JOS. PROCHASKA,

SAD ACCIDENT FRIDAY EVENING.

Last Friday evening while storing a load of hay in the barn, Samuel Crawford fell backwards from the top of the load and broke his neck. Mr. Crawford was engaged in pulling out the big fork used in conveying the hay from the wagon to the mow. It is supposed that the rope he was pulling on was rotten or that the big fork became tangled in the rope, and in trying to extricate it, the strands of the smaller rope parted, sending the unfortunate man to his death.

Local physicians were called but before they arrived, death had reaped its harvest.

Samuel Crawford was born in Barab, Torone County, Ireland in 1864, and at the time of his death was 48 years of age.

He came to this country when but a boy and has spent the greater part of his life in Minnesota. He was married to Miss Mary Boettger at St. Paul in June 1899 and six children were born of the union. From St. Paul Mr. Crawford and family went to Duluth, in which city they made their home for a number of years. In 1909 they moved to this place, purchased the property known as the Kenna farm south of here on the Brunswick road. It was on this farm that the sad accident occurred which cost him his life.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock from the German Lutheran church, Rev. Luebker, officiating. Interment was made in Birchwood cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Robt. Greig, Wm. Daley, Chris. Voss, A. Kalanda, Geo. Kiek and H. W. Schultz.

Beside the immediate members of the family the deceased leaves a brother Robt., of Duluth, a sister in Ireland and numerous friends to mourn his sudden death.

The deep sympathy of the entire community is tendered the bereaved family in this their hour of great sorrow.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish through the columns of the Pioneer to extend our thanks to the many kind friends and neighbors who assisted us at the sudden death of our husband and father. And also to those who furnished floral offerings, especially the Lutheran Sunday school. Mrs. S. CRAWFORD AND FAMILY.

ROBINSON FAMILY TO LEAVE SOON.

John Robinson the present manager of the Pine City Milling Co.'s plant in this place, will leave with his family the last of the month for Annandale, where he will go into business.

Mr. Robinson was in Annandale last week and while there purchased the Annandale mill, the consideration being $8,000. The plant is in fine condition and is capable of turning out a hundred barrels of flour per day. Annandale is a town of about a 1000 people and is situated in the heart of an excellent farming region. When located they will be but a few miles from Mrs. Robinson's old home, so it will not be like going into a strange place and among strange people.

In their short stay here Mr. and Mrs. Robinson have made many warm friends with whom we join in wishing them much success.

Work was commenced on the new County fair building the fore part of the week. When this building is completed it will add much to the looks of the fair grounds and will make more room for the display of goods. The fair association are doing all in their power to make the Pine County Fair the best fair in this part of the state. Farmers will you help them?

SCALE TESTER MALONE HERE

Thos. V. Malone, State Inspector of Weights and Measures, is here this week for the purpose of inspecting all the weights and measures in town.

The Weights and Measure law was passed by the legislature last year and placed under the jurisdiction of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, who have supervision over all scales, weights, measures, weighing and measuring devices.

This law makes it compulsory for every scale, weight, measure etc. to be tested and the seal or stamp of Minnesota placed thereon.

Scales must be able to test up within the allowable variation in order to be approved. If said scale fails to respond to the tests, and does not weigh correctly, the scale is rejected until repaired and adjusted, and a card stating such rejection is placed thereon.

The legislature passed this law with a fee system. The employees are paid regular salaries, but part of their duty is to collect the fees established by the state, and turn the said fees over to the state. The law further provides that the Inspector must collect these fees from the owner of the scale, weights or measure.

SWAMP TURTLES SHIPS

CONSTANTINOPLE, TURKEY, July 20.—A fleet of eight Italian warships which attempted to storm the Turkish forts at the entrance of the Dardanelles and open the way for an attack upon the littoral of the sea of Marmora and perhaps upon this city itself, was driven off following the destruction of two ships and a heavy loss of human life, according to an official announcement made from the war office.

TURKISH FORTS DESTROY TWO TORPEDO BOATS OF ENEMY IN FIERCE BATTLE.

SIX OTHERS ARE DAMAGED

Engagement Between Sea and Land Forces at Entrance to the Straits Lasts Forty-Five Minutes—Attack Was Expected.

Constantinople, Turkey, July 20.—A fleet of eight Italian warships which attempted to storm the Turkish forts at the entrance of the Dardanelles and open the way for an attack upon the littoral of the sea of Marmora and perhaps upon this city itself, was driven off following the destruction of two ships and a heavy loss of human life, according to an official announcement made from the war office.

All the Vessels Were Damaged. This statement said that none of the ships escaped serious damage, and two went down under the fire from the forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles and the southern end of the Dardanelles.

The official statement follows: "At 10.30 on the morning of the 20th the enemy's (Italy's) torpedo boats attacked the entrance to the Dardanelles near Sogunliere and Bechepe; our forts (Turkish) opened fire and sank two of the Italian torpedo boats. The other six, though damaged, managed to escape."

At a meeting of the council of ministers the order to close the Dardanelles was revoked.

Blow Was Expected Long. March 25 it was reported in cable dispatches that the Italian fleet expected direct blow at Turkey was about to be struck. The attempt seems to have been made. Various indications seem to uphold this theory. Thirty thousand reinforcements had just been landed in Tripoli. Russia's efforts to persuade the powers to force Turkey to conclude a peace had failed definitely, leaving the Mussulmans apparently more determined than ever to continue the struggle.

View of Italy's vasty superior equipment popular opinion in that country was reported to be strongly in favor of an attack on Constantinople. Just at this time, also, the censorship was tightening, and this was looked upon as the strongest indication that the plans were about to be carried out.

Opinion was divided as to where the blow would be aimed. Some said it would be probably at Smyrna or Salonica and others said that the Dardanelles themselves would be attacked.

Mr. Belmont had told the committee recently that he contributed about $20,000 to the Democratic national committee in 1904.

"Did Thomas F. Ryan contribute in 1903?" asked Chairman Clapp. "No, he did not."

"Might they have contributed to some one else?"

Washington, July 19.—One million dollars approximately, financed Alton B. Parker's campaign for the presidency, according to testimony given by William F. Sherman of New York city, chairman of the executive committee of the national Democratic committee in 1904, before the senate subcommittee investigating campaign expenses. DESCRIBES HOW FUNDS FOR BRYAN WERE GIVEN Herman Ridder, Treasurer for Democratic National Committee in 1908, Testifies—Parker Had Millions.

