ROOSEVELT AND JOHNSON ARE NOMINATED

ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE

Religious Songs Sung as Ticket Is Named.

Candidates Thank Convention and Pledge to Work Unflinchingly for Victory of the New Party.

Chicago. — Slating "Onward Christian soldiers," and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the delegates to the first national convention of the new Progressive party proclaimed Theodore Roosevelt of New York as their candidate for president, and Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California as their choice for vice-president.

Marking a new departure in the proceedings of national conventions, the two candidates immediately were informally notified of their nomination and in the midst of deafening cheers appeared before the delegates to voice their acceptance and pledge their best effort to the coming campaign.

For several long hours during the afternoon and early evening the big throng in the Coliseum had listened to a flow of oratory in nominating and seconding speeches in which the dominant note expressed was the belief that victory would come to the new party in the November elections.

Raymond Robins of Illinois pledged a 100,000 majority for the national ticket in Illinois and Gifford Pinchot predicted a 400,000 majority for Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Johnson in his home state of Pennsylvania.

These statements were cheered to the echo. The party formally christened itself "The Progressive party," leaving out the prefix "national," by which it heretofore was known, but provision was made for the cognomen of "real" Progressives in any of the states of whatever name they should be locally designated because of the state laws.

The convention adjourned at 7:24 p. m. with the delegates singing the Dextera. During the three days it was in session there was not a single roll call, nor a ballot taken. The delegates asked to such formalities either in placing their candidates in nomination or in voting for them. There was not a voice in opposition either to Colonel Roosevelt or Governor Johnson.

The delay in nominating them was due to the large number of seconding speeches allowed. As has always been the case in national political conventions, the bulk of the work of the Progressive gathering was carried on in the committees. The only semblance of a conflict of opinion on the part of the delegates as to whether or not an hour's recess should be taken.

The point was not material, but, as one delegate expressed it, "we just had to fight about something to make it a regular convention." There was sharp discussion, however, in several of the committee meetings, and no little difficulty was due to Colonel Roosevelt worked with the sub-committees in charge of the platform, going over their work and vigorously helping to modify the draft which at last proved acceptable to him. The platform did not take up the negro question.

In this connection, one of the interesting seconding speeches of the day was that of F. R. Giesed of New York, a negro. Giesed declared that the negroes had faith in the new party, faith that it would do all in its power to right the wrongs of the race. "We stand by the platform," he said, "as stated by Colonel Roosevelt's letter; we stand by his speech. And as we stood by him at San Juan Hill, so we will stand by him in November and fight for victory."

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House Chicago, was among those who seconded Colonel Roosevelt and she was enthusiastically greeted. The new party formally placed itself on record as favoring equal suffrage and further recognized the woman suffrage movement by providing for four women members at large on the national committee.

Colonel Roosevelt, in his speech of acceptance said: "Mr. Chairman and men and women who in this convention represent the high and honest purpose of the people of all our country; I come forward to thank you from my heart for the honor you have conferred upon me and to say that of course I accept."

Colonel Roosevelt's name was placed in nomination by Prendergast, of New York. The colonial's speech of acceptance was short and to the point. In speaking of his running mate, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Mr. Governor Johnson we have a man whose every word is made good by the deeds that he has done. The man who as the head of a great state has practically applied in that state for the benefit of the people of that state the principles which we intend to apply throughout the union as a whole. We have nominated the only thing is fine, by George!" he exclaimed.

Roosevelt was completed before the committee recessed until 2 p. m. The final draft contained 4,000 words. It was taken to Roosevelt's rooms during the recess and when read the committee will make ready to present it to the convention.

When the convention was again called to order at 1:20 p. m., Medill McCormick for the rules committee read a compromise plank naming the party the Progressive party, but agreeing that where states adopted the National Progressive it be approved.

The new national committee of the Progressive party, which takes place of the provincial committee in charge up to this time, was named by the various state delegations. The membership of the new committee is: Joseph Thompson, Alabama; J. F. Cleveland, Arizona; H. K. Cochran, Arkansas; Chester H. Rowell, California; B. B. Lindsey, Colorado; Joseph W. Alcox, Connecticut; Louis A. Drexler, Delaware; C. M. McClure, Georgia; P. M. Smock, Idaho; Rudolph H. Leeds, Indiana; John L. Stevens, Iowa; William Allen White, Kansas; Leslie M. Combs, Kentucky; Pearl Wright, Louisiana; Albert P. Gardner, Maine; Marvew Hale, Massachusetts; C. C. Garrison, Jr., Maryland; Henry M. Wallace, Michigan; Milton D. Purdy, Minnesota; W. H. Walker, Missouri; B. F. Fridge, Mississippi; Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; Nathan Merriam, Nebraska; P. L. Flammigan, Nevada; William Saravold, New Hampshire; John Franklin Fox, New Jersey; Miguel A. Otero, New Mexico; J. N. Williamson, North Carolina; A. Y. More, North Dakota; J. J. Sullivan, Ohio; George J. Pratt, Oklahoma; H. W. Cox, Oregon; Edwin F. Tuttle, Rhode Island; R. S. Vessey, South Dakota; G. Thomas Taylor, Tennessee; Cecil A. Lyon, Texas; M. J. Henler, Utah; Thomas Lee Moore, Virginia; Charles H. Thompson, Vermont; H. F. Cochens, Wisconsin; Robert D. Carey, Wyoming; M. M. O. Dawson, West Virginia.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, a former Democrat, was early agreed upon as permanent chairman of the convention. Colonel Roosevelt endorsed the recommendation of Judge Lindsey and the plan had been enthusiastically approved by the delegates.

Later, however, Judge Lindsey called on the colonel and had a long talk with him. He said he had been suffering from asthma and did not feel physically capable of taking up the work. Under the circumstances, Colonel Roosevelt agreed to release him and a resolution recommending the former Senator Albert Beveridge of Indiana, the temporary chairman, and which it had been used in presiding officer.

