Fire At Stekl's.

STEKL'S SALOON ON FIRE WEDNESDAY EVENING. DAMAGE SLIGHT.

At about 1:45 yesterday morning, our citizens were aroused from their slumbers by the shrill scream of the fire whistle and the clang of the fire bell and upon investigation it was found that the rear of Stekl's saloon was on fire.

The fire department responded promptly, but on account of the rotten condition of the hose, was not of a great deal of use. The engine would just get to doing good work when a length of hose would break, and the engine would have to be shut down to take it out, and if it had not been for the pump at the flour mill, the same institution, the Stekl block would be in ashes at the present time.

The origin of the fire is unknown as it started in under the back stair-way where there was nothing but old, empty cans stored, and Mr. Stekl informs us that he looked the place over thoroughly when he closed up at eleven o'clock, and after closing, he and H. J. Rath stood on the sidewalk for, at least, half an hour. There was a dancing party in the hall and they had only left twenty minutes before, when George Payne, who was running the electric light plant at the flour mill, went down to Mr. Stekl's house and informed him that the hall was on fire. Mr. Stekl, thinking that some of the boys at the dance had set fire to the stage scenery, ran up to the hall, which he found full of smoke, but could find no fire. He then ran down and opened the front door of the saloon and also found this room full of smoke, but no fire. He then went to the back door, which, when he opened it, the smoke rolled out. He knew that if he left the door open the air would cause the fire to blaze and he closed the door again until they arrived with the water, when a number of men broke in the back door and the whole place immediately broke out into a sheet of flame. The whole rear of the building is in a very dilapidated condition, the side wall being burned thru into the Farmer's Co-operative store and the floor of the hall is not up as the fire seemed to be between the plaster and the sheathing.

Mr. Stekl telephoned the Harnes Brewing Co. of St. Paul, to whom the building belongs and they promised to send a man as soon as possible to again put the building in shape.

never to be forgotten sight. Together with the visitors by rail, the country people who will drive to the point of exhibition and others who will be desirous of taking advantage of imposing sight, it is fair to estimate that upwards of twenty thousand people will witness the demonstration.

The airship will positively be demonstrated with the Yankee Robinson Shows on August 5th at Pine City.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MEET

The Commissioners Met Last Week and the Following Important Business was Transacted.

Auditor's Office, Pine City, Minn., July 19, 1909.

The Board of County Commissioners met pursuant to adjournment, 1 o'clock p. m., all members present. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

On motion the Board adjourned to meet at the Auditor's office at 10 o'clock A. M., July 21, 1909.

A. Parish, Chairman.

Attest: W. H. Hamlin, County Auditor.

The Board of County Commissioners met this day pursuant to adjournment, all members present. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The following resolution was presented.

Whereas, on the 15th day of March, 1904, a portion of the territory then embraced within the town of Sandstone, was, by the Board of County Commissioners, duly set off and organized as a new town and duly named the town of Crooked Creeks, which said name was afterwards, on the 24th day of March, 1904, duly changed by said Board to the Town of Dexter, and afterward, on July 11th, 1904, by said Board, duly changed to the Town of Danforth, And whereas, at the time of the setting off and organization of said Town of Danforth, there were certain out standing orders of the Town of Sandstone and other indebtedness of said town, and no apportionment of the debts represented by said out standing orders of the Town of Sandstone, or otherwise, or of the property of said town, was, or has since, been made between said towns.

Now, therefore, Resolved that a meeting of this Board be held on the 23rd day of August, 1909, for the purpose of apportioning to the said Town of Sandstone and the said Town of Danforth, that portion of the debts of said Town of Sandstone, existing at the time of the organization of said Town of Danforth, represented by the out standing orders of said town or otherwise, and also the property of said Town of Sandstone, in such manner as it may deem right and proper.

Resolved further, that at least ten days notice of said meeting and the purpose thereof, be given by the County Auditor to said towns by the service of said notice on the Chairman of each of said towns.

