NEW ROAD AT CHENGWATANA.

The Town Board of The Town of Chengwatana Has About Completed a New Road That Will Benefit The Farmers.

We have been informed that the town of Chengwatana has about completed a new road on the section line north of Guy Chaffee's and Trippers' running from Cross lake to D. L. Whitehouse's place.

This will do away with the old river road and also the Meadow Lawn road around Cross lake. The farmers around the lake come down the old government road to the section line and then go east on the new road until they intersect with the road running north from the new bridge across Snake river, and the farmers coming from Meadow Lawn can either go south to the section line at D. L. Whitehouse's or on the north and south road running past the Barkey and Carrier farms or go to Hustletown and go south from there to the section line, or else come to the road running from the old Meadow Lawn road to the one running to the copper mines and there strike the east and west road on the section line, this making five roads that the farmers from Meadow Lawn and two roads that the farmers from Hustletown can reach the county seat on.

The best part of the whole thing is that the new road is all on high land and the residents of this part of Pine County will not be bothered as in the past in the spring and fall with having to contend with poor roads on account of the low land thru which they run.

The town of Chengwatana has had about the toughest proposition in regard to roads of any town in the county, as a greater part of the roads as laid out at first followed, or nearly followed, the old winter roads of the loggers that cut the timber where some of the best farms in Pine County are now, and the settlers that by following the old winter roads of the loggers, they were doing what was for the best interest of the community.

The loggers made their winter roads thru the part of the county that was the easiest to clear and hence took the low swamp lands which, in the spring and fall, are almost impossible to travel over.

This new road being on high land the greater portion of the way in a few years will be one of the best roads in southern Pine County.

The people of Chengwatana are to be congratulated in pushing forward this road without one cent of help from the county or any other source than the road tax of the town.

What the town of Chengwatana has done towards building and improving its roads can be done by any other town in the county, by the residents of the town all working together.

This new road has cost the town considerable money, but when it is completed it will be the means of saving the town a larger amount, as it will not take nearly so much money to keep it in repair as it would the roads on low land that were washed out by the water every spring.

KNIGHTS ENTERTAIN.

The Knights of Pythias Entertain At Their Hall Wednesday Evening. About Sixty Enjoyed The Festivities.

Last Wednesday evening, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, about twenty knights, their ladies and friends, to the number of sixty, met at K. of P. hall and enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

During the fore part of the evening it was that by the entertainment committee that their efforts to get out a crowd would be a failure, but at 8:30 the knights and their ladies began to gather and at nine o'clock the concert with the New Edison phonograph was begun. After several numbers had been played, J. Y. Breckenridge, who was operating the machine, called "take your partners for a quadrille." The machine played a complete quadrille and did the calling. Two sets were danced. This was the first time a phonograph was ever used in this place to play quadrille music. All who took part in the dancing said it was fine only the caller had to be taken from the machine, as it was not loud enough to be heard in the rear when the dancing was in progress. There was music until 11:30, when the luncheon furnished by the sisters, consisting of rolls, salads, chicken sandwiches and cake, coffee and ice cream. During the evening there were a number of pieces played, including a set of lancers which dance was very fine.

The knights and their ladies picked out nearly four dozen records which will be purchased by the lodge and kept in the hall for the amusement of the members.

The Knights of Pythias in this place intend to enjoy themselves this winter if such a thing is possible.

Mrs. Jacob Youngbauer, formerly of Pine City, Minn., says: "For several years I noticed that my kidneys were not performing their functions properly. My back was weak and lame and I felt tired and worn out nearly all the time. The kidney secretations became too frequent in passage and were otherwise disordered. I also had rheumatism in my joints and at times could not walk without assistance. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells and dark spots would appear before my eyes. I was in a bad way and could not get relief from the many remedies I tried until I began using Doan's Kidney pills procured at Breckenridge's Pharmacy. They acted like magic and entirely rid me of the trouble."

PEARY REITERATES THE CLAIMS OF EXPLORER COOK

ISSUES LONG PROMISED STATEMENT IN NORTH POLE DISPUTE.

GIVES STORY OF THE ESKIMOS

The Statement is Signed by Peary, Bartlett, McMillan, Borup and Henson of the Roosevelt Party—Eskimo Boys Closely Questioned by All.

(Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1909, by the Peary Arctic Club, in the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.)

New York, Oct. 12.—The following statement of Commander Robert E. Peary, which he submitted, together with the accompanying map, to the Peary Arctic Club in support of his contention that Dr. Cook did, after they left the north pole, is now made public for the first time. The statement and map have been copyrighted by the Peary Arctic club.

INTRODUCTION BY PEARY.

Some of my reasons for saying that Dr. Cook did not go to the north pole will be understood by those who read the following statement of the Eskimo boys who went with him, and who told me and others of my party where he did go. Several Eskimos who started with Dr. Cook from Anorok in February, 1908, were at Etah when I arrived there in August, 1908. They told me that Dr. Cook had with him, after they left the north pole, is now made public for the first time. The statement and map have been copyrighted by the Peary Arctic club.

On my return from Cape Sheridan and after my first settlement I touched (Nerok) in August, 1909, and nine days before reaching Etah, the Eskimos told me, in a general way, where Dr. Cook had been; that he had wintered in Jones Sound, and that he had told the white men at Etah that he had been a long way north but that the boys who were with him, Itook-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, said that this was not so. The Eskimos laughed at Dr. Cook's story. On reaching Etah, I talked with the Eskimos there and with the boys and asked them to describe Dr. Cook's journey to members of my party and myself. They did it in the manner set forth below.

(Signed) R. E. PEARY.

Signed Statement of Peary, Bartlett, McMillan, Borup and Henson, in regard to Testimony of Cook's Two Eskimo Boys.

The two Eskimo boys, Itook-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, who accompanied Dr. Cook while he was away from Anorok in 1908 and 1909, were questioned separately and independently, and were corroborated by Paulkpa, the father of one of them (Itook-shoo), who was personally familiar with the first and the last of the boys' journey, and who said that the route for the remaining third, as shown by them, was as described to him by his son, Itook-shoo.

To go more into details: One of the boys was called in, and, with a chart on the table before him, was asked to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. He did nothing out with his finger on the map, but not making any marks upon it.

As he went out, the other boy came in with a letter from Dr. Cook, which had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, also without making any marks, and indicated the same route and the same details as did the first boy.