Washington, July 22.—Herman Ridder, treasurer of the Democratic national committee in 1908, produced for the inspection of the senate committee investigating campaign official reports of the committee's receipts and expenditures he had filed with the secretary of state of New York in 1908. J. J. Martin, private secretary to the secretary of state, produced the reports as official custodian of the money for Bryan.

Mr. Ridder told the committee how he raised the money for William J. Bryan's last presidential fight. "I was the largest contributor," said Mr. Ridder. "I gave $37,000. Mr. Bryan made a rule that no one should contribute more than $10,000. $10,000 was subscribed in my name and each of my sons gave $9,000."

REBELS KILL SIXTY

OVERTURN ENGINE OF PASSENGER TRAIN BY MINE BLAST—SHOOT VICTIMS.

COACHES ARE THEN SET AFIRE

Conductor of Train, an American, is Wounded and Not Expected to Live—Former Provisional President Gomez Arrested.

Mexico, July 22.—More than sixty persons were killed and many wounded in an attack by Zapatistas on a passenger train between this city and Cuernavaca, Mexico.

The Zapatistas, who are said to have numbered 600, placed a mine under the railroad track, which exploded as the locomotive passed over it. The overturned engine hardly had settled when the Zapatistas sprang up from all sides and poured a murderous fire into the train.

After Federal Guards.

First the object of their attack was a second-class coach in which were riding a federal military escort with a captain and two lieutenants. The federal got out of the car as quickly as possible and answered the fire of the assailants, but their efforts were futile. All of the command, with the exception of five who were wounded and two who escaped, were killed.

Thirty passengers in the second-class coaches were killed and many wounded. In the first-class coaches one was killed. One was dangerously wounded and may die. The conductor, an American named Allen, is not expected to live. After the train had been wrecked the fire of the passengers or crew not killed of wounded, the Zapatistas rushed on their stricken victims and began killing them.

Priest Stops Slaughtering.

A priest, unhurt, pleaded with De Loa, the rebel leader, to stop the slaughter, and it ceased.

After sacking the express and baggage cars, the rebels poured oil on the cars and, putting the bodies of the dead on them, set fire to the train. When the rebel train arrived there was nothing but debris and a few persons, most of whom were hurt, to tell the tale.

Train between Matamoros and Puebla, in the state of Puebla, was fired upon and windows in the cars shattered, but so far as known no one was hurt.

Gomez is Arrested.

San Antonio, Tex., July 22.—Emilio Vasquez Gomez, for a short time provisional president of Mexico, was arrested here by secret service officers. Francisco Guzman, Gomez' private secretary, and Dr. P. Rueda also were taken into custody.

Mr. Minervan were arrested while boarding a train for El Paso.

London, July 22.—Andrew Lang, essayist, historian and one of the best known educators of the present decade, died at Benbury, Devizes, Wiltshire, at 11. He was 73 years of age.

New York, July 22.—Severe rainstorms, accompanied by high winds in some localities and involving loss of life at widely separated points, swept all New England, down the coast as far as the Virginia capes, and westward to the Mississippi valley.

At Wilmington, Del. two persons were drowned, by the roof of a twelve-story building and in Pittsburg one man met death.

Another Attack on Asquith

Suffragette Muriel Black of Flour at Premier, but Misses Mears Mark.

Dublin, July 22.—Another attack was made upon Premier Asquith here by a suffragette. The woman hurled a bag of flour at the statesman, but she was arrested and hurried away by the police, who feared that the woman would harm her. There is a feeling of deep resentment here against suffrage violence because of the attack in which the premier is held for his home rule fight.

Cambridge Honors E. B. Frost.

London, England, July 22.—Prof. Edwin B. Frost of the University of Cambridge was the recipient of the degree of doctor of science at Cambridge university in connection with the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the royal society.

Pittsburgher Says Keystone Progressives Will Not Water—Anyways There Will Be a Full Ticket.

Oyster Bay, New York.—For four hours Colonel Roosevelt and Wm. Flinn of Pittsburgh talked over the Pennsylvania tangled formation of the new party. When it was all over, Mr. Roosevelt said just as much of a tongue as was. It was announced that the questions involved have been left open until after the Chicago convention.

LOSES CONGRESS SEAT; WINS BRIDE SAME DAY

Representative Catlin of Missouri Ousted on Charge Election Was Obtained by Fraud.

Washington, July 20.—While the society columns of Washington newspapers were announcing the engagement of Representative Theron E. Catlin of Missouri to Miss Laura Merriman, daughter of former Gov. William H. Merriman of Missouri, the house elections committee No. 2 was reporting that Representative Catlin's election to congress had been obtained by fraud and declaring his seat vacant.

The vote in the committee was 6 to 3, the record having shown that $15,000 was expended by the candidate and his father, Daniel Catlin, a retired tobacco multi-millionaire of St. Louis.

It was contended on behalf of the accused representative that most of this money was expended by his father in permitting a canvasser to knock on doors, but this bore no weight with the members of the committee.

Theron E. Catlin is thirty-four years old. After his election a contest was brought by Patrick Gill, former representative from Missouri, who introduced evidence that the Missouri law permitting a canvasser to knock on doors had been entirely disregarded by a firm of lawyers employed by Catlin's father to boost his campaign.

Springfield, Ill., July 19.—In the opinion of Attorney General Stead, the Illinois general assembly of 1909 failed to properly elect William Lorimer to the United States senate, therefore a vacancy does not exist by reason of Mr. Lorimer's unsuitability and consequent removal by Governor Denney in 1909.

The power to fill the senatorship by appointment.

Whether a special session of the legislature will be called at once, so that Lorimer's successor may be elected, has not been decided by Governor Denney. He declined to discuss this phase of the situation. He said he had not decided what he would do.

New Wage Scale Signed, Affecting 45,000 Miners.

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.—Peace for another year in the Pittsburgh coal fields was assured when a special convention of District No. 8, United Mine Workers of America, approved by a two-thirds vote, made a new wage scale. The action affects 45,000 men. In addition to an increase of five cents a week, the miners secured a number of important concessions regarding working conditions.

ITS UP TO ROOSEVELT

PENNSYLVANIAN ARGUES IN FAVOR OF PLAN FOR JOINT ELECTORAL BALLOT.

COLONEL NONCOMMITTAL

Pittsburgher Says Keystone Progressives Will Not Water—Anyways There Will Be a Full Ticket.

