M'CORMICK & BRONTE TO BE HERE DEC. 6TH.

The first number of the season's lecture course, which is to be held at Stekl's Hall on the evening of Friday, December 6th, should be of especial interest to young and old alike. It will greatly interest the children, and every child in this vicinity should make a special effort to attend.

The coming entertainment will be given by McCormick and Bronte. Bronte is a dog, and is one of the most wonderful dogs that ever lived. This wonderful dog counts, adds, subtracts, divides, spells and does so many mysterious things that it is almost as dangerous to try to explain this phenomena as it is to explain your own feelings when you drop into a spiritualistic meeting in a strange city and have much of your own family history paraded before you by a stranger whom you have never seen before.

You are afraid to say it is a fake and yet you can't believe it.

Bronte, the present wonderful dog, whose acting has made thousands of school children love and appreciate animals, has probably entertained more school children than any entertainer in America. She has entertained almost two thousand audiences of school children alone. Bronte held forth at the Majestic, in Chicago, and was not in vaudeville twenty-four hours until she was advertised as the most wonderful dog in the world. She held the stage twenty minutes during each performance and in vaudeville that is "going some."

Perhaps there is a reason why Bronte has appeared at thirty-five Chautauques the past summer. Ernest Thompson-Seton said: "Bronte is the best object lesson for kindness to animals now before the American public." She has never had a whipping and, in fact, a cross-work almost breaks her kind, loving and sensitive heart.

You should make a special effort to attend this number of the course and then "Fix the Habit," and attend all of the rest.

Youthful Robbers.

Friday morning S. L. Mottle, constable of the Village of Willow River, came down with Frank and Mike Jansky, two Polish boys of about the ages of 11 and 13, who robbed the post office at Willow River on Thursday night.

The youthful robbers succeeded in getting a few pennies and quite a number of postage stamps.

They were lodged in the jail at this place, where they remained until Saturday morning when Sheriff Hawley took them to the State Reform School at Red Wing, where they were sent by the justice of the peace of Willow River.

This is the place for these two youngsters as it is a horrible thing to think of when two boys the age of these to commence a criminal career. At this school they will be learned a trade and given an education, and if they behave themselves they will come out good men, where if they were left to grow up as they have commenced it would not be long before they would end in the penitentiary.

BRANDED AS FALSE.

The article published in the Pioneer week before last stating that T. E. Ryan had circulated a paper and did electioneering just outside the polls at the voting precinct in the Township of Pokagama, while acting in the capacity of constable. Mr. Ryan was in the office this week and brands the statement as false, and says if anyone can prove that he electioneered or circulated a paper on election day, he will give them $1,000.00.

CHRISTMAS SOCIAL.

The Christmas social held at the M. E. church last Friday evening was well attended, those present report having had a fine time. The evening was spent in games and in social intercourse. The following musical program was given and thoroughly enjoyed by all in attendance.

Piano Solo, Mrs. H. H. Parish.
Recitation, Miss Ruth Norton.
Piano Solo, Miss Gladys Ingelston.
Vocal Solo, Miss Lucile Gottry.
Piano Solo, Miss Maida Wells.
Vocal Solo, Mr. Clifford Southerland.

Piano Solo, Miss Anna Chapin.
Vocal Solo, Miss Hattie Wandel.
Each one taking part in the program acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner.

At the close of the program a grand march was formed and each one dropped what they had to give in a stocking suspended from the corner of the piano and marched to the Sunday school room, where a luncheon was served, consisting of sandwiches, pickles, cake and coffee.

At the close the stocking was emptied and the contents counted, where it was found that it contained $23.17; quite a neat little sum to furnish a Christmas for the scholars of the Sunday school.

This was a unique way of collecting funds for Christmas, one in which each and every one could take part, and have a good time. Taking it all in all the social was a decided success.

Mrs. Parish read a splendid paper on the "Moral Conditions of Our Colleges."

The next temperance meeting will, it is expected, be a silver medal contest, for which several of our young people will compete.

Mrs. Fisher also gave a fine paper on the "White Slave Traffic," a fearful condition in our land, which should claim the attention of all parents.

The local union met with Mrs. Boyle Tuesday afternoon. A good number were in attendance in spite of the fact that it was so near Thanksgiving Day. We hope to have more of the mothers attend these meetings and gladly note an increased interest. Come with us.

U. S. Would Help

State Build Roads.

The United States government has offered to spend $10,000 toward the building of a model highway in Minnesota, provided the state spends $20,000 and designates a suitable piece of road. It is to be a rural highway about fifty miles long, and with rural free delivery along its entire length. The request reached the office of Governor A. O. Eberhart November 29th and is made jointly by Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock and by James Wilson, secretary of agriculture. They ask the state to designate the road, government engineers to supervise its construction. Governor Eberhart is out of the state, but will take the matter up with the state highway commission upon his return.

