OUR FATHER CALLED HOME.

Anthony S. Gottry, age 86 years called to his last resting place Wednesday morning July 9th 1913

Wednesday morning July 9th 1913 the spirit of Anthony S. Gottry left this world for its permanent home in that land where none grow old.

Anthony S. Gottry was born at Hagenaugh a city then in France but which with other parts of Loraine was ceded to Germany at the close of the Franco-Prussian war, on the 11th day of June 1827 and was at the time of his death 86 years and 23 days of age. With his fathers family he came to America in 1830 and settled in New York state. His boyhood days were spent in Utica N. Y., where his mother died. The father returned to his old home in France leaving the children then living in America. November 22 1857 he was married at Stevens Point Wisconsin to Elizabeth Kilgour of Hamilton Ontario. To them four children were born, W. J. Gottry of this place, Mrs. O. O. Penney of Amherst Wis., Ed. C. Gottry of Reedsburg Wis., and W. P. Gottry of this place all of whom survive him. The family home was at Stevens Point until nineteen years ago when, the children having left the parental roof, the father and mother came to Pine City and have since made this place their home, and here "Grandpa Gottry" with his wife, who preceded him to the spirit world on the 23rd of May 1913, have made many friends.

More than fifty years ago with his wife Mr. Gottry united with the Methodist Episcopal church, and until the close of their life they remained consistent members of the church. For many years Mr. Gottry was the class leader of the church at Stevens Point and upon his removal to this city the church society presented him with a gold headed cane which he carried with much pleasure up to the time of his death. He was always active in church work and kept his heart young by association with the children in the Sunday School. Even after the snows of many winters had whitened his hair he taught in the infant department of the Sunday School and after his increasing age forced him to retire from work as a teacher in the Sunday School, he kept in touch with the work and his heart was ever with the boys and girls. After the death of his wife he went to Eau Claire Wis., with a nephew, Sam Thomas, and remained there until June 27th when he returned to this place. It had been his intention to go to Reedsburg and spend some time with the family of his son, but he felt that the journey would be too long and after his return he left the house but once. Those who know him best feel certain that he felt the shades of the evening of life gathering about him and that he wished to get back to the old home so that he might pass away where his life mate had so recently preceded him. Though those about him knew that he was nearing the end of his journey and were conscious of the fact that he suffered considerable pain no word of complaint crossed his lips and he was about the house until the evening of July 5th.

The funeral was held from the residence of his son W. P. Gottry Friday afternoon July 11th 1913 and his remains laid to rest beside the new-made grave of his beloved wife in Birchwood cemetery there to await the glorious resurrection. His pastor, who had been one of his "boys" in the Sunday School, in conducting the service used the text selected and marked in the family Bible as "my funeral text" by the deceased: "But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave; for he shall receive me. Selah!" Psalm 49:16 family of eight children and Father was the last of a family of nine to join the parents on the other side.

It is not death when the aged pass away; the ripened leaves must fall. Father had spent a long and useful life. The joys and the sorrows of the days that had passed had mellowed and sweetened his nature so that as the sun of the late autumn shed its rays upon the evening of his life it glorified his old age. He rejoiced in the pleasures of those about him; he loved young people, his "children" were all the boys and girls he knew and his grandchildren were ever dear to him and in their presence he was happy and never content when separated from them. To have others happy and to bear his own afflictions without complaint afforded him pleasure. To those of us who can look back over many years of his life there is added to the self sacrifice of a kind and loving Father the consciousness that in all his years he has sought to lead a life consistent with the Christianity he professed. He has gone to a well earned reward leaving to his friends and loved ones the assurance of his faith in and his resignation to the will of his Maker. He felt that all things were in the hands of God and had selected as a hymn to be used at his funeral the beautiful poem which had long been a favorite hymn and which was an expression of his Christian faith and resignation.

My Jesus, as thou wilt,
O may thy will be mine
Into thy hand of love
I would my rest resign.
Through sorrow or through joy,
Conduct me as thine own,
And help me still to say,
"My Lord, thy will be done."

My Jesus, as thou wilt,
If needy here and poor,
Give me thy people's bread,
Their portion rich and sure;
The means of thy Word
Let my soul feed upon;
And if all else should fail,
By Thy will, thy will be done.

My Jesus, as thou wilt,
Though men through many a day,
Let not my star of hope
Grow dim or disappear,
Since thou on earth hast wept
And sorrowed oft alone,
I'll trust and wait with thee,
My Lord, thy will be done.

My Jesus, as thou wilt,
All shall be well for me,
Each standing future scene
I shall I trust with thee,
Bright to my home above,
I trust mainly on,
And sing in life or death,
"My Lord, thy will be done."

14 DEAD; 150 INJURED IN ELECTRIC WRECK

OFFICIALS BLAME CONDUCTOR OF ONE TRAIN AND MOTOR-MAN OF OTHER.

REVISED LIST OF FATALITIES

All Victims Except Two Identified—Coroner's Inquest Begins at Chicago—Several Injured May Die.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16.—Fourteen persons are dead as the result of the wreck at Vineyard station, when two Pacific electric trains collided. Several others of the injured, whose number is declared to exceed 150, are in a precarious condition. Two bodies, those of a man and a woman, have not been identified. The revised list of the dead follows:

The Death List.
Edna Ailton, secretary Associated Charities, Pasadena, Cal.; Olive W. Axley, Bakersfield, Cal.; Jacob Barman, Los Angeles; Merle Evans, Los Angeles; Y. Conklin, Japan; Los Angeles; Sidney Johnston, Youngstown, Ohio; Miss Veronica Miller, Los Angeles; formerly of St. James Minn.; Edward Murray, Toronto, Can.; J. Carl Murray, Los Angeles; Mrs. C. G. Norman, Los Angeles; Irwin Platz, Los Angeles; William Taylor, Pasadena, Cal.; unidentified man, about 35 years old; unidentified woman about 22 years old.

The seriously injured are: Among the seriously injured are: C. E. Craig, Detroit, Mich.; internal anatomy; Mrs. E. Craig, Detroit, Mich., body crushed; Miss Ingeborg Swanson, Chicago, knee fractured; E. Aray, merchant, Torrance, Tex., both legs broken; Yelmer Murray, Toronto, Can., nose broken; I. D. Denton, Kansas City, Mo., facial lacerations.

