of days, but is slowly recovering.
Henry Smith was seen on the Bjorkman road last Friday evening taking in the slugs.
A number of the Pine Grove girls have been busy during last week gathering local news.
Miss Mary Smith was visiting Oscar Bjork last Saturday. She must have forgotten that last year is past.
(From another correspondent)
A. M. Challen was a St. Paul visitor last week going down to see his son who is quite ill at a hospital at that place. We all feel sorry for the afflicted and think that our enterprising merchant has had his share of trouble.
Miss Flora Myers the book-keeper and assistant post mistress in A. M. Challen's store has received a couple of months furlough, and it is reported that there will soon be wedding bells ringing and that Miss Myers will be one of the parties that will be very much concerned.
As your correspondent was coming from Pine City last week, he met that old pioneer, Geo. L. Stevens going from his residence to the road. We had not seen neighbor Stevens for some time and was surprised to see how healthy and good looking he had become since we saw him last. He deserves a good time in his old age, as he has worked hard enough for what he has got.

WILLOW RIVER.
Mrs. Sandwick, of Sandstone was visiting friends here last week. County Attorney L. H. McKusick of Pine City was in town this week on business.
A Mr. Anderson died here Friday at the age of 87, and was buried Sunday afternoon.
Mr. Tyler moved Monday to Frazer, where he has secured a position in the saw mill at that place.
Roman Verman had his leg broken Monday afternoon, while skidding logs. He was taken to a hospital at St. Paul on Tuesday's limited.
It was a little surprise to the citizens of this place when they got up Wednesday morning and found two inches of snow on the ground. But by night it had all disappeared.
Hans Westard, of Rutledge, was in town Saturday on business. Mr. Westard has purchased a farm near Drummond on the new So. road, and will move out there this spring.
Charley Schultz had the misfortune to break his leg Tuesday, while skidding logs for George Smith's log barn near McGrath. He was brought to Willow River Tuesday night, where Dr. Ehmke set his limb, and it is reported he is getting along as well as could be expected.
Last Friday a girl from the country tried to play a clever trick on one of our merchants. She went in the store and purchased a pair of shoes for her little brother, which she had charged. She waited until the party she purchased the shoes from had gone out, when she returned the shoes, for which she received the cash. When the merchant returned his attention was called to the matter. Constable Mottle was called to look up the girl, he went out to her home and received the money that had been paid her for the shoes. This same girl has been playing tricks in this same store all winter, but this time she got caught at it.
The right place for a girl like this is the reform school. This matter is not settled yet as there are still costs to be paid.

Bankers and Merchants Bookkeeping Institute
120-128-130 So. 3rd St., Minneapolis, Minn.
Bookkeeping, Correspondence, Business Methods, Practical Penmanship.
Training Office is the proper conception of the Institute, not Business School or College, which implies study. Bookkeeping is work, not study, hence training. We provide standing desks, high stools, telephones, same as in a bank or commercial office.
Actual Bookkeeping We have adopted the Actual Bookkeeping System of Training (not teaching.) This is a business-like system, whereby commercial transactions are represented by tangible orders, checks and invoices instead of being copied from a text book, or other device. The Common Sense Method.
Bankers and Merchants have for years found it difficult to secure competent bookkeepers. To obviate this difficulty the INSTITUTE was organized.
Our Certificate of Competency is a guarantee to the bankers and merchants of the northwest that the holder is a trustworthy, painstaking and reliable accountant. One that can and will MAKE GOOD.
You can Be a competent bookkeeper by working (not studying) two or three months in our TRAINING OFFICE. No classes or terms. INDIVIDUAL work and instruction. Pamphlet free, explaining the Actual Bookkeeping System of Training.