When Colonel Roosevelt reached Chicago he put in a stormy two hours before he succeeded in straightening out the tangle over the contesting negro delegates from the South. After he had been welcomed by a crowd of several thousand persons and had made a speech on the street in front of his hotel, he went to his headquarters and took the bed.

Colonel Roosevelt declared that, although it might cost him votes in the northern states, he believed it was to the best interests of the party to proceed under white leadership in the South. Colonel Roosevelt contends that the Republican delegates from Southern states, in which the party has only a nominal existence, were used in the national convention last June to defeat the wishes of the party in the states which the party has expressed at the primaries.

Crowds in hotel corridors and lobbies were nearly as large and quite as noisy as those during the Republican national convention.

Hundreds of delegates and their friends, fantastically decked out with bandanna handkerchiefs and pictures of Colonel Roosevelt, marched about singing Roosevelt songs and shouting Roosevelt yells of many kinds.

The committee on platform got into a lively row soon after organization was perfected and some pretty plain words were spoken in discussing the proposed declaration of principles of the new party.

Soon after the committee met the result of a tentative platform was presented by a group of leaders in the new movement, who had met several times to discuss the matter. The times to discuss the matter. The combined ideas of Dean Lewis of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania; Dean Kirchway of the college of Columbia University; Gifford Pinchot, Chester Rowell of California, Charles McCarthy, and other progressives.

Contesting negro delegates from Florida and Mississippi were barred from the Progressive convention by the national committee. The contents were decided at a stormy executive session of the committee that lasted for three hours just before the convention met.

While the committee deliberated, the negroes gathered in the corridors outside the committee room and raised voices in indignant protest. When the decisions were made known the negro leaders declared they would demand their fight for seats before the credentials committee of the convention.

Colonel Roosevelt and his party arrived here on Tuesday in the corridors limited at 8:55 a. m. Monday. A crowd of 5,000 persons filled the station and thronged the streets just outside. Wild cheering greeted the colonel as he passed through the station and a demonstration started when he stepped onto the sidewalk to get in an automobile and proceed to the Congress hotel.

ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE

Heckled by Spectator. Colonel Roosevelt during the "confession of faith" at the convention was heckled by a spectator who interrupted with the demand: "What about the negro question?"

Instantly the convention was in an uproar, but Colonel Roosevelt silenced those of his friends who objected to the question and with the statement that no one could ask him a question he was afraid to answer, the colonel proceeded at some length to state his views on the negro question.

He declared he hoped conditions might improve in the South as Southern Progressive conventions those states might send as delegates negroes who would have the character and standing of the negro delegates from West Virginia, who he asserted, were in those respects the equal of their white associates.

In taking the stand he did to bar the negroes from the South as contesting delegates to the present convention, Colonel Roosevelt asserted he was stifling in advance a condition which he asserted would be a disaster and death of the great Republican party itself.

The report of the credentials committee, unanimously adopted, contained a resolution recognizing the constitutional and inherent right of each and every state to determine the qualifications and manner of election of its delegates to national conventions.

This resolution was regarded as giving the Southern states the right to choose delegates as they pleased. It also was interpreted as not imposing the direct primary system upon any of the states participating in the convention of the new party. In replying to the question as to the negroes, "Any respectful request for information I will always have an answer for. During my administration I never refused to answer a question which was questioned about and I shall not begin to in the Progressive party."

"There has been distributed here a letter which is addressed to Julian Harris and which I had been told that I set forth my views in detail, and I think with a clearness that will prevent any misapprehension, but I can give you by example just what I mean by the policy I am advocating.

"In Republican national conventions, hitherto, there has been a large representation of colored men, all from non-Republican states, the virtue of the Republicans in the non-Republican states taking only the form of trying to make the Democratic states be good. Do you know what I mean? The colored delegates all came from the states that have cast a Republican electoral vote, but the colored men to whom I have referred in the action participated in for colored men by the Republican party, gradually lost all his political rights.

type of man we ever ought to be nominated for the vice presidency; we have nominated a man fit at the moment to be president of the United States. Do which Gov. Johnson, when he agreed to accept his nomination replied: "There is a new era, a new fight, a new struggle that is abroad now, a political creed that this great man, Colonel Roosevelt, preached when he was in the White House; the creed of all human kind, of giving to every child in the race of life an equal start; it is the creed in the last analysis of humanity that it now the creed of one of the great national parties in the United States of America. "It is in one little particle, if in one small degree, I may lighten the burden of this great man, this brave fighter who is today doing the greatest and the bravest thing in his career, that I shall feel well repaid in this campaign. "I would rather go down to defeat with Theodore Roosevelt than to go to victory with any other presidential candidate. Chicago, Ill. — With his task as president of the convention ended, Colonel Roosevelt plunged at once into what he expects to be the hardest campaign of his career. Roosevelt met the members of the resolution committee to thank them for their work. He had spent most of the day rewriting a number of planks and it was learned that some sharp differences of opinion developed. Coliseum, Chicago. — At 1:50 p. m. Controller Prendergast, of New York, placed Roosevelt in nomination. Colonel Roosevelt had announced in advance that his speech of acceptance would be very brief, not over five minutes. Several new banners bearing the words, "Pass Prosperity Around," taken from former Senator Beveridge's keynote speech, were hung along the balcony rails in the hall. The first floor debate of the convention was precipitated when the leaders, waiting for the completion of the platform, proposed a recess of an hour. Many of the delegates objected to this plan. They wanted to go ahead with the nominating speeches. The convention, however, adjourned. A final draft of the platform containing changes suggested by Colonel Roosevelt's Confession Considered. FOR BETTER FARMING

FARM SCHOOL TEACHERS TELL BANKERS VALUE OF SCIENTIFIC TRAINING.

YIELDS ARE INCREASED.

As Result of Applied Knowledge—Many Told Speakers to Address Convention at Final Session in St. Paul.