A. Parish.

The foregoing resolution was unanimously adopted by the Board of County Commissioners, July 21, 1909.

FOREST EXPERTS OF ALL NATIONALITIES Agree That Germany is in An Envious Position As Regards Her Lumber Supply.

The Farmer's Co-operative store will be closed until the insurance is adjusted, as there are quite a lot of goods damaged by water.

The German Empire has approximately 35,000,000 acres of forest, of which 51% per cent belongs to the state. Many years ago that country awakened to the necessity of applying the same methods of business economy to the management of its forest lands that are applied to its operations in trade, and the result is that Germany's practice of forestry has served as a model for all other countries.

German forestry is remarkable in three ways, it has always led in scientific thoroughness and now it is working out results with an exactness almost equal to that of the laboratory, it has applied this scientific knowledge with the greatest technical success, and it has solved the problem of securing through a long series of years an increasing forest output and increasing profits at the same time.

Starting with forests which were in as bad shape as many of our cut-over areas, Germany raised the average yield of wood per acre from twenty cubic feet in 1820 to seventy-five cubic feet in 1908. During the same time it tripled the proportion of saw timber secured from the average cut, which means, in other words, that thru the practice of forestry the timber lands of Germany are of three times better quality to-day than when no system was used. In a little over half a century it increased the money returns from an average acre of forest seven fold, and today the forests are in better condition than ever before.

AIRSHIP IS COMING

Monster Airship will be Brought to This City by Yankee Robinson

The event of the year will be the exhibition of the Santa Demont airship which will be demonstrated in this city on the day of exhibition of the Yankee Robinson Shows. This is the identical airship that made the circle of Eiffel Tower in Paris last September. It is indeed, as outlined in the advertising of the show, the marvel of the age. Prof. Foster, who has charge of the airship, has a world-wide reputation in Europe, where he has made successful flights before the army officials of Germany, France, England, and Russia.

Owing to the lumenosity of this production, the Yankee Robinson Shows will only exhibit this season every one hundred miles. The point of exhibition for this particular locality has been selected at Pine City on August 5, 1909. Arrangements have been made to run excursion for one hundred miles to this city. It is conservatively estimated by railroad officials that upwards of five thousand people will take advantage of the low rate to witness this

BRUNSWICK ROAD PICK UPS.

A farewell party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davis, in honor of their son, Harry, who went out to Washington. The evening was spent in dancing and at 12 o'clock refreshments were served, after which all departed for their homes, having spent a very pleasant evening, and wishing Harry a pleasant trip out west.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Erhart spent last Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pangeral and family.

All the people on the Brunswick road are busy again picking blue berries.

Mr. Will Cort's pony is seen on the road quite often here lately. What are the attractions up there, Bill?

The dance on the bowery last Saturday evening was well attended and all present report a good time, and are wishing for another one?

Dick.

FOREST AREA OF THE SOUTH

The South, with twenty-seven per cent. of the total area of the United States, contains about forty-two per cent. of the total forest area of the country. The forest area of states is as follows: Alabama, 20,000,000 acres; Arkansas, 24,200,000; Florida, 20,000,000; Georgia, 22,800,000; Kentucky, 10,000,000; Louisiana, 16,500,000; Maryland, 2,200,000; Mississippi, 17,500,000; North Carolina, 19,600,000; South Carolina, 12,000,000; Tennessee, 15,000,000; Texas, 35,000,000; Virginia, 14,000,000; and West Virginia, 9,100,000.

The South, it will be seen, has still much of the virgin forest of the country. This forest must be used, of course, in order to meet the steadily expanding wants of this section. It must be used in such a manner, however, that the very most may be made from its annual cut, while at the same time this cut is being replaced by new growth. In this way its timber will remain a source of perpetual wealth.