Oyster Bay, New York.—For four hours Colonel Roosevelt and Wm. Flinn of Pittsburgh talked over the Pennsylvania tangled formation of the new party. When it was all over, Mr. Roosevelt said just as much of a tongue as was. It was announced that the questions involved have been left open until after the Chicago convention.

Mr. Flinn pronounced it the most complicated situation he ever had anything to do with, which was without a parallel in American politics. Colonel Roosevelt said he was in favor of a joint electoral ballot, but he did not want to be a dictator.

The impression gathered from the utterances of the ex-president and his Pittsburgh leader was that Mr. Flinn had done a good day's work for his cause, and that Colonel Roosevelt was more inclined to look at things from his point of view. There was definitely no show that Mr. Flinn had not carried his point, but it is believed he will continue to continue the colonel that his arguments were well grounded.

"Mr. Flinn came to speak about the Pennsylvania situation," said Colonel Roosevelt. "He talked it over and agreed that he should go back and discuss it with his people and then bring up the matter again at Chicago."

Mr. Flinn said that whatever was decided upon there would be no breach in their ranks.

"We will not do anything the colonel objects to," he said. "It is simply a question whether we shall have a joint electoral ticket, taking for the Roosevelt ticket as many of the Republican candidates as will regard as binding in the electoral college an agreement to vote for the candidate for president who receives the highest number of votes, whether it be Taft or Roosevelt. That is what my associates and I want to do. The other proposal is to put up a brand new ticket."

Mr. Flinn said that the three classes of men: the Taft candidate, the Roosevelt candidates who would remain on the Republican ticket, and the Roosevelt candidates who would resign because they were unwilling to remain under such conditions.

W. D. WASHBURN RALLIES

Relatives Hasten to Beds of Stricken Man—Stanley is Absent.

Minneapolis.—William Drew Washburn, former United States senator from Minnesota, and pioneer educator, whose death is momentarily expected, at "Fair Oaks," his Minneapolis home, is still alive, but sinking rapidly. Doctors say there is no hope for the recovery of the former senator and that his death is only a matter of a few hours.

Mr. Washburn spent a restless day but was able to sleep for a few hours. He was then unconscious a part of the time. He recovered from a stupor last night and soon after sleep. He awoke at 10:30 p. m., talked for a few minutes to members of his family, and again fell asleep.

Relatives say that his happiest moment Mr. Washburn has had since he was at "Fair Oaks" was when he was at "Fair Oaks" where he had expressed a wish to die. Mr. Washburn says relatives called him by his first name, "Fair Oaks," which he said was a remarkable vitality, according to the doctors, has prolonged his life for a much longer time than they expected.

MADE BIG PROFIT FOR STATE

Purely Business Argument for the Establishment of Sanitoriums for the Tuberculous.

According to figures contained in the annual report of Dr. H. L. Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island state sanitarium, the earnings of the expatriates of that institution during the year 1911 would amount to over $266,000. This is a sum three times as large as that spent each year for maintenance of the institution, including four per cent. interest and depreciation charges.

The actual earnings in 1911 of 170 expatriates were obtained by Dr. Barnes. These ranged from $12 to $31 per week, the total earnings for the year amounting to $102,752. On this basis, Dr. Barnes computes the figures above given. He says, however: "While institutions for the cure of tuberculosis are good investments, there is good reason for thinking that institutions for the isolation of far-advanced cases would be still better investments."

Voice of Conscience.
A western Kentucky negro was in jail awaiting trial for stealing a calf. His wife called to see him. On her way out the jailer, whose name was Grady, halted her.

"Mandy," he inquired, "have you got a lawyer for Jim?"

"No, sah," was his wife. "Ef Jim was guilty Id give him a lawyer right away; but he tells me he ain't guilty, and so of co'se, I ain't aimin' to hire none."

"Mr. Grady," came a voice from the cells above, "you tell dat nigger woman down ther to git a lawyer—and git a damn good one, too!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Out of a total of 46,450 hospital days treatment given, 29,747, or 64 per cent., were free, the treatment costing the state on an average $200 per patient. Out of the 138 free cases investigated, 46 had no families and no income on admission to the sanitarium. Out of 132 patients having homes, the number in the family averaged 5.2, and the average family earnings were $4.66. In 59 cases the families had no income, and in only five cases were there any savings, none of which amounted to as much as $100.

POLICE ARE RAFFLED

MRS. MARY WEINARD'S BODY FOUND AT FOOT OF BANK— EVIDENCE OF HOMICIDE.

EXPLODE FIRST THEORY.

Theory of Police Now Is That Death Resulted From Sudden Attack of Heart Failure—Relatives Say Murderer.

Minneapolis. — How Mrs. Mary Weinard, 1211 Fourth street north, whose dead body was found at the foot of an embankment at Fourth street between Fourth and Fifth avenues north early Saturday, came to her death is still an unsolved mystery. Her family is of the opinion that she was murdered, but the police insist that their investigation points to death from natural causes.

Little of a new character has been discovered by the police, although they have been working day and night since the tragedy. There is an absence of motive for murder, say the police, while the family says robbery was the motive.

The theory of the police is that the woman, as she was crossing the viaduct, first, her hat would be torn off, and her hair would be blown over backward, and as she fell herself falling, she made a desperate lunge with both hands for the bar on which she was seated, which would account for the two slight bruises on her wrists.

Falling, as she naturally would head first, her hat would be torn off her head and would remain near the top of the embankment, caught in the weeds, while her body would be carried by its own weight to the bottom. As she fell, the watch she carried on a chain, would be hurled from her with sufficient violence to break its fastenings and drop about half way down the embankment, where it was found, while her watch probably would not become unfastened until she had reached nearly the bottom of the incline.

That she had fallen backward and head first was plainly shown by the fact that her coat had been forced partially off her shoulders, and it was had not been, as first reported, torn open and the little red pocket which was pinned over her breast, and in which she was in the habit of carrying valuables, had not been exposed. In fact, it was still fastened with a safety pin and contained a watch, several trinkets and 95 cents in cash.

Coroner is Satisfied.
The autopsy, according to Coroner Seashore, showed plainly that the woman had died of heart disease. That her lungs were congested and that she was frothing at the mouth simply tended to confirm the diagnosis, he said.

Mr. Weinard said positively that his wife could not have had more than about $100 on her person. He says she formed the habit of carrying her money with her during the past of nearly 20 years ago, but although she had at that time carried as much as $1,000.