Minneapolis.—Dr. Andrew M. Soule who is president of the Georgia college of agriculture, caused the bankers and educators assembled at the conference of committees on agricultural development and education at the Hotel Radisson to look up when he told them with the aid of fertilizers three bales of cotton, of 400 pounds each had been raised in Georgia where the average, without fertilization, had been 176 pounds, thereby causing a profit of $100 to the acre.

Dr. Soule spoke on "Agriculture in the South." He explained that he was not sufficiently familiar with soil and local conditions in the Northwest to state what the application of fertilizers might do to the farmer. He ventured the opinion that scientific applications or fertilizers would be as profitable here as they had been in Georgia. As a result of improved farming methods, Dr. Soule stated that 3,000,000 bales of cotton were produced in Georgia last year, this aggregate being 800,000 more than the average of previous years.

Dean Woods of the Minnesota agricultural college tackled the labor problem in an address on "The Co-operation Between the State and the United States Government in Agricultural Extension Work."

"The unscientific unbusinesslike, and unskilled must do constantly give place to the scientific, businesslike, skilled workman," said Dean Woods. "The great problem before us now in agriculture is the production of these skilled workmen. In agriculture this does not simply mean skilled operatives or factory hands. It means men and women trained in home making, agriculture, rural life affairs, business methods and broad citizenship. This requires the co-operation of many agencies. The work involves research investigation, experimentation, demonstration and education. We must be successful at conditions long enough. We must now make an inventory of the exact conditions existing in each locality and as far as possible, in each farm. Soil agricultural and social surveys must be made. The information gathered must be analyzed and put into shape for general use."

Mr. Woods advocated the study of rural health conditions, activity in stamping out epidemics of live stock, and in general, the spread of the extension method of educating the tillers of the soil.

Other speakers at the afternoon session were Professor Raymond Kildron, superintendent of the Inter-lake school, Rolling Prairie, Ind., Dean E. D. Sanderson of the college of agriculture of West Virginia; John T. Burns, secretary of the Interstate Commerce commission, Lehighville, Ala., and Professor L. D. Harvey of the Stout institute, Menomonee, Wis.

Efficiency, more scientific methods of farming, and a return to the days of the "Mulberry tree," formed the slogan of the convention. President Joseph Chapman Jr., related to the conference as the "most democratic organization in the United States." "It has no constitution," he said, "no by-laws, no treasury and nothing to be afraid of."

"Round the Mulberry Tree," used to be the popular song when many of us were children. It is the first time it was supposed to represent Monday—washing day. Then for Tuesday there were the words "This is the day we will start to clean." The third verse represented "baking day, and so on for the other days of the week. Now all this is changed and instead, the laundry man comes on Monday, the dry cleaner comes the next day, the baker in his turn and so on. We are too busy keeping up with "Laziness"—referring to the well known novel by Irving Batchelor.

Lightning Hits Paragon.

Minneapolis. A freakish bolt of lightning played havoc upon the residence of Rev. George T. Lawton, pastor of St. Andrew's church, in the Thunder shower, and the pastor and his family barely escaped more serious consequences than financial loss. A bolt hit the peak of a high gable on the west side of the house, tore some of the shingles off, set the house on fire, started across the street, knocked a man down who was standing on the corner, and passed through an open door, set out the fire in the house on the opposite corner belonging to Samuel E. Hopson.

It was to be Dr. Newcomb's best major operative operation.

TAWNEY DENIES THE RUMOR

WILL NOT LEAD TAFT FORCES IN NORTHWEST FIGHT.

Winona Again Praised the Administration of President. Taft.

Winona.—Ex-Congressman J. A. Tawney at home in Winona has entered a vigorous denial to the report that he will manage the Taft forces in the Northwest. He asserted that the rumor was founded entirely upon imagination and that he had not even received an invitation to command the forces for the president in the Northwest.

Mr. Tawney declared: "There is absolutely no ground for the report, except the fact that it was claimed in 1904 that I successfully conducted the speaking campaign in behalf of the election of Colonel Roosevelt. For this service I received from Mr. Roosevelt his highest praise and commendation. Being for him and working for his success, at that time, I was not then a political boss, but a self-sacrificing patriot."

Mr. Tawney said he should consider it only a great honor to be called upon to aid in the campaign of the "only candidate who stands for the representative government by law, under the administration of an administration by the mere will of the man who may be chosen as the chief executive of the nation." Mr. Tawney said, however, that he would be unable to serve if he were called upon.

"FEST" INCURS DEFICIT

St. Paul Association Will Plan Financial Campaign to Defray Loss.

St. Paul.—The Northwest Saengerfest in St. Paul July 24 to 27 created a deficit in the St. Paul Saengerfest association of $4,000. At a meeting of the board of directors at the St. Paul Commercial club the financial report was completed. A movement to raise the money among the citizens of St. Paul will be started at once.

Otto Bremer, treasurer of the St. Paul Saengerfest association, will confer with a number of prominent citizens and will lay a concrete plan for raising the money before the association next Tuesday.

Louis Betz, president, said that aside from the financial loss which was incurred at the concerts, the Saengerfest was the most successful held in the 52 years of the Northwest Saengerfest.

"Among the things praised by the visitors," said Mr. Betz, "were the hotel accommodations and the treatment extended. I believe St. Paul handled $50,000 to $100,000 through the fest."

The board of directors decided to borrow $5,250 and to pay all bills at once. Mr. Betz said every item would be cleared up in a week or ten days.

MRS. AKELEY GOES HOME

Widow Said to Have Left With Friends' Knowledge.

Los Angeles, California.—That Mrs. Clara Wood Royce Akeley, widow of the late H. C. Akeley of Minneapolis, did not leave Minneapolis surreptitiously, as reported; that her friends and legal adviser knew of her intended departure many days before she left, that she is not traveling incognito through Canada; and when she would arrive to Portland, from which point she would start to San Francisco, spending a few days visiting friends, and then return to her old home in Long Beach, was told by Mrs. O. S. Staples, mother of Mrs. Akeley, who had received a telegram from her daughter.