The importance of forest conservation to Southern interests is clearly understood by the people of the South. The future of the South is more nearly bound up in the plan of forest preservation, with its accompanying protection to watersheds, power-streams and wood-working industries, than is anything now before the people of this country. Not only is the protection of the watershed, which will some day furnish the power to run all manufacturing establishments in the entire South, an important matter to the South, but the industries depending upon the forest products will also be benefited by the protection thrown about the remaining timbered area.

THE NATION'S TRIBUTE TO ITS WARRIORS

By EDWARD B. CLARK COPYRIGHT 1905 BY WALTER BATTERSON

WASHINGTON.—In the fall the Grant monument will be unveiled and dedicated. It is to be the most imposing statue in the capital city, fit to do full justice to the memory of the foremost soldier who fought on the side of the Union.

The pedestal for the Grant memorial is at the purposes of remembrance of the nation's great. The statue of Gen. Sherman an equestrian memorial was unveiled five years ago. It faces the Treasury ready in place and is nearing completion. Its base is a huge square of stone with smaller stones superimposed to that the ascent to the statue proper will be a succession of steps, though it is perhaps needless to say that the pedestal will not be given over to the uses of a stairway. At each corner of the base there is a lion couchant. The bas-reliefs have been shrouded to keep their bronze beauty hidden from the eyes of the multitude until the day comes to show the memorial in its completion.

The union general will be shown mounted on one of his favorite horses. It is said that the model of the horse shows lines that are as near perfection as art can make them. If the general's mount is as spirited and effective as the bronze horse shown in the memorial to Gen. Thomas on Thomas circle in this city it will leave nothing to be desired. The horse of Gen. Thomas is said to be the most perfect creature ever cast in metal.

The commission which had in charge the memorial to Gen. Grant had many difficulties to overcome before a site was selected. There was great objection to the placing of the statue in the Botanical garden, which is directly across the street from the grounds of the capitol at the Pennsylvania avenue corner where the peace monument stands. The Washington people, like the people in many other cities of the country, do not take kindly to the erection of stone and bronze memorials in what may be called the public pleasure grounds. They want them all to be placed in the little circles and squares at the intersections of the streets and avenues of the city.

After many meetings and after listening to many protests, the site in the Botanical garden was chosen and approved. In order to make room for the statue two magnificent elms had to be removed. The people mourned the loss of the elms, or rather mourned their prospective loss, for it was decided to transplant the trees, a tremendous undertaking, but one that finally was accomplished. It is too early yet to tell whether the transplanted elms will live or die in their new beds.

It has often been a source of wonder that no statue of Gen. Grant appears in the Memorial hall of the capitol, where each state has memorials of two of its representative sons, or it ought to be said daughters, for one woman appears in Memorial hall in marble.

Grant was born in Ohio, but he went to the war from Galena, Ill., and his first command during the early days of civil strife was an Illinois regiment. Lincoln is also claimed by Illinois, but the legislature of the state in selecting persons to be honored in Memorial hall at the capitol chose Gen. James A. Shields of Ohio, the place of Grant's birth, nor Illinois, the place of his adoption, has seen fit to honor him the chances are that his statue never will find a place in the hall, which once was used as the assembly place of the representatives of congress and which is now given over to building from the south, and it is one of the most notable public memorials in the city of Washington, although it is true that fault has been found with a few minor details of the execution.

Sheridan's statue, representing "Little Phil" as he appeared at the battle of Winchester when rallying his troops to turn again to the attack, stands in a little green circle on Massachusetts avenue. The Sheridan memorial has been in place less than a year. The widow of the Shenandoah campaigner lives in a house the windows of which overlook the memorial of her husband.

It is curious perhaps that the memorials to the three greatest generals of the civil war who fought on the side of the north were not erected until many years after soldiers of less fame had been remembered. The statue of Gen. McPherson has stood for years in the public square named for this soldier, who was killed in the battle of Atlanta. Gen. Thomas "the rock of Chickamauga," was remembered in bronze nearly 30 years ago. Admirals Farragut and Dupont have represented in sea service of their country in memorial form in Washington. The statue of John A. Logan, the civilian soldier, has had a place in the nation's capital for a long time. Hancock was not forgotten and neither were some eight or ten other officers whose fame was bright, but which never shone with the extraordinary luster of that of Grant or Sherman.