It is believed by the police that there was some mystery in the woman's life that was not known to her immediate family. She wore a locket with the initials "P. B." engraved on it. It is said that she was engaged to a man before her marriage 30 odd years ago, and that she was in love with him. Her husband says she frequently received letters that she was at great pains to conceal, always meeting the mail carrier at the door to prevent anyone else from seeing her mail.

It is said that she carried many of these letters and also newspaper clippings in the black handbag that is said to be missing. The handbag, it is asserted, is the only thing she is believed to have carried with her and is not found on or near her person.

Governor's Plans.
St. Paul. Governor Elbert has asked the next Legislature to appropriate money for a Minnesota building at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915 and to devote a considerable sum to the suppression of tuberculosis and the advancement of other projects for public health.

As a result of a visit here by Governor John K. Tanner of Pennsylvania and seventeen fellow commonwealthers, who were on their way home here, selecting the site for the Pennsylvania building on the San Francisco fair grounds.

The good crop is assured. Traverser county will produce one of its best crops in 1912 from all indications in every line.

FEEOWNERS SUE NORMAN MINE

WOULD ALSO RECOVER $1,012,250 FROM OLIVER COMPANY.

Complaint Charges "Reckless Methods" Caused Heavy Toll of Human Life.

Duluth.—Alleged haphazard mining operations, which are alleged to have resulted in the wrecking of the Norman mine near Virginia, Minn., heavy toll of human life and the general alleged mismanagement of the property, are grounds upon which a suit to recover $1,012,250 and the possession of the premises was brought today against the Oliver Iron Mining company by the fee owners.

The Oliver company is one of the largest subsidiary concerns of the United States Steel corporation. The fee owners of the Norman mine are the Leon Iron company, the Higgins company, the Gilbert Investment company, Clara A. H. Smith and Frank Sullivan Smith.

The fee owners in the recent cancellation of the lease of the Norman mine by the fee owners. On February 15 last a notice of cancellation was served on the Oliver Mining company, but as yet the mine has not been released to the fee owners.

In the action which is now pending the fee owners ask, first, for a restitution of the alleged damages to the mine resulting from the so-called reckless character of mining the property, and secondly, for an account of the fee owners of the Norman mine, and also for an account of the Oliver company has not lived up to the terms of the lease and that it is not doing the mine as the lease provides, were the pits in their possession. The complaint states that through the "reckless methods" of mining more than $400,000 tons of merchandise lost, worth $420,250, have been left hanging on the sides of the mine and in such a manner that the Oliver company has lost their lives.

The fee owners blame the loss of life to the mine operators. The mine, it is alleged, has been left in such a condition that $100,000 would have to be expended to reach the ore, which the fee owners assert has been allowed to mix with rock and earth.

The Norman mine has been owned by the plaintiffs for fifteen years. The property was taken over in April, 1893, from the Rouchelau-Ray Iron Land company. At that time, the leases were owned by the Norman Iron company. Ten years ago the Norman Iron company assigned its lease to the Oliver company, which has operated the mine since.

BANS TROT AND HUG.

Proposed Bemidji Ordinance Also Restricts Dance Halls.

Bemidji.—There will be no "trakey trot," "bunny hug," "grizzly bear," or similar dances in Bemidji if the ordinance passed by Mayor Fred M. Malhahn, drawn by City Attorney P. J. Russell and looked upon with apparently unanimous favor by the council, is enacted. The ordinance absolutely forbids the admittance of any child under sixteen years of age in any dance hall, and no girl between sixteen and eighteen can attend unless she is escorted by her parents, an elder sister or brother, "or some person known to be of unquestionable moral character."

Furthermore, the ordinance in its present form punishes the death knell of Sunday motion picture shows, and puts the ban for all time on prize fight films or any film which shows the holdups of a stage coach or train, or the robbery of a bank. The pursuit, capture or trial of any robber.

Winona.—Martin Daskowhik aged fifty-three years, Winona's oldest citizen, died in a hospital here Saturday, and his son Edward, 19, were electrocuted in the yard at the rear of their home here.

Young Daskowhik, who has had considerable experience as a amateur electrician, was erecting a workshop at the rear of his home by candle light. He tried to substitute an electric light for the candle light by connecting wires with the interior of his residence, he grasped a "live" wire and stopped withering to the ground, unable to release his hold of the wire. His father hearing the boy's cries, hurried to his assistance and when he grasped the body of the young man to lift him from the ground he too fell.

On their way to Duluth the Chicago Singers, some 200 in number, spent July 21 in Minneapolis, and in the evening of that day gave a little concert at the Minneapolis Auditorium. Axel Akerlund, director-in-chief of the union; Chicago, is conducting the chorus numbers. He recently was decorated with the order of Vasa by Gustaf V of Sweden for the work he accomplished in his highly successful musical festivals or songfests in Chicago in 1893 at the World's Columbian exposition; New York, 1897; Jamestown, N. FAKE GOLD GOING.

President of Jewelers' Association Talks to Convention.
Fergus Falls.—There was a large attendance of delegates at the convention of the State Retail Jewelers' association, in session in this city. The president of the association, Fergus Falls, was a feature of the session. He spoke of the benefits the organization is bringing to the trade and said that the district had a large number of cases with only thirty-cent worth of gold on it and guaranteed to wear for twenty-five years. The watch chain tag was only five cents worth of gold and the other, and all other fake jewelry and silverware were also mentioned.

"In my opinion, the fixing of a wholesale and retail price for manufactured articles by the manufacturers has done more to injure the interests of the retail merchants, but to the public," he said. "This association should be very earnest in its efforts to prevent the passing of legislation that would prevent any manufacturer from fixing a retail price on his manufactured articles."

Mr. Straub was addressed by Charles T. Higginbotham of South Bend, Ind., who gave an interesting demonstration of the adjustment of watch balance wheels to stop watch model.

The visitors were taken for an automobile ride about the city early in the afternoon and returned to Fergus Falls for a few hours outing.

NYE MAKES SPEECH.

Roosevelt Not Indorsed, But Progressive Movement Is.
Washington, D. C.—It has been a long time since the house of representatives has heard a speech containing so much frankness as that delivered today by that body's Representative Frank E. Nye of Minneapolis. The members sat absolutely silent and intent during the course of Mr. Nye's speech, which was taken from the Minnesota stenogram as given on an ovation.

