SUNNY CLIMES

Mr. Peterson Describes Trip To Sunny South

LOTS OF ORANGE GROVES

Mr. Peterson, Formerly of This Place, Puts it Up in Good Style Some Orange Groves

I will now try and describe to you a trip to the South in mid-winter. I will take Mr. Green and Mr. Brown as examples. These gentlemen have never been South in all their lives, but have done considerable reading in reference to the same.

The day arrives which they have decided upon (no doubt an excursion day) and the start is made. It is probably twenty below zero when they begin the journey. They travel on for a couple of days and the snow begins to gradually disappear. They complain about it being too warm in the cars, and by this time they see no more snow, and it is wet and muddy outside. The country looks like the first days of spring when the frost is just leaving the ground.

Another day goes by and the country seems to have dried up, looking like spring. Later in the day they see green grass and trees leaving out. They are now somewhere in Georgia. They see the farmers at work in the fields, and as they go farther South things look different again. They get into Northern Florida and they see crops under cultivation. The country seems to be very low and swampy, most of it being covered with cypress trees. They also notice the rudeness of the farm houses (the homes of the Crackers, as they are called.)

Their destination is Southern Florida. When they arrive within a hundred miles or so they see an orange grove now and then hanging full of ripe fruit. At the sight of this they feel like jumping out of the moving train to get there.

The orange groves are now more plentiful, until there is nearly a solid orchard on each side of the road. There are now lots of palm trees and other tropical vegetation, which they have never saw before except in books.

Mr. Green calls Mr. Brown's attention to something on the other side of the track, and wonders what in the world it is? It looks something like corn, only the stalks are from eight to ten inches thick and the leaves are a foot wide. Mr. Green sees something hanging between the leaves which he recognizes at once. They come to the conclusion that it is a banana grove that they are up against, and their conclusions are about correct.

A petition signed by nine tax payers asking for two electric street lights, was on motion laid on the table. The President appointed John Atkinson and J. E. Netser as judges of the Annual Village Election and W. J. Gottry as clerk of said Election, the same to be held the 14th day of March, 1911.

The President appointed W. A. Sausser, August Klieker and Frank Poferi as a board to audit the Clerk's and Treasurer's Annual Statements. The Pine Poker was awarded the publication of the Treasurer's Annual Statement.

The application of Henry Schultz for a transfer of license No. 8 of John A. Connor, was ordered published in the Pine County Pioneer, and Tuesday the 21st day of February was set for day of hearing same. The following resolution was passed: Resolved by the Village Council of Pine City and State of Minnesota.

Whereas the law that became effective January 1st 1910, requiring 10 percent of the Liquor License fee to be paid into the County revenue fund is wholly an unneeded for act and is quite an injustice to the Villages of this state.

Resolved further, that the 2 percent State Tax required to be paid into the overflowing State Treasury also to be an injustice to the Villages who require every dollar received from the licensees for the construction of streets and other miscellaneous expenses.

We, the Common Council of the Village of Pine City, respectfully ask and urge your assistance in preparing and passing a bill repealing the above mentioned two acts.

No further business appearing, the Council on motion adjourned to meet February 21st, at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

CONCERT IS GOOD

The "Boys" Furnish Us A Fine Entertainment

"BOYS" EQUAL TO OTHERS

The "Boys" Of The Chicago Lyceum Bureau, Put On Musical and Literary Entertainment

The Boys appeared at Stekl's hall on Wednesday evening and were met with a large and appreciative audience, and they certainly made good. Every one of the entertainments furnished by the Bureau have been unusually fine, much better than those seen in a place the size of this. The gentlemen that went good for course should receive the thanks of the community for their efforts to furnish such entertainments for our people. They will have to go down into their pockets and pay for what is back, but they have the satisfaction in knowing that they gave our citizens a chance to hear some good first class entertainments. The course is finished and those that have attended have been well repaid for the time and money spent. The entertainment Wednesday evening was just as good as any that have preceded it, and that is saying all that is necessary.

