JOS. PROCHASKA,

T. J. SNYDER PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY.

Last week we were called upon to chronicle the death of Thomas J. Snyder, which occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Ruffcorn, Friday morning, Aug. 23rd at about 9:30. Death resulted from injuries received in a fall Thursday afternoon. The accident which caused his death occurred at the Griggs-Cooper Co. plant in this place, of which Mr. Snyder was foreman. We learned that Mr. Snyder was stepping from the platform to the wagon of a customer and that he slipped and fell, striking the edge of the box with his side. He sustained internal injuries in this fall which caused his sudden demise.

The funeral services were held from the M. E. church Monday afternoon, Rev. A. San Parish, Fargo, Pa., and H. H. Parish, of the local church officiating. The remains were taken to North Branch on the limited where the last sad rites were performed.

Thomas J. Snyder was born in Omro, Wis., in 1849, and in 1883 married Clara Meade. They lived in Minneapolis until 1889, at which time he moved to Austin, Minn. After making Austin his home for two years, Mr. Snyder moved to North Branch, where he lived until three years ago when he came to Pine City.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Geo. Ruffcorn of this place, a sister at Green Bay, Wis., and several nieces, nephews and cousins. Those from out of town in attendance at the funeral were L. F. Snyder, of Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Ruffcorn and David Ruffcorn, of Linwood.

In the few years Mr. Snyder has lived in this place, he has made a multitude of warm friends. He was a kind and loving father, always working for the good of those about him.

He was conscientious in every respect, and took as much interest in a small responsibility as one other than himself would in a large one. Since living here he has taken an active part in church affairs, and as president of the Adult Bible Class of the M. E. church has been instrumental in placing that class on its present working basis. He was held in high esteem by his class members especially and by all who were fortunate enough to have made his acquaintance. He will be missed not only in church circles, but about town, as his smiling countenance and pleasant word won many friends for him.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish through the columns of this paper to thank the many kind neighbors and friends who so willingly assisted us in the sickness and death of our beloved father.

MR. AND MRS. GEO. RUFFCORN

M. E. CHURCH LOCALS.

After a vacation from our regular church services we are glad to again announce that we will have our regular services next Sunday.

We have had a good vacation, and now good people let us take hold of the work in every department with new energy and make the coming season one of the very best in our history.

PINE CITY GETS BACK AT RUSH CITY

On Sunday afternoon the Rush City base ball team came up flushed with the victory of the week before, determined to still further humiliate the Barringtons of this place, but they went home thoroughly convinced that the Pine City team have honestly earned the right to be the champions of this part of the state, as they have now defeated every team they have played with this season but Grantaburg, Wis., and they are more than anxious to have another trial with them.

This game was to one sided to be interesting as the visitors were outplayed in every department of the game, and straightened out Sommers' curves so that in the seventh inning he and Marshall, the colored paid catcher, from St. Paul, exchanged places, and in the two innings he allowed but one safe hit, that being a two bagger by F. Hurley.

The home team played a good snappy, fast article of ball from start to finish and if it had not been for two errors by the center fielder it would have been a shut out. The visitors could do nothing with the curves spitballs and speed of Cunningham, the 17 year old twirler of the local team. He has pitched 10 games for the Barringtons this season, and has struck out 124 batsmen. He has pitched winning ball in every game, and if his team mates had done their part they would have won all 10 instead of losing 2.

Up to the present writing the Mgr. of the Barringtons, Dr. K. W. Knapp, has been unable to secure a game for Sunday.

The following is the box score, game by innings, and the summary:

Mothers meetings will be continued for some time and we hope to see more mothers present.

THIRD DAY OF CELEBRATION OF INDIAN WAR OF 1862 A SUCCESS.

INTERESTING FEATURES

Aeroplanes Flights and Ball Games—Governor Addresses Huge Gathering at Park.

New Ulm.—With Governor A. O. Eberhart and his staff figuring as the central figures of the day and with aeroplanes flights a baseball game and band concerts, the third day of the anniversary of the Indian massacre, Governor Eberhart spoke, following and historical address of much the same nature by Mayor L. A. Fritsche.

The governor and his staff took part in the pageant and then went to German park, a beautiful site and a band concert preceded the address.

In the governor's party, which arrived early in the morning from St. Paul, were Governor Eberhart, Mrs. Eberhart, General and Mrs. Fred B. Wood, and Mrs. C. H. Brown, Colonel and Mrs. A. H. Poehler, Colonel and Mrs. M. Nyman, Colonel David Walbridge, Colonel George S. Kottend, Colonel Gustave Carlson and Major and Mrs. E. Prior.

The day's doings really began with the arrival of the executive party. After breakfast came the parade. There were regular soldiers and some of the state militia, bands galore, the band consisting of the band of New Ulm and the surrounding country, a battery of artillery, hundreds of junior pioneers and foremost in the development of the state of Minnesota, which has made possible the present celebration.

What Floats Represented.

The floats in the order of their progression were as follows: "Indians," "Early Settlers," "Landing of First Boat," "Jeanette," "Roberts," "Medicine Man," "Minnehaha and Hiawatha," "Home of Savages," "Old Windmill," "Indian Woodland Scenery," and "Peace and Prosperity."