When he was through, Paulkpa, the father of Itook-shoo, a very intelligent man, who was in the party of Eskimos that came back from Dr. Cook from the northern end of Nanzen's strait, who is familiar as a hunter with the Jones Sound region, and who has been in Commander Peary's various expeditions for some fifteen years, came in and indicated the same localities and details as the two boys. Then the other boy was brought in again, and with a pencil he traced on the map their route, members of our party writing upon the chart where according to the boy's statement, he had killed deer, bear, some of their dogs, seal, walrus and musk oxen.

The second boy was then called in and the two went over the chart together, the second boy suggesting some changes as noted heretofore.

During the taking of this testimony,

MAP SHOWING WHAT PEARY CLAIMS IS ROUTE TRAVELED BY DR. COOK

It developed that Dr. Cook had told these boys, as he told Mr. Whitney and Billy Pritchard, the cabin boy, that they must not tell Commander Peary or any of us anything about their journey, and the boys stated Dr. Cook had threatened them if they should tell anything.

The narrative of these Eskimos is as follows:

They, with Dr. Cook, Francke and nine other Eskimos, left Anorok, crossed Sius to Cape Sabine, slept in Payer Harbor, then went through Rice strait to Buchanan bay. After a few marches Francke and three Eskimos returned to Anorok.

Dr. Cook, with the others, then proceeded up Flager bay, a branch of Buchanan bay, to the head of Flager bay, indicated by Sverdrup in 1898, and killed by Commander Peary in 1898, and killed by Sverdrup's "Bay Ford" on the west side of Ellesmere Land.

Their route then lay out through the ice, which was level and covered with snow, offering good going, to a low island which they had seen from the shore of Heiberg Land at Cape Northwest. On this island they camped for one sleep.

From this island they could see two lands beyond (Sverdrup's Ellet Ring Land and Amund Ring Land). From the island they journeyed toward the left-hand one of these two lands (Amund Ring Land), passing a small island which they did not visit.

Arriving at the shore of Amund Ring Land, the Eskimos killed a deer as indicated on the chart.

The above portion of the statement of the Eskimo boys covers the period of time in which Dr. Cook claims to have gone to the pole and back, and the entire time during which he could possibly have made any attempts to go to it.

After sleeping at the camp where the last two Eskimos turned back, Dr. Cook and the two boys went in a northerly or northerly direction with two sledges and twenty-two dogs, one or more march, when they encountered rough ice and a lead of open water. They did not enter this rough ice, nor cross the lead, but turned westward or southwestward a short distance and returned to Heiberg Land at a point west of where they had left the cache and where the four men had turned back.

Suggestion as to Clothing.

Clothing ought to be made with the soft ancient Egyptian or modern Chinese fabrics. Maybe removable outer garments would be better. Buttons most launders could be done by machinery—New York Press.

Salt Whale.

Already quite a trade is done with Japan in canned and salted whale meat. It is said to be more tender than cod and to taste like it.—National Food Magazine.

After being informed of the boys' narrative thus far, Commander Peary suggested a series of questions to be put to the boys in regard to this trip from the land out and back to it.

Did they cross many open leads or much open water during this time? Ans. None.

Did they make any caches out there? Ans. No.

With how many sledges did they start? Ans. Two.

How many sledges did they have? Ans. Did not remember exactly, but something over twenty.

How many sledges did they have when they got back to land? Ans. Two.

Did they have any provisions left on their sledges when they came back to land? Ans. Yes; the sledges still had about all they could carry so they were able to take but a few things from the cache.

From here they went southwest along the northwest coast of Heiberg Land to a point indicated on the map (Sverdrup's Cape Northwest).

From here they went west across the ice, which was level and covered with snow, offering good going, to a low island which they had seen from the shore of Heiberg Land at Cape Northwest. On this island they camped for one sleep.

From this island they could see two lands beyond (Sverdrup's Ellet Ring Land and Amund Ring Land). From the island they journeyed toward the left-hand one of these two lands (Amund Ring Land), passing a small island which they did not visit.

Arriving at the shore of Amund Ring Land, the Eskimos killed a deer as indicated on the chart.

Damage Done by Brown Rat.

The brown or Norway rat is regarded by the United States department of agriculture as "the worst mammal pest in the United States, the losses from its depredations amounting to many millions of dollars yearly."

Peculiar Florida River.

The St. John's river in Florida is one of agriculture in "the country flows in a generally northerly direction into an ocean.

five hundred and seventy geographical miles, in twenty-seven days.

After killing the deer they then traveled south along the east side of Ring Land to the point indicated on the chart, where they killed another deer.

They then went east across the south part of Crown Prince Gustav sea to the south end of Heiberg Land, then down through Norwegian bay, where they secured some bears, but not until after they had killed some of their dogs, to the east side of Graham Island; then eastward to the little bay marked "Elde Florida" on Sverdrup's chart, then south to Heiberg's Gate and Simon's peninsula.

Here for the first time during the entire journey, except as already noted of Cape Thomas H. Hubbard, they encountered open water. On this point the boys were clear, emphatic, and unshakable. They spent a good deal of time in this region, and finally abandoned their dogs and one sledge, took to their boat, crossed Heiberg's Gate to North Kent, up into Norfolk Inlet, then back along the north coast of Olin Archer Peninsula to Cape Vera, where they obtained fresh eider duck eggs. Here they cut the remaining sledge off, that is shortened it, as it was awkward to transport with the boat, and near here they killed a walrus.

From Cape Vera they went on down into the southwest angle of Jones Sound, where they killed a seal; thence east along the south coast of the sound, killing three bears at the point noted on the map, to the peninsula known as Cape Sparbo on the map, about midway on the south side of Jones Sound. Here they killed some musk-oxen, and continuing east, killed four more at the place indicated on the chart, and were finally stopped by the pack ice at the mouth of Jones Sound. From here they turned back to Cape Sparbo, where they wintered and killed many musk-oxen.

After the sun returned in 1909 they started, pushing their sledge, across Jones Sound to Cape Tenyson; thence along the coast to Clarence Head; passing inside of two small islands not shown on the chart, but drawn on it by the boys, where they killed a bear; thence across the broad high ground to Caogon Ford; thence in a circle around Cape Isabella and up to Commander Peary's old house in Payer Harbor near Cape Sabine, where they found a seal cache for them by Paulkpa, Itook-shoo's father. From here they crossed Smith Sound on the ice, arriving at Anorok.