Officials of the Pacific electric assert that the blame for the disaster lies between Conductor Emil Bartholomew of the standing train and Motor-man Joseph Forrester of the one that crashed into the standing train. Forrester insists that he waved a red lantern in front of Forrester's train in plenty of time for the latter to have stopped, had he heeded the signal.

Forrester, who was found at his home, only slightly injured, declared he did not see the lantern until within 500 feet of the standing train. The distance, he asserted, was so short and his brakes failed to stop the train. Officials of the road insisted that the distance was not too short. Forrester's train weighed about 255,000 pounds, including the passengers packed in the seats and aisles. Before the state railway commission, officials of the road stopped a train of cars of the same type, weighing 25 tons each, within less than 500 feet. Forrester's train was of three cars containing the same train into which he ran.

Thus the blame lies between a conductor, a motor-man and the brakes. A coroner's inquest was impounded and the inquest has begun.

FIRE PERILS TOWN

MICHIGAN CITY, IND., IS THREATENED BEFORE BLAZE IS UNDER CONTROL.

LOSS PLACED AT $1,000,000

Flames Rage in Huge Lumber Yard—Dynamite and Salt Used to Stop Spread of Flames—Aid Summoned From Nearby Cities.

Michigan City, Ind., July 14.—Fire that caused a $1,000,000 property loss and was seen along the shores of Lake Michigan for over 100 miles, started in the lumber yards of the Haskell & Barker Co. company at Michigan City. Isolation of the yards and a west wind probably saved the city from destruction on Saturday.

The fire started in the south end of the yards, near the Michigan Central railroad. The fire company of Michigan City responded at once. The fire was extinguished by too few men, inadequate apparatus and the fact that there were few hydrants in the vicinity of the fire. The flames spread quickly to the north.

Before the arrival of the Chicago companies hundreds of volunteers carried lumber from the unburned parts of the yard to a distance of safety.

Property in Trust.
The Haskell & Barker Co. property is owned by Miss Katherine Becker, the property being held in trust by the First Title Trust company of Chicago. It is one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world and is situated on the east outskirts of Michigan City, east of the Michigan Central tracks. The sand dunes surround it on the west and north. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

At 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning the fire was under control. The great danger is that the wind may spring up and carry the flames to the plant of the Midland chair company and the 150 frame houses which lie between this plant and the burning lumber yard. Beyond the chair plant lies Anthony's hospital. The city patients are in readiness to be moved in case of any new danger.

FIGHT FOR MULLHALL

SENATE LOBBY COMMITTEE DEFEATS PLAN OF HOUSE TO SECURE WITNESS.

RESUMES HIS "CONFESSION"

Colonel Declares Secretary of N. A. M. Agreed to Pay Him Stated Sum for "General Field Work" and Lobby Work in Washington.

Washington, July 14.—Under heavy guard, Martin M. Mulhall was placed on the stand again by the senate lobby investigating committee, to defeat any plan the house committee might have.

After Mulhall had been on the stand for nearly five hours the committee took a recess. Senator Overman excused Mulhall for the day and permitted him to go to New York, where he has important business.

Mulhall identified more letters showing his relations with Marshall Cushing, secretary of the National Association of Manufacturers. He testified he had an understanding with Cushing that he was to receive $100 a week and $40 a week for expenses for "general field work and lobby work in Washington."

McComas' Secretary Traitor.
Mulhall testified further of how he worked to defeat the late Senator McComas in 1904, referred to by the senate as the senator's friend. He said he had received 500 letters from Cushing directed against McComas.

"I turned them over to Carl M. Downs, secretary to McComas," he added.

"Do you mean you delivered these letters against McComas to his secretary?" asked Senator Reed.

"Carl M. Downs was in the pay of Cushing," replied the witness, who went on to explain that he quarreled with Cushing because he was "buying out" the secretary of a senator.

Worked to Aid Aldrich.
A letter to Senator Foraker, September 15, 1904, referred to a suggestion that Mulhall go to Rhode Island to help Senator Aldrich in his campaign. He testified he went later at the request of Aldrich.

"I was asked me by Cushing to get in touch with labor men there, to get their support."

Letters from C. E. Alden, then secretary to Foraker, and Arthur D. Shelton, secretary to Aldrich, showed that Mulhall had been the subject of some correspondence. Alden and Shelton knew he was employed by the association and he had not tried to conceal the source of his employment even from the labor leaders, he testified.

Mulha requested any implication that he had tried to play a "double game" on the labor men, such as he frankly testified he played on McComas.

"In 1901 I took a paid-up union card and had no further connection with labor unions," he said.

Tells of Fight on Hughes.
A letter of introduction for Harry G. Kurten given by the Council of Allied Building Trades of Philadelphia was in evidence. It was signed by Kurten as secretary. Kurten was engaged, Mulhall testified, in the fight against William Hughes, then a representative and now a senator from New Jersey.

"Were you sent to help beat Hughes by the National Association of Manufacturers?" asked Mr. Reed.

"Yes, sir."

"Why did they want to beat Hughes?"

"On account of his holding a union card, being affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and his activity on the floor of the house and with the labor leaders in Washington."

Kurten was given credentials, Mulhall said, so he could get into union labor meetings to oppose Hughes.

"The work of this kind was always done," Mulhall said.

Taft is Brought In.
A reference to President Taft came in connection with the discussions on the back of one of the Mulhall envelopes. The following names appeared: "C. D. Preston, Columbus Bugby company; Col. W. H. Morgan, Alliance; O. John N. Taylor, East Liverpool; D. J. Sinclair, Steubenville; H. M. Hanna, Cleveland, O."

"These five names were submitted to me by Senator Foraker of Ohio to hand to President Taft at an interview I was to have with him at his summer residence in 1910 concerning the campaign in Ohio," Mulhall testified. The committee did not develop the point further.

Buy Up Union Men.
Testifying further about the campaign against Hughes, Mulhall swore he went to Paterson to aid Hughes' opponent. He hired six union men to work against Hughes and paid them altogether about $1,800, which came from the National Association of Manufacturers, through Cushing.

"You bribed these men to vote against Hughes," asked Senator Cummins.