STATE BUYS FARM

Pays $50,000 for Site of Wisconsin Branch of School of Agriculture.

Wausau.—The sale of the E. F. Ward farm to the University of Wisconsin for the site of the Wisconsin branch of the school of agriculture has just been completed. The property consists of 245.5 acres of fine land, mostly all under cultivation, with a large barn, a house and several smaller buildings. The price paid was $50,000, the highest ever paid for a Wisconsin farm.

NEW ACT NOT TO BE TESTED.

Manitowish.—The proposed test of the copyright provision set by Joseph Pillsbury, director of the school board, will not be had, for the reason that he has decided not to sue for nothing. The board of education therefore, declared his opponent, L. T. Johnson, declared Mr. Pillsbury has no need to create the election on the ground that an automobile was used to carry voters to the polls.

GERMAN DAY SUCCESS

15,000 Visitors Crowded New Ulm and Crowned Parade.

New Ulm.—German day Sunday proved a fitting climax to a week's celebration of the centennial of the arrival of the first German immigrants to the prairie of the Indian massacre. The date was set apart many months ago for the German-American Central society of Minnesota and the Junior Pioneers of New Ulm.

Early in the day thousands of people began pouring into the city. Toward noon the Minneapolis & St. Louis and North Western railroads ran day excursion trains to this place. Each was packed, swelling the crowd to at least 15,000. It was the largest number ever brought here on a Sunday.

At 1 p. m. a grand parade, composed of four divisions marched through the principal streets at Hermann Heights, where the program was carried out. The first division, the Port Stelling troops the parade was similar to the one of Wednesday. In addition to six Hermann warriors garbed in the ancient uniform of the Teutons, the division included the Port Stelling troops the parade was similar to the one of Wednesday.

The principal address was made by Albert Fritsche of this city. Hanna von Grunow, the German consul in St. Paul, spoke of efforts which should be made to perpetuate friendly relations between Germany and the United States. Edgar Prochuk, the Austrian consul, spoke in a similar vein, dwelling upon the close relations between Germany and Austria-Hungary.

DRAINAGE AN ISSUE.

Mud Lake Settlers Will Insist Upon Amendments to Present Laws.

Holt.—The Commercial club elected officers for the ensuing year, as follows: P. A. Rieberg, president; S. K. Kolden, vice president; Charles W. Latta, secretary; J. Tacke, treasurer; Axel Nelson, Chris. A. Yven and A. L. Carlson, directors.

Owing to widespread dissatisfaction over drainage conditions in the Mud Lake district, a meeting was held at the club to the settlers in any legitimate action they may see fit to take to secure the prompt and efficient fulfillment of the drainage contracts and remedy the present inconveniences and hardships.

It is intimated that any candidate who will not pledge himself to support proposed amendments to the drainage laws will meet with the organized opposition of the settlers in the Mud Lake district, which will be strong enough to defeat any of them.

CLUBS TO HOLD RALLY

Interstate Park Will Have Largest Meeting of Season on Aug. 27.

Taylor Falls.—The Interstate park will have its largest meeting of the season on Tuesday, Aug. 27, when the Chicago farmers and merchants association, as well as the Interstate Farmers Club, will celebrate. A special train will be run from Rush City to Taylor Falls, with one car for each of the Interstate Farmers Club.

James E. Swenson of Lake Crystal Believed to Have Been Inmate.

Lake Crystal.—The funeral of James E. Swenson, a real estate dealer, who shot and killed himself, took place here. He fell down on a rig in his office, placed a pillow under his head and fired a bullet through his heart. He left four letters, in which he stated that he was despondent due to the failure of his plans. One letter was addressed to his wife, one to his daughter, one to his mother and one to his friends in general. He had not been considered of sound mind for some time, and was recently discharged from the St. Peter asylum.

New Railroad Planned.

Remond.—Prospect and when Minnesota is to have a new railroad, cutting through Hubbard, Clearwater and Detroit counties, to connect with the Canadian lines according to the plans of Newman Erb as discovered by farmers to the Mallard district of Hubbard county, who are talking of building and surveying for the proposed line and International extension. Mr. Erb has the road to connect the station on the ground that an automobile was used to carry voters to the polls.

HELD FOR INFANTICIDE

Baby of Less Than Day Old Is Brutally Slain.

Owatonna.—Certainly one of the most revolting crimes in this county came to light when Anton Murik was arrested on a charge of infanticide, being accused of killing his own child of less than one day old by beating out its brains.

It was born shortly after midnight. Mark was intoxicated at the time as he had been for some days, according to neighbors, but was making no trouble.

A physician left the house at 1 o'clock, leaving a neighbor woman in charge as nurse. About daylight, according to the story told by the nurse, Mark came into the house and drove her out of doors. Then he sent the two older boys, aged 14 and 16, out and finally drove the third and youngest boy away.