"Insofar as the charges that she is fleeing to California in order to fight the case of the late Akeley, I can gain half of it here, it is all both. She certainly would not adopt any such tactics. The report that a 'strong box' had been shipped to Long Beach is false. If any such shipment was made I would have been notified of it by my daughter and no such notification has been received by me."

ASK MORE FLAGMEN

Red Wing Council Wants Mayor to Take Matter Up With Railroads.

Red Wing.—The city council, at a special session, ordered the mayor to demand of the railroad companies that flagmen be placed on dangerous crossings within 24 hours in conformity with the city ordinance. The mayor was ordered to instruct the chief of police to arrest all train crews who exceed the speed limit of six miles an hour within the city limits. A resolution was passed providing for the appointment of a committee of five, three from the council and two from the citizens, by the president, to go to St. Paul to present the presence of the people of Red Wing against the railroad companies before the state rail road commissioners.

DULUTH STRIKE ENDED.

Freight Handlers on N. P. Dock Agree to Compromise.

Duluth.—The strike of the freight handlers on the Northern Pacific dock here ended. It is now the men voted to accept the recommendation of the conciliatory committee. The terms of the compromise were 25 cents an hour for men, 20 cents for women, no discrimination against the men and pay for time lost in striking ships.

KILL EACH OTHER

NORMAN HELMER, HERO OF PUPOSKY RAID, KILLED BY FINN LABORER.

WAS A BEMIDJI DEPUTY.

Empties Automatic Gun Into Prisoner, —Both Men Expire Within a Few Feet of One Another.

Bemidji.—Norman Helmer, who was a hero of the battle of Popusky in June a year ago when Martin Behan was wounded and captured while Mike Davis made his escape, was shot and mortally wounded by a railroad laborer and in turn shot and killed his assassin at Nymore, a mill suburb here.

After having received a bullet through his body near the heart, Helmer turned on the man, who shot from behind, and sent six bullets from his automatic revolver into him and the fellow dropped dead in his tracks. Helmer had been ordered by Sheriff Hazen to go to Nymore and arrest the man who previously had had a fight with Charles Smith, an Italian section hand.

Helmer's assailant, who was a Finn and whose name is unknown, had been working on an extra railroad gang at Gemmill and came to Bemidji on the morning passenger.

Later the Finn went to the Smith shack and made himself at home. When Smith returned and found the Finn there, a fight ensued in which Smith grabbed an axe and struck the Finn on the head and the back. The Finn ran down the track with Smith in pursuit and as they were passing the Minnesota and International depot, Alton Donnelly, day foreman, ran out and caught Smith, but the Finn continued down the track.

Donnelly at once telephoned to Sheriff Hazen and that officer with Game Warden Sherman S. Haley, went to Nymore, arrested Smith and brought him to Bemidji where he was placed in the county jail. Then Sheriff Hazen dispatched Deputies Helmer and James Cahill to go back and get the Finn.

Arriving at Nymore, three small boys told the deputies that the Finn had been shooting at the Smith shack and that he had said he would kill Smith. Cahill said he would go to the shack and investigate. Helmer started down the track and at a point about a quarter of a mile from the tower the Finn was discovered in the brush, carrying a rifle. "Get out of there," called Helmer.

The Finn obeyed the command and Helmer approached and took the rifle and not thinking the man had other arms, turned to walk back down the track, calling to the Finn to follow him. Instead of obeying this order the Finn whipped out a 44 calibre Colt revolver and sent a bullet through Helmer's body at a point just below the shoulders.

"I'm a goner," gasped Helmer, but at the same time he wheeled about and sent six bullets from his automatic revolver into the Finn, who fell at the first shot. The only eye witnesses of the shooting were three small boys, each about 10 years old.

HANGS BY SHOE STRING.

Duluth Laborer Despondent, Crippled and Out of Work.

Duluth.—John Peterson, a laborer, succeeded in hanging himself with a pair of shoe strings in a room where other men were sleeping, and without arousing anybody. His feet were on the floor, and the shoe strings were attached to a heavy bracket. Death was due to strangulation. He was without money and unable to work.

Conservationists are Invited.

St. Paul.—Governor Eberhart has just been asked to call a second Conservation and Agricultural Development congress to be held in Minneapolis in conjunction with the Northwest Land Products exposition in November. The Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs and the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association have extended an invitation to the government to call a congress similar to the one held in 1910 in St. Paul.

Rain Halts Harvesting.

Bellevue.—A heavy rain, no accompanied by a strong wind, occurred here, serving to set back harvesting operations. Farmers generally have about all of their grain in the stack. The prevailing opinion here is that the crop will equal if not surpass the bumper crop of three years ago in this section.

Minnesota Pythian Elects.

Denver, Colo.—Under the proposition submitted to the supreme lodge Knights of Pythias, in the twenty-ninth annual convention here, the men voted to accept the recommendation of the conciliatory committee. The terms of the compromise were 25 cents an hour for men, 20 cents for women, no discrimination against the men and pay for time lost in striking ships.

BRIEF PLATFORM OF PROGRESSIVES

Resolutions Cast in Form of a Contract With People.

ADVANCED STAND IS TAKEN

Woman Suffrage, Recall of Court Decisions and Plans for Bettering Living Conditions of Wage-Earners Are Features.

Chicago.—The platform of the Progressive party, as adopted by the convention, had been trimmed down to less than one-third of its original length as a result of the all right session. It started out as a document of 5,000 words and when it emerged it was reduced to between 2,000 and 3,000.

Political, industrial, agrarian, commercial, social, conservation and tariff reforms are touched on. Its principal plank relate to:

- Election of United States senators by popular vote.
- Provision for a short ballot.
- A stringent corrupt practices act, which shall apply to primaries as well as elections.
- Publication of campaign contributions during the campaign.
- Referendum and Recall.
- Recognition of the right of the people of a state to secure to themselves the initiative, the referendum and the recall.
- Development of methods for making it easier to get rid of incompetent judges.
- Recall of judicial decisions and to this end creation of machinery for making easier amendment of the national and state constitutions.
- All employers to file wage scales and other data as the public element in industry demands.
- Report of all deaths, injuries and diseases, due to industrial operations, to public authorities.
- Declaration in favor of a living wage.
- Establishment of minimum wage commissions by the nation and states.
- Immediate establishment of minimum wage standards for women.
- Investigation of industries by the ment with the farmer to make the farm more productive.