"I don't know whether you can call it bribery or not; they were paid weekly salary. That money was spent by Cushing, and it is what he called it. It has been done by both parties for years."

Reports to connect Senator McComas on labor legislation were further shown by another letter, December 15, 1904, apparently to Mulhall, and which was in the hands of Cushing. Mulhall urged Mulhall to deal with McComas on the suggestion that he had later wanted a federal judgeship than in prospect.

Other letter from Cushing to Mul-hall developed the extent to which Mulhall was working with various political factions in Maryland, either trying to "select a winner" or abate McComas' activity in support of his eight-hour bill. Many of the men he mentioned in his letters as opposed to the eight-hour bill, in the association's campaign against that measure, were "strictly honest in that position," he thought.

"Others pretended to be honestly opposed to it because you paid them to," suggested Senator Walsh.

"Yes, that's it."

Spies on Labor Men.
In a report February 5, 1905, upon political developments in Baltimore, Mulhall quoted George B. Squires, a bookkeeper for the American Federation of Labor, on the support the labor forces were giving McComas and the fight they were making for anti-union legislation.

Cushing had instructed him to "keep in touch with Squires" to find out what the American Federation of Labor was doing.

The campaign in support of Representative Charles B. Littlefield in Maine was taken up in other letters.

The association got after Representative Frank C. Wachtler of Maryland, Mulhall said.

"Wachtler was not up to mark in Washington. He dodged too many votes on labor bills," Mulhall said.

Aides to "Boss" Barnes.

The inquiry shifted to Albany, N. Y. The introduction of a bill in the New York legislature by Senator Fane, which would have restricted the burden of proof upon the defendant in cases of injury from negligence, was discussed.

"Cushing sent me to oppose the bill, as something that ought not to pass at that time," Mulhall said.

Senator Cummins asked how Mulhall saw in Albany when he worked against the bill.

"You didn't have to see many people in Albany at that time to stop a bill of that kind. I saw 'Boss' Barnes."

"Through him you defeated the bill?"

"I believe I did. I knew him for many years."

TRY TO SWIM BAY; 300 DIE
Mexican Constitutionalists Suffer Heavy Losses at Guaymas When Surprised by Huerta Troops.

Tucson, Ariz., July 13.—A belated communication from Guaymas, in the hands of Mexican Consul Anstie, says that 300 constitutionalist soldiers met death in an effort to swim across the bay when the Huerta force in their attempt to enter the California gulf port.

The message says that General Ojeda, after his retreat to the federal base, arranged an ambush to surprise the pursuing constitutionalists, that 800 federalists fell upon the state troops, who fled in disorder, leaving many dead and wounded behind. Ojeda's men were celebrating what they believed to be the fall of Guaymas when the federalists closed in upon them.

BIG STORM SWEEPS ITALY

Rain and Earthquake Shocks Cause Panic Among Residents.

Rome, July 12.—All of Italy is being lashed by storms of unprecedented violence accompanied by temperatures lower than any previously recorded for this season. Great areas have been devastated by wind and hail. Snowstorms are reported in the northern mountainous district, damage to fruit crops will reach millions and the entire country is terrorized by meteorological disturbances. Earthquakes and showers of mud and ashes from Vesuvius are causing alarm in the vicinity of Naples.

Such weather in the middle of July has not been recorded in Italy since the year 1313, when superstitious people attributed it to the repetition of the No. 13.

MILITANT BOMB INJURES ELEVEN IN POST OFFICE

Explosive Sent Through Mails to William Redmond, M. P.—Suffragette Bares Dual Life.

Dublin, July 11.—The most serious outrage of the many deeds of violence committed by militant suffragettes in their campaign of arson and rioting occurred when a bomb, which had been mailed to William Redmond, M. P., exploded while it was being handed in the post office sorting room.

Eleven clerks, one of them a woman, were seriously hurt by fragments of the bomb, and a dozen others were knocked down and stunned by the explosion.

Within half an hour after the details of the outrage had been flashed in extra editions of the newspapers, a mob of angry men and boys broke up a street meeting of suffragettes by stoning them. One woman was seriously injured in the fight between the assault and the suffrage sympathizers.

Liverpool, July 11.—A remarkable confession of a dual life, which in some respects equals the strange case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, was made here by a woman, Mrs. Betty Rigby, wife of a rich and prominent doctor, admitted to the police that she has been a member of militant suffragettes for six months without her husband's knowledge. Every night she would slip from her home and set fire to buildings, plant bombs or send threatening letters to those opposing the cause. She told the police that she had caused at least $200,000 damage through her own explosions. She admitted that she had had to carry on her campaign of vandalism clandestinely. By day she appeared a gentle, dutiful wife, with no thought of "Votes for women" but at night she went forth with courage in her heart. She was arrested.

Kansas Has Organized Crusade Against Grasshopper Pest in That State.

Dodge City, Kan., July 16.—At least 100 farmers in Ford, Gray, Edwards and Pawnee counties of western Kansas have joined in spraying tons of poisoned bran mash over the fields in an effort to check the ravages of grasshoppers that in the last three weeks have done thousands of dollars of damage to young trees, alfalfa, corn, cane and other crops. Three representatives of the Kansas state agricultural college at Manhattan and one from the University of Kansas, supervised the work. It is estimated that eight tons of the mash was spread Monday.

The work was organized by crusades and this day set apart as "crusades" day through the efforts of the combined county commissions and Governor Hodges.

She is determined to recover from wounds she has received in the service of her capt. Thorne the soldiers have been ordered away from the commission, and to tell their story. Mrs. Varney is agitated and does not know what to do. She decides to go to the prison. She is prevented by the commission. But she leaves the room to the arrival of Captain Thorne. Wilfred's sweetheart, Edith Arrelford, of the Confederate service, a rejected soldier, has been carrying a note from a prisoner in Edith's prison.

"CHAPTER V—Continued.

"Jonas," said Mrs. Varney, her voice low and level in spite of her agitation. "He's here."

"Have you any idea why I sent for you?"

"Ah, he had you was going send me to do his little errand."

"Oh, then, Martha, told you," said Mrs. Varney.

While the little dialogue was taking place, Mr. Arrelford had made a signal, and the corporal and two men had entered the room silently, and now swiftly advanced to the side of the still unconscious negro.