This boy crept around and peered through a window and was a witness to the tragedy. According to his story his father seized the newborn infant by the feet, held it in the air and beat its head with his fist, while the mother lay terrified and helpless. The lad called his brothers, Coroner Adair, Sheriff Leehy and others went at once to the scene. They found the baby with its head horribly crushed and the father lying in a drunken stupor. Mark is a man 60 years old.

MAY CHANGE LAW

Judge Orr Believes Legislation Not in Harmony With Criminal Facts.

St. Paul.—The Minnesota State Legislature may be asked at its next session to change the law defining grand larceny. It is believed by judges in the district court to be out of harmony with the criminal rules of common law by the act of 1912. Judge Orr believes the law should be modified.

At present any theft from a building is classed as grand larceny, regardless of the value of the stolen article. When the culprit carries out a deliberate intent to steal it applies, but when a person, entering a store to buy something, a combination of the actual purchase, is tempted by something he sees, it does not believe he is guilty of grand larceny.

Inasmuch as crime is based largely on intent, I believe such a person should be guilty of petty larceny, as though the article had been stolen elsewhere than within a building.

TOWER ENTERTAINS

St. Louis County Club Members Enjoy a Day's Outing.

Tower.—On invitation of the local commercial club the St. Louis County Club held a special outing here. A large delegation arrived from Duluth and Mesaba range points, a number arriving also by automobiles. The delegates assembled at 1 p. m. at the tower for a brief business session. They were invited to take a trip on Lake Vermillion and the crowd proceeded to the lake side docks where they embarked on the steamers Mary, Olive and Erma D. for a tour of the lakes.

Bois 100 enjoyed the hospitality of the local club. Bouillon and roast mutton were served in a pavilion at Woodman's point. The party returned to Tower about 9 p. m.

CLOTHES OF BATHERS

All Burn When Camp is Destroyed by Fire.

Albert Lea.—Harold Remore, Glenn Thompson and Roy Whitcomb, all of Northwood, were placed in an embarrassing position while camping on the banks of the Cedar river, when their camp was destroyed by a fire. The fire started by a very stich of clothing burned while they were bathing.

After wandering around, shivering and being taken by mosquitoes, hoping in vain for someone to come to their rescue one of them, dressed in Garden Eden clothes, went to the nearest assistance.

W. L. Thompson and Arthur Gardner were the first to arrive at the camp before dark. The origin of the fire which destroyed their camp is a mystery.

Sparrow Sets Nests Ablass. An English sparrow was the cause of three houses catching fire at Lawrenceburg, Ind., recently, and had it not been for the prompt work of the neighbors and firemen the houses would have been destroyed. The sparrow was building a nest under the eaves of the home of Mrs. Mary Webber, and she placed up a long cotton string from a pile of rubbish that had just been burned. With the burning string in its beak, the sparrow flew to the roof of Mrs. Sophia Shaffer's house, then to Otto McGirr's house and then to the roof of Emanuel West's home. A fire started in the shingles of each building. Each was extinguished by neighbors before much damage was done.

Everybody in Hard Luck. Suddenly he stepped up to a gentleman, who was waiting for the train, and tapping him lightly on the shoulder, said: "Excuse me, but did you drop a five-pound note?" at the same time holding out in his hand the article.

The gentleman questioned gazed a moment at the note, assumed an anxious look, made a hasty search of his pockets, and said: "Why, so I did, and I hadn't missed it," holding out an eager hand.

The elderly hunter took the name and address of the loser and, putting the note in his pocket, turned away. "Well," said the other, "do you want it all as a reward?"

"Oh, I did not find one," remarked the benevolent one with another sigh; "but it struck me that it is a big place like London there must be a place of money lost, and upon inquiry I found that you are the one hundred and thirty-first man who lost a five-pound note this morning."—London Answers.

I hereby announce myself to the voters of Pine County as a candidate for the office of County Superintendent of Schools. I hold a First Grade State Certificate, have had considerable training at the State Normal and have taught in the rural and semi-graded schools of Pine County for fourteen years. I feel that my close association (as a teacher) with the people in different parts of the county has given me an insight into the conditions and needs of the rural schools and I believe that the principal need at the present time is for agricultural training and a thorough mastery in co-operation of rural and high schools, and if elected will endeavor to give you a good administration and to help you to make each dollar spent bring a dollar's worth of good results.

Yours for Education,
EDITH M. ROBINSON.

(Amount paid $5.00 by H. G. Otis.)

I hereby announce to the voters of Pine County my candidacy for re-election to the office of County Superintendent of Schools.

Having received the larger part of my education in the public schools of Pine County and having had four years experience as a teacher together with nearly two years experience as your County Superintendent of Schools, I feel able to meet the responsibility which is placed upon me through this office.

School problems are changing rapidly, as do the conditions which surround us. It has been with the educational interests of the boys and girls in view, that I have tried to keep in touch with the latest methods and progressive ideas in school work. Should I be nominated and re-elected, I promise to do all in my power to further the interests of education in Pine County.

I wish to thank you for your past support. May I not ask for your kind support at the coming primaries which are to be held September 17th.

I remain cheerfully at your service,
H. G. OTIS.

If the road overseers would use their light graders and split-log drags they would save money for their towns and for the farmers in transferring their produce to the markets.