The singing and reading by Mr. Boyd was exceptionally fine, and he was long and loudly applauded after each number.

Mrs. Boyd has an excellent voice, and made a hit whenever she appeared on the platform. Taking the entertainment as a whole it was very fine, and those that missed hearing the Boyd's missed a literary treat.

A DANDY ENTERTAINMENT

Everybody Should Come To This and See Something Pleasing as well as Very Instructive

The Kryl Band will be at Stekl's hall next Friday evening. This organization is one of the best in the country and our musically inclined citizens are certainly to be congratulated in having the opportunity of hearing such extra fine music as this is reported to be. Mr. Kryl is considered one of the best concertists in the world, beside this the Company also has Miss Josephine Kryl, the thirteen year old violinist, who is reported to be one of the best in this country.

Remember this Company will appear at Stekl's hall one week from tonight. If you enjoy good music you should not fail to attend this concert. The reason why we will have this opportunity is that the Kryl Company have an open date between the twin cities and Duluth, and stop off here instead of staying another day at the head of the lakes.

The admission has been placed remarkably low for an entertainment of this kind, and our citizens should take advantage of this opportunity to hear this excellent company.

GARDNER TRIAL ON

CASE EXPECTED TO REVEAL MANY STARTLING THINGS.

ABOUT THE NEW YORK SENATE

Congressman Otto G. Foelker, of Brooklyn is One of the Principal Witnesses for the Prosecution.

New York — The corrupt conditions that existed in the New York state legislature during the discussion of the anti-trace track bills in the spring of 1908, will receive an additional airing during the trial of former State Senator Frank J. Gardner, which is now on here. He is charged with offering a bribe of $25,000 to ex-Senator Otto Foelker to vote against the measures which prohibited betting at the race tracks. Interest in this trial is widespread, as it is the result of a tale of political corruption, which, for boldness and the amount of money involved has never been equaled.

A half million dollars was raised to defeat this measure and votes were lusted like so much merchandise. These facts have already been disclosed by the legislative investigation committee, which took its existence on January 15 last. District Attorney Whitman believes that the trial of Gardner will result in fresh disclosures and possibly furnish a clue as to the identity of the lawmakers who received this money in exchange for their votes.

The principal witnesses will be Congressman Otto G. Foelker and Assistant District Attorney Robert Elder of Brooklyn. According to Foelker's story, which was told to the investigating committee last fall, Gardner offered him $25,000 in June, 1908, when he was a member of the New York senate, to vote against the anti-betting bills which were then before that body. Assistant District Attorney Elder will repeat the testimony he offered to the committee in which he told how Gardner had related to him the tale of the meeting of the trace track interests at Delmonico's at which a half million dollars was raised to beat the racing bills. According to Elder, Gardner said that Foelker had received $10,000 to vote against the bills, but had then voted for them. This testimony will be supplemented by that of other witnesses, who have not appeared before the investigating committee.

The parade moved down Capitol avenue to the state house, as the presidential salute of twenty-one guns was being fired.

IN LINCOLN'S HONOR

MARTYRED PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED AT SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE PRESENT

Taft Briefly Addresses Joint Session of Legislature and is Principal Speaker at Elaborate Banquet Held in Chamber of Commerce.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 11.—Lincoln's birthday was celebrated here today, more elaborately than ever before, and the occasion was made more notable by the presence of President Taft as the guest of honor, and of many other distinguished citizens from various parts of the country.

The city hall, the arches on the public square, the interior of the capitol building and many residences were handsomely decorated and business was practically suspended during the day.

Arrival of the President. President Taft and his party arrived early in the afternoon, having been brought in Congressman McKinley's private car on the Interoceanic from Decatur, where they were met by Representative Israel Dudson of Morris, chairman of the joint legislative committee in charge of the program.

The first regiment, from Chicago, acted as an escort to the president, and that regiment's band furnished the military music, turning out eighty-five strong. The parade moved down Capitol avenue to the state house, as the presidential salute of twenty-one guns was being fired.