MODERN WOODMEN'S RATES EXCESSIVE.

The following is taken from the Minneapolis Journal of November 22nd, and will be read with interest by a number of our subscribers who are members of the Modern Woodmen.

Almost all the members of the order in this part of the state, and we might say all over the jurisdiction are against the raise of rates as formulated by the Head Camp that met in Chicago last January.

The rates as given by the above Head Camp were to go into effect the first day of next January, but as we understand the following the Head Camp is up against the real thing, as they are perpetually enjoined from putting the new schedule of rates into effect.

The Woodmen of this place and vicinity to show their appreciation of the action of the Sangamon district court, will give one of the biggest blowouts ever held in this place Saturday evening Dec. 13th, to which everyone is invited.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 22—Holding the new rates adopted by the head camp of the Modern Woodmen at the meeting in Chicago in January, 1912, to be burdensome to the members of the society and excessive and unnecessary, Judge Robert Shirley of the Sangamon circuit court today granted a perpetual injunction restraining the head camp from putting the rates into effect, and also restraining the officers from declaring delinquent any member refusing to pay the new rates.

The injunction is sweeping, as the organization is an Illinois corporation, having subordinate organizations called camps, all over the United States and Canada.

The petition for an injunction was filed by four members of the organization, P. E. Taintor, James M. Brown, James H. Wallace and Frank J. Koch, all of this city, last August.

The hearing, which continued for two weeks, started the first week of September. Arguments for the complainants were made by E. S. Smith of this city, who has been in charge of the case for the insurgents, and G. W. Miller of Chicago, representing the head camp.

A GENUINE SERVICE.

"I believe," says an old subscriber, "that every time The Youth's Companion enters a home it does that home a genuine service." That describes the purpose of the publishers exactly. The paper is not filled with mischievous or idle thoughts to fill an idle hour. It provides healthy pastime, recreation that builds up. It is to the minds of eager and impressionable young people what sound athletics are to their bodies.

At a cost of less than four cents a week The Youth's Companion opens the door to a company of the most distinguished men and women in America and Europe. Whether they are revealing the latest discoveries in science, or describing great industrial achievements, or telling of their wanderings in strange corners of the world, or feeding the imagination with rare stories, they are giving Companion readers the best of themselves.

Seven serials at least will be published by The Companion in 1913, and nearly 200 other complete stories, in addition to some 50 special contributions, and a treasure-box of sketches, anecdotes, expert advice as to athletic sports, ideas for handy devices round the house, and so forth—long hours of companionship with the wise, the adventurous and the entertaining. Announcement for 1913 will be sent with sample copies of the paper to any address on request.

Every new subscriber who sends $2.00 for the fifty-two weekly issues of 1913 will receive as a gift the Companion Window Transparency and Calendar for 1913, the most exquisite novelty ever offered to Companion readers; also, all the issues of the Companion for the remaining weeks of 1912, free.

After going several miles they wounded a couple of fine deer, which they followed until they got near the St. Croix road about eight miles east of here, when they brought them down. P. Davis, who resides nine miles west of this place on the Brunswick road. Billy, as he is familiarly called was a drummer boy during the civil war and is sixty-eight years of age. He has played the snare drum in the bands of St. Paul until three years ago. He said "when a man got to be sixty-five he thought it was time to quit and give the younger ones a chance." Billy has changed but very little since he left here so many years ago.

He informed us that he has leased the Sandstone Tribune for six months with the option of purchasing it, and will endeavor to make it a paper for schools, agriculture and general news. He says that he will strive to make it a paper for the whole county. The local papers, he asserts, do not have the space to devote to school matters that he thinks the schools of the county deserve, and has leased this paper for six months as an experiment. Rob is well qualified to get up a paper like he has in mind, and we wish him success in this new field. Howard Follson, who has been running the paper the past year and a-half, will go to Taylor's Falls and resurrect the old Taylor's Falls Journal, which suspended about six months ago. Here's luck, Howard.

M. E. CHURCH LOCALS.
BY REV. PARISH

Remember our services are for you next Sunday.

The Ladies Aid have done some creditable work in redecorating and fixing on the inside of the church.

The Christmas social held last Friday evening at the church was a great success.

MONTICELLO RESTORED

MONTICELLO

GIVE me a house on the mountain top and beneath the forest trees." So said Thomas Jefferson, patriot and statesman, who wrote the Declaration of Independence of the United States long before he had come into the possession of the estate that is set high on the hills near the town of Charlottesville, Va. And he made his wish come true, for when the estate crowned by the hill known as Monticello, "the little mountain," came to him by inheritance, Jefferson brought into being a mansion that was a century ahead of its time in conveniences and ingenious contrivances and from the designs of which the great architects of today fashion the country homes of wealthy Americans. Monticello is indeed a permanent and magnificent monument to the creative genius of the great statesman.