POLITICAL affairs in this county are assuming a real exciting aspect and an interesting campaign may be looked forward to. The race for County Superintendency of Schools, with seven candidates in the field, promises to be one of special interest. A brother newspaper man, C. W. Colby of the Sandstone Courier, is among those who have filed. One lady, Miss Robinson, is in the field and is making a determined effort to land the office. H. G. Otis, the present Superintendent, has filed for re-election and W. F. Buselmeyer, a local real estate man has filed as a candidate for the office of Clerk of Court.

BOOST THE COUNTY FAIR.

Secretary Harte, of the Fair Association, wants $500.00 to finish paying for the new building on the fair ground. There should be enough progressive business men and farmers, who have not as yet subscribed for stock in the Fair Association to take enough to liquidate this small indebtedness.

The secretary can not be expected to go out and beg for this. It is up to the people of the county to come forward of their own accord and take this stock. It is a good safe investment and every citizen of the county should have shares in the association. It is your fair and you should see to it that the management is not crippled financially.

During the past year the association has purchased 19 acres of land along the river south of the fair grounds, for which they paid the exceedingly small sum of only $20 per acre, and now own 37 acres, which can be made one of the finest and most convenient fair grounds in the state. The above acquisition of land at such a low price, was the result of the labors of secretary Harte, and it is also due to his untiring efforts that one of the best county exhibition buildings in the state now graces the grounds.

Come forward and subscribe for stock before the fair, and have every thing squared up by that time. It's up to you.

The Stag can be used with or without a pole. Horses control the plow just as well without a pole, because the two furrow-wheels are connected by a rod and then a rod extends to the clevis. SYNOPSIS.

LIET. HARRY MALORY is ordered to the Philippines. He and Adelaide Newton decide to elope, but are vexed by the presence of their minister on the way to the train. Transcontinental train is taken on a passenger. Factor has a lively time as a Yankee business man. The elopers find the train at Little Jimmie's. Malory is in a mauling condition. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for the Philippines. Later names Mrs. Jimmy Whitcomb. Her husband is a member of Malory's regiment. Malory and Mrs. Whitcomb decide to elope and Temple reveals evidence of calling.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Mixed Pickle.

Mrs. Whitcomb had almost blushed when she had murmured to Lieutenant Hudson:

"I should think the young couple could have preferred a stateroom."

And Mrs. Hudson had flushed a little as she explained:

"Yes, of course. We tried to get it, but it was gone."

It was during the excitement over the decoration of the bridal section, that the stateroom-tenants slipped in knobed.

First came a fluttering woman whose youthful beauty had a certain hue of experience, saddening and astringent. The porter brought her in from the station platform, led her to the stateroom's carriage door and passed in with her luggage. But she lingered without, a Peri at the gate of Paradise. When the porter returned to her, she shivered and hesitated, and then demanded:

"Oh, porter, are you sure there's nobody else in there?"

The porter chuckled, but humored her panic.

"I ain't seen nobody. Shall I look under the seats?"

To his dismay, she nodded her head violently. He rolled his eyes in wonderment, but returned to the stateroom, made a pretense of examination, and came back with a face full of reassurance.

"No'm, they's nobody here. Take a mighty small-size burrito to squeeze under a half-crown."

"Oh! no, nobody there."

"The gap was so equivocal that he was bold to ask:

"Is you pleased or disappointed?"

The mysterious young woman was too much agitated to rebuke the impertinence. She merely sighed: "Oh, porter, I'm so anxious."

"I'm not—now," he muttered, for the handed him a coin.

"Porter, have you seen anybody on board that looks suspicious?"

"Everybody looks suspicious to me, Missy. But what was you expecting—special?"

"Oh, porter, have you seen anybody that looks like a detective, in disguise?"

"Well, they's one man looks a little like a detective as a balloon, but I don't believe he's no detective, no more."

"Well, if you see anybody that looks like a detective and he asks for Mrs. Fudnick—"

"Mrs. Fudnick?"

"Mrs. Fudnick? You tell him I'm not on board." And she gave him another coin.

"Fasium," said the porter, lingering willingly on this fertile soil. "I'll tell him Mrs. Fudnick done give her word she want on board."

"Fae!—and if a woman should ask you."

"What kind of a woman?"

"The hideous kind that men call handsome."

"Oh, ain't they hideous, them handsome women?"

"Well, if such a woman asks for Mrs. Fudnick—she's my husband's first wife—but of course that don't interest you."

"No'n—yes'm."

"If she comes—tell her—tell her—oh, what shall we tell her?"

The porter rubbed his thick skull. "Lemme see—we might say you'll tell you what'll tell her—you'll tell you look the train for New York; and if she runs mighty fast she can't just about catch it."

"Fae, fae!" And she rewarded his genius with another coin. "And, porter?" He had not budged. "Fae, fae, if a very handsome man with luscious eyes and a soulful smile asks for—"

"I'll throw him off the train!"

"Oh, no—no!—that's my husband's—my present husband. You may let him in. Now is it all perfectly clear, porter?"