"She didn't exactly say what you—"

The next instant the two men fell upon him. He might have made some struggle, although it would have been useless. The windows were instantly filled with men, and an order would have called them into the room. He was an old man, and the two soldiers that seized him were young. He was that surprised to right, and stood as helpless as a lamb about to be slaughtered, his face fairly gray with sudden terror. The corporal flung open the butler's faded livery coat, and for the moment Jonas, menced now by a search, and knowing what the result would be, struggled furiously, but the men soon mastered him, and the corporal, continuing his search, presently drew from an inside pocket a small folded paper.

"Jonas, Jonas!" said Mrs. Varney in bitter disappointment, "how could you?"

"I told you so," said Mr. Arrelford triumphantly, and most aggravatingly under the circumstances, taking the folded paper. "Corporal," he added, "while I read this, see if he has got anything more."

A further search, however, revealed nothing. Arrelford had scarcely completed the reading of the brief note when the corporal reported:

"That is all he has, sir."

Arrelford nodded. The men had released Jonas, but stood by his side, and the secret service agent now approached him.

"Who was this for?" he asked sharply and tensely.

The negro stared at him stolidly and silently, his face ashen with fright.

"Look here," continued the other, "if you don't tell me it is going to make it pretty bad for you."

The words apparently made no further impression upon the servant. Arrelford tried another tack. He turned to Mrs. Varney, who was completely dismayed at this breach of trust by one who had been attached to the family fortunes for so many years.

"An right, right, my dear," he said very distinctly, "but it looks like we have got to shoot him."

"Oh!" cried Mrs. Varney at that. "Jonas, speak up!"

But even to that appeal he remained silent. Arrelford waited a moment and then:

"Corporal," he said; "take him outside and get out of him. String him up until he tells. But don't let him yell or give any alarm; gag him, if he's ready to yell. You understand?"

The corporal nodded and turned to ward the hall door.

"Take that way," said Arrelford, "take him back of the house and keep him quiet, whatever you do. Nobody must know about this, not a soul."

"Very good, sir," said the corporal, saluting. He gave an order to the men and they marched Jonas off, swiftly and silently. Nothing that had been said or done disturbed the women across the hall. Mrs. Varney glanced at the unfolded piece of paper in Mr. Arrelford's hand. He was smiling triumphantly.

"Was there anything in that?" she asked.

"Yes, there was. We know the trick they're going to play."

"But not the man who was to play it?"

"I didn't say that, my dear."

"Does it give you a clue to it?"

"It does."

"Will it answer?"

"It will."

"As plain as if he had his name?"

"Thank God for that," exclaimed the woman. "May I see it?"

Arrelford hesitated.

"I see no reason why you should not."

He extended his hand toward her, and she glanced at the paper.

"Attack tonight. Plan 3. Use telegraph," she read. She looked up.

"What does it mean?" she asked tremulously.

"They are to attack tonight, and the place where they are to strike is indicated by Plan 3."

"Plan 3?" questioned the woman.

"It means it is sent to you. You know what it means by that. It has been arranged beforehand, and—"

"But the last words," said Mrs. Varney, "are 'Use telegraph.'"

"That is plain, too. He is to use our war department telegraph and send some false order to weaken that position, the one indicated by Plan 3, so that when they assault it, they will do it feebly defended or not at all, and break through and come down the city and swamp us."

"But," exclaimed Mrs. Varney in deepest indignation and excitement, "the man who was to do this? Who is he?"

"There is nothing about him that I can see."

"But I can see something."

"What? Where?"

"In the words, 'Use telegraph.' We know every man in the telegraph service, and every one of them is true. There is some one who will try to get into that service if the game is carried out, and—"

"Then he will be the man," said Mrs. Varney.

"Yes, there aren't so many men in Richmond that can do that. It isn't every man that's expert enough—Mrs. Varney, Jonas brought this paper to your house, and—"

"To my house?" exclaimed the woman in great astonishment, and then she stopped, appalled by a sudden thought which came to her.

"At the same time," said Arrelford, "your daughter has been trying to get an appointment for some one on the telegraph service. Perhaps she could give us some idea, and—"

Mrs. Varney rose and stood as if torn between two alternatives.

"You mean—"

"Captain Thorne," said Arrelford impressively.

CHAPTER VI.

The Confidence of Edith Varney.

Mrs. Varney had, of course, divined toward whom Arrelford's suspicion pointed. She had been entirely certain before he had mentioned the name that the alleged spy or traitor could be none other than her daughter's friend; indeed, it would not be the Cape for examination and the result was the discovery of the diamond fields of South Africa. And the child's playing found its way to the Paris exhibition, where it sold for $200.

According to a Japanese belief, dolls sometimes come alive, acquiring a soul in process of being played with by successive generations of children. He turned to Mrs. Varney, who was completely dismayed at this breach of trust by one who had been attached stretching the truth in any way that "Thorne" was her friend as well as her daughter's, and her own mother's will was left to himself or to the man's personal liking between himself and the two women might have been a nearer one, less, the shocking announcement came to her with sudden, sharp surprise.

She was as perfectly certain, absolutely sure, of a coming event, but when it does occur it's shock is felt in spite of previous assurance. We may watch the tycoon and pray for death to end anguish, and know that it is coming, but when the last low breath has gone it is as much of a shock to us as if it had not been expected, or even dreamed of.

The announcement of the name was shattering to her composure. She knew very well why Arrelford would rejoice to find Thorne guilty of any thing, and she would have discounted any ordinary accusation that he brought against him, but the train of the circumstances was so complete in this case and the coincidences so unexplainable upon any other theory, the evidence so convincing that she was forced to admit that Arrelford was fully justified in his suspicion, and that without regard to the fact that she was a rejected suitor of her daughter's.

"Surprise, horror and conviction looked in her soul, and were mirrored in her face. A flash of reasoning and vindication, but Mrs. Varney checked him. She laid her finger upon his lips and pointed with the other hand to the front of the house.

"What!" exclaimed the Confederate secret service agent, "is he there?"

"He may not be. He went out to the summer-house some time ago to wait for Edith; they were going over to Caroline Mitford's later on. I saw Edith go down the walk."

"Do you suppose my men could have alarmed him?" asked Arrelford, greatly perturbed at this unexpected development.