Mr. Nye's speech was one that many will remember, and others may call "saturnian." During the course of his remarks he made it plain to the house, that he did not regard Col. Roosevelt as a genuine reformer, but at the same time, he endorsed the Progressive movement as one of the best of the country. The keynote of Mr. Nye's remarks was given when he declared:

"Roosevelt has one day here and another the truth that God has given you than dwell here half a century to be the toy of every wind and wave of the political sea of life."

It was announced that uremia had developed.

After another consultation the physicians this afternoon the emperor's illness was diagnosed as typhoid fever.

His majesty's bed has been moved to a sitting room in the palace. The emperor lies at the bedside of his wife and a doctor is on duty.

SPLENDID OUTLOOK FOR CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA

RELIABLE INFORMATION FROM THE GRAIN FIELDS SHOW THAT THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD.

This is the time of year when considerable anxiety is felt in all the northern agricultural districts as to the probable outcome of the growing crops. Central Canada, comprising the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with their 16,000,000 acres of wheat, oats, barley and flax, of which 6,000,000 acres may be said to be sown to wheat alone, has become a great factor in the grain markets of the world. Besides this, government returns show that every state in the Union has representatives in these provinces, and naturally their friends and their representatives are anxious to hear of their success. It has never been said of that country that it is absolutely faithless. There are, however, districts that have experienced the vagaries of the weather, the same as in districts south of the boundary line between the two countries, but these are probably more to be expected in any agricultural country. The past has proven that the agricultural possibilities of this portion of Canada are probably more attractive in every way than most countries where grain raising is the chief industry. The present year promises to be even better than the past year, and in a month or six weeks it is felt there will be produced the evidence that warrants the enthusiasm on the present grain market. The broad acres will have the ripened wheat, oats, barley and flax, and the farmer, who has been looking forward to making his last crop give him a big return will be satisfied. At the time of writing, all crops give the promise of reaching the most sanguine expectations.

In the central portion of Alberta, it is said that crop conditions are more favorable than in any previous year. Heavy rains recently visited this part, and as a result of this grain growing section has been covered. Reports like the following come from all parts:

"Splendid heavy rain yesterday. Crops forging ahead. Great prospects. All grains more than a week ahead of last year. Weather warm last night, and crops are looking right."

From southern Alberta the reports had indicated sufficient rain. Crops in excellent condition. Labor scarce. Throughout Saskatchewan all grains are looking well, and there has been sufficient rain to carry them through to harvest.

For all portions of Manitoba there comes an assurance of an abundant yield of all grains. Throughout southern Manitoba, where rain was needed a few days ago, it has been lately been abundant precipitation, and that portion of the province will in all probability have a crop to equal the best sections of the large quantity of grain was sown on the stubble in the newer west, which is never a satisfactory method of farming, and may reduce the general average.

Taken altogether, the country is now fully two weeks in advance of last year, and in all grains the averages sown are much larger than in 1911. This means that with auspicious weather the west will have the grandest harvest in its history. Two hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat has been mentioned as an estimate of the present growing crop, and it looks now as if that guess will be none too large.

PINE COUNTY PIONEER

ED. C. GOTTRY, Editor and Prop'

Entered in the Postoffice at Pine City as Second-Class Matter

Pine City, Minnesota, July 26, '12

T. R. and his "Gou" party are not making much of a hit.

A bumper crop in Pine County this fall. This year's cut of hay was one of the best ever seen in this section.

DON'T forget that the Pine County Agricultural Society is offering a beautiful prize cup for the best dairy herd at the fair this fall. Why not take this home with you on the closing day of the fair?

EVIDENTLY our appeal to the weather man last week for a little rain had the desired effect or else our entreaty reached him just at the right time. At any rate, the rain of Monday evening and Tuesday was worth thousands of dollars to Pine County.

HERE is a little summary of what has been done in a single year toward limiting child-labor or winning better conditions for it: Eight states have prohibited night work; six have raised the legal age limit for night-messengers to eighteen years, and four others have made it 21 years. Pennsylvania has forbidden the employment in coal-mines of children under sixteen; California, Colorado, Missouri, Wisconsin and Washington have established an 8 hour day; six states have passed laws that regulate street trades. The commission on laws of the American Bar Association has adopted a uniform child-labor law. To the sympathetic and tender hearted it sometimes seems as if progress was terribly slow, but in such an advance as this there is certainly no reason for discouragement. (Youth's Companion July 18.)

IS HE GUILTY?

By a vote of 55 to 28, Billy Lorimer has been expunged from the Senate of the United States upon the say-so of its own members. The fins to the great struggle waged for a senatorial toga was dramatic in the extreme. Ben Tillman, battle scarred veteran of many a political campaign, ferocious and bloodthirsty, standing on the brink of the grave, shed tears of sympathy as the blond boss marched defiantly out of the halls of congress, the wielder of the pitchfork declaring that he still believed in the integrity of the expelled member. Lorimer protested his own innocence to the end.

With 28 of his colleagues believing in him after being familiarized with the evidence, and knowing that many votes cast against the Senator were so cast to save the political necks of those casting them, the layman is put at his wits end to reach a decision in the case, especially when knowing that, guilty or innocent, the fight was started out of pure spite.

It is peculiar to think that all that money could have been spent in the interests of the candidacy of Mr. Lorimer without his knowing it. It is also peculiar that a man of Lorimer's exemplary moral habits could have committed such a bald faced larceny of a seat in the Senate.

Who can solve the puzzle and back his answer up with conclusive evidence? (Cottage Grove Sentinel.)

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Pine City the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

Mrs. August Carlson, North Pine City, Minn., says: "I am just as strong in my praise of Doan's Kidney Pills today as I was three years ago, when I publicly recommended them. For about two years I had kidney complaint. It began with pain and weakness in my back that prevented me from doing any lifting. If I stooped, sharp twinges darted through my loins and head. My rest was broken at night and often I was hardly able to attend to my work. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured at Breckenridge's Pharmacy and they restored me to good health. I shall always be pleased to tell of the merits of this preparation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. York, sole agents for the United States.

THE TREASURES UNDER THE ENGLISH FLAG

Gold and Jewels still waiting to be found by some Modern Adventurer

by Buffington Phillips

COPYRIGHT BY THE RICHWAY CO.

REASURES where the coveys find them; treasures which the divers can see, but cannot reach; treasures where only unperpetrated fears stand in the way of recovery—such is the state of affairs in and about Great Britain proper, one of the richest lands in the world for the treasure-hunting adventures.

