We note the insertion of a large advertisement in the Sandstone Courier by a druggist of that city announcing the giving away of an automobile and other prizes to increase business for the druggist, but we don't find a single objection to the method in Brother Colby's editorial columns. Can it be that the patrons pay for the prizes in the case of a newspaper, but not in the case of a drug store?

We notice C. J. Dodge's correspondence to the Star Gazette, in The Hustler about forming a new county with county seat at either Moose Lake or Sturgeon Lake. Don't worry. The tax payers in this locality, Carlton, Pine and Aitkin counties are satisfied—the tax is high enough now in each respective county, without having the fourth county to support with new court house and new county officers' salaries to pay. The benefit to have the county seat so near us is not worth the increase in taxes, except for a few land speculators.—Sturgeon Lake Hustler, Aug. 18.

Mrs. Samuel Scott of Hibbing is also a visitor at the home of her brother, Sheriff Hawley.

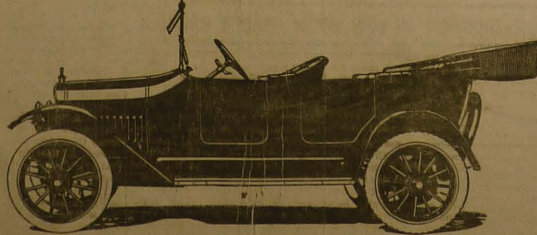

CLOSING PARTICULARS

CANDIDATES, read these closing particulars carefully and be sure that you understand them. The Campaign will close Tuesday, Sept. 5th at 3:00 in the afternoon.

All votes counted must be delivered at The Pine Poker office in person or by mail before that hour. One minute late and we cannot accept your report. It will be best for every member to make their report in person on the last day of the Campaign. The Campaign Manager's last count of votes appears in this issue of the paper. All votes turned in from now on will be counted by three judges who will be disinterested business men of this city. The judges will merely count the votes as they find them in the ballot box, and to these totals they will add the number of votes as they appear in this issue of The Poker according to the Campaign manager's last count of votes, thus securing the grand total of votes for each candidate and the highest standing candidate.

In order to insure an ABSOLUTE square deal to every candidate, we will allow candidates to make their reports in the following manner: The ballot box will be sealed on Monday, Sept. 4th, and the key will be placed in the hands of the judges. Candidates may make their reports directly into the sealed ballot box instead of to the Campaign Manager on the last two days of the campaign if they wish. Fill out a subscription report blank as usual, be very careful to see that they are correct, then place same with money (cash, money order or certified check) in an envelope, seal the same, write your name on the outside of the envelope, and deposit it in the sealed ballot box. No one can tell how much is reported on the last two days of the campaign, therefore it will be impossible for any tips or information to be given other than is given to every candidate.

Our First Grand Prize

1917 5-Passenger Maxwell Touring Car
Purchased of and now on exhibition at A. M. Challeen's, Pine City.

The Judges will make the final count of votes immediately after the campaign closes. The counting place will be announced next week. The judges will issue votes on all sealed reports found in the ballot box in accordance with the rules and vote schedules. Candidates will be allowed at the final count if room will permit. However, the general public will not be permitted. The final count will take about one hour. We request you to not wait until the last minute to get in your reports, as that will be a very busy time. You may make as many reports as you wish the last few days of the campaign. Remember, that the campaign closes at 3:00 p. m. on Tuesday, September 5th, and not one or two minutes after. If you have any questions to ask, now is the time. Compare your records of reserve votes with those of the Campaign Manager before Monday, September 4th.

Last Extra Vote Offers

August 24th to August 30th, 100,000 Extra Votes on every $20.00. August 31st to Sept. 2nd, 50,000 Extra Votes on every $20.00. Sept. 3rd to 3 p. m. Sept. 5th, Vote Schedule ONLY.

And looking through the spectacles of some buyers, all Lumber must be alike.

But it's not—not by a long shot. A board is a board to be sure—apparently no different from another board just like it. But the first one might have been sawed from sound, "LIVE" timber, and the second one from "dead and down" trees, and you couldn't TELL the difference. But you'd soon "SEE" the difference after a few years' wear.