This historic spot has been restored by the present owner, Congressman Jefferson M. Levy of New York, in whose family it has now been for more than eighty years. It is now in nearly the same condition it was in Jefferson's day. This is the result of years of search for this original furniture, and a visit to this great mansion is replete with memories of him who fashioned it and brought for its decoration the works of the greatest artisans of France.

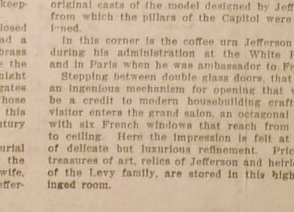

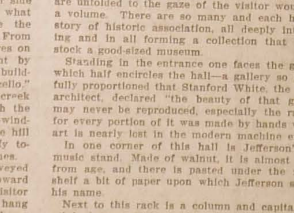

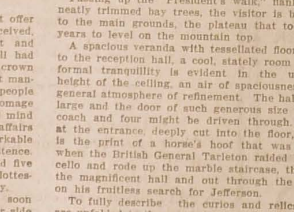

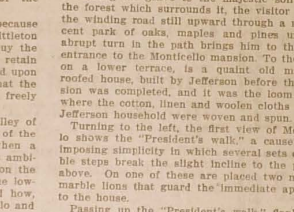

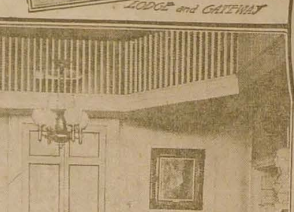

Timely interest attaches to Monticello because of the active efforts of Mrs. Maria W. Littleton and others to prevail upon congress to buy the estate, while Mr. Levy is determined to retain it, both because of the loving care bestowed upon the property by his family and the fact that the public enjoys admission to it as fully and freely as though it were owned by the nation.

Down at Shadwell, which lies in the valley of the Rivanna river, two miles from the foot of the little mountain, where Jefferson lived when a lad, they still relate the story of the boy's ambition to some day build a beautiful home on the top of the mountain that overshadowed the lowland wherein was his paternal home, and how, finally, he came into possession of Monticello and realized one of his boyish dreams.

The great dome of the mountain did not offer sufficient room for the mansion he had conceived, and ten years of labor with hand, heart and hands elapsed before the crest of the hill had been leveled. Seven years more it took to crown this man-made plateau with the magnificent mansion to which presidents, princes and the people have made common pilgrimage to pay homage to the memory of the man whose wonderful mind and tireless energy found time from the affairs of state to evolve one of the most remarkable specimens of Colonial architecture in existence.

Monticello lies about two miles south and five miles west of the tiny little town of Charlottesville, and it is upgrate every inch of the way. Through a typical Virginia town you soon strike into a road barren of houses on either side and you learn from this the first lesson of what the present owner has done to preserve the sanctity of the Jefferson home and acre. From close to the town boundary hundreds of acres on both sides of the road have been bought by Mr. Levy, "to prevent," as he puts it, "the building of any shacks on the approach to Monticello."

Soon you drop to the level of a rippling creek that skirts the base of Monticello to reach the Rivanna river, and then begins the climb—winding, turning, twisting around the face of the hill under overhanging trees growing so closely together that the sky is visible only in patches. For three miles this road, which was surveyed and laid out by Jefferson, rises steeply toward Monticello until a sharp turn brings the visitor to the wrought-iron entrance gates that hang between massive brick pillars at the gatekeeper's lodge.

This salon is, indeed, a room of wonders. Modeled after the state apartment of Louis XIV, it differs from that only in color scheme, for Jefferson chose red for the basic tone in preference to the original green.

Much has been written of the simplicity of Jefferson. To many Monticello signifies only a fine example of Colonial American roominess and comfort. In fact, Jefferson furnished his mansion not with crude manufactures of the Colonies, but fitted his home with all the ornate richness of the finest palaces of continental Europe. And, as in the decorating and furnishing of the building, he was equally exacting in his care for the creature comfort of his guests.

Most of the things that were in Jefferson's study have been lost track of, but Mr. Levy still has a few, and on one corner of the floor there remain thousands of ink stains made by Jefferson's slipping off the superfluous ink from his quill.

Of the original articles there remain a flat writing table made by Jefferson, upon which it is said he made the first draft of the Declaration of Independence.

When Jefferson died his relatives and heirs decided they could not afford the great expense of keeping open the house as it then stood. Much of the furniture and furnishings were distributed by gift or purchase. Mrs. Martha Jefferson Randolph, daughter of the statesman and executrix of his will, decided to continue her home at Edge Hill, the Randolph estate, and was anxious to dispose of Monticello. The place was sold to James T. Barclay, a missionary, who held it but a short time and then offered it for sale.