ANOTHER VEGETABLE CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and a severe female weakness. The doctor said I would never be able to get to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sensitive Wash and, to my wonderful relief, I was completely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. S. A. WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 99, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial. This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and restorer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States, and near and far, owe to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female illness and creates healthy and strong female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial. Mrs. Lydia E. Dorothy and the Stork.

When little Dorothy Walworth was introduced to her baby brother in the First Methodist Episcopal Parsonage in Yonkers, N. Y., she manifested intense interest, but was not astonished. "I knew he was coming," she exclaimed; "I knew it."

Pressed for an explanation, the five-year-old said: "It was down to the Bronx zoo the other day and saw the stork in his cage. I recognized him by the black stripes on his wings that papa said were there. Well, when the stork was standing alone on one leg, I went close to him and whispered in his ear that I wanted him to bring me a baby brother or sister. He didn't say anything, but I knew he would do it, because he bent his head toward me and winked an eye."

The Soft Answer.

At a dinner in Bar Harbor a Boston woman praised the wit of the late Edward Everett Hale.

"Walking on the outskirts of Boston one day," she said, "and I inadvertently entered a field that had a 'No Trespassers' sign nailed to a tree. 'Soon a farmer appeared. 'Trespassers in this field are prosecuted by the law,' he said. 'But we are not trespassers, my good man,' he said. 'What are you then?' asked the amazed farmer. 'We're Unitarians,' said Dr. Hale. —Washington Star.

A BANKER'S NERVE
Broken by Coffee and Restored by Postum.

A banker needs perfect control of the nerves, and a clear, quick, accurate brain. A prominent banker of Chattanooga tells how he keeps himself in condition:

"Up to 17 years of age I was not allowed to drink coffee, but as soon as I got out in the world I began to use it and grew very fond of it. For some years I noticed no bad effects from its use, but when I began to affect me unfavorably. My hands trembled, the muscles of my face twitched, my mental processes seemed slow and in other ways my system was out of order. These conditions grew so bad at last that I had to give up coffee altogether. My nervous system began to improve when I began to use Postum. I began to feel better and to enjoy the coffee, and it gives me pleasure to testify to its value. I find it a delicious beverage, like it just as well as I did coffee, and during the years that I have used Postum I have been free from the distressing symptoms that accompanied the use of coffee. The nervous system has disappeared, and I am as steady of hand as a boy of 25, though I am more than 85 years old. I owe all this to Postum."

"There's a Reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in plain English.

Ever read the coffee letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

BILLY, THE LADY AND THE SILK STOCKINGS

By WYNONAH BREAZEALE

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Billy turned from the fireplace with a chuckle as his guest held them up. "Yes, I flatter myself they are beautiful," he acknowledged with a grin, as though he remembered something very amusing. "They are souvenirs of one of the most satisfying adventures of my young life."

"Did the—er—owner give them to you?" demanded Red, curiously, for Billy was noted for the bareness of his den when he came to the various little articles connected with Christmas, in which college youth are popularly supposed to delight. Not that Billy was a prude—far from it—but he had never seemed to care for such things. Therefore, Red's interest was entirely unassuming, as he settled himself back in his chair, ready for the tale, with the objects in question spread over his crossed knees. They were unmistakably intended for feminine use, being two long silken hose of a pretty, old shade of green. Billy fixed his eyes on them as he lighted his pipe, and took one or two long draws as he reflected.

"It was on one of my holiday vacations, and I had just started back here, when I met her," he began. "I had just settled myself comfortably in the sleeper for a three-hour trip when she got on. Say, old sport, she broke off abruptly, 'what do I look like—' I look like never met me? Do I look fresh? I mean?" Red surveyed him with judicious care, then shook his head.

"You look like the usual young college animal," he commented, "wide awake, but certainly not like a masher."

"That's what I thought myself," said Billy, indignantly. "No you may picture my amazement, when she squelched me—squelched me flat. You see, the one opposite mine, she was an awfully attractive looking girl—blond, all in green from her dinky little hat to her pumps—and when she made a noise like a silk petition, why, why, I said politely: 'Have this seat, madam,' and hopped up."

Billy paused so long that Red asked curiously: "Well, did she have it?" Billy shook his head mournfully. "No, my poor friend, she did not have it. But I had a look—such a delectable, boy look that I shivered for a week after. As you say, I do not look like a masher, and I felt dreadfully hurt at the way the Green Lady took my well-meaning offer. So I hunted myself up a book. But the Green Lady fledged something wonderful, as my old nurse used to say. Having heard that some ladies really dislike to be read to, I decided to show my vivacity that I was a gentleman if she were not, so I collected my books and went to the smoker, where I stayed fully two hours, to enable her to take by seat. Which she didn't." Billy paused again. He shook his head with reflective sadness, as though the Green Lady was more to be pitied than censured, and then continued his tale.

"My friend, the Green Lady squelched me exactly three weeks and six distinct times. Once when I leaned forward to pick up her purse; once when I glanced over my book at her and saw her struggling with the window, and once when, as she looked nearly dead of ennui, I silently placed my book on her seat. Now, I flatter myself I did every one of those lovable acts in a common courtesy with my most impersonal, detached manner," said Billy mournfully, "and now with the least desire to butt in. But the Green Lady oversteeringly squelched me. An eye stare, a supercilious shrug, and a nose as about a two inches higher elevation than is usually thought polite in a nose. It was a pretty nose, too." Billy paused regretfully.

"Well, the next hour the porter made up the berth, and we retired, the Green Lady vanishing into the berth directly over mine. Before very long the soft sound of her regular breathing assured me that she was peacefully sleeping the sleep of the just. But I was not to sleep. What you might term, say, 'up nights' to think of some way to get even with the Green Lady. The train rocked violently, the curtains rattled and I felt something dangling down into my berth, and away with the notion. This, where you Uncle Fuller sat up and took notice, I reached up, my hand and drew it cautiously in.

CORN FOR FATTENING SWINE

Cheapest Method of Producing Pound of Pork Is by the Corn and Clover Route.

For a long time we have believed that the cheapest method of producing a pound of pork is by the corn and clover method, says a writer in Drovers' Journal. Last year you sent a carload of hogs in addition to 10 brood sows with their pigs on 10 acres of malle and then several loads of hay were taken from the field. As soon as the corn was ready we fed several armfuls of green corn, together with a few basketfuls of ears. When we fenced off eight acres of corn with 30-inch wire fencing and turned in the entire lot. The sows and a few of the spring pigs were allowed to eat the corn. The corn brought $33 an acre, costing us nothing for husking, cutting or hauling to market.