The most ardent seeker of these troves was King John. Most of his time was spent in hunting buried treasures of other centuries, assembling the gold and jewels of England and burying them again. Only a few groups of known value and of certain or nearly certain location can be mentioned in this article, so numerous are they.

It was known that the King had knowledge, gleaned from old documents, that the Romans, during the time of their occupation, had great quantities of gold, silver, jewels and plate in a fashionable resort in the north of England, and, being cut off in the rear by an invasion of Picts and Scots, buried it in a vast trove near the old Roman wall in Northumberland.

King John made extensive explorations and found a large cache made at a later period, but did not find the more important store of wealth. He removed his find to Hermitage Castle, and, according to all accounts, the masonry of the wall was opened from the outside and the treasure hidden once again.

Once since his day the true clue to the Roman cache was found and set again through the brutality and stupidity of some English county officials in Northumberland.

Two poor and ignorant farm laborers were working in a field on the edge of the old Roman ruin one day and sat down, in the shade of a heap of stones, for their lunch. Idly they turned over a large stone, and in the bottom of the cavity left they saw an enormous heavy chain.

Pushing away the dirt until they could get hold of it, they drew it out. It was several feet long and weighed enough to make a burden for both of them. Seeing that it was broken they left it till the next day, when they were working with a cart. At evening they loaded it in the cart and carried it home, leaving it against the wall of the stable as a curtain for a heavy chain.

One Sunday when idling with some neighbors they fell to discussing the chain, and one of the neighbors scolded it with a knife. He said it looked and felt more like gold than brass and was very soft. Taking a broken link to the market when he next went, the elder of the two finders submitted it to a jeweler, who pronounced it solid gold of a very fine composition.

The neighbor who had made the discovery of the nature of the find thought he should have half and let in on the secret of the remainder. This was refused, so he informed the authorities, and the two peasants were arrested, spent a long period in jail, and, as a result of the ill treatment, one of them went insane.

The older had steadfastly refused to disclose the spot where the chain was found, having taken an oath when he was forged in prison that he would never tell any one. This was his method of getting even and it proved very effective.

It is curious indeed that the termination of the great treasure hunter and his career should be marked by the Internet of wealth in an amount as great, or greater, than that involved in any of his previous exploits.

In his historic flight, King John's party carried with it not only an enormous treasure in the store of gold that represented the royal funds, but a cumbersome weight of treasures he had acquired, and more valuable than all the others—the full regalia, crown, jewels, and insignia of the great orders of which the King was head.

The British Museum and the various orders would pay at least $25,000,000 for the recovery of these, and yet it does not seem a difficult matter. Some individual or syndicate with the proper backing could easily look up the circumstances as contained in the old records and make a consistent, determined effort.

The royal fugitive and retinue were riding in haste around the dip of the Wash, and the animals on which the precious load was carried strided so frequently to the lowlands that it was decided to cache the treasure.

The King and a few faithful noblemen superintended the work, impressing some peasants for the labor. The records state distinctly that the infernet took place precisely where the road crosses the river to Lynn.

The old road ran where there is now a morass of silt and fall, baked dry in summer. A few years ago, during the drought season, some farmers, sinking a well so as to water the cattle that were feeding on the marsh grass, struck an odd crown of solid gold, but made no further excavation.

By the time London heard of the find, the season had changed and the spot was a swamp once more. There is no question in my mind, after reading all accounts of the treasure, it there and can be excavated with a steam shovel fixed on a barge into the mouth of the great Ouse.

In 1709, when England was at war with the Netherlands, H. de Land, an English merchant, sailing for Cuxhaven, Sea sank off the island of Veland, at the mouth of the Zuyder Zee, and only two of those aboard were rescued. She carried gold and silver specie. It was later learned that she was insured for $5,941,055.

The United Kingdom was literally gridged with sunken treasure in the latter part of the sixteenth century. Sir Francis Drake returned in 1580 from his great journey of exploration to California, and he had an adequate idea of the vast amount of gold which was being carried in Spanish ships from Mexico and South America to Spain. As a matter of fact, there was so much of it in Spain that the possessors did not know what to do with it, and the idea of the great Armada may have been conceived as much to find a glorious means of expending the royal wealth and the wealth of the ambitious nobles as to have a method of diverting the attention of the poorer classes, who were very little better off in spite of the flood of gold that had come to the Peninsula.

However that may be, the great Armada is usually considered a magnificent adventure which was meant to crush the power of England at sea and to humble the kingdom to a state of practical vassalage to Spain, her bitter enemy.

The English ships were well-trimmed, meagerly fitted vessels for war—war and nothing else. The Spanish ships had, in some cases, silken sails, many splendid canopies on their decks, gold-mounted cannon, and even the lowest estimated accounts say that from seventy to one hundred millions in Spanish gold and silver was the sum total in treasures distributed among eighty great ships.

How Sir Francis Drake and the British admirals and captains fell on the fleet and scattered it, how in battle after battle it was worsted, is a matter of history familiar to every one. The bulk of the Armada, driven by a great storm, was hurried into the North Sea, and, vainly endeavoring to circle by the Orkneys and the Shetlands and get back to the Bay of Biscay through the Minches, the North Channel, Irish Sea, and St. George's Channel, was wrecked in strange waters. It is impossible in brief space to go into detail concerning all of these rich sunken wrecks. Each one of them is known has its more or less detailed history and from some of them millions of dollars' worth of trappings and treasure were recovered in the years following soon after the gigantic disaster.

One of the Spanish Armada ships, the Florentia, went ashore in the Sound of Mull in 1588. She had a vast treasure aboard, and when she was attacked by a band of Scots her commander blew her up. The Duke of Argyll spent a fortune in the search. His ancestors have been hunting since 1584, and in 1867 an announcement was made public that the old records showed that there was $30,000,000 in money on her, besides the gold and silver plate. None of it has ever been recovered, although the Argyll family have the full information of where the wreck lies.

The Cavalier treasure of Marston Moor is another famous cache. For centuries the villagers near the historic field where the Roundheads and Cavaliers contended have been thrown into great excitement by finds of gold-pieces and by the arrival of parties of strangers who the villagers imagine have come to look for the treasure.

The story of this trove is that, before the battle, owing to the necessity of shifting headquarters of the King's government so often, the army funds in four chests, each of which could be transported on two large horses, were brought to the Cavalier camp. A sudden descent of the Roundhead cavalry cut off the treasure and its guardian, who held out stubbornly for a day, then buried the treasure hastily.