"Oh, fasium, clear as clear." Thus guaranteed she entered the stateroom, leaving the porter alone with his problem. He tried to work it out in a self-saddled mumble: "Lemme see!

"I fear present husband's absent wife sits on board disguised as a handsome hideous woman I'm to throw him off of the train and let her—him—oh, yes, yes, yes, you may rely on me."

He bowed and held out his hand. But she was gone. He shut his eyes on the case.

He had barely left the little space before the stateroom when a handsome man with luscious eyes, but without any smile at all, came sliding along the corridor and tapped cautiously on the door. Silence alone answered him at first, then when he had rapped again, he heard a muffled:

"Go away, I'm not in!"

He put his lips close and softly called: "Whitt!"

"At this moment the door opened a trifle, but when he tried to enter, a hand thrust him back and a voice again warned him off. "You mustn't come in."

"But I'm your husband."

"That's just why you mustn't come in."

The door opened a little wider to give him a view of a down-cast beauty moaning:

"Oh, Arthur, I'm so afraid."

"Afraid?" he snorted. "With your husband here?"

"That's the trouble, Arthur. What if your former wife should find us together?"

"But she and I are divorced."

"In some states, yes—but other states don't acknowledge the divorce. That former wife of yours is a fiend to pursue us this way."

"But she's not your former husband. He's pursuing us, too. My divorce was as good as yours, my dear."

"Yes, and no better."

The angels looking on might have judged from the ready temper of the newly married couple, yes—but other states don't acknowledge the divorce. That former wife of yours is a fiend to pursue us this way."

our masterpiece to an infernal taxi-cab's break-down."

"Out of the anguish of her loneliness, out of this complaint—"

"If you had really smiled me, you'd have had no taxi-cab."

"Oh, how can you say that! I had the horse broué and the minister waiting."

"Who's waiting yet?"

"And the minister's the ring."

He held out it of his waistcoat pocket and held it before her as a golden smile.

"A lot of good it does now," said Marjorie. "You won't even wait over till the next train."

"I've told you a thousand times, my love," he protested, desperately. "If I don't catch the transport, I'll be court-martialed. If this train is late, I'm lost. Don't you really love me, you'd come along with me."

Her very eyes gazed at this astounding proposal.

"Good-bye, Marjorie, you know it's impossible."

Like a sort of benevolent Satan, he lit the ground for his abjection.

"You'll leave me, then, to spend three months without you—out among those Manila women?"

She shook her head in terror at this vision. "It would be too horrible for words to have you marry one of those mahogany stems."

He held out the apple. "Better come along, then."

"But how can it? We're not married."

He answered airily: "Oh, I'm sure there's a minister on board."

"But it would be too awful to be married with all the passengers gawking. No, I couldn't face it. Good-bye, honey."

She turned away, but he caught her arm. "Don't you love me?"

"To distraction. I'll wait for you, too."

"Three years is a long wait."

"That'll wait, if you will."

With such devotion he could not tamper. It was too beautiful to risk or endanger or besmirch with any danger of scandal. He gave up his fantastic project and gathered her in to his arms, crowded her into his very soul, as he vowed: "I'll wait for you forever and ever and ever."

Her arms swept around his neck, and she gave herself up as an exile from happiness, a prisoner of a far-off love.

"Good-bye, my husband-to-be."

"Good-bye, my wife-that-was-to-be and will-be."

"Good-bye."

"Good-bye."

"Yes, you must."

"One last kiss."

"One more—one long last kiss."

And there, entwined in each other's arms, with lips welded and eyelids clinched, they clung together, forgetting everything past, future or present. No, I couldn't face it. Good-bye, honey."

They did not hear the conductor crying his "All Aboard!" down the length of the train. They did not hear the far-off knell of the bell. They did not hear the porters banging the Rev. Walter Temple. He did not feel the floor sliding out from them.

And so the porter found them, engaged in an embrace, swaying and swaying and no more aware of the incoming rush of the train than were other passengers on the earth-express are aware of its speed through the ether-rotas on its ancient schedule.

The porter stood with his boxstep in his hand, and blinked and wondered. And they did not even know they were observed.

Celebrated Armorer.

In olden times the armorer's work was not of a rough and ready description, but generally bore the signs of highly wrought workmanship. The various pieces of a suit fit into their position to a nicety, there are no rough edges, and as a rule very little that is merely careless decorative work.

Fashion and reputation have left their mark on the armor of each period, and like most other industries it had its distinguished masters. The name of Jacob Topf is for example, still famous in England, and among a family of armorers that are supposed to have worked for Philip II. of Spain, are celebrated as their own country.

PAUL REVERE'S WILD RIDE REPEATED

REVERE

RULED BY AMBITION

ROOSEVELT WOULD NOT ALLOW REPUBLICANS TO NAME COMMITTEE CANDIDATE.

STATEMENT OF GOV. HADLEY

Colonel Showed That He Was More Eager to Promote His Personal Aims Than to Safeguard Party Unity and Help Progressivism.