We were so pleased with last year's results that this spring we planted enough pigs with our own to make 375. On April 19, when we turned them out on the 15 acres of clover which we fenced off, they averaged 97 pounds. Now they have been on the clover close to three months and are getting in excellent condition. We have not had the time to weigh them, but are sure they have made excellent gains. Each day we feed them three sacks of corn (about 250 pounds). This seems to balance up the grass ration and to keep them in excellent shape. A hog is not so much of a forage animal that he can do well on grass alone. He needs a supplementary ration and it seems that corn is best. As soon as the ears are ready we turn them to feed green corn. With the last cutting we sowed rape in a great deal of our corn. By the time the corn is ready for cutting this will make a rank growth. Then we will turn the whole bunch in on a piece of new ground on which we have an especially good outlook for a corn crop. We expect the rape together with a heavy crop to make a vast amount of feed.

At present our main object is to keep them healthy and growing. We do not care so much for fat as for large frames. They can put the fat on if they have the place for it when we turn them in the corn. Clean water is quite necessary. We try to keep down the wallow-holes. About the troughs this is quite a task, although a few loads of ordinary sawdust sprinkled in the right place will not only prevent the wallowing but will fill up the holes.

Ground Plan of Barn.

9 by 14 feet, the other 8 by 14. A comfortable calf pen 12 by 16 feet is provided with individual stanchions for feeding grain and milk. There are six ventilating shafts (not shown in illustration) and six flues for air to enter. These flues are so placed that the air is as pure in the barn as outside.

CEMENT FLOOR FOR HOG PEN

With Roughened Surface and Covered with Plenty of Bedding Will Make Floor in Excellent Shape.

For the hog house I always prefer cement floors with a roughened surface. They make it possible to save all the manure, and to make more floor comfortable. The pen for brood sows I would build eight by eight feet. Partitions walls between pens I would also have of cement three and one-half to four feet high and about six inches thick. Doors in the partitions are handy when cleaning the pens.

After the coarse manure is removed the floor is covered with a layer of force pump or elevated tank will add greatly. Or a good stable broom and a sprinkling can will do.

The washings and the liquid manure should be run off through a cement gutter to a cement manure pit, covered, outside the hog house, into such a hole as is made from cow and horse stables also lead.

Front and Side Elevation.

Illustration of six flues for air to enter. These flues are so placed that the air is as pure in the barn as outside.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Shoot every straggling dog that comes onto the place.

Plenty of good feed to push the youngsters for market.

Pasture and pure water are the perfection of pig feed for summer.

If your ewes are poor at breeding time they will be greatly handicapped. The digestive powers of the hogs are the feeder's foundation of success.

Oil meal will often prevent indigestion and keep the young sheep on edge.

Similarity of breeding stock produces offspring of much greater value.

Clean iron troughs are the most sanitary, although plank will do if kept clean.

Any flock of over 50 sheep ought to have a collic to look after them.

Keep the ram to himself in daytime and turn him with a few ewes at night.

Never mate a big ram with a small ewe. Best to breed animals of the same type.

Excessive feed produces a crowding of the internal organs that is detrimental to fecundity.

The perfect mother bunches her brood in some corner and settles down a few feet from them.

Keep their noses incased with tar or some disinfectant until the ravages of the gadfly are past.

Intelligent, careful breeding tells more rapidly upon sheep than upon any other domestic animals.

After all, corn is the great fattener for sheep as for other animals, but feed alone will cause trouble.

Rains give stock anemia, diarrhoea and consumption. Bring them to the barn during a rainstorm and feed them under cover.

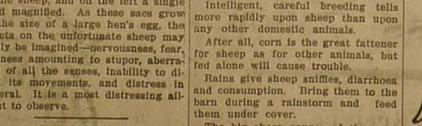

The big sheep ranges of the west are being broken up and our daily mutton will have to come from the small farm flocks.

Don't guess the breeding time. Red paint on the ram's belly will mark the ewes so you can tell when they will drop their lambs.

SHEEP PEST FROM ENGLAND

Dreaded Disease Brought Over with Importation of Flock Makes its Appearance in New York.

A well-known British pest of sheep, rare in this country (though a number of well-authenticated cases are on record), called "gid," "sturdy," "turn-sick" and various other names, has appeared in central New York, and it is thought to be traceable to an importation of about 100 sheep and two Scotch collie dogs two years ago from the County Gentleman. It is a parasitic condition.

"A Turn-Sick."

plains, due to the development in the brain of the sheep of the cystic form of the parasite, which it is believed that the trouble cannot exist without the presence of dogs to harbor the full-developed creature, which is expelled in the excreta, and has then swallowed by the sheep. The sketch shows, on the right, the sac with many heads as found in the brain of the sheep, and on the left a single head magnified. As these sacs grow to the size of a large hen's egg, the effects on the unfortunate sheep may easily be imagined—nervousness, fat, dullness amounting to stupor, aberration of all the senses, inability to direct its movements, and distress in general. It is a most distressing ailment to observe.

Breaking Cots.

Break your cots to walk down hill. Now, that may mean that you will have to break yourself first, for it will be natural to hurry horses down hill, says Farm Journal. It is a bad plan.

Don't toggle your harnesses up with strings. To do so will be to invite trouble; have everything tight.

Get a first-class horse dentist to look over the teeth of every horse on the farm, young and old.

State Buys Stallions.

The New Jersey experiment of purchasing stallions by the state is meeting with great success and will be followed, no doubt, in other states.

Grade Stallion a Failure.

The grade stallion may be a very good looking individual, but he will in all probability prove a disappointment as a breeder.

Interesting to Travelers.

"Is there a stone quarry being worked in the vicinity?" inquired the traveler, as he stood waiting to board his train at the country station. "I thought I heard loud reports, like the explosion of dynamite in the blasting of rocks."

"No," rejoined the porter, with a chuckle, "those noises come from that little structure of the ticket office, over there. It's the baggage room."

Is Poor Consolation.

"Yes, it must be a terrible thing to go through life without your limb. But you must remember it will be restored to you in the next world."

"I know it will, but that don't encourage me, for it was cut off when I was a baby, and I won't come within a couple of feet of de ground when it's restored."

In the Beginning.

"Yours is certainly an unusual case," said the lawyer, "and it will be necessary to consult a number of books."

"So?" queried the client.

"Yes," answered the legal light, "and we will begin with your pocket-book."