The Cavaliers retreated, expecting to receive reinforcements and regain possession of the treasure, but the battle of Marston Moor followed. The ground was torn up with hoofs, fire swept part of the plain, and the marks were gone, so it has remained undisturbed ever since. No, not quite undisturbed—a village cow found it, but she did not appreciate her advantages and could not have told her master if she had.

It is well known that when certain forms of stomach trouble affect cows, dogs and other animals, they seek metal oxides, and will swallow nails, rusty iron, and bits of jewelry. This particular cow was no trouble. Her grazing-ground included part of the general locality in which the treasure is known to lie. She was noticed licking the rusty hinges of the pasture gates, being an old plowhorse, and some weeks later she gave evidences of being in great pain. The wisecracks of the village were called in council and decided that she had swallowed something that disagreed with her, and, partly out of curiosity and partly through desire to save the beef by killing her before she died, the owner had an end put to her misery and an autopsy was held. Imagine the excitement when the butchers opened the stomach, and amid nails, bits of iron, and copper, found a number of gold-pieces of the Cavalier treasure and a small latch-key of the type of which there must have been several on every one of the treasure chests. The soil had been washed or had been plowed over the treasure, and the cow had found it and absorbed her mental end. The wisecracks then told the owner that if he had but kept the cow alive till she returned to the spot where she had found the treasure he might have watched her and soon discovered it. He worried over his folly till he grew so despondent that he hanged himself.

The square face of Gibraltar, made so familiar in America by use in advertising, in reality fronts the landward side. Between the Rock and the mainland runs a flat sandy strip that is neither British nor Spanish. Gibraltar has always been a great haunt of smugglers, and the neutral strip has always been their greatest danger-ground.

In 1870 the dangerous Theron band desisted from smuggling long enough to run some cargoes of arms into Spain for the use of Don Carlos and his army. After securing some $450,000 they set out to effect a retirement from Gibraltar, and made their way to Jaen, where a wealthy merchant was known to have some $600,000, collected in readiness for use in the Carlist cause. Under pretext that they had instructions to deliver a shipment of munitions to him at Malaga, and displaying the documentary evidences of their late deal with Don Carlos, they persuaded the merchant to accompany them on the road to Malaga.

When a fitting opportunity came they murdered him, threw his body into a dry ravine, and with their weight of wealth in gold and English notes, set out for Gibraltar. The body was found sooner than they had expected, but the drifting sand had some ten miles from the neutral ground when they were overtaken, and a running fight occurred, in which Gansey, one of the outlaws, was killed in a most spectacular manner.

Four of the outlaws crouched among the rocks and held the pursuers at bay, anxiously awaiting Theron's return. But when the dawn came they found that he had buried the treasure, turned the mules loose, and was making his way back to them when a bullet had stretched him out dead on the sand.

Seeing this, the four now tried to retreat toward the Rock, one after the other, but they were shot down.

When it was found that there had been over a million dollars in booty with the party, a careful search was begun, but the drifting sand had obliterated the necessary traces and it was never recovered.

The wind is constantly carrying away the sand on this sand, and the Gitan and others who frequent it keep a sharp eye out for the rusted corner of a steel box. Some day the money will be found; in fact, search with a magnetic instrument will disclose it today if some one on the spot only thought of such a device.

ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP

Lebanon, O.—"My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For fifteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be slinging and pinching that spot, until I was very much exhausted. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years.

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. Imagine my delight when I applied the first dose to that awful itching spot on my leg and scalp, in less than a minute the itching on both places ceased. I got some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the second day I never had another itching spell, and Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured me. I was troubled with eczema all over my scalp. The Cuticura Soap has cured that trouble."

The Middle-Aged Woman.

"Of the many ways in which the middle-aged woman may vary the effect of her afternoon gowns none is simpler than the use of a collar and cuffs of white voile edged with scalloping and embroidery in a floral design. Another change may be the frock set of white chiffon with border of black malines, and still another is the one of black net, embellished with silver thread.

Some of these collars are so long in front that they terminate only at the waist line, where they cross in surplus effect and are tucked away under the girle. An excellent model of this sort is of light blue lawn embroidered with black dots, and a second is of white agate trimmed with tiny folds of broadcloth, alternating with eponge.

Excellent Plan.

"I see," said Mrs. De Jones, while Mrs. Van Tyle was calling, "that you have a Chinese chauffeur. Do you find him satisfactory?"

"He is perfectly fine," said Mrs. Van Tyle. "To begin with, his yellow complexion is such that at the end of a long, dusty ride he doesn't show any spots, and then when I am out in my limousine I see his big, pig-like snout through a little hole in the plate glass window, and I use it as a sort of bell rope, to tell him where to stop."

"Jane," said her father, "how did it happen that I find four good cigars on the mantelpiece this morning? Did Henry leave them for me?"

"No," he took them out of his vest pocket to avoid breaking them last night, and I guess he forgot all about them afterwards."

The Wreck of the Tascab.

The young woman in the taxicab scuttling frantically down the dark street, along to the arm of the young man alongside, as if she were terrified at the lawless glare of the headlights. But evidently some greater fear goaded her, for she gasped:

"Can't you go a little faster?"
"Can't you go a little faster?" The young man alongside howled as he thrust his head and shoulders through the window in the door.
But the self-created taxi-gale swept his voice aft, and the taxicab lurched his ear in vain to catch the vanishing syllables.
"What's that?" he roared.
"Can't you go a little faster?" The indignant characterer simply had to shoot one herbed glare of reproach into that passenger. He turned his head and growled:
"Say, do you want to lose me ma license?"
For just one instant he turned his head. One instant was just enough. The unguarded taxicab, at the opportunity, bolted from the track, and swung, as it were, its arms drunkenly around a perfectly respected lamp-post attending strictly to its business on the curb. There ensued a condensed Fourth of July. Sparks flew, tires exploded, metals ripped, two wheels spun in air, and the taxicab, neatly severed at the axle, went reeling down the sidewalk half a block before it leaned against a tree and rested.
A dozen or more miracles coincided to save the passengers from injury. The young man found himself standing on the pavement with the unslung dog still around his neck. The young woman's arms were round his neck. Her head was on his shoulder. It had reposed there long enough, but never before in the street under a lamp-post. The chauffeur found himself in the road, walking about on all fours, like a bewitched quadruped.
Evidently some overpowering need for speed possessed the young woman, for even now she did not scream, she did not faint, she did not murmur, "Where am I?" She simply said:
"What time is it, honey?"
And the young man, not realising how befuddled he really was or how his hand trembled, fetched out his watch and held it under the glow of the lamp-post, which was now bent over in a convenient but disreputable attitude.
"A quarter to ten, sweetheart. Plenty of time for the train."
"But the minister, honey! What about the minister?"
The consideration of this riddle was interrupted by a stifled hubbub of wings, whimpers and human hysterics. Immediately the young woman forgot ministers, collisions, train-schedules—everything. She showed her first sign of panic.
"Snoozeums! Get Snoozeums!"
They groped about in the top-heavy taxicab, rummaged among a jumble of suitcases, handbags, umbrellas and minor impediments, and fished out a small dog-basket with an inverted dog inside. Snoozeums was ridiculous in any position, but as he said tall foremost from the wicker basket, he resembled nothing so much as a heap of tangled yarn tumbling out of a work-basket. He was an indignant skin, and had much to say before he consented to snuggle under his mistress's chin.
About this time the chauffeur came prowling into view. He was too deeply shocked to emit any language of the garage. He was too deeply shocked to achieve any comment more brilliant than:
"That mess don't look much like it ever was a taxicab, does it?"
The young man shrugged his shoulders, and started up and down the long street for another. The young woman looked sorrowfully at the wreck, and queried:
"Do you think you can make it go?"
The chauffeur glanced her way, more in pity for her whole sex than in scorn for this one type, as he humbly said:
"Make it go? I'll take a steam wagon a week to unwrap it from that lamp-post."
The young man apologized.
"It oughtn't to have yelled at you." He was evidently a very nice young man. Not to be outdone in courtesy, the chauffeur retorted:
"I hadn't ought to have turned me head."
The young woman thought, "What a nice chauffeur!" but she gasped: "Great heavens, you're driving me nuts!"
"It's nuttin' but a scratch on my numb." Lead me a clean handkerchief, please.

The young man whipped out his reserve supply, and in a trice it was a bandage on the chauffeur's hand. The chauffeur decided that the young woman was even nicer than the young man. But he could not settle on a way to say it. So he said nothing, and grinned sheepishly as he said it.
The young man named Harry was wondering how they were to proceed. He had already studied the region with dismay when the girl resolved: "We'll have to take another taxi, Harry."
"Yes, Marjorie, but we can't take it till we get it."
"You might wait here all night 'til our ketchin' a gimpe' of one," the chauffeur ventured. "I come this way because you wanted me to take a short cut."
"It's the longest short cut I ever saw," the young man sighed, as he gazed this way and that.
The place of their shipwreck was so deserted that not even a crowd had gathered. The racket of the collision had not brought a single policeman. They were in a dead world of granite warehouses, wholesale stores and factories, all locked and forbidding, and full of silent ghosts.
In the daytime this was a big trading-artery of Chicago, and all day long it was thunderous with trucks and commerce. At night it was Pompeii, utterly abandoned that the night watchmen rarely slept outside, and no footstep found it worth while to set up shop.
The three castaways stared every which way, and every which way was hell. Somewhere a street car was bumping along its rails.
"Our only hope," said Harry. "Come along, Marjorie."
He handed the chauffeur five dollars as a purchase to his friends, tucked the girl under one arm and the dog-basket under the other, and set out, calling back to the chauffeur:
"Good night!"
"Good night!" the girl called back.
"Good night!" the chauffeur echoed. He stood watching them with the tender gaze that even a chauffeur may feel for young love hastening to a honeymoon.
He closed his eyes, and till their foot-prints died in the silence. Then he turned back to the chaotic remnants of his machine. He worked at it hopefully for some time, before he had reason to look within. There he found the handbags and suitcases, umbrellas and other equipment. He ran to the corner to call after the owner. They were as absent of body as they had been absent of mind.
He remembered the street-number

Henry Mallory and Marjorie Newton, they had given him as their destination. He waited till at last a yawning policeman sauntered the way like a lonely beach patrol, and left him in charge while he went to telephone his garage for a wagon and a wrecking crew.
It was close on midnight before he reached the lumber his fares had given him. It was a paragon leaping against a church. He rang the bell and finally produced from an upper window a nightbird topped by a frowsy head. He explained the situation, and his possession of certain properties belonging to parties unknown except by their first names. The clergyman drowsily murmured:
"Oh, yes, I remember. The young man was Lieutenant Henry Mallory, and he said he would stop here with a young lady, and get married on the way to the train. But they never turned up."
"Lieutenant Mallory, eh? Where could I reach him?"
"He said he was leaving tonight for the Philippines!"
"The Philippines! Well, I'll be!" The minister closed the window just in time.

LOOK AFTER YOUR HEALTH

If Your System is Kept Toned Up You Will Escape Many Diseases That Find Easy Victims Among Pale People.

Enough disease germs enter the average human body every day to cause death if the healthful organism did not combat those germs and render them harmless.

The human system become run down, or debilitated, and this power of resistance to disease is weakened. Soon the disease germs get the upper hand, an acute sickness follows or the patient becomes a chronic invalid.

It is in the blood that the battle to maintain the health is fought. Keep the blood toned up, the bowels open, and observe ordinary care as regards food and rest and you will avoid much sickness.

Debility is not a recognized disease but is a condition in which the sufferer cannot get and hold his sleep, wakes up all tired out, has no strength or ambition, is nervous, has a poor appetite, has trouble at the stomach, and is subject to headaches and backaches. It is most commonly met with in people who are generally in an unconfined indoor, eat improper food or have worry and grief.

The case of Mrs. W. McCaslin, No. 202 South 27th Street, Lincoln, Neb., shows the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as a tonic for all run-down conditions of health. She says: "I gave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a trial for general debility from which I had been suffering about three years. I was thoroughly tired and worn out and had no ambition for anything. I became very weak and kept losing strength. My appetite was poor and I was nervous and had severe headaches. "I needed a tonic treatment and tried several tonic remedies but none seemed to help me until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I was soon much improved in health and able to get around and do my work. I took the pills until cured and am pleased to recommend them to anyone who is run down in health."
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50 by Dr. J. C. Collins, Druggist, 250 Broadway, N. Y.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints."
Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory."
Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."
Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."
Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."
Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for children in the care of children."
Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."
Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."