That was an important statement which Governor Hadley of Missouri made in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, recently, when he said in effect that the proposition was made to Colonel Roosevelt that both he and President Taft should withdraw in favor of some third man who might be satisfactory as a candidate to both wings of the Republican party. Governor Hadley himself was the man most likely to be chosen in such an event, and it appears that Colonel Roosevelt was so apprehensive of this result that he sent one of his lieutenants to the governor with the request that he put an end to the discussion of his name.

As the story goes, Governor Hadley went at once to the colonel to know whether his lieutenant spoke by authority. He had no difficulty in finding out. Colonel Roosevelt told him flatly that the people would not be satisfied with anybody but himself as a nominee and he could not give his consent to the consideration of any other name.

It was the knowledge of these facts which led the editor of the Topopka (Kan.) Capital, who was present in Chicago during the convention, and whose paper is even now strongly supporting Roosevelt, to write an editorial in which he outlined substantially the above statement and declared pointedly and with emphasis that Colonel Roosevelt was responsible for the failure of the convention to nominate a Progressive and therefore for the split in the party which followed.

This is only another way of saying that Colonel Roosevelt was more concerned with the promotion of his own personal ambition than he was with the advancement of progressive principles or with the success and perpetuity of the Republican party. No one will challenge the assertion that the Republican party of the United States and its splendid history, its prestige and its nation-wide organization, would be a better instrument for the advancement of any set of principles to which it might be committed than a new party even with Colonel Roosevelt as its leader. Nobody either can challenge the right of such men as Governor Hadley or Senator Cummins or Senator Borah to be classified as progressive Republicans.

If Colonel Roosevelt had been as much interested in the advancement of progressive principles as he claims to be, if he would rather have been right man to president, he would have stepped aside in favor of one of these men or someone in complete harmony with them would have been nominated as the candidate of the Republican party and the platform would have been written upon which the candidate could stand, so that the cause of progressivism would have had the whole force and weight and momentum of every friend of the city government behind it. As a matter of fact, the cause of real progress does have behind it the Turning Back the Clock.

The defense of the Democratic attempt to get rid of the merit system in government administration is a pitiful thing. The plan of the Clark-Underwood organization to commit congress to seven-year clearances of the government service is advanced as a measure of efficiency. Every student of the merit system here and abroad every friend of the city government knows this is lunacy, that the measure would throw the service back into politics and prevent men and women from going into the service of the United States as a life vocation worthy of careful preparation and devotion.

Mr. Champ Clark's preference for the spoils system, which with most of his real convictions dates back a generation, is known. Also it is apparent to observers that whenever Democracy gets into the neighborhood of office its devotion to civil service reform rapidly recedes into the vacuum.

FARMER'S IMPROVEMENT

CONSTRUCTION OF CORN CRIB

Modern Farmer Now Uses Elevator for Cribbing Crop—Section of Building is Shown.

Modern machinery and methods have brought about great changes in harvesting the corn crop and the farmer now uses a corn elevator for cribbing his corn. In response to several inquiries as for the benefits those who intend to build new cribs to be filled with an elevator we publish herewith a sectional drawing showing how the crib should be built. The timbers should be placed and the various sizes of staves, says the Iowa Homestead. The drawing shows a section of a 24-foot crib with a ten-foot driveway in the center and a grain bin over the drive. The length may be any size from 25 to 250 feet long. In building one of these cribs it must be remembered that the roof must have an angle of at least 45 degrees, that is, the slope of the same must be what is called half-pitch, meaning that the distance from the peak down to the plate must be half the width of the building. This steep roof is necessary to accommodate the corn conveyor and distributing spout which is run directly from the rafters. For this reason care must be used not to have any cross ties higher up on the rafters than shown in the drawing. The studs are two by six inches set 24 inches on centers. The braces A, B and C are all two by six inches placed four feet on centers. The roof is made of four-eighths inches in diameter should be placed across the building ten feet apart, as shown. The guide boards are for distributing the corn evenly to the crib, but should not be nailed in place until the conveyor is installed, as in the distributing spouts in the various machines, the spots is so arranged that the center of the crib and the driveway may be extended up above the plate line as much as three feet, increasing the capacity of the grain bin just that much. The roof may be covered with any material, but a good composition roof is recommended.

MATERIALS FOR GOOD ROADS

Exact Proportions of Sand and Clay Cannot Be Given Definitely Because of Variations.

The exact proportions of sand and clay for making the best sand-clay road cannot be stated, as the proportions vary with the character of the sand, according to its sharpness, percentage of fine material and size of grains. Approximately, there is in a sand-clay road about eighty per cent sand and twenty per cent clay. One simple means of determining the theoretical amount of pure clay that should be added to any sand that is to be used in the construction of a sand-clay road is to fill a glass tumbler brimful with the sand that is to be used and then fill a similar tumbler with water; pour the water carefully onto the sand until the water comes flush with the surface, which will mean that all the voids between the grains of sand are now filled with water. The amount of water that has been poured into the tumbler containing the sand will represent the proportion of volume of clay that is necessary to add to that particular sand to fill all the voids with clay.

Having determined the source of supply of the best material for making a sand-clay road, the next question is the mixing of the materials, and this varies with the character of the material. Also it is apparent upon which clay is to be added or clay upon which sand is to be added. It will be found that it is much easier to make a sand-clay road where the subsoil is clay.