"I don't know. They were all at the back windows. They didn't seem to make much noise, I suppose not. You have a description of the man for whom the letter was intended?"

"Yes, at the office; but I remember it perfectly."

"Does it fit this—this Captain Thorne?"

"You might as well know sooner or later, Mrs. Varney. That is there is no Captain Thorne. This is an assumed name, and the man you have in your house is Lewis Dumont."

"Do you mean he came here to—"

"He came to this town, to this house," said Arrelford, vindictive, his voice still subdued but full of fury. "Knowing your position, the influence of your name, your husband's rank and service, for the sole purpose of getting recognized as a reputable person, so that he would be less likely your servant—you saw old Jonas and he has been contrived to enlist the powerful support of your daughter. His aim is the war department telegraph office. He is friendly with the man that officiates. What else he has done or what he has, the Lord only knows. But Washington is not the only place where they have a secret service; we have one at Richmond. Whatever game he plays, it is one that two can play; and now it is my play."

The patter of light footsteps was heard on the stairs, a flash of white seen through the open door into the hall dimly lighted, and Edith Varney came rapidly, almost breathlessly, into the room. She had changed her dress, and if Caroline Mitford had been there, she would have known certainly from the little air of festivity about her clean, but faded and damaged, sprigged and flowered white muslin frock that she was going to accept the invitation. In one hand she held her hat, which she swung carelessly by its long faded ribbons, and in the other that official envelope which had come to her from the President of the Confederacy. She called to her mother as she ran down.

"Mamma! Her face was white and her voice was pitched high, fraught with excited intensity. "Under my window, in the rosebushes, at the back of the house! They're burning somebody frightfully, I am sure!"

She burst into the room with the understanding fully won, in all probability, was being roughly dealt with in the rosebushes, and realizing what a terrible effect such disclosures as she had listened to would produce upon the mind of the girl.

"Come," said Edith, turning rapidly toward the rear window; "we must stop it!"

Mrs. Varney stood as if rooted to the floor.

"Well," said the girl, in great surprise, "if you aren't coming, I will go myself."

These words awakened her mother to action.

"What? Edith," she said.

"Now, and for the first time, Edith turned back and away from her mother. She recalled his agitation with a cold and distant look. The man's face flushed; he turned away. "But mamma, the man outside," he stated the girl.

"Wait, my dear," said her mother, taking her gently by the arm; "I must tell you something. It will be a great shock to you, I am afraid."

"No, no, not that," said Mrs. Varney. "A man we have trusted as a friend has shown himself a conspirator, a spy, a traitor!"

"Who is it?" cried the girl, at the same time instinctively diving—how or why she could not tell, and that thought another her afterward—whom the reference was being made. Mrs. Varney naturally hesitated to say the name. Arrelford, carried away by his passion for the girl and his hatred for Thorne, was not so reticent. He stepped toward her.

"It is the gentleman, Miss Varney, whose attention you have been pleased to accept in the place of mine," he burst out bitterly.

His manner and his meaning were unalterable. The girl stared at him with a white, haughty face, in spite of her trembling lips. Mechanically she thrust the envelope with the commission upon him, and confronted the man who loved her and whom she did not love, who accused of this hateful thing the man whom, in the twinkling of an eye, she realized she did love.

"Attack tonight. Plan 3. Use Telegraph," she read.

"Then the daughter turned to her mother.

"Is Mr. Arrelford who makes this accusation?" she asked.

"Yes," said Arrelford, again answering for Mrs. Varney, "since you wish to know from the first I had had my suspicions about this—"

But Edith did not wait for him to finish his sentence. She turned away from him with loading, and moved rapidly toward the front window.

"Where are you going?" asked Arrelford.

"For Captain Thorne."

"Not now," he said peremptorily. The color flamed in the girl's cheek again.

"Mr. Arrelford, you have said something about Captain Thorne. Are you afraid to say it to him?"

"Miss Varney," answered Arrelford hotly, "if you—"

"Edith," said Mrs. Varney, "Mr. Arrelford has good reasons for not meeting Captain Thorne now."

"I should think he had," returned the girl swiftly; "for a man who made such a charge to his face would not live to make it again."

"My dear, my dear," said her mother gently but firmly, "you don't understand, you don't."

"Mamma," said the girl, "this man has left his desk in the war department so that he can have the pleasure of persecuting me."

Both the mother and the rejected suitor noticed her identification of herself with Captain Thorne in the pronoun "me," only with sinking heart and the other with suppressed cry.

"He has never attempted anything active in the service before," continued Edith, "and when I asked him to face the man he accuses, he turns like a coward!"

"Mrs. Varney, if she thinks—"

"I think nothing," said the girl bravely; "I know that Captain Thorne's character is above suspicion."

Arrelford sneered.

Taking His Choice.

"These monopolists in their treatment of the cold nut are not Mr. Blane," said Dupton Sinclair.

"Mr. Blane said to his little son on Christmas day:

"Tommy, which will you have, turkey or cold mutton?"

"Turkey, please," Tommy answered promptly.

"But Mr. Blane began to hack away at the gratity, gray, cold mutton."

"No, Tommy," he said, "you can't have turkey. Take your choice, my lad, take your choice, but you can't have turkey."

Measles.

Measles is very common with small pigs. Since it is a contagion it spreads very rapidly when once there is an outbreak in the herd. Some of its more common symptoms are coughing and sneezing. The eyes are red and watery and there is generally a discharge from the eyes. The appetite is generally impaired and there is a desire to remain in the nest or bed.

TO RAISE BUCKWHEAT

Crop Fills Best in a Rather Cool Season.

Makes Good Feed for Almost All Animals and Has Nutritive Ratio of One to Seven—Helps Greatly in Ridding of Weeds.

(By A. J. Lusk.)

Buckwheat is a crop that can be grown any time after the danger from frost is over up to about the first of August, with reasonable success. The buckwheat usually fills best in a rather cool season and in localities where midsummer is very hot it will last in the season so as to give from 60 to 70 days for it to mature a crop before frost.

Six days is sufficient for a crop to make itself useful.

"The grain makes a good feed for almost all animals and it has a nutritive ratio of one to seven, so it is a fattening grain."

The bloom of the buckwheat plant produces much nectar and there will usually be plenty of bees on hand during the blooming season to gather the nectar.