That's why we say there IS a difference in lumber, same as there is in groceries, clothes, etc., and when the good kind costs no more than the other kind, you should make up your mind that you want the best for your money.

Seeing our stock and getting our prices is the next and only other step necessary, because we carry only the "GOOD" kind of Lumber and Building Material.

The Magic of Dubu

By Victor Redcliffe

Yancey Waldron gave up a good position in New York city and hurried to Chicago, after receiving a letter from a friend of his only living relative, Peter Bond, to the effect that the old man was slowly falling away again.

It was stated that Mr. Bond might live for a year, but was in poor circumstances and unable to earn anything. That was what roused up the first started in life Mr. Bond had for him will be and generously provided. Now that conditions seemed to have changed, Yancey felt a sense of duty that impelled him to hasten to the aid of his aged relative.

He was distressed when he arrived at the home of the uncle. He found him living alone in the main floor of a great rambling structure located on an alley. It was fronted where a street once had been, now occupied by the elevated tracks of a street car and backed up to the high rear back of a great factory, located and shut in from all traffic and with the public roadway leading from the public street.

The old man was well-nigh helpless and welcomed his nephew with a wan, but glad smile.

"You seem pretty well shut in here, uncle," spoke Yancey.

"Progress, you see," explained Mr. Bond, with a little smile in his tones. "I've invested my all in this property and had it all rented. The railroad got the street condensed and cut off all the air."

"It's mine, if you please, and it fell out."

a trifle for the property, which I refused. Then they condemned the right-of-way and my tenants left me. That's the sad story—my ruined possession."

"Well, I've come to help you through, uncle," declared Yancey cheerily. "I have a little money saved up. As soon as you get well and I can go to work, I can earn some more, and we're going to get on famously."

"You good fellow," murmured Uncle Peter brokenly, and with fervor, the tears sparkling in his eyes. "It has been light, fight, light, a great effort for the last five years and no result, and what I can leave you is a mere shell, for I have only a leasehold here. But I think in after years heaven will reward you for sacrificing your youth, work and comfort for a wretched old man who has no particular claim on you."

"Old," derided Yancey buoyantly. "Why, you're barely fifty. Wretched! I'll have you laughing like a girl child in a week. Chai—forget that your kindness gave me my start in life. Comfort—I'll soon have as much comfort as you could wish for in this roomy though neglected apartment."

And Yancey did. He set to work at once mending up old furniture, putting in new. A little amateur paperhanging, a rug, a two, some clean curtains and the sunshine began to stream brightly on the old man and his soul's vision expanded.

"I declare!" he spoke, one day, the first he had been able to sit up for a month. "I believe I'm going to cheat you out of being my niece's fool!"

"Hear!" chirped Yancey. "My partners will be. Uncle, and your partner? Why, today I made a contract that insures you twenty-five dollars a month indefinitely."

"You—what?" spluttered the bewildered Uncle Peter.

"Just what I said, I suppose I never strayed you. You see, this particular place, passed daily by fifty thousand suburban passengers, is really the best site for sign billboards company. They are going to cover all the vacant spaces with billboards. I have your contract and there is your first month's rent. Some business, don't you grand fellow? I'm glad the delighted Mr. Bond and took a new lease on life.

In fact, by the end of two months old Uncle Peter was able to get around quite easily. One day Yancey was walking across the vacant space, when a light building struck him, knocking him to the ground. He was lying on his back and felt the ground. He looked up. A lady's hand gently from the looked up. Leaning slightly from the upon winning the office of the plant was a beautiful young lady. "You're called down with a divine smile."

"You shall soon have it," replied Yancey and two minutes later he was around at the front of the plant and up its stairs. He found the manager of the building alone in a roomy office, plained, with a private secretary, who accidentally knocked the bag from the table. "This is a serious consultation," she said, "and you must sit down."

"Excuse me, sir," spoke Yancey, stepping forward with an apologetic gesture. "I have accidentally overheard your conversation with my nephew of Mr. Peter Bond, and as we are about closing a contract for the purchase of this building, I'll tell you the whole of it."