At the Capitol and the Monument. Arriving at the capitol the president entered the building and was received by the two houses of the legislature in special joint session. To the lawmakers he made his first address of the year, speaking briefly and spiritedly. Mr. Taft and the other visitors were then escorted to the old Lincoln home at Eighth and Jackson streets.

From the home the visitors were taken to Oak Ridge cemetery, where the martyred president's remains rest beneath the new monument. Mr. Taft and the other guests entered the memorial chapel in the monument and reverently viewed the priceless Lincoln relics preserved there. These include much of Lincoln's correspondence and the famous autograph which he wrote on one sheet of paper during the war.

The party also viewed the empty sarcophagus in which Lincoln's body lay for many years.

Taft Holds Reception. From the cemetery the presidential party was escorted in automobiles to the executive mansion where Governor and Mrs. Deussen held a public reception.

The culmination of the day's events was the great banquet in the arsenal in the evening, under the auspices of the Lincoln Centennial association and the Springfield chamber of commerce. The principal speakers were President Taft, whose subject was "Abraham Lincoln," and Martin W. Littleton of New York. Judge J. C. Humphrey of the United States district court acted as toastmaster.

FACT IS TAFT AIM

RECIPROcity WILL BENEFIT FARMER, MANUFACTURER AND MIDDLEMAN, HE DECLARES.

GOOD WILL GREATEST AIM

President at Corn Show in Columbus. Extends Agricultural Resources by Leveling of the "Useless Tariff Wall."

Columbus, O., Feb. 11.—Reciprocity with Canada will benefit the entire United States—farmer, manufacturer, railroad company, middleman, warehouseman. This was the declaration of President Taft in an address here at the National Corn exposition.

While his speech was devoted especially to showing that the farmer had nothing to fear, but much to gain, he attempted to prove also that all the other interests of the country would be benefited.

"We have with pioneer energy pushed on to the Pacific," the president said, "and taken up all the good land. We are spending millions to reclaim the arid and semiarid lands of the great western desert. Should we not by taking down a useless and unnecessary tariff wall bring within reach the fertile and well-watered plains of the northwest when they can bring to us what we need, and that without hurting any of our own people?"

Defends Pact Against Critics. The president expressed the opinion that in addressing a corn exhibition audience he would especially appropriate for him to answer the criticism which had been made of the agreement, "as an attack upon the farmer by depriving him of protection."

"It is said to be a manufacturers' agreement," he said, "that is, in the interest of the manufacturing classes and adverse to the farmer."

"I am a Republican, and the Republican party has always advocated and pursued a policy of protection for American products and manufactures. For a long time the policy had little or no limitation. It was thought that on protected products could not be too high, that if all foreign products were excluded competition would stimulate production and reduce its cost and its price. The temptation to destroy competition by combinations became so great, however, that the party in its platform modified its policy and imposed the limitation that the tariff should be limited for purposes of protection to the difference between the cost of production in this country and the cost of production abroad, with an allowance for a reasonable profit to the American producer."

"The principle of protection thus stated takes away the justification for any tariff whatever by way of protection. It is a tariff that comes from a country where the conditions are as to labor and other circumstances are the same and in ours and thus make the cost of production substantially the same."

Corn Will Remain King. "How is the farmer to be hurt?" the president asked. Then he took over the effect of the tariff on corn and wheat prices, on the value of farm lands in this country and on the United States milling industry. He declared that "in respect to corn the American farmer is king and will remain so, reciprocity or no reciprocity."

As to wheat he said the domestic price is governed by the world price, and that "the sending of any part of Canada's surplus through our country instead of through Canada to be milled or to be exported without milling will not perceptibly or materially affect the price of wheat for our farmers."

"The value of farm lands, Mr. Taft said, is affected by the proximity to market more than by any other element, and he maintained that the American farmer still would have the advantage in this respect. He also predicted a great increase in American milling as a result of the agreement.

Must Not Injure the Farmer. "It is a mere truism," declared the president, "to say that the farmers of a country constitute the greatest wealth producing class and that it is of the greatest importance to conserve their welfare. When we have had good crops the wheels of all industries have moved and wealth has been stored. Any one, therefore, who would initiate a policy to injure the farmer has much to answer for at the bar of public opinion."