In some localities in the south, buckwheat has largely superseded wheat and oats. Often it is sown after wheat and thus the farmer is enabled to reap two crops from a field in one season instead of allowing his stubble to grow up to weeds after harvest.

The buckwheat crop is a great help in ridding the land of weeds as it is a rapid grower and keeps the weeds back.

If the wheat stubble is turned and sowed to buckwheat and clover there is not much chance for the weeds to mature seeds.

The soil should be plowed and left settle for two or three weeks before the buckwheat is sown.

Drill in from three pecks to a bushel of seed with from 125 to 150 pounds of good grade acid phosphoric fertilizer per acre with a wheat drill.

It is a good plan to sow timothy and clover with the buckwheat.

Put the timothy seed in the grass sower box and mix the clover seed with the fertilizer.

The clover seed is thus drilled in riding the land of weeds as it is a rapid grower and keeps the weeds back.

Introduction Needed.

"Housewife," said a pessimist New York bachelor, "will soon be lost—lost—in this town, at any rate."

"What makes you think that?" asked a friend.

"Do you know what eggplant looks like before it is cooked?" was his apparently irrelevant reply.

"No!"

"Right there," said the bachelor, "you have an answer to your own question. If you eat all their young ones who didn't know raw eggplant when you saw it, or if eggplant was the only raw vegetable you were not acquainted with, I would have no grounds for the assertion; but I have it on the authority of restaurant proprietors and marketmen that half the women who eat their meals out here could not call eggplant, safflower, parsnips, kohlrabi and most of the turnip family by name if they met them face to face. Is that true?"

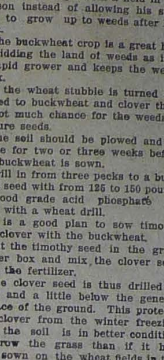

"I am afraid it is," the woman acknowledged. "But most men wouldn't recognize them, either."

"Oh," said the bachelor, "that's different. We are not supposed to be up in such things."

"His fearful headaches grew less frequent, his complexion began to clear, kidneys were no longer ill at ease as he was a new man altogether, as a result of leaving off coffee and taking up Postum. Then I began to drink it too. Although I was never as bad off as my husband, I was always very nervous and never at any time very strong, only weighing 85 lbs before I began to use Postum. Now I weigh 115 lbs, and can do as much work as anyone my size. I think."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment with Postum. You know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

HISTORY'S MOST FAMOUS TOY

Bright Stone With Which Boer Children Were Playing Led to Diamond Field Discovery.

What is the most famous toy in history? We would give the palm not to any elaborate mechanical contrivance or lifelike doll, but to the simple, bright stone that in 1874 a Dutch farmer found some Boer children using as a playing.

For the farmer sent the stone to a doll that had gained a soul, fed and clothed it, and deservedly prospered thereafter.

All this is in utter contrast with the unpleasantness of Varré about dolls. He held that the dolls given to little Romans at Christmas—that is to say, at the Saturnalia—represented original sacrifices of human beings to the infernal gods—London Chronicle.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

STATE BANKERS IN ANNUAL MEETING

CURRENCY BILL BEFORE CONGRESS IS SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION.

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED

Important Views Are Embodied in These—Farming Development Is Not Slighted by State Financiers—New Officers.

Duluth.—Reflecting a spirit of constructive criticism, the Minnesota Bankers' association indorsed the work of the committee of the American Bankers' association that went to Washington and succeeded in having changes made in the original draft of the currency bill, and make it clear that while the Minnesota association is irrevocably opposed to the bill as it stands, it is in sympathy with the effort for currency reform and not disposed to take an attitude of hostility while the measure is still in the formative process.

Gist of Resolutions.

The resolutions as adopted provide for the increase of the membership of the committee on agricultural development and education to one from each of the ten congressional districts and one at large. Each district member is to name four other bankers in his district to act with him as a subcommittee. The resolutions also provide for sending Joseph Chapman, of Minneapolis, and three other members of the agricultural development and education committee to Kansas City to a national agricultural conference Aug. 26 and 27, for the support of the one-cent postage bill for ordinary letters, now pending in the house and senate; for indorsement of Joseph Chapman for vice president at large of the American Bankers' association.

The paragraph relative to the currency bill reads as follows:

"We recognize that a proper national currency and banking law is imperatively needed. Resolved, That we approve the earnest endeavors of congress to enact such a law, and believe that for the welfare of the country a proper act be put into effect at the earliest moment consistent with the due consideration of the subject."

Commend National Association.

Resolved, That this association commends the efforts and proposals of the currency committee of the American Bankers' association for the improvement of the terms and provisions of the banking and currency bill, recently introduced in congress, and that the executive council of this association be requested to carefully consider the bill and all amendments thereto, particularly with respect to their application to, and effect upon, the commercial and agricultural conditions in Minnesota and the northwest, and to submit their recommendations to the members of congress from this state."

New Officers Elected.

The new officials of the Bankers' association are: president, J. S. Pomeroy, Minneapolis, succeeds A. O. Wedge, Jr., Bemidji; secretary, George H. Richards, Minneapolis, elected. For vice president of the American Bankers' association for Minnesota, W. A. Shaw, of Clearwater, succeeds W. H. Putnam, of Red Wing. For member of the executive committee of the American Bankers' association, J. B. Galenault, of Aitkin, succeeds George F. Orde, of Minneapolis.

How the dairy cow can turn worn-out or wild land into valuable farms was explained by W. F. Schilling, Northfield, president of the Minnesota State Dairyman's association.

Aged Indigent Refused Aid.

Winona.—Crippled and barely able to walk with the use of crutches, Gus Weber has applied for aid for several weeks in different counties of the state to be taken to a poorhouse, but is declared ineligible. Weber came from Germany four years ago and has resided in no place long enough to become a public charge. The man's feet were frozen and physicians have told him that proper care and rest alone will cure them. Falling in Minnesota to be taken into a poor house, the aged man went to Wisconsin, but there he was equally unsuccessful, and so has returned to Winona.

Missneapolis Expelleman Guilty.