Commodore Uriah Phillips Levy, then a lieutenant in the navy, drove from New York city to Monticello to inspect the property and concluded a deal by which he acquired from Barclay the Jefferson mansion and 218 acres of the original estate. It was run down from lack of attention and there was little or the original inside furnishings left. Sentimental reasons prompted the commodore to get back the things that had belonged to the man who built the wonderful house, and for years he sought to regain the articles which had been scattered about the country.

Then came the war of the states, and the commodore, continuing his allegiance to the Union, was declared a "alien enemy" and the contents of the estate was confiscated and the contents advertised for sale at public auction. Again the mansion was partly stripped of its furnishings, and many pieces of furniture were sold at the confiscation sale to families residing in the neighborhood. Some of the articles were returned after the war.

After the war, however, when legal adjustment of the estate of Commodore Levy was had and Jefferson M. Levy inherited the property, Mr. Levy continued the labors of the commodore in restoring the home as Jefferson had planned and left it.

A majority of the articles were recovered, but those pieces that had been taken from the country were beyond reach and few of them were traced. With this as his nucleus, however, Jefferson M. Levy made thorough search of family records and documents, as well as getting information from living friends and relatives who had known the home when Jefferson lived, and from that list he has since attempted to get in his many trips about recent duplicates of the works of art, furniture and ornaments originally brought from France by Jefferson. In this Mr. Levy has succeeded with considerable accuracy, fitting up Monticello as exactly as it was originally that Thomas Jefferson might step into the home by spirit and find it familiar with objects intimate with his earthly residence.

Mrs. Albert Glasow, Pine City, Minn., says: "For ten years my kidneys were badly disordered and nothing brought relief until I used Doan's Kidney Pills, which were procured at Breckridge's Pharmacy. I was unable to do any stooping or hard work, owing to a severe backache and I always felt weak and worn out. The least quick movement caused sharp twinges through me and I had head-aches and dizzy spells. HOLDEN LEAVES IOWA COLLEGE

The "Corn Man" Joins I H C Service Bureau, TO HELP PUSH WORK FORWARD

Co-Operation Movement for Larger Crops, Better Roads, More Prosperous People and a Better Nation.

This marks the beginning of a new and greater business service. It is a co-operative movement for larger crops, better roads, happier homes, more prosperous people, and a richer and better nation. That is to say, the I H C Service Bureau proposes to help do for all the states and for Canada what Holden has done for Iowa.

After considering many offers, and after an investigation of the company and its works, Professor Perry G. Holden has entered the service of the I H C Service Bureau at Chicago. Professor Holden is known wherever real agriculture is known. His whole life is one of service. He originated the idea of carrying information direct to farmers. He is the father of the demonstration train, short school courses, the corn show, county demstration farms, and the National Corn Exposition. As head of the extension department of Iowa State College of Agriculture he did a work which, Senator Cummins says, up to the present time has increased the wealth of Iowa $20,000,000. The object of the I H C Service Bureau is the promotion of agricultural education, and a cooperation which will tend to raise the whole tone of commercial, industrial and farm life. Since agriculture is the basis of prosperity and progress, naturally farm problems claim first attention. The aim is higher efficiency, both on and off the farm.

To do a big work a big organization is necessary. Not only the business, but the perfection of the International organization as well applied to Professor Holden. The big general agencies, scattered all over the United States and Canada, the salesman travelers and expert machine men; the 40,000 dealers—every one, so far as possible, is to be made an apostle of better farming.

For years the International Harvester Company has realized the importance of service. It has spent millions of dollars in the perfection of labor-saving machines, and now the company is going in for direct service—direct to the farmers, and direct to the farmers' children, that the men and women of tomorrow may be more capable and so more prosperous than the men and women of today.

It is no longer a theory that if we are to get the most out of life we must raise more per acre. "Intensive farming" is in the air. It is the battle cry of peace and plenty, but rising prices are the result of mind, not muscle. We must know. And not only that, we must know we know, and know why we know. We must increase our yields from hard, rich cultivation from wrong, and the whys and wherefores of climates, soils, fruits, cattle, horses, poultry, and so forth.

For these things the bureau was established. But the bureau and Professor Holden see more than an average increase in a few bushels; they see a time coming when farmers will raise twice as many bushels of corn, wheat and oats to the acre, and this time of all other kinds of farm products. They see a time when farmers and farmers' wives and their children will think more and work less. Every bushel raised means just that much profit, and the profits of the farm promote commerce and industry.

After a period of good work in Michigan agricultural college, better work at Illinois, and a great work at Iowa, Professor Holden now enters upon a world's work. While in future Professor Holden will designate Chicago as home, he says he is not leaving Iowa—he is merely carrying Iowa to the rest of the world. The Pioneer for that next job.
