Farm Mothers, What Kind of a House Do You Like?

Suppose you could have your new house built just as you want it—its shape, location, arrangement and everything just as you said; wouldn't you have a home in which you could be perfectly happy and just ENJOY the work and living every minute of the time?

You surely know, if any one does, how a farm house should be arranged to make it a real home, and don't you and your family really need such a home "right now"?

Why not talk it over with father and the children, and then let us put your ideas on paper.

Let us put your ideas on paper. This won't obligate you to build, but we are sure that when you see your own home on paper you will easily see where you can save time, money, health and increase your happiness by making the home real.

We will make no charge for this service of helping you get your ideas into plan form and if you build, we will furnish a set of blue prints free with the material.

Farm homes should be the most perfect, models of convenience, comfort and attractiveness, and we believe that farm mothers should have their home ideas built into the homes in which they live and work. Let us make plans of YOUR home.

JOHNSON ANSWERS MCGEE

Judge McGee of Minneapolis, a member of the State Safety Commission but acting in this case as an individual, recently made certain statements before a Congressional committee at Washington, reflecting on the patriotism of the Swedish people of Minnesota in the present national crisis. (Hon. Victor L. Johnson of Center City, formerly state senator from this district, takes up the cudgel in behalf of his nationality and writes an open letter to the Judge, the closing paragraphs of which are particularly pertinent.)

The editor of The Pine Poker feels that he knows the Swedish race very thoroughly, and he confesses to a great, lifelong admiration for the nationality. He has always found them—particularly the older generations—answering to the right prevail. Slow to be convinced, they are not given as a rule to chasing rainbows very far, and they will eventually smother the man who misleads them.

Mr. Johnson's letter follows:—
My Dear Judge McGee:—In your argument before a congressional committee at Washington recently, you made a very unfortunate statement, which deeply wounded hundreds of thousands of the most loyal citizens of Swedish parentage in the northwest. I refer to the statement that the chief element of the northwest was mainly German-Swedish.

Of Swedish descent were thus hypheated in a manner which was very unjust. Chicago county, for instance, is the typical Swedish county in America. Its percentage of Swedish population is the highest in the Union. I confidently make the assertion that in point of loyalty it is second to none in America. On the very day of the declaration of war against Germany 85 young men left the county. Naval volunteers, nearly all of Swedish descent. Since then one of the hardest tasks of our local board has been to turn down the number of applicants who have wanted to leave for service before their turn. In our village of Center City there are four Swedes, three of whom are of Swedish parentage.

In the village of Lindstrom is a Lutheran congregation using the English language exclusively. Its membership is almost entirely of Swedish descent. It has about 200 members, counting men, women and children. This congregation has 30 or 32 boys in active service, mostly volunteers. I confidently challenge any congregation in the United States, Protestant, Catholic or Jewish, to show a roll of honor equal to ours. Fifteen per cent of its total membership is now in active service in the Army and Navy, many of them in France. Center City, a village of 250, raised $1,000 in 15 minutes for Red Cross work. This village has doubled its quota in all three Liberty Loans. It is true that some Swedish-Lutheran ministers have been slow to realize their duty. One of these in our county deliberately omitted that clause in the general prayer asking blessing on our army and navy. He is now out of the county, invited to leave, by his Swedish members. Disloyalists scarce now.

But even these men are scarce now. The great majority are absolutely loyal. They are beginning to see that the Kaiser is not a Christian. He never once mentions the name of the Prince of Peace, the gentle Nazarene. They see that when the occasion requires it, this monster don the Mohammedan uniform to make the Turk believe he belongs to their religion. They see that he gives freedom to the unrepentant Turk to annihilate the entire Armenian Christian nation. They realize at last that the Kaiser is the arch-enemy of all history.

The natural instinct of the Swedish citizen is for justice and equality. It is therefore the first victim of the seeming demagogue and the leeches of humanity who understand his psychology and make use of his natural instinct for their own selfish purposes. A skunk named Brown pulled off some meetings in this county early in the war in which he poisoned the minds of many honest citizens. The skunk is now serving a three-year term in Leavenworth. He had conducted one meeting in a socialist community. Let us be fully understood that James A. Peterson is not of Swedish descent. Peterson had understanding the Swedish psychology has done a lot of harm among our well-meaning people in his due course of duty. But the disillusionment will come and they will turn against him and destroy him. His reaction is even now settling in.