"The greatest reason for adopting this agreement is the fact that it is going to unite two countries with kindred people and bring together across a wide continent, in a commercial and social union, to the great advantage of both."

RECIPROcity BILL IN HOUSE. Committee Takes Favorable Action on Canadian Trade Agreement and Urges Its Adoption.

It contains the favorable report of 19 of the 19 members of the committee, who urge its passage "as a measure in the interest of the great mass of the people of the country."

CANADA GETS $1,500 TROPHY.

NATIONAL CORN EXPOSITION, AT COLUMBUS, OHIO, AWARDS TROPHY FOR PECK OF OATS GROWN IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Again Canada is to the fore, and has secured at the National Corn Exposition just closed at Columbus, Ohio, the magnificent Colorado silver trophy valued at $1,500, for the best peck of oats.

These oats were grown by Messrs. Hill & Sons of Lovat, Saskatchewand, and, as may readily be understood, were of splendid quality to have been so successful in a contest open to the world, and in which competition was keen. At the same exposition there were exhibits of wheat and barley, and in all these competitions, the grain shown by Canada secured a wonderful amount of attention, and also a number of awards. During recent exhibitions at which grain from Western Canada was shown, the present award, it always took first place, given by the Interstate Fair, last fall, where the entries were very large, and the competition keen, the Province of Alberta carried off the silver cup, given by Governor Hay, for the best state or province display, and a score of prizes was awarded Canadian exhibitors for different exhibits of wheat, oats and barley threshed and in sheaf. Vegetables also received high awards. A pleasing feature of these exhibits was that they were mostly made by farmers who had at one time been American citizens and were now farming in Canada. The Department of the Interior is just in receipt of a magnificent diploma given by the Tri-State Board of Examiners at the Fair held in Cincinnati last fall for agricultural display by Canada.

The Surveyor-General of Canada has just completed a map showing that a large area of land was surveyed last year in the northern portion of Saskatchewan and Alberta in order to be ready for the rush of homesteaders to that district during the coming spring and summer. The present view is that the survey covering several hundred thousands of acres will be made in addition to these during the coming summer.

A return just issued by the Dominion Lands Branch shows that 48,357 homestead entries were made last year in the northern portion of Saskatchewan and Alberta in order to be ready for the rush of homesteaders to that district during the coming spring and summer. The present view is that the survey covering several hundred thousands of acres will be made in addition to these during the coming summer.

The prospects for an abundant crop in all parts of Saskatchewan, Canada, for 1911 are said to be excellent. In the districts that required it there was an ample rainfall last autumn, and the snowfall during the present winter is greater than in any previous years. Both are essential factors to the farmers, who look upon the moisture that their soil produce as being highly beneficial.

A large immigration from the United States is expected, and the demand for literature and information from the various Government Agencies located at different points in the States is the greatest it has ever been.

Since the above was written word has been received that in addition to honors won at Columbus, Ohio, Canada won first and second on wheat and first and second on oats, as well as diplomas.

Norman Cherry of Davis, Saskatchewan, who was in the reserve for first on wheat, secured the grand prize with G. H. Hutton of Lacombe, Alberta, second, J. C. Hill & Sons got first on oats, and the silver trophy, G. H. Hutton took second on oats.

CIVIC OPTIMISM

The past few years have witnessed the vomitings of so much abuse of our nation and our national institutions that it is really refreshing to see an occasional public man who dares to state the real truth.

Not until this nation in the providence of God was founded was a successful exhibit given of a government ideally answering at one and the same time to both requirements of the government—the insuring of order and the guaranteeing of the utmost, practicable extent of the liberty of the individual.

The Rabbi also went further and said that the penalty for a breach of conduct should be loss of citizenship. One of the worst mistakes that is made in this country today is the light manner in which we treat the matter of American citizenship.