Didn't Stay There.

Father: Didn't I tell you I would whip you if I caught you in the water again?"

Son:—Yes, sir, and that's the reason I hurried out when I saw you coming.

The family have the sympathy of the entire community. The other children, who were afflicted with the disease, are all doing as well as could be expected.

Robert Derr has a crew of men busily engaged in putting in the new vault ordered by the county commissioners at their last meeting. It will be about the same size as the other vaults in the court house and will be used exclusively for the preservation of books and records. The vault is of stone and will be fire proof. John Gross has charge of the crew which is a guarantee that the work will be well done. The vault is on the west side of the court house between that building and the Adolph Radden property and will be entered from the County Auditor's office. The officials at the court house have been in need of this vault for some time, as there are many of the books and papers which should be in a fire proof place, piled up in the several offices, where, in case of fire, all would be destroyed. This would cause trouble to the officers as they are responsible for loss to the county.

THE TASK OF THE FOREST SERVICE

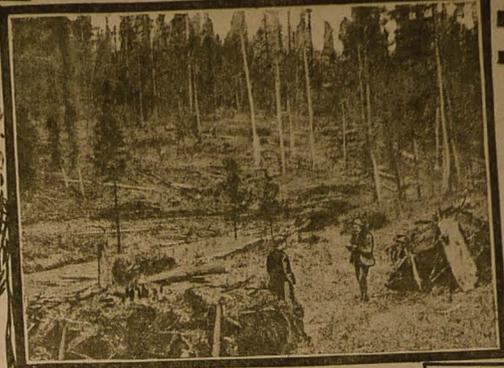

By OVERTON W. PRICE

A LITTLE more than 10 years ago Gifford Pinchot took charge of the government forest work. Up to then the duties of the division of forestry lay mainly in compiling forest data and statistics, its usefulness was necessarily narrow, and its discontinuance in contemplation. The work employed 10 persons, of whom two were professional foresters.

The forest service now administers the national forests, whose aggregate area is about the same as Texas and Ohio combined, and whose money value is more than twice that of the total equipment of the army and navy. It furnishes the chief source of information and assistance to private forest owners and users, who wish to practice forestry. Its force numbers about 3,000, of whom 150 are professional foresters.

This great machine is administered under a policy which has the approval and the co-operation of the American people. It is not an impractical policy constructed by theorists—by those who sometimes hit the bystander instead of the bullseye, because they have not learned the use of the gun with which they shoot. Nor is it a foreign policy, expected to meet conditions under which it was not constructed. The policy of the forest service makes no fetish of the forest. It urges no destructive upheaval in economic conditions. But where the line is plain be-

CONSERVATIVE CUTTING IN NATIONAL FOREST

It is worse than the axe in careless hands, for the fire consumes everything, young trees and old, and the forest soil as well. Waste nothing. These are the principles under which logging is done in the national forests. The result is to make of them a factory as well as a storehouse of wood.

But the usefulness of the national forests does not end with producing timber and grass. Their still larger value to the nation is in conserving stream flow. These mountain forests are to the streams of the west what the storage battery is to the wire—the source of energy in reserve. With-leasing of power sites without passage of title to the user, through a charge for the occupancy and use of these sites and through rigid provisions against combination and monopoly, the forest service is effectively safeguarding within national forests, the interests of the American people, whose property these water powers are. Herein lies the greatest public service which the forest service is rendering. The standing timber in the national forests, which is alone sufficient if it were cut clean to meet all the needs of the nation for 10 years, is of less value than the sites for the development of water power, whose usefulness these forests conserve. The complete destruction of this timber by fire would be far less grave than for the power sites within national forests to pass into unregulated corporate ownership or control.

The power of the immediate future is water power. The trust of the immediate future is the power trust, if nation, state and citizen fall to their utmost. In some regions this trust is already firmly entrenched. In others it is in the making. In every region it is a spreading, strengthening, acquiring, where men need power to work for them and water runs down hill. To say there are no combinations to control water powers is to be of them, or to be misinformed.

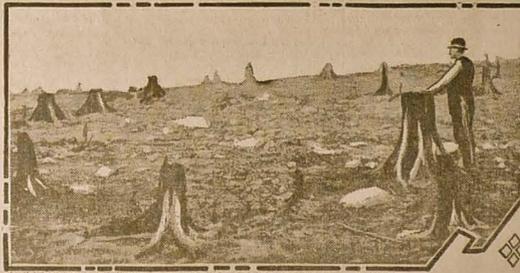

In addition to their resources of water, wood and grass, the national forests serve a host of minor uses of great importance to the settlers who live in and near them and to the development of the communities in which they live. A total of about 10,000 permits for these minor uses have been granted, involving the occupancy of national forest land or the use of natween the use of the national forests or any of their resources, for the permanent benefit of many, or for the temporary benefit of a few, the forest service encourages use by the many and prevents its monopoly by the few.

THE FOREST AND ITS SOIL CONSUMED BY FIRE

There are two planks in the platform of the forest service. They are these: To insure through public ownership and administration the fullest permanent use of those forests which are essential to the public welfare.

To teach American citizens how to make the best use of forests in private hands and of their product, by finding out and telling them how.

The 194,500,000 acres of national forests stand for the first plank. They conserve most of the water and one-third of the timber of the west. This national heritage, whose measurable material resources are worth more than two billions of dollars, is being administered by the forest service in the best permanent interest of all the people. At an average cost for protection of about one-fifth of a cent per acre, the damage by fire on national forests for the last three years has been, per million acres, about three per cent of that on private forest lands. In these three years the use of the national forests by the people has more than doubled. In 1908, so great were the demands of the people's business, that an average of only about one-fifth of the time of the forest rangers could be given to fire patrol. This was the equivalent of all the time of one man for the patrol of 580,000 acres, an area half the size of the state of Delaware.

From Arizona to the Canadian border and from California to Minnesota and Arkansas, the forest rangers have done their duty. This has meant unremitting effort, usually under frontier conditions. There is no more exacting work than fire patrol, and, short of war, nothing makes greater claims than fire fighting upon personal courage, fiber and devotion. The forest rangers are the backbone of the service. Were it not for them, the national forests would soon be forests no longer. And as each of these public servants comes to lay down his tools for younger hands to pick up, he will leave behind him, in the vigorous, un-scarred forests of his district, a valuable heritage to the community and the honorable record of a trust fulfilled.