Los Angeles, July 14.—James Murphy of Minneapolis, who shot and killed Mrs. Irene Mattie Smith, a chorus girl, in her apartments in this city April 1 last, was sentenced to 10 years of murder in the second degree. Sentence will be passed July 15. According to the testimony, Murphy, accompanied by his niece, Mrs. Estelle Moore, entered Mrs. Smith's apartment where she was playing cards with Murphy's nephew, Morris Hobson, of whom the older man was said to have been jealous.

RAGTIME NOT SO HOPELESS

May Yet Become the Real American Music, in the View of Some of the Teachers.

Duluth.—That ragtime may yet become the real American music, and that there is hope for its reform, is the consensus of opinion of many Minnesota music teachers assembled here for their annual convention. "Ragtime contains one prima requisite of music—rhythm," said Dr. Shaker, who has long been associated with this cannot be altered. Syncopation is recognized by musicians. The rhythm is the unadorned musical ear and accounts for its popularity. "The public in its opinion about music usually knows only two expressions, to the masses, music is either pretty or not pretty," said Heinrich Hoover, Minneapolis, president of the association. "The different emotions expressed so wonderfully by the great composers have not been awakened in the sensibility of the thing more in music than nice tunes and pretty melodies."

VETERANS OF SPANISH WAR

Company "H" of the Thirtieth Minnesota Holds Reunion.

Shakopee.—The first annual reunion of the surviving members of Company H, 13th Minnesota volunteers, Philippine war veterans, was held at Shakopee. The boys were serenaded with a band and welcomed by Mayor John Thelen and were banqueted at the Occidental hotel, after which a business meeting was held and Lieut. F. E. Stuart was elected president and Sergeant C. W. Albrecht secretary-treasurer. Similar meetings will be held every year, the second Sunday in August, and it is hoped to have more present at the next meeting. The boys met at St. Paul and came to Shakopee by automobiles, after breaking down in a heat on the Minnesota river. Wisconsin and South Dakota were represented and Leon Lambert, who is in business in Manila was also present.

DEMANDS 8-HOUR WORK DAY

Government Disturbs Promoters Who Have Flashed Contracts on Ten-Hour Basis.

Minneapolis.—Promoters of the Minnesota valley scenic highway, which is aided with $25,000, struck a serious snag and held an extended conference over the situation at the state capitol. All estimates for the road have been figured on the basis of a ten-hour day, but Paul D. Sargent, acting director of highways in the federal service, has ruled that contracts must specify an eight-hour day, in compliance with the federal statute of 1922.

A telegram was sent to Mr. Sargent last evening by C. Louis Weeks, assistant attorney general, asking him to waive this requirement on the ground that the work is being done by the state and local communities, merely under government aid. A reply received said the provision cannot be waived.

AUTO HITS GOVERNOR'S PARTY

Chicago, July 15.—William Widell of Mankato, Minn., a member of Governor Eberhart's staff, was slightly injured when a fire automobile dashed through a procession of motor cars carrying Governor Eberhart and his staff and members of the Grocers' and Butchers' Protective association. The governor and his escort were on their way to take a train for St. Paul. The governor's machine was next to the one carrying Mr. Widell. Mr. Widell was thrown against the side of his automobile and was slightly cut and bruised. Mrs. Widell and other occupants of the car were unhurt. Mr. Widell was able to take the train. Governor Eberhart and his staff were returning from Gettysburg.

View Cass Lake Normal Site.

Cass Lake.—The state commission that is to choose the site of the normal school has visited Cass Lake, normally selected here and listened to arguments presented by Cass Lake citizens and others. After luncheon around 11 a. m. they took a trip through the Minnesota National forest and also into the country west and south of town, and then were given a ride around Star Island, stopping for a 6 o'clock dinner at Star Island Inn.

Wants Prisoner to "Help Out"

Milwaukee, Wis., July 14.—Authorities of the Stillwater, Minn., prison, who are seeking the return of Charles Price, 63, known as "Sinnab", the Salt Lake City prisoner, to complete a sentence of 10 years, who was taken for a trip, may be asked to allow him to remain in Milwaukee another 60 days to help out on the south of correction farm. Price violated his parole from the Minnesota prison and was arrested in Milwaukee.

RAILROAD AGENTS MEET

Great Western Station Hustlers Hold Semi-Annual Meeting at Red Wing.

Red Wing.—The semi-annual meeting and luncheon of the Great Western Station Agents' association, which took place in this city, was one of the most successful in the history of the organization. The delegates began arriving Friday evening and every train brought more during the day. A hundred and thirty members and their wives and daughters were at the luncheon which was served in the St. James dining room. Sunday evening the visitors were taken for a launch ride up the river.

After the luncheon a short program of talks was given. E. E. Root, president of the Red Wing Manufacturers' association, gave the address of welcome. Former Mayor Pierce extended a welcome and said that he hoped they would not think it a come down to come to Red Wing after having more during the day. He spoke of the trouble which the railroad companies were having with legislation all over the country and said he was glad that they would be called to ride for 2 cents a mile in the near future.

SPECTACULAR FIRE OF STRAW

One Overcome and Others Stuffed By Fire That Destroys Mountain of Flax Straw.

St. Paul.—One fireman was overcome by smoke and the heat of the intense flames and the majority of others were scorched and stifled and almost exterminated in the strenuous battle with a fire at the Northern Insulating company plant, which practically destroyed a huge stack of flax straw valued at $60,000. The mountain of flax straw, covering nearly an acre of ground and standing about thirty-five feet high, was ablaze from 4:30 in the afternoon until late Monday.

The fire started at the southern portion of the huge pile and the flames were raging high when discovered by William Shanley, 1941, ignited, watchman. Six companies, bringing nine engines, were immediately sent by the fire department and Chief Lister and the auto squad company were on the scene. About 5,000 feet of hose was used and the sixty firemen mounted their ladders to the summit of the stack and played a continual stream of water from every line into the blaze. The huge heap of flax straw consumed about 10,000 tons, and was the surplus stock of the company, which is a subsidiary branch of the Bohm Manufacturing company.

GOVERNOR AND STAFF BACK

Officers That Served in Civil War Return to Present Day Vacations.

St. Paul.—The light of military intelligence that shone bright at Gettysburg, burned softly in the refined atmosphere of the fashionable mountain resort at Buena Vista, Md., and glowed again until New York's dazzling glow was pressed into effacement, was still aglow when Governor A. O. Eberhart and staff got back Monday from a triumphal tour of the east. Five generals, eight colonels and three majors are back in the furniture store, the physician's office or elsewhere striped of the annual of war and occupied with the arts of peace, submerged.