Strengthening of anti-trust law against monopoly and anti-social practices.

Creation of national industrial commission with full power to regulate and control all features of the great industrial corporations.

Remodeling of patent laws and prevention of use of patents as tools of monopoly.

Establishment of parcels post or zone principle.

Strengthening of the interstate commerce law, especially as regards rail roads.

Elastic Currency Reform.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

In their quest for the secret of life, the scientists of the past century, and the present century, have made a discovery in the form of a small, round, white pill, which is the secret of life. It is the secret of life, and it is the secret of life. It is the secret of life, and it is the secret of life. It is the secret of life, and it is the secret of life.

What He Thought. A Syracuse business man living in one of the suburbs decided to give up his spacious back yard to the raising of currants as a profitable side issue. So, wishing to absorb all the information he could acquire on the subject of the currant industry, he went down town one Saturday afternoon recently and returned with his arms full of books.

"Well, Teddy," inquired his enthusiastic spouse, as he dumped the volumes on the table, "did you succeed in getting what you wanted?"

"Sure, I did," he replied, proudly pointing to the books. "I bought a whole year's edition of a standard work on current literature."—Exchange.

Wanted Minute Evidence.

Orla, the celebrated doctor, being examined as an expert witness in a capital trial, was asked by the president whether he could tell what quantity of arsenic was required to kill a fly. The doctor replied:

"Certainly, M. le President. But I must know beforehand the age of the fly, its sex, its temperament, its condition and his of course, whether married or single, widow or spinster, widower or bachelor. When satisfied on these points I can answer your question."

Illiteracy in Germany.

According to the latest official reports, only three percent of 10,000 in Germany are unable to read or write, while the proportion of illiteracy in Great Britain is 150 per 10,000, as against 770 per 10,000 in the United States. These figures are based on a comparison of illiteracy among some of the leading nations which has just been made and issued for free distribution by the United States Bureau of Education.

Fail to Select Food Nature Demands to Ward Off Ailments? A Ky. lady, speaking about food, says: "I was accustomed to eating a kind of ordinary food until, for some reason, indigestion and nervous prostration set in."

"After I had run down seriously my attention was called to the necessity of some change in my diet, and I discontinued my ordinary breakfast and began using Grape-Nuts with a good quantity of rich cream."

"In a few days my condition changed in a remarkable way, and I began to have a better appetite. I had never been possessed of before, a vigor of body and a peace of mind that amazed me. It was entirely new as an experience."

"My former attacks of indigestion had been accompanied by heat flashes, and many times my condition was distressing with bilious spells of distress, rush of blood to the head and neuralgic pains in the chest."

"Since using Grape-Nuts alone for breakfast I have been free from these troubles, except at times when I have indulged in rich, greasy foods in quantity. Then I would have these troubles originated I returned to my Grape-Nuts and cream and the pain and disturbance left very quickly."

"I am now in prime health as a result of my use of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Well-being," which you can get free. Never read the above letter. A new one appears from time to time. They are all interesting and helpful.

—"Cap'n" Hickey and "Mate" Cleary, of St. Paul, accompanied by "Big Chief" Cape Cranton of this place went fishing last Saturday, and to say that they returned laden with finny fellows would be putting it mildly. By actual count they had several more than a hundred, and everyone a beauty. These three "vets" had an experience which afforded no little excitement. Messrs. Hicky and Cleary both hooked one fish at about the same time, and "Cape" says it was a pickerel that would weigh at least 10 lbs. A battle royal was waged for a few minutes when the big fellow got away. The fellows report a splendid time but were somewhat peeved because of the loss of the big fellow.

CONSIDER well before you buy vegetables. Think for a moment of how they are bought and kept. Vegetables should be fresh and moist with the appearance of having just come from where nature grew them. That is, when they are well kept—the way we keep them.

This is the reason why all our vegetables look as if they had just arrived, with all that delicious, fresh, natural flavor you like so well. And we take good care that not a moment is lost in their delivery to you. Send a trial order.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Harry Malroy is ordered to the Philippines by the Navy. He decides to elope, but wreck of his plans prevents this. He is on the train. Transcontinental train is taking on passengers. There is a first time with an Englishman and his wife. A Yankee business man has an exciting time getting to the train. "Little Jimmie" is a young boy from Reno to get a divorce, boards train reading a book. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears.

When he managed to wrench his skull free, he was ready to murder his tormentor. But as soon as he confronted the doddering and blinking toper, he was helpless. Drunken men have always been treated with great tenderness in America, and when Wellington, seeing Lathrop's white hair, exclaimed with rapture: "Why, hello, Pop! here's Pop!" the most that Lathrop could do was to tear loose those fat, groping hands, slap them like a school teacher, and push the man away.

"But that one above upset Mr. Wellington and sent him toppling down upon the pit of the Englishman's stomach."

"For Wedgewood, it was suddenly as if all the air had been removed from the world. He gulped like a fish drowning for lack of water. He was a long while getting breath enough for words, but his first words were wild demands that Mr. Wellington remove himself forthwith.

Wellington accepted the banishment with the sorrowful eyes of a dying deer, and tottered away wagging his fat head and walking like a drunken man.

"I'm a broken-hearted man, and nobody gives a—"

"At this point he came over into Mr. Lathrop's berth and was welcomed with a warm roar.

"What the devil's the matter with you?"

"I'm a broken-hearted man, that's all."