"The old man was well-nigh helpless and welcomed his nephew with a wan, but glad smile. 'You seem pretty well shut in here, uncle,' spoke Yancey. 'Progress, you see,' explained Mr. Bond, with a little smile in his tones. 'I've invested my all in this property and had it all rented. The railroad got the street condensed and cut off all the air.'"

FEATURE OF LARGE CITIES Apartment Houses With Flats That Can Be Converted to Several Lives Built.

Many builders of apartment houses in large cities are turning to structures composed exclusively of convertible apartments, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. By a convertible apartment is meant one in which a single room can be adapted to two or three uses by shifting the furniture or re-arranging the floor.

"I shall bring my promised wife to see the new home we are building," declared Yancey, six months later, and old Peter Bond felt that the joys of living were, indeed, complete.

Routine is a type of music substantially new in musical history. It has persisted, however, without official recognition or aid. You may take it as certain that if many millions of people had not been recognized by the schools, there is vitality in that thing. The attitude toward routine music at the beginning of the nineteenth century was very similar. A Russian folk-song was less scorned in the court of Catherine the Great than a ragtime song is now scorned in the court of our musical studies today.

A method of "aging" wine by Prof. electricity has been perfected by Prof. Henry of the Sorbonne, Paris, France, and is being successfully used in the Burgundy wine region of France. The process is said to impart to the wine some properties which they acquire by being kept for a year or more in cellars. A special receptacle fitted with a battery of 1000 cells and connected with two tubes which are charged with electric current. The result is that all the bacteria, ferments and impurities are destroyed. The maturation is complete in the tubes and is very rapid, stopped. The process is very rapid, and the cost is less than two cents per gallon. Storage in bottles with beer and other alcoholic drinks.

The process is said to impart to the wine some properties which they acquire by being kept for a year or more in cellars. A special receptacle fitted with a battery of 1000 cells and connected with two tubes which are charged with electric current. The result is that all the bacteria, ferments and impurities are destroyed. The maturation is complete in the tubes and is very rapid, stopped. The process is very rapid, and the cost is less than two cents per gallon. Storage in bottles with beer and other alcoholic drinks.

MINNESOTA GUARDSMEN PARTICIPATE IN ATLETTIC CONTESTS AT CAMP HONORS

GOPHERS WIN FIRST HONORS

State's Infantry Regiments Are Paraded as Brigade—Indians and Nebraskans Participate in Day's Review, Honors Go to Gophers.

Mercedes, Tex. There was no soldier for the Minnesota troops on the border last Friday. This, the first break in the routine since the war, was permitted, was held at a part of the extensive program of athletics made out for the men of the Brownville district by General Lewis. All day long, the men of the most of the fatigue work were suspended.

Events of distinctly military nature featured the day's sports. Interest centered in the wall sailing contest. Here the Nebraska and the Minnesota contest, blank cartridge and equipment races, and the competitive speed drill. In addition to this, there was a dash was included and boxing and wrestling bouts staged during the afternoon.

All the regiments in camp will hold programs and on August 30 an inter-regimental field day will be staged under the direction of General Lewis.

Gophers Win First Honors. For the first time in the review of the Minnesota brigade at the Shelling speedway fiasco, July 4, the three Infantry regiments of Minnesota were paraded again as a brigade, the review being in honor of Major General John F. O'Day, commander of the 1st Infantry of New York national guard stationed west of Llano Grande, and of Brigadier General Albert C. Smith, commander of the Brownville district, commandants from Indiana and Nebraska also participated in the day's review, but the honors easily went to the Minnesota troops.

Special Commendation. The 1st Infantry made the most pleasing appearance and E company of St. Paul, Captain Anderson commanding, and B company of Duluth, Captain Nelson commanding, were commended for their marching and general appearance.

Duluth Companies Praised. The Third regiment also made a hit with the spectators, especially A company, commanded by Captain McDevitt, and C company, commanded by Captain Nelson. Both are Duluth organizations.

First on Patrol Duty. The first battalion of the First Minnesota Infantry, comprising Company A and of Minneapolis and Company D of St. Paul, received orders from General Parker to be in readiness to leave Sunday for patrol duty along the Mexican border. The 1st Infantry Regiment, battalion will do patrol and outpost duty along a front of 12 miles extending from the Mercedes pumping station on the east to the Donna pumping station on the west, with battalion headquarters at Progreso.