The protection of the national forests from fire is incidentally only to the development of their fullest permanent use. This use is limited only so far as is needed to insure the permanence of the forest and to keep it in satisfactory condition. Last year 1,500,000 cattle and horses and 7,500,000 sheep and goats grazed within national forests, or 12 and 21 per cent, respectively, of the range stock of the west. Nearly 400,000,000 feet of mature timber was sold and cut, or enough to build 25,000 ordinary frame houses. More than 130,000,000 feet more was given away to settlers for firewood and other home uses. All this timber was cut and logged conservatively, to the improvement of the condition of the forest. Under such management a forest produces wood forever.

For a man can handle his forest in three different ways, just as he can handle money in three different ways, and the same is true of a nation. He can destroy his forest by wasteful logging and the fire which follows it, just as he can squander money until it is all gone. He can protect his forest adequately from fire or other injury, but fail to harvest its crop, just as he can lock up money in a hoard without imparting the capital, like the man who invests money safely and well, but unproductive and useless. Or he can handle his forest rightly and profit by the interest without impairing the capital, like the man who invests money safely and well.

There is nothing intricate about the principles or the practice of forestry. It has its own careful, skilled methods based on study comparatively recent in this country, but which in other countries began hundreds of years ago. To describe these methods would fill many pages and it takes trained men to apply them. But in the last analysis forestry is common sense, scientifically applied. Cut the mature trees, but do not cut them until they have shed seed enough to start young trees to make another forest. Remember always that the sapling will make a valuable tree some day if it is not injured, just as a boy will make a wage earner if he has his chance. Keep fire out of the forest, because out forests to check the run-offs, streams fluctuate or even go dry for part of the year; but those streams which rise in well forested watersheds maintain a comparatively even flow.

The reclamation service, when its task is finished, will have turned 50,000,000 acres of desert into fertile farm land, dotted with homes. Under its director, Frederick Haynes Newell, whose achievement is national and enduring, this work, unparalleled in scope, is going successfully forward. The story of what has been done by the men of the reclamation service, in the face of engineering difficulties historic in their magnitude, has yet to be adequately written. But for the permanent success of its work, the reclamation service must depend not merely upon its reservoirs and dams, but upon the thoroughness with which the forest service does its duty. The preservation of the national forests is vital to the fulfillment of the national irrigation policy.

In the conservation of water used for the development of power through electricity, as well as for irrigation, lies another great function of the national forests, whose importance is only beginning to be generally realized. In the regulation of the development of this power within national forests, through the other resources, of which more than half were without charge.

This vast and increasing business is handled by the officers of the forest service, who are the servants of the people, in the interest first of all of the small man. The timber and the grass the national forests produce cost a fair price to the lumberman and the stockman. The forest service is not charged with the regulation of corporations. But it is charged with the right care of a vast public property. It sees to it that the yield from this property, the water, the wood and the grass, goes first to those who need it most—to the home builders. For every permit granted to a man to graze 1,000 head of stock or more, the forest service has granted 10 permits to small owners to graze their little bunches of sheep and cattle. For every large sale of timber, it has made 20 small sales to feed the little sawmills upon which the frontier communities depend.

The national forests are to the west what coal is to the engine. The forest service is the stoker. There is no coal enough in the bunkers to keep a full head of steam through out the run, if it is not wadded. If it is wadded the engine will soon slow down for lack of fuel.

Prisoner Put Coming Gastronomic Joy Ahead of a Brief Period of Liberty.

A colored man from Georgia had lived in Washington but a few years when he was arrested for some slight violation of the city ordinances. Upon hearing that the negro was in jail, the secretary of the colored Y. M. C. A. secured the services of a minister to go with him and sign the prisoner's bail bond. They reached the jail shortly before noon and told the negro the object of their visit. In response to the proffered kindness he said:

"Mistah Johnson, I sho is glad you-all is gwine to get me out, but I wants you-all to fix it so I can't get out till late dis evning."

Of course the two Samaritans were somewhat taken aback by this unusual request. But a moment later they lost their heads when, in answer to the secretary's question, the Georgia negro replied in a whisper:

"Well, sah, dey's agittin' dinah ready an' dey's cookin' greens; an' I sho would like to git some o' dem greens befo' I leaves dis place!"—Lippincott's.

MAHONMET COUNTY HAS HEAVY BILL TO SETTLE AFTER LOSING CASE.

CALLS RAID 'OPERA BOUFFE'

Special Indian Agent Johnson Gives His Version of 'Hostilities' Prior to His Arrest.

Minneapolis. — "It was an amusing opera bouffe," said William E. Johnson, in recounting some of the incidents of his raid upon the saloons of Mahanomet last week, and his subsequent arrest. "We had been informed after hearing all the liquor we could find at Ogema and Wauson that we would have three days at Mahanomet. It was reported that there was a real 'opera bouffe' at a fellow named Bollaou or something like that, and were warned to be on our guard.

"We began our work at Mahanomet about 10 o'clock in the morning, and had cleared out several places, when a large crowd gathered in front of Miller's place, where the deputies were at work.

"One of the deputies told me that the crowd wanted to see me and I went out and asked what was wanted.

Pulled His Gun. "We are the council," said one man, "and we order you to stop!" We were busy just then, so I closed the door and went on with seizure of liquor. A little later the crowd came into the room through the rear door. Many were armed, some with revolvers. I pulled my .44 and you should have seen that crowd for the door.

"After the work was done, I went out on the street and was met by a lot of citizens. I learned that the deputy sheriff of Mahanomet county had sworn in forty-five deputies to aid the town marshal and the city council in preserving the peace.

"What do you want?" I asked, after the crowd had halted me. "One man with a paper in his hand jumped out and shouted: 'We want to arrest you.'

"Do you want me alone, or all the other men?" I asked. "We want everybody," said the man with the paper.

Arrest Was Easy. "Well, you can have them all as soon as they are through with their work," I replied. I was perfectly willing to be arrested then, but I would not permit it as long as there was any liquor to be found in the town. An unarmed boy could have arrested me and the idea of swearing in forty-five deputies for the job was intensely funny.

"Mahanomet county will have a nice bill to pay in defending the saloons. Our bill at the P. D. court bill in Crookston, I am informed, will reach $640. Then there is the expense of the forty-five deputies and other expenses which will amount to several hundred dollars more. At the top of this will come the expense of the court proceedings at Duluth and the fees of the attorneys, which probably will not be much less. Mahanomet county has had some fun, but will have to pay for the music later on."