Orphanages in Turkey.
There are 22 orphanages in the Turkish empire, conducted by Americans, enrolling 3,000 inmates. In connection with these orphanages an industrial work has sprung up which gives employment to over 10,000 people in addition to the orphans. The work is largely done by the widows and orphans and includes rug and sockmaking, various forms of embroidery, and other domestic work. The product of these institutions find a market abroad.

HANDS CRACKED AND BLEED

St. Clair, Mo.—"My trouble began about fifteen years ago. It was what some claimed eczema. The form the disease worked under was a breaking out with watery blisters on my hands which would then dry and scale, and then would follow the trouble of cracking and bleeding, also itching and burning. My hands were disfigured at the time, and sore. The trouble was very annoying, and disturbed my sleep. This last February it was ever so much worse than before. I did not do all my work as usual because of the condition of my hands. I could not put them in water without making them worse. I tried a lot of home remedies, also salves and ointments, but all failed. I was told that a cure for the trouble, but I did not obtain a cure. At last I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample. I thought they would cure, so I sent for a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and a box of Cuticura Soap. A doctor advised me to keep ahead with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they cured me completely. No trace of the trouble remains." (Signed) Mrs. Mary Taylor, Mar. 23, 1912.

An officer of the French colonial army brought a letter from the chief of a group of missionaries in the southern islands of the Pacific not long ago, which winds up as follows: "I regret to tell you that our little company can do little against the fanaticism of these poor wretches. Moreover, famine is ravaging the country, for the harvest has been destroyed. Therefore the dispatch of more missionaries has become urgent."—La Peite Republicque.

Barber Shops in China.
Since the Chinese revolution a great many Chinese have had their hair cut off, and this has led to the opening of a large number of barber shops throughout the far east wherever Chinese are located, says an exchange. Several Chinese business men of Singapore, anticipating this, imported a large number of American barber chairs, and they are now unable to get supplies quickly enough. It has also been learned that the Chinese insist on having American hair clippers, and refuse all other makes offered them.
It would seem that American manufacturers of barbers' supplies should experience a large increase in their Oriental trade.

THE WAY OUT
Change of Food Brought Success and Happiness.

An ambitious but delicate girl, after failing to go through school on account of nervousness and hysteria, found in Grape-Nuts the only thing that seemed to build her up and furnish her the peace of health.
"From infancy," she says, "I have not been strong. Being ambitious to learn at any cost I finally got to the High School, but soon had to abandon my studies on account of nervous prostration and hysteria."
"My food did not agree with me, I grew thin and despondent. I could not enjoy the simplest social affairs. I suffered constantly from nervousness in spite of all sorts of medicines."
"This wretched condition continued until I was twenty-five, when I became interested in the letters of those who had cases like mine and who were getting well by eating Grape-Nuts."
"I had little faith but procured a box and after the first dish I experienced a peculiar satisfied feeling that I had never gained from any ordinary food. I slept and rested better that night and in a few days began to grow stronger."
"I had a new feeling and peace and restfulness. In a few weeks, to my great joy, the headaches and nervousness left me and life became bright and hopeful. I resumed my studies and later taught ten months with ease—of course using Grape-Nuts every day. It is now five years since I began to use Grape-Nuts, I am the mistress of a happy home, and the old weakness has never returned." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