"Oh, is that all?" Lathrop snapped, vanishing behind his newspaper. The desperately melancholy seeker for a word of human kindness blurted at the blurred newspaper wall a while, then waded into a new attempt at acquaintance. Laying his hand on Lathrop's knee, he murmured: "Excuse me, Mr.—"

"From behind the newspaper came a stinging answer: "Lathrop's my name—if you want to know."

"Pleased to meet you, Mr. Lathrop."

"Lathrop!"

"Lathrop! My name's Wellington. I'm Jimmie Wellington. Ever hear of me?"

He waited with the gentle smile of a famous man; the smile froze at Lathrop's curt, "Don't think so."

He tried again: "Ever hear of well-known Chicago belle, Mrs. Jimmie Wellington?"

"Yes, I've heard of her!"

"Wellington waved his hand with modest pride. "Well, I'm Jimmie."

"This job was so inconspicuous that Wellington decided to protest: "Mister Lathrop!"

"Lathrop!"

"Never put my trust in anybody."

"Didn't you ever love a woman?"

"No!"

"Well, then, didn't you ever marry a woman?"

"Not one. I've had the measles and the mumps, but I've never had matrimony."

"Oh, lucky man," beamed Wellington. "Hang on to your luck!"

"I intend to," said Lathrop, "I was born single and I like it."

"Oh, how I envy you! You see, Mrs. Wellington—she's a queen among women, and you see that I'm a queen among men, but she has the 'stravagance of a—"

Lathrop had endured all he could endure, even from a privileged character like little Jimmy Wellington. He rose to take refuge in the smoking-room. But the very vigor of this departure only served to intensify Wellington in his feat, for he seized Lathrop's coat and hung on, through the door, down the little corridor, always explaining:

"Mrs. Wellington is a queen among women, mind you, but I can't stand my sweater any longer."

"But now I wish so. Now I wish so. I've really been quite additional to them."

"Divorces?"

"Cigars. Do stay here till I come down. Do stay to stay to stay to stay."

Miss Gattie shook her head in despair. She could understand a deep heathen dialect better than the speech of a white fortune as her fellow-country woman. Mrs. Jimmie laughed away rather pleased at the she who she addressed as "Mrs. Jimmie."

CHAPTER V.

A Queen Among Women.

Miss Anna Gattie, seated in Mrs. Jimmie's Wellington's seat, had not heard Mr. Jimmie Wellington's sketch of his wife. But she needed hardly more than a glance to satisfy herself that she and Mrs. Jimmie were as hopelessly antipathetic as only two polka women can be.

Mrs. Jimmie was accounted something of a snob in Chicago society, but perhaps the missionary was a trifle the snobbier of the two when they met.

Miss Gattie could overlook a hundred vices in a Zulu queen more easily than a few in a fellow-countrywoman. She did not like Mrs. Jimmie, and she was proud of it.

When the porter said, "I'm afraid you got this lady's seat," Miss Gattie rose to one place at the window and rose again. "Then I suppose I'll have to—"

"Oh, please don't go, there's plenty of room," Mrs. Wellington insisted. "Henceforth, you may have my seat. Miss Gattie still more, but she sank back, while the porter piled up expensive traveling-bags and hat boxes and piled them in a place to sit. But even at that Mrs. Jimmie felt called on to apologize.

POULTRY

KEEP LITTLE ONES GROWING

Young Chicks, When Allowed to Range, Are Too Often Neglected and Become Stunted.

Most chicks are well fed and cared for while their mothers are confined in coops; but when allowed to range and as a result growth is retarded and they become what is termed "stunted." It appears from statistics furnished by some dealers that but seven per cent. of spring chicks marketed weigh four pounds December 1. By this time all the spring stock of the general purpose breeds, like the Rocks, Wyandottes, Orpingtons and Reds, should average at least six pounds live weight. Plymouth Rocks have been made to weigh seven pounds by judicious feeding for growth and development well on range.

When the chicks are reared at six or eight weeks and are on range, they should be supplied in hoppers. The hoppers should be so placed or constructed that the old fowls will not rob the chicks or drive them away. A small inclosure, made of lath and covered with wire, will admit the entering or molesting the chicks while feeding. Coops of ample space should be furnished, well ventilated, but so constructed that the depreciation of night hours will not be a disadvantage to the poulterers. The coops, utensils and

GRIT BOX IN CHICKEN HOUSE

Much Trouble Can Be Saved to Poultry Raisers by Using Device Shown in Illustration.

If you want to feed your chickens grit, make a grit box like this to hang in the chicken house and the trouble will be over. Write George W. Clark of Noble, Ill., in the Farmers Mail and Breeder. The sides (1) are made of 1/2 inch boards 26 inches long on the back side and 17 inches on front side, 2 inches wide at the bottom where the string runs through and 1/2 inch wide at the top. Front of hopper (2) is 1/2 inch thick, 12 inches wide and 17 inches long. The back (3) is the same as the front except that it is 24 inches long and extends above the hopper, with two 1/2 inch holes so it can be hung up on the wall. The cover (4) is 6 inches wide and 12 inches long, hinged to the back with a small hinge in the middle. A trough (5) 12 inches deep attached to the bottom of hopper, leaves a 1-inch space below the front board for the grit to feed through.

Grit Box for Chicken House.

The best way to clean drinking fountains which cannot be reached on the inside is to use scalding hot water and a big handful of shot. Fill the fountain about a quarter full of hot water and then pour in the shot. Shake the vessel briskly so that the shot will scrape along the bottom and sides of the fountain. This will remove the scum and leave the fountain sweet and clean.

Feed the Chicks.

The best feed for chicks is a variety of ground grains, consisting of corn, wheat, kafir corn millet and hulled oats. Feeds of these and similar good mixtures are purchasable at less cost than the mixture can be prepared by the individual. Also give them charcoal and fine grit. Never feed any wet feeds.

Desire Meat for Ration.

The observing poultry raiser cannot fail to note how eagerly young chicks seize any kind of a scrap of meat. They will pull and tug and tumble over each other in their eagerness to get bit of flesh, either raw or cooked. This indicates the desire which nature has given them to supply their wants.