RELIGIOUS PROGRESS GREATEST.

Spread of Gospel to be Big Movement in the Coming Decade.

Minneapolis. — Fred B. Smith, of New York, general secretary of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A., spoke in the Metropolitan theater at the annual meeting of the Congregational Brotherhood of America. "Religion and Men" was his subject.

After outlining the achievements since the beginning of the century and venturing that no man would attempt to prophesy the events of ten years more, in science, politics or commerce, he declared that the triumph of religion will go down as the mightiest movement.

"Take it from me," he said, "the world-wide conquest of religion will be bigger than politics, greater than commerce, outlasting society, grander even than the vital issues of life itself.

"That man who is big enough to put the major part of his life into the work of God will be greater than our kings of finance, commerce or politics. Religion takes a man out of the rut. It fills his most important personal needs, makes him live a better and broader life and, greatest of all, prepares him for the life to come. "Religion is not a dying issue, to be associated only with black liveries, flowers and a casket. A man who thinks only of life as a narrow mass, in a slightly concerned with the part that is behind the curtain.

MILLIONAIRE GOLD BRICKED.

Spends $25,000 for $15 Worth of Brass in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Oct. 15. — H. F. Chaffee, millionaire Dakota landowner, president of the Minneapolis Abnaron Land Company, and head-investor in the John Miller Grain Company, Minneapolis, paid $25,000 in real money for a clever swindle, who successfully worked upon him the time-honored gold brick trick. In return for the small fortune, Mr. Chaffee found himself the possessor of a pound of yellow metal, probably worth about $15.

The operators of the swindle were "John Armstrong," a gray-haired miner and the owner of a fictitious gold mine of fabulous resources in old Mexico, and "W. H. Harper," Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, a recognized and reliable assayer of precious metals, the former occupying modest quarters at the Dearborn hotel and the latter following the finest suite of rooms in the Rogers hotel.

Mr. Chaffee met Armstrong three days ago at Chaffee's home in America, N. D., where the latter told a story that he was in search of an uncle by the name of Chaffee.

Gold As Security. He told of the two golden ingots, worth $40,000 in any government mint, which he held in two trunks in the office of the assayer, to be placed as security for the $25,000 loan.

Mr. Chaffee was more than interested and agreed to accompany the miner and to look at the gold. His son, E. W. Chaffee, himself an assayer, accompanied him on the trip.

Armstrong, producing an auger and drill, bored several small holes in each of the yellow lumps. The Chaffees in the meantime scraped up the metal shavings.

When a handful of these had been secured, Armstrong placed them in an envelope and the trio started out to find a competent assayer to compute the weight of the gold.

At the store of J. B. Hudson & Son, Jewelers, Armstrong went inside alone. He joined the group in several minutes, and bearing the names of two assayers, who he said were highly recommended by this firm. One was a St. Paul man, but the other, W. H. Harper, was located at the Rogers hotel.

The party went there and, in answer to a card, Mr. Harper sent down word that, although he was rather busy, he would see the gentlemen for a few minutes.

Applied the Acid Test. Taking some nitric acid, which the younger Mr. Chaffee had thought it best to purchase in person, Mr. Harper applied it to the metal shavings submitted to him by Mr. Armstrong, and after watching the action of the acid, pronounced the metal to be of the highest grade.

The next move was made at the Security National bank where Mr. Chaffee cashed a personal check for $25,000. All three parties concerned then returned to the Dearborn, where the money, 25 crisp one thousand dollar bills, was handed over to Armstrong.

BIG RELIGIOUS CONVENTION.

Congregational Brotherhood of America is Holding National Meeting.

Minneapolis, Minn.—With a "message" to the men of Minnesota, the highest grade, four-day meeting by Dr. Frank W. Gunsalus, of Chicago, the second national convention of the Congregational Brotherhood of America opened at noon. The attendance is large and all parts of the country being represented, and the enthusiasm is intense. This evening the President, John H. T. Main, of Iowa, called for the opening of the second session, and the speakers will be Dr. S. B. Capen, of Massachusetts; Henry M. Beardsley, of Kansas, and Dr. J. C. H. Smith, of Ohio.

Others who will address the convention before the closing on Sunday evening are E. L. Smith, of Seattle, Prof. J. D. Lee, of North Dakota, Fred B. Smith, of New York; W. W. B. Forbush, of Michigan; President Northrop, of the University of Minnesota; President M. L. Burton, of Smith college; T. C. MacMillan, of Chicago; Wayne B. Wheeler, of Ohio, and at the annual banquet Saturday night, Mayor Hayes, of Minneapolis, and Booker T. Washington.

Continued to Higher Court.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The case of the state of Minnesota vs. C. J. Johnson came to an abrupt end before Judge Wm. G. Loring, in police court. Johnson was charged on the records with running a blind pig.

"If the court please, I move that this act be dismissed," said Captain Thos. Garvin. It was Captain Garvin who had conducted the raid in which Johnson was caught.

"The court looked up quickly. "Because the defendant is dead, your honor," explained the captain. "He died at the City hospital Wednesday night."

Faces Military Service.

Minneapolis, Minn. — Jules Frelin, assistant professor in the French department at the University of Minnesota, acknowledges that after having escaped the manacles of a French military prison, he is now enmeshed in enough red tape to keep several professors busy. Professor Frelin received a letter from A. Bailly-Bianchi, secretary of the American embassy at Paris, telling him what to do in order to meet requirements that may or may not relate him from the obligation of military service.

CASHIER A SUICIDE

RUINED CASHIER SHOTS SELF ON FATHER'S GRAVE AT MIDNIGHT.

SHOCK SLAYS MOTHER-IN-LAW

Suicide Not Responsible for Bank's Failure; But Had Lost Personal Fortune in the Crash.

Mineral Point, Wisconsin.—Two persons are dead here as the result of the closing of the doors of the First National bank of Mineral Point following the disclosure of a $200,000 shortage in the bank's accounts. One of the victims, Frank Hanscom, was cashier of the institution late at night he went to his father's grave in Graeceland cemetery and sent a bullet into his brain.

The second tragedy quickly followed the first. Hanscom's mother-in-law, Mrs. John Gray, an aged woman, dropped dead of shock when she was told of the suicide.

Hanscom had been an employee of the bank since its foundation in 1854 and for ten years had been its cashier. When the controller of the currency closed the doors after the Vice-President Phillip Allen, Jr. had admitted taking $200,000 of its money, Hanscom's books were carefully examined.