The assignment of companies has not yet been definitely determined. Major Higbee said that the 1st Infantry Company A, Captain O. C. Miller, would be stationed at the Mercedes station, Company B, Captain J. P. McDevitt, at the Donna station, Company C, Captain E. O. Stenger at Progreso, and Company D, Captain H. B. Bannard, at Champton's store, directly south of Progreso.

These pumping stations are of first importance as they supply water for the Mercedes, Camp Llano Grande and New York troops camped at Donna. Progreso is a small town, but was the scene of a Mexican raid about a year ago. With the exception of Champton's store, these points have been entrenched.

Ready to Fight for Dog. There was no war with Mexico in the war future, but trouble between the United States and the First Infantry regiment is apt to start.

The Honorable regiment which is camped alongside the Minnesota troops, state a dog which was the mascot of the company from Anoka. It was company immediately left the camp to bring the dog back to the Minnesota regiment.

The expedition was successful, but the Indians men sent a courier to the Third Infantry saying they were coming to get the dog. They said they were men are waiting to give the Honorable the reception of their lives. Feet in Better Fix.

The First Minnesota Infantry has just completed its first inspection of the condition of the men's feet in 100 per cent better than at the first inspection. With three or four miles of walking daily in addition to the practice march every Friday foot rest is essential, and the last inspection of feet shows that the men are profiting by the suggestions made by medical officers for proper care of the feet.

Nearly every man in camp has shown a pair of regular army shoes and this has had a tendency to aid in the care of the feet. Some of the shoes issued the men at Camp Bolander were of the regular army shoe and they caused considerable soreness of the feet.

Medical officers in camp are elated at the splendid results achieved from the antipruritic treatment of the single case of typhoid has been reported in this camp of 10,000 men, and only one case has developed in the entire Southern frontier, numbering more than 100,000 men. In that case the man contracted the disease before he had completed his antipruritic treatment.

It would be interesting to compare this record with the typhoid record of 1886. In that year Minnesota State a number of men before the guard of the late camp. Lieutenant Dan Pettigrew, who is managing the First Infantry Regiment exchange, says he has made $200. Perhaps 40 per cent of this amount represents the daily profits, which are divided among the men having stock in the permit.

Want Dangerous Post. Military regulations permit the issuance of canteen checks to the extent of one-third of a soldier's pay. These are good of the regimental store, but every day the soldier has the value of his canteen checks taken from his money.

In the First Minnesota regiment about $3,000 worth of canteen checks has been issued to the men. Since Albert Bauman of B company was shot through the hand while on guard near the First regiment's picket line, men in every company of the First have asked to be placed on picket duty.

Cap in Mail Term. Chaplain Emery of the Third regiment, regimental postmaster, is very cautious when he begins distribution of mail.

The boys of the Third have returned from the Mexican border with a number of bugs caught in camp during the night, removing them next morning before the chaplain began his duties as postmaster.

The boys overlooked a bet one morning and the chaplain found a small snake in the post bag when he went to publish papers.

A woman should never go out walking in a driving rain.

EATING PAPER IS NOT HARD How Fanny Murray Outdid Fate of Von Der Gerst, the German Spy.

It is with a mitigated commiseration that one reads the story of how Von der Gerst, the German spy, finding himself recognized in Petrograd, was obliged to some hours eating two parcels of incriminating papers which he dare not burn or destroy.

As a feat of mastication, says the London Observer, Von der Gerst by no means holds the record. Paper is easily reduced to a pulp and swallowed (the ink acting as an appetizer), and the only difficulty in this case was the quantity. Leather is another matter, but apart from meals of hard-pressed explorers there are authenticated instances of men of the kind.

What may be described as a paper meal de luxe was that of the famous Fanny Murray mentioned by Horace Walpole. "I liked her spirit in an instance I heard of rather night. She was complaining of want of money. Richard Aldrich immediately gave her a £20 note. She said: 'Dipped it! What does it signify, clapped me between two pieces of bread and butter and ate it.'"