Not until this nation in the providence of God was founded was a successful exhibit given of a government ideally answering at one and the same time to both requirements of the government—the insuring of order and the guaranteeing of the utmost, practicable extent of the liberty of the individual.

The man who makes the most noise is followed irrespective of what he says. The man who dares to stand up honestly and fearlessly for what he believes to be the truth is abused and vilified. If this government isn't good enough for the fellows who have so much to say against it why do they not go where they will find one that is? The great need of the times is for patriotism and less pessimism.

The recent death of Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, at an advanced age, has directed attention to some of her books that have "gone out of date" of late years. The entry of the Angel of Death into almost every household during the dark days of the Civil War gave her writings a peculiar timeliness. It has been said that her great book "The Gates Ajar" made more Christians than all the sermons preached in many years. It may be that it will require a national calamity to again attract the attention of the reading public to books like hers, but be that as it may, her name will long live as one of the great writers of her century.

RESOLVED, That with deep sympathy with the bereaved relatives of the deceased we express our hope that even so great a loss to us all may be overruled for good by Him that doeth all things well;

THE visitor to the capital of our country finds no place so interesting as Mount Vernon, the home of Washington during the greater part of his lifetime, and the final resting place of his body. A great many people visit this place annually. It can be reached by two routes, the electric car, which runs from Washington, or by boat. This last is a favorite way, as it gives one a delightful trip on the Potomac. It is well to go one route and return the other, for in both instances historic ground is traveled to the very gates of Mount Vernon—that spot filled with sacred memories.

Mount Vernon at first view presents a noble appearance. It stands on a hill 150 feet in height and the first glimpse reveals the house which one recognizes instantly. As the steamer nears the landing place and passes the tomb of Washington flags are lowered at half-mast and the bell is tolled, a custom said to have originated when a commodore of the British navy, as a mark of respect, ordered his ship's bell tolled when he passed Mount Vernon.

A world of history lies in this spot. Mount Vernon as it stands today embraces but 227 acres, a small part of the original estate which, by grant of Lord Culpeper in 1674, became the property of John Washington. From John Washington half of the estate descended to Lawrence Washington and it was he who built the house and named it Mount Vernon in honor of Lord Vernon, the British admiral under whom he had served. Later the property fell to George Washington, who purchased adjoining land.

In 1799, when George Washington died, the property passed as a life interest to his wife and later Bushrod Washington, John Augustine Washington and John A. Washington, Jr., followed in succession as owners of Mount Vernon. In 1855 the owner, though possessed of a large estate, followed by sacred memories and associations, felt he was unable to maintain it, as it was not productive of material benefits. Both the national government and the state of Virginia were approached in regard to purchasing it. Finally through an agitation started by Ann Pamela Cunningham the Mount Vernon Ladies' association of the Union was organized and 500 acres of the Mount Vernon estate, including the tomb, manson, attendant buildings and wharf, were purchased for $200,000.

By ELLIOTT RANDALL

The approach is through a gateway to an attractive green, which extends to the mansion. To the left and right are flower and kitchen gardens and many old trees, which were planted by Washington and his guests. One in particular is a large magnolia, which was set out by Washington in 1759, the year in which he died. George Washington enlarged the original villa, built by Lawrence Washington, by improvements in 1786. Its foundation walls are of stone and brick, the framework oak and the sheathing pine, painted and stained to resemble stone. The roof is of cypress shingles and a spacious and well-drained cellar underlies the whole house.

This is Mount Vernon and the large brass knocker on the central door of the west front indicates that this was the usual point of approach to the mansion. Nearby is the sun dial in the center of a spacious court, flanked by several frame buildings consisting of kitchen and offices, which are joined to the main buildings by colonnades.

When the threshold is crossed what mingled feelings of awe and respect fill the heart! How the thoughts fly as the relics displayed in the different rooms are viewed!

Several of the states have restored the various rooms at their own expense and many objects of the past great visitor. Here is the key to the Bastille, the prison so famous during the French revolution. Lafayette presented this to Washington in 1789 as a trophy of the spoils of despotism. There is the music room with the harpsichord which George Washington presented to Nellie Custis as a wedding present. In the room is the original Philippine sideboard and the iron fireback brought to this country by Lord Fairfax, friend of Washington.