They were found to be in excellent condition. But Hanscom was despondent because the failure had wiped out most of his personal fortune, and because he feared the public would blame him for the crash.

Mrs. John Gray also had lost a great amount when the bank failed.

NEARLY GOT THEODORE.

Roosevelt Has Narrow Escape From Angry Elephant.

Nairobi, British East Africa.—Mr. Roosevelt, a government engineer in the public works department at Nairobi, came into Nairobi this afternoon and brought word that Mr. Roosevelt had a narrow escape when shooting his first elephant bull.

When shooting elephants it is often necessary to creep into the herd and shoot the selected bull at a range of fifty to a hundred yards. Mr. Roosevelt, accompanied by Mr. Cunningham, the big game hunter guide, followed this procedure and killed an elephant at the second shot.

Suddenly before Mr. Roosevelt could reload, another elephant bull charged him at close range from the herd. Both Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Roosevelt fired and turned the bull from Mr. Roosevelt just in time.

The passengers on the vessel, sixteen Indians and four women, were exhausted from hunger, cold and exposure. Manley, the engineer, who, single-handed, fought the storm at the wheel and at his engine, is so weak he can hardly walk.

BACKACHE IS KIDNEYACHE.

Usually They Are Other Troubles to Prove It.

Pain in the back is pain in the kidneys, in most cases, and it points to the need of a special remedy to remove and cure the congestion or inflammation that is interfering with their work and causing that pain that makes you say: "Oh, my back!"

Thompson Watkins, professional nurse, 420 N. 23rd St., Parsons, Kan., says: "For some time I was annoyed with sharp twinges across the small of my back and irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, I am free from these troubles."

Remember the name—Doan's—sold by all druggists. Or write: Doan's Kidney Pills, M. C. Connelley, Buffalo, N. Y.

Fair School Teachers Blasphemy Unaware of Contents of Box on Which They Rested.

"While in Paris this summer another girl and I went out to Yerville one afternoon," said a school teacher who had just returned from abroad. "It was dusk when we reached the railway station, and as there was no waiting room we sat down on two crates that were out on the platform among a lot of others. We noticed that the station employes kept staring at us with a persistence that was annoying. Presently a man in a shabby uniform with a bucket on his arm approached the crates. He touched his cap deferentially and said—in French, of course:

"Mesdames, pray do not let me disturb you, but I am forced to open the boxes on which you are seated in order to feed the box constructor and other persons that are within."

"When we recovered from our fright we found we had been seated in the midst of a huge collection of snakes that had just arrived from their native jungles en route for the zoo near Versailles."

BABY'S WATERY ECZEMA.

Itched and Scratched Until Blood Ran—$50 Spent on Useless Treatments—Disease Seemed incurable.

Cured by Cuticura for $1.50.

"When my little boy was two and a half months old he broke out on both cheeks with eczema. It was itchy, watery kind and we had to keep his little hands wrapped up all the time, and if he would happen to get them uncovered he would claw his face till the blood streamed down on his clothing. We talked in a rhyme at once, but he gave an outcry which was so severe that my babe would scream when it was put on. We changed doctors and tried all sorts of medicine, but I had spent fifty dollars or more and baby was getting worse. I was so worn out watching and caring for him night and day that I almost fell into a coma. My little doctor's medicines I had tried, and in fact entirely cured him. His face is perfectly clear of the least spot, and he is anything. Mrs. W. M. Comer, Burr Bank, Pa., Sept. 15, 1908."

Putter Drug & Chem. Co., Sole Props., Boston.

To Breaking One Neck, $2. The "lineup" man was a facetious soul. The woman for whom he was putting up a pedicure was equally so. "I have to put it there, lady," he said, "I'll break my neck." Still she did not relent. "All right, lady," he consented, with a cheerful grin, "but I'll cost you $2 extra if I break my neck."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous membrane of the middle ear. When this is inflamed you have a running nose or impure breath, when it is inflamed in the throat you have a sore throat, and when it is inflamed in the lungs you have a cough, and when it is inflamed in the stomach you have indigestion and constipation. It is the same in all cases. The only way to cure deafness is by constitutional treatment. Write for a free booklet, "Deafness Cannot Be Cured," to Dr. J. C. H. Smith, 100 N. 2nd St., Minneapolis, Minn.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering, obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nervous system in short and subtlest ways.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better. FOK HIM---it pays better. But your are thinking of the cure not the price, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English, or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, newly revised up-to-date edition, paper bound, sent for 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. W. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The highest medical authority on foods,

Sir James Crichton Browne, LL. D.—F. R. S. of London, gives the best reasons for eating more

Quaker Oats

In an article published in the Youth's Companion of September 23rd, 1909, Dr. Browne, the great medical authority on foods, says, about brain and muscle building: "There is one kind of food that seems to me of marked value as a food to the brain and to the whole body throughout childhood and adolescence (youth) and that is oatmeal. "Oats are the most nutritious of all the cereals, being richer in fats, organic phosphorus and lecithins." He says oatmeal is gaining ground with the well-to-do of Great Britain. He speaks of it as the mainstay of the Scottish laborer's diet and says it produces a big-blooded, well-developed, mentally energetic race. His experiments prove that good oatmeal such as Quaker Oats not only furnishes the best food for the human being, but eating it strengthens and enlarges the thyroid gland—this gland is intimately connected with the nourishing processes of the body. In conclusion he says: "It seems probable therefore that the bulk and brawniness of the Northerners (meaning the Scotch) has been in some measure due to the stimulation of the thyroid gland by oatmeal porridge in childhood." The Scotch eat Quaker Oats because it is the best of all oatmeals.

ROCK CREEK

Tuesday was cattle day at Rock Creek and there were several loads here to be shipped.

There was a little snow here a week ago last Monday, and the weather has been "winterish" ever since.

It seems everyone is busy preparing for a severe winter. We think the weather may fool them all. That is just what is wanted.

We understand by posters being put out that there is going to be a show of some kind given here. From all appearances it will be a great show.

The letter of information which your worthy paper has published, coming from our Honorable County Commissioner, J. S. Foster, is all that could be asked as an answer to our communication. We did not know that there really was that amount of money on hand. We beg pardon of our Commissioner, only whose duty it is to look after our roads? We with several others, have purchased land in Deer Valley and would like to have the road in such shape that one could bring a decent load of lumber to his place to build his home. We hope the road will be looked after.