Prize Winner.

Surroundings should be kept scrupulously clean and sanitary and the flock kept free of vermin.

Cracked corn is one of the best grain feeds for growing poultry. When new corn begins to harden, whether sweet or field corn, it may be "chilled" or shaved from the cob for the eager chicks. On range they will secure bugs, worms and grasshoppers, and pick up grit and bone-making material.

When they have reached full height all those intended for market should be put in fattening crates and fed ground feed and skim milk for three weeks. An average of two pounds per head may be added to the weight of fowls, old and young, by this method.

Partition in Chicken Coop.

Found Especially Convenient in Fencing Fowls Toward Door at Either End of Pen.

A good retaining pen from which to catch poultry may be had by building a coop of the desired size and placing in it a sliding partition for use in forcing the fowls toward the door at either end, enabling a person to take out one at a time.

The sliding partition may be used for dividing the pen into two compartments by placing the partition in the center of the coop, says a writer in the Popular Mechanics. The pole which runs from the center of the sliding partition through a hole at one end of the coop to pull the partition back and forth may be used also as a roost when it is desired to leave the fowls in the pen for several days for fattening purposes.

Band for Pigeons.

To place a band on a pigeon, hold the hind claw back and press the front claws through the ring; draw the ring close up to the knee joint, and then, when on a level with the extremity of the hind claw, gently pull the hind claw through the ring, and the ring will be in position and will not, unless it has been placed on at too early a date, fall.

DISORDERED DIGESTION

If Neglected May Develop into a Serious Form of Stomach Trouble.

The Best Relief is to Keep the Bowels Regular and the Treatment Should Be Done When the First Symptoms Appear.

"A few years ago," says Mrs. George T. Williams, of Philadelphia, Pa., "I began to suffer from disordered digestion. It came on me gradually and I do not know what caused it. At first I noticed it in the form of a slight acidity of digestion. It finally developed into a serious form of stomach trouble and I suffered terribly for months."

"At the beginning of my sickness I had fainting spells and became unconscious. There was gas on my stomach, my appetite was very poor and what little I ate did not seem to be digested. I was sick at my stomach a great deal and had severe dizzy spells. I had lost weight when it would seem as though I was gaining up. I could not sleep and I took something to ease the pain. I was very weak and was in this condition for several months. I could not do any work and was confined to bed for two or three days at a time."

"A doctor at Duluth said I had gastric fever. He did not give me much help and I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon my mother's advice. I gave the pills a thorough trial and unlike the doctor's medicine they agreed with me. I took several boxes of the pills and was entirely cured. I think so much of the pills that I always keep them in the house."

"The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the best blood so that it can nourish and strengthen the weakened digestive system. This record of cases should merit a trial for the remedy which is guaranteed free from opiates."

HER LITTLE HAND IN HIS

Mr. Pecke's Explanation as to Reason Somewhat Displeased the Order of Romance.

Henne and Pecke were two ineffectual married men. The other day they met and, after a few casual remarks concerning the weather, the subject of women and unfortunate husbands was—naturally—discussed. To Henne, however, suddenly came thoughts of years ago, when he was a happy bachelor, and (unconscious of what Fate had in store for him) was "walking out," a girl who was, later on, destined to bring him sorrow and misery.

Pecke, seeing a "far-away" look in his companion's eyes, inquired the meaning. Henne retorted dramatically, "I was just then thinking, old fellow, of those happy days long ago—when I used to hold that girl's hand in mine for hours—when—"

But the equally unfortunate Pecke suddenly cut his companion short by exclaiming: "Why, thank a noble thing! Cheer up! Do you know, only yesterday I held my wife's hand for three solid hours."

"What!" said the startled Henne. "Yes, it's a fact!" resumed Pecke, sorrowfully; "and I declare if I'd let loose she'd have killed me!"—London Tit-Bits.

Electricity on the Farm

ELECTRICITY for lighting and power is rapidly advancing in the favor of the American farmer. Whether he be one of those adventurous individuals who stake their all on the prospect of developing a paying farm in the arid districts of the west and southwest, or in the swamp lands of the south, or whether he be of the class that is turning its attention to the great rewards of truck and dairy farming in the east, the modern farmer has caught the scientific spirit of the time and is getting practical results from his realization of the fact that methods must accommodate themselves to changing conditions.

At the annual convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers held recently in Boston, the electrical farm was considered in a paper by Putnam A. Bates. He discussed in some detail the work now being done by farmers who are developing the arid districts of the west, showing that irrigation and electricity are the two factors that promise most for the future where natural conditions are for the most part against the farmer. Irrigation came first and then the advantages of electric power pumping were realized. The so-called electrical farm has been in existence for a dozen years or more, but it is only recently that there has been an organized effort to disseminate knowledge on the practical use of electricity in agriculture.

Referring to the southwest and to the electric farm as he found it there, Mr. Bates says: "In some sections of that wonderfully fertile country, well protected by the high mountain ranges, practically every farm is an electric farm. This is to say, the buildings are lighted by electricity and many of the laborious operations are accomplished by the use of electric power. These really were our first electric farms, at the period of their establishment corresponding with the development of the water powers of the nearby mountains.

"On the majority of these farms irrigation is practiced and quite naturally electricity was first made use of for pumping purposes. Then under the influence of progressive local central station operators, it was almost universally adopted for light.

"I can recall seeing electric lights and the electric flatiron in use in the farm home on the Pacific coast eleven years ago. The people were content to enjoy the luxuries which these improvements made possible to them, but did not seem to regard their conditions as unusual. Their farms were in fact electric farms and their industries, dependent upon the products of the land, were as they are now, practically all operated by electricity.

"A brief summary of the work accomplished shows that constant work has been completed on twenty-nine projects, involving an expenditure of $65,470,000. In the eight years of actual work there have been dug 7,000 miles of canals and more than nineteen miles of tunnels, mostly excavated through mountains. The total excavation of rock and earth amounts to 77,200,000 cubic yards. There have been built 570 miles of roads, 1,700 miles of telephones, and there are now in operation 275 miles of transmission lines, over which surplus power and light are furnished to several cities and towns.