Every room in the old mansion contains something of historical interest, but visitors are naturally drawn to the room in which Washington died. Here is the big four-posted bed upon which he lay when death overtook him. The quaint canopy and fixings of the bed have been restored and some of Washington's personal effects add much to the impressiveness of the spot. Among these are his military chest and camp equipment.

The family kitchen, with its quaint colored dishes, iron kettles and swinging cranes, is a point of interest, while the smoke house nearby, larger and spikier house above that many guests were fed and much material provided to clothe the slaves and provide for the general use of the family. Each is fitted up in the style of the time in which Washington lived. Among all the charms of the home of Washington not one can eclipse the ideal flower garden, with its box hedges indelibly marking the walks and flower beds as in the past.

Guests of distinction were invited to plant trees, shrubs and flowers, mementoes of their visits. Lafayette and Jefferson have leafy monuments here, and the roses named by Washington for his mother and others named for him and Nellie Custis still flourish. At the end of the long walk in the garden is the little schoolhouse in which the Custis children were taught.

The oldest building is the barn, erected in 1733 by George Washington's father. The English brick are laid in strong mortar made of oyster shell lime, and here were kept the coach and saddle horses. The white chariot, as the traveling coach was called, was kept in a carriage house nearby. South of the mansion is the summer house. It contains a beautiful view of the river and its deep cellar was once used as an ice house. Nearby is the deer paddock, which has been stocked with Virginia deer.

Though a tour of inspection develops historical attractions at every turn, the chief point of interest on the grounds is the new tomb of Washington, which stands several yards distant from the old mausoleum that once held the ashes of the Washington family. It is beautifully located in a clump of trees and flowering plants and vines surround it on all sides.

This simple yet eloquent statement marks its importance. It was planned by George Washington and built by his executor. Within the iron portals one may see the catafalque that contains the remains of Washington and the sarcophagus that holds the body of his wife. In the rear of the tomb is an iron door that opens into the receptacle that contains the remains of others of the Washington family. The iron grating that closes the outside entrance has been bolted for at one time a vandal attempted to climb over it. The gate is locked and the key is said to have been buried in the Potomac. To the memory of Bushrod Washington and John Augustine Washington, successors to the general, marble shafts were erected in front of the tomb.

An old negro stands near at hand and for many years has discoursed to visitors on the spot and its surroundings.

The simplicity of the tomb is characteristic of the man and those that gaze upon the resting place of the great hero instinctively speak in whispers and are awed by the memories associated with the place. One is bewitched and enthralled with the place and lingers long on this spot, where repose that which is mortal of him, who was as brave a warrior, as staunch a patriot and as able a statesman as ever lived.

Clung to His Queue

Speaking of Wu Ting-Fang's published announcement that he would part with his queue in the near future, a former resident of a New England manufacturing town said: "Times have certainly changed. Twenty years ago a Chinese youth who had learned to speak English fairly well and who was clerk of the laundry applied for work in my factory. He was the first of his race to do so in our town, and after talking the matter over I concluded to give him a trial. Fearing that the queue might be a source of danger near machinery, I suggested that he have it cut off. After two weeks' deliberation he came to me and said, 'Stay in laun dry.' A few weeks later he left town and I never saw him again, but I heard that his having consented to my proposition made him so unpopular that he had to leave the place."

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

The wonder of baking powder—Calumet. Wonderful in its raising powers—its uniformity, its never failing results, its purity.

Wonderful in its economy. It costs less than the high-price trust brands, but it is worth as much. It costs a trifle more than the cheap and big can kinds—it is worth more. But proves its real economy in the baking.

CURED HER BABY OF ECZEMA

"I can't tell in words how happy the word Cuticura sound to me for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another, but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then it began at her nose and her eyes were nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough. I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without sores. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years she was never without the terrible eruption, but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regular graduate physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeits. It is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as the genuine" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most precious possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you need for.