Never did Minnesota put up such a front as from the Eagle hotel, in old Gettysburg town, to the Hotel Netherlands in New York, collectively, or diminished only by accident or the press of business that called back a few before the tour was completed, the staff in full array, lined up.

Grand Rapids—A deal was completed on Saturday whereby John Lofberg and John Hofer of this place transferred to the Interstate Iron company 200 acres in the Prairie river district just east of town. The purchase is supposed to be non-ore bearing, and is wanted for a dumping ground for mining operations in the vicinity. The company has also secured the title to 600 acres of the south side of the Mississippi just west of town, and on this purchase is surveying, drilling and testing.

Receives $8,000 for Injuries.

Rochester.—Eugene Price of this city, who was injured several months ago at Rock Island, Ill., while breaking in the Rock Island road, has received about $8,000 from that road to compensate him for his injuries.

Minnesota Party Entertained.

Albany, N. Y., July 14.—Governor Eberhart of Minnesota and his staff, returning from the Gettysburg celebration last Friday night, as guests of the Albany chamber of commerce the visitors were given an automobile ride and visited the state education building and the capitol, where they were welcomed by Governor Sulzer. Governor and Mrs. Eberhart were dinner guests of the governor and Mrs. Sulzer at the "Pocahontas" house.

HOW COCA COLA REFRESHES.

The remarkable success which has attended the sale of Coca-Cola has been explained in many different ways. Some have attributed it to "good advertising," others to "efficient management," others to the fact that it was the first of the "trade-marked" soft drinks. In this connection, the opinion of a manufacturing chemist who has analyzed Coca-Cola and studied its history for many years, will prove interesting. He attributes the popularity of the drink in large part to its quality of refreshing both mind and body without producing any subsequent depression. He points out the fact that the chemical composition of Coca-Cola is practically identical with that of coffee and tea (which sugar added) the only material difference being the absence of tannic acid from Coca-Cola. He points to the laboratory experiments of Dr. Hallingworth of Columbia University and of Dr. H. C. Wood, Jr. of Philadelphia, which prove conclusively that the caffeine-containing beverages (coffee, tea, Coca-Cola, etc.) relieve mental and muscular fatigue by rendering the nerves and muscles more responsive to the work they are called upon to do, thus diminishing the resistance produced by fatigue. These experiments also demonstrate that the caffeine group of beverages differ from the stimulants in that the use of the latter is followed by a period of depression which calls for more stimulation, thus resulting in the formation of a "habit."

Horrible Thought.

Senator Borah of Idaho tells this story of how a psychologist and medic professor was received in a small town in his state: "The professor was talking to a young society lad about the possibilities of the journeyings of one's soul. 'Why, my dear young lady,' he declared, 'it is possible for you in your sleep to travel to other planets in the middle of the night.' 'Oh, professor!' she cried in evident alarm, 'Not in my nightgown!'" —The Sunday Magazine.

Discouraged.

"This life is no bed of roses." "Certainly not. For me it isn't even a bed of turpentine."

NO EVIDENCE OF STATEMENT

Forsman of Jury Had Claimed They Had One Mind But Leading Lawyer Was Winded in His Show.

Counsel for the prisoner looked hopefully at the faces of the jurors as they filed into their seats, and listened hopefully as the foreman announced they had agreed. His client had asked ample provision for the agreement upon the person of Thomas Jones; but the jurors were uniformly forthcoming and not inclined. "The jury is all of one mind, your honor," the foreman said. "We find the prisoner guilty."

"You hear the verdict, counsel," remarked the judge. "The jury is all of one mind. Have you anything to ask of the court before sentence is pronounced?" "Yes, your honor," replied counsel, still hopefully, "for the purpose of the appeal which my client will take, it would be of material assistance to learn which one of the twelve men who have reached this verdict is possessed of the one mind you are so careful to mention." —New York Evening Post.

Few young men are really as bad as the girls try to make them think they are.

SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

Two Women Tell How They Escaped the Surgeon's Knife by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Baltimore, Penn. — "For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had two operations and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the change of life and too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles." — Mrs. EMILY SUMMERS, Swarthmore, Pa.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

The Best Bargain You Ever Made

HOW do you measure the value of a bargain? Suppose you bought an engine that did practically all of your hardest work for you, sawing, pumping, grinding, etc., and that saved so much money that it soon paid for itself. Would you call that a good bargain?

An IHC engine will do all that, and more. Having paid for itself, it works steadily year after year until, like our Clay County friend who has used an IHC engine for six years, you will say, "My IHC engine is the best bargain I ever made."

IHC Oil and Gas Engines are thoroughly dependable, and unusually durable. The fine-grained, grey iron cylinders and pistons are worked together to a perfect fit. Ground piston rings insure maximum power from the explosion. The fuel mixer is the most effective known. Bearings are large and carefully fitted. No part is too heavy to be efficient, yet every part is amply strong.

IHC engines are made in all styles—vertical and horizontal; portable and stationary; air and water-cooled; in sizes from 1 to 50-horse power; to operate on gas, gasoline, naphtha, distillate, kerosene or alcohol. Oil tractors, 12 to 60-horse power, for plowing, threshing, etc.; grinding, sawing, pumping and spraying outfits, complete the line.

The IHC local dealer will show you all the good points of the IHC engine. Get catalogue from him, or write

Visit
Yellowstone Park

Here is change of scene—change of climate—pure water—good food—sumptuous hotels with every convenience—and 143 miles of coaching over Government-kept roads through the most unique region in the world. Geysers, Cataracts, Canyons, Mountains, Lakes and Streams. Bison, Bears, Deer, Elk, Antelope, Beaver and other weird creatures. Fishing galore.

The Park season extends from June 15 to September 15. The mean temperature for these months, based on 22 years observations, is 58 degrees; the highest temperature for the same period is 88 degrees.

LOW FARES—THROUGH SERVICE

The rail trip alone is a vacation experience of supreme enjoyment on this route of the famous "Great Big Baked Potato"—direct and only line to Gardiner Gateway, original Yellowstone Park entrance. Call or write for literature and information.