"The small farms and villages grouped about these developments give the effect of suburban rather than rural conditions. The cheap power developed from the great dams or from numerous drops in the main, is now utilized for the operation of trolley lines, which reach out into the rural districts, bringing the farmer in closer touch with the city. It runs numerous industrial plants for storing, handling and manufacturing the raw products of the farm. The same power is used for lighting and heating in the towns, and for cooking in the homes. On several of the projects the farmers are applying electric power to many farm houses electric power is utilized for many domestic purposes.

"More than a million dollars has been invested in the development of power on the Salt River project, of which the farmers have voluntarily raised $800,000. The sale of the power up to the beginning of the present year amounted to $144,000, with the plant only partially constructed. This revenue will contribute materially toward lessening the cost of operating the irrigation system.

"On a large milk farm at Clipping, Iowa, electricity is used for lighting, clipping cows, operating a bottling machine, spinning on tin roller, rolling on caps or seals on bottles, cutting ensilage, running a sawmill, pumping from a deep well, grinding feed and elevating to a commercial plant. The fact that this is a commercial plant turning out daily from 3,500 to 4,000 quarts of milk, where an exceptionally high standard of quality is rigidly maintained, is evidence that there must be advantages in using electricity in such an installation.

"The total acreage of the farm is nearly 1,200, and at present about 70 per cent. is under cultivation. Electricity is generated by steam power and distributed at 220 volts. The generating equipment at present consists of one 25-kilowatt direct connected unit, steam boiler, etc.

"This is not a large generating plant, to be sure, but it insures cleanliness of lighting equipment and safety from fire risk in the barns, bunk houses and outbuildings. It also makes possible a convenient source of power in any part of the farms or outbuildings, which of necessity are widely distributed, and cost of generating the current, including interest and depreciation charges, is probably not over four cents a kilowatt hour.

"Scientific milk production is more and more coming into prominence and the necessity for perfect cleanliness, immediate cooling and keeping the milk at a low temperature compels such dairy farmers to adopt devices that will be most helpful in obtaining these results. There is a milk dairy in Morristown, N. J., where the walls, ceilings and floors of all rooms in which the milk is handled are washed down daily, both morning and evening—the electric lighting fixtures being entirely water tight.

"Dairying and stock raising are usually followed where land needs upbuilding in fertility, and in either the silo is a necessity, cutting up the succulent forage crops and storing them in the silo for later use being the accepted method of preparing the feed. To do this the farmer must have power, but a ten horsepower electric motor with its capacity for momentary overload will do the work that would stall a gasoline engine rated at twelve to fifteen horsepower.

"The farmer can easily recognize the advantage of the electric motor for this operation and when once adopted he soon wants to use the current for grinding feed, baling hay and other purposes.

"On the dairy farm, however, electricity offers other opportunities, as it is the most convenient form of energy for operating an artificial refrigeration plant, the cream separator, churn and butter worker.

"Cream separators, while often turned by hand on small dairy farms, are more frequently driven mechanically where considerable cream is handled. Except in the very large sizes, they require not more than a one-fifth horsepower motor and they are in operation only for a comparatively short time. The operating cost, therefore, is practically negligible."

There are in use many designs of electric milkers, especially on dairy farms where there is a great deal of milking to be done and hand milkers are not available in sufficient numbers. Likewise electricity is now being used extensively for cooling and aerating and the ice-making electrical device is not unknown to our

Expect Big Sale of Red Cross Sealers.

The campaign for selling Red Cross Sealers this year will be carried on in practically every state and territory in the United States, and even in Porto Rico, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands. No less than 100,000 volunteer agents, including department, drug and other kinds of stores, mission picture theaters, individuals, and others, will be engaged in the work. Before the sale is completed, it is expected that at least 100,000,000 seals will have been printed and distributed besides several million posters, display cards and other forms of advertising literature.

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE

To Burn New Home

Former Fire Chief of New York Plans Unique Demonstration.

Former Fire Chief Edward F. Croker of New York city is planning a unique yet highly impressive object lesson on the prevention of fires in dwellings. He recently purchased a ground for a new house in the suburbs, and now he announces that when his $30,000 home is completed he will demonstrate his fire-proof qualities by attempting to burn it. His grim experience was the chief of the metropolis in seeing so many lives sacrificed each year to the demon of flames fed on flimsy materials, both in buildings and their furnishings, is back of his commendable plan to effectually prove that there is a safer and safer way.

"The house will be completely furnished at the time," explains Mr. Croker. "With rugs, draperies and furniture of artistic patterns. But everything in the place will be proof against fire. We shall fill each room with wood shavings and cotton waste on which kerosene has been poured. We have such confidence in the material employed in the house itself and in the fire-proofing qualities of the furniture that we are sure they will come out of the ordeal unscathed."

"The building itself will be constructed of fire-proof block, which can be worked up into most artistic effects. During its manufacture it was subjected to excessive heat. The exterior will be in the Italian style—the first story in white, the second in red, with a red tile roof.

"Not a particle of wood will be used anywhere, inside or out. Doors, window frames, sashes and trim will be of fire-proof material. The floor will be of a substance that looks like wood, but which is chemically impregnated with resistant materials. The furniture will be of fireproof substances, on which fire has absolutely no effect. In parts the Edison compact furniture will be used.

"The sanitation will be perfect. The corners of every room will be rounded, there will be a vacuum cleaning system, and so the dwelling will be insect and rat proof. Closets will be fitted like innovation trunks, with all the fixtures in stamped metal, and lined with tile. The different appliances in them will work on ball bearing rollers. Kitchen sinks and drain boards will be of aluminum.

"There is now no fireproof house in existence, and more lives are lost through the burning of private homes than through fires in factories or other buildings."