There are scores of memorials of various kinds in Washington. Foreign nations are represented. In Lafayette square are the statues of the Frenchman Lafayette and Rochambeau, who came to the aid of the colonies in their struggle against Great Britain.

Before long there will be two other statues in the square, one to the honor of Pulaski and another to Steuben. When these memorials are in place Lafayette square will contain five bronze figures, Lafayette, Rochambeau, Pulaski, Steuben and Andrew Jackson. The Jackson statue stands in the center of the park, with each of the Frenchmen has a corner to himself. The other corners will be occupied by the Pole and the German.

Emperor William about six years ago presented to the United States a statue of Frederick the Great. It was dedicated with impressive ceremonies Nov. 19, 1904. It was unveiled by the Baroness Speck von Sternberg, wife of the German ambassador, and was presented fee, chief of staff; Maj-Gen. Gillespie, of the general staff and master of ceremonies; and by Lieut-Gen. von Loewenfeld, one of the special commissioners sent to the unveiling by the kaiser. An address was also made by Charlemagne Tower, American ambassador to Germany.

Seldom has the national capital witnessed a more brilliant and distinguished assembly than that which gathered on the esplanade of the army war college around the pedestal of Emperor William's gift. On the president's stand were seated the president and the members of his cabinet, the German ambassador and Baroness Speck von Sternberg and other distinguished persons. On the stand to the right and left of the statue were the officers of the army and navy in full dress uniform, members of the supreme court, members of congress and a number of distinguished invited guests.

Germany's gift created considerable unfavorable comment throughout the country on the part of the foreign population with no particular love for the emperor. The Poles were especially critical and Polish societies throughout the country met to protest against the United States accepting the present from royalty. The local Polish societies joined in the protest. There were many others who wondered what Emperor William was aiming at by his favor to the American people, but almost in a few instances this query took the form of goodnature curiosity rather than of resentment.

On the afternoon of January 10, 1905, an attempt was made to blow up the statue of Frederick the Great. No serious damage resulted and there were those who thought that a practical joker had been at work, but the force of the explosion was such as to show that the joke, if joke it were, was a decidedly serious matter. Threats had been made from time to time by anonymous letter writers to blow up the statue, but little attention was paid to them. The tenor of the written threats was to the effect that no monarch ought to be remembered in the capital city of a republic, and that soon "something would be done." Since that attempt to damage the memorial of the great Frederick a strict guard has been maintained about the statue.

STATUE OF GEN. JOHN A. LOGAN, WASHINGTON, D.C.

STATUE OF FREDERICK THE GREAT

Representative Barthold of Missouri at the next session of congress will champion a measure intended to change the name of Lafayette square to Independence square and he will ask that the memorial to Gen. Jackson, which stands in the center of the park shall be replaced by one of George Washington. Mr. Barthold thinks that the name Lafayette square gives too much prominence to a man of one nationality, while there were men of other nationalities also to be remembered by statues in the park who gave just as much service to the struggling colonies.

The Missouri congressman thinks that in a sense Lafayette square makes an invidious distinction. Lafayette holds a peculiar place in the affections of Americans, and though it may be without right or reason, he is known much better to the people than either Steuben or Pulaski. There will be opposition to the change in the name of the square, but as Lafayette is remembered in bronze at its most commanding corner it may be that Mr. Barthold is right in contending that the doubt honor is too much to give one man.

General Steuben's service to the American patriots hardly can be estimated. It was not so much his aid in actual battle as his teaching of drill regulations and tactics and his imparting to the revolutionary officers of the art of maintaining efficient discipline that brought him fame and the honor of the leaders of the revolutionary cause.