PEARL CULTURE IN JAPAN

AMONG the many wonders of the orient there is none more interesting than cultured pearls.
These gems of the sea should not be confounded with the so-called artificial pearl, for they are true pearls in every sense of the word. The pearl-bearing oyster is made to produce pearls by a scientific process in four years.
In early times people had all kinds of ridiculous and extravagant ideas about the way in which pearls were produced. Even so learned a man as Pliny believed that they were drops of dew, which, falling into the gaping mouth of the mollusc, were transformed by the animal's power, into pearls.
From Ariet's song in "Tempest":
"Full fathom five thy father lies,
His bones are here by these green waves;
These are pearls that were his eyes;
Nothing of him doth fade,
But doth suffer the sea-change
Into something rich and strange."
It is well known, however, that the pearl is not a drop of dew, but a secretion of the mollusc's body, which, when it is taken out of the shell it is flat on one side, making what is known as a "pearl button". The attached pearls are not always of inferior quality but are often highly valued. The world-renowned "Southern Cross," which was valued at $10,000 by the company to which it belonged, was found at Cossack, Western Australia, attached to the central part of the inside of a shell.
When once the nature of pearls was understood, it was not natural that many experiments were made to produce the precious objects at will. In fact, much attention has been paid to this very problem by scientific men, and they are still at work upon it.
It is well known that Linnaeus, the father of the natural history, claimed that pearls could be produced by piercing holes in the shell of an oyster with a fine sugar, making a small wound, and afterwards "parking" the oysters for many years. But his suggestions do not seem to have been clearly understood and no one has been able to pursue his method successfully. The Chinese, as is well known, have been especially successful in raising pearls by inserting grains of clay between the shell and the thin outer membrane which covers the soft body of the freshwater mussel, but the best of these are of very inferior quality, and are valuable merely as curios.
At the International Fisheries exhibition, held in Berlin in 1870, some pearls were shown which had been cultivated in Germany from looking at these one could see that the plain raft might be covered with nacreous substance, but the result was of little value. Mr. Saville Kent, late naturalist to the government of Queensland and that of Western Australia, undertook the same experiment with the large pearl-oyster, and a gentleman on Thursday Island tried inserting a shot through a hole in the shell.
The most important of such experiments are probably those of Dr. Louis Boutan of Paris, who succeeded some seven years ago in producing pearls in the abalone shell. The public was naturally greatly interested, and the newspapers in Europe and America applauded his success and called it a great discovery.
It may perhaps come as a surprise to many that before Dr. Boutan's attempts, a very extensive and successful system of pearl-oyster cultivation had been carried on in Japan by a Mr. Mikimoto, and "culture pearls" had not only been produced, but placed regularly on the market. Even at the present day, it may be claimed, that life is the only pearl-oyster farm in the world which undertakes the extensive cultivation of the precious mollusc and produces "culture pearls" on a commercial scale. An account of the successful enterprise may, therefore, be not wholly devoid of interest.
At the T'P'rd National industrial exhibition, held in Tokyo in 1890, Mr. Mikimoto exhibited in the aquarium of fisheries section some living specimens of the pearl-oyster. This made him acquainted with Dr. Mitsukur, professor of zoology at the Imperial university, who first suggested to him the possibility of cultivating pearls by the method of making them produce pearls by the method of proper culture. Being deeply interested in the subject, Mikimoto went afterwards to the marine "Gakki" where the professor was teaching, and Sometimes two pearls will be found joined together by the nacreous substance, thus forming what is known as a "twin pearl".

All of these kinds of pearls are called false pearls, because they are not always of inferior quality but are often highly valued. The world-renowned "Southern Cross," which was valued at $10,000 by the company to which it belonged, was found at Cossack, Western Australia, attached to the central part of the inside of a shell.

WOMEN DIVERS AT WORK

learned from him many facts concerning pearl formation and the natural history of the pearl oyster.
Mikimoto's home was Toha in the province of Shima, one of the localities in Japan famous for large yields of pearls. Directly after his return there he began experimenting on his newly acquired idea. At first it seemed almost like pursuing a fleeting shadow and his friends laughed at him for "throwing his money into the sea." He, however, persevered, trying all sort of experiments and changing his methods from time to time, relying on suggestions and advice from Prof. Mitsukur and Dr. Kishinoue. At the end of four years of hard work, disappointment and renewed efforts, some results were obtained which seemed to promise success. In 1896 things had so far progressed that the experimental stage was a thing of the past and the enterprise was put on a commercial basis. A patent for the new method was obtained from the government, and the cultivation of the pearl-oyster on an extensive scale was begun at the Island of Takohajima, in the Bay of Ago. At the end of 1899 the first, though small, crop of pearls was harvested and placed on the market.
The methods practised at the pearl-oyster farm are as follows:
Every year during the months of July and August, small pieces of rock and stone are placed in a spot where the larvae of the pearl-oyster have been found to be most abundant. Soon small oyster-pearls are found attached to them. As this takes place in the shallow waters of not more than a few fathoms, they would die from cold, if left there during the winter, so together with the rocks to which they are anchored they are removed to deeper waters and carefully laid out in the beds prepared for them. Here they lie until they reach their third year, when they are taken out of the sea, and undergo an operation which leads to pearl formation. This consists chiefly in introducing into them the small pearls or round pieces of nacre which are to serve as the nuclei of pearls. The shells are then put back into the sea and left undisturbed for at least four years more. At the end of that time, they are taken out, and it is found that the animal has invested the inserted nucleus with many layers of nacre and has in fact produced a pearl.
A large part of the submarine work, such as the transplanting of the oysters, spreading them out on the beds, taking them out of the sea or putting them back there is done by women divers. This is universal in the Ago Bay and many other parts of Japan. There has been a belief from time immemorial that women can work better and longer under water than men, the women divers of 1890 are often mentioned in classic literature.
These women divers are trained from a very early age, and they seem to have inherited through many generations a special aptitude for the water life. It is said that they are able to save enough money by the time they are of age to pay for their wedding expenses.
The oysters-secured while under water are dropped into a wooden bucket of moderate size, which is connected to the diver by means of a rope attached to her waist. The average diver occupies rather less than a minute. In that time several mollusks being cropped.
A day's work consists of from four to six hours, in which time 500 oysters can easily be gathered at a depth of two to six fathoms. On coming up and preparing for another plunge, the diver takes a deep and quick breath which produces a shuddering rattling sound. When 50 or more are working together this peculiar noise is almost incessant.
As a considerable part of their life is spent in the sea, the prolonged exposure to water and sunlight makes their skins very dark and their hair reddish.
The water is fairly cold and it is necessary for the women divers to go ashore several times during their work to warm themselves by a fire.
They are very healthy, but the severe nature of their occupation causes them to age prematurely. Their skin becomes rough and coarse and their hair bright red.

I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.