The kind of the Swedish citizen may at times waver, but he won't. He will use the truth, and then only if it will do the deceiver and the deceiver will receive their reward. Sincerely yours, —Victor L. Johnson.

Know that many, many absolutely honest, patriotic people in this region have joined the Non-Partisan League and realizing the deep seated misunderstanding that is being created between this organization and loyal citizens who are not enrolled in its membership and do not believe that this is in any time to press the purposes of The League, we have at times wondered whether common ground for a better general understanding could not be reached, letting it run its course, unhindered and unopposed. To this we have had one excellent reply by a citizen of Rock Creek: "It is true that many loyal men are enrolling in The League—so are all the disloyal ones. The League, when it came into this region, after the declaration of war by Our Country, held its first meetings at Dale in Chicago county, where not one single American flag was in sight, where an insulting "peace" banner was stretched across the road, where there were preached the doctrines of opposition to the selective draft, to the sale of Liberty bonds, to the Red Cross and to every department of Governmental efforts in the prosecution of the war against autocracy and militarism. And if this policy and this disposition had been condemned—if those who are opposed to this way of doing had laid down with their paws in the air—the radical element would today have been more rampant than ever and we would have been enervated in their power." And more than suspect that the Rock Creeker was right.

High Cattle Prices Accompany High Beef Prices

If consumers are to pay less for beef, live-stock raisers naturally will receive less for cattle.

If farmers are paid more for live stock, consumers will necessarily pay more for meat.

Swift & Company pays for cattle approximately 90 per cent of the price received for beef and by-products. The remaining 10 per cent pays for dressing, freight to market, operation of distributing houses, and in most cases, delivery to the retailer. Net profits also have to come out of this 10 per cent.

This margin cannot be squeezed arbitrarily without danger of crippling the only effective means of performing the complex service of converting cattle into meat and distributing this meat to the fighting forces and to consumers.

Swift & Company's net profit on a beef during 1917 was only 1/4 of a cent per pound. On all products, it was a little less than four cents on a nation of these profits would not affect appreciably retail prices of meat or farm prices of live stock.

Swift & Company will be glad to co-operate in devising methods that will improve conditions in the meat and live stock industry.

O'Donohue home, north of Pokegama lake, last week Tuesday.

Everyone should see "The Poor Man's" at the Fritzen school house on Saturday evening of this week. Every cent he can earn will be divided between the Red Cross and the school. They say he is "rich" in fun and good times.

Many from this region are planning to attend the Red Cross auction at Pine City on Saturday afternoon of this week. The list of articles to be sold, which is published in this issue, contains articles of every kind—and every purchase boosts for the Red Cross. Our people have contributed liberally of articles to be sold.

The town board met last week Wednesday to assist in the work on the north end of the town road between Pokegama and Chongwatana towns, but the bids made were all so high that they refused to accept them and decided to do the work by day labor under the direction of overseer Ed Kruse who has already begun work, we understand.

The county commissioners were out Tuesday, with the exception of Mr. Elin, to look over the bridge across Pokegama creek for the Parolee. The new is admittedly needed. The board finally gave instructions to Engineer Buckley to take the matter up with the state highway commission to determine the kind of bridge necessary and reasonable for the location.

Z. L. Wheeler returned, Duesbury, from Cedar Falls, Ia., Mrs. Wheeler and Mrs. Gardner returned from their visit in that region whither they took the body of Mrs. Wheeler's mother for burial, last week. At the same hour that Mrs. Wheeler's funeral sermon was being preached here, a like ceremony was being performed over the remains of Mrs. Wheeler's sister at her Iowa home and, while away, the folks also attended the funeral of his aunt at Marshalltown, Iowa. The sympathy of all in the folks in this region is theirs in their numerous sorrows.

The contract for the new Pokegama town hall was let by the town board, last Saturday, to the Parolee Lumber company, of Pine City, who were the low bidders at $1,855. The building is to be 30x60 feet with a hump roof and will not be covered inside. It will be located on a little more than half an acre of land donated for the purpose by Z. L. Wheeler at the corner where his property and the Fritzen property reach the lake. C. E. Gustafson will be chief mechanic for the successful bidders and work will probably begin the first of October. It is hoped to have the building complete by June 17, when the primaries will be held but the contract gives a month's leeway.

The Pokegama town board met on the work near the Snake river bridge last Saturday, and accepted the job completed by Messrs. Stumme, Kendall and Tucker. The contract price was $700, of which the city merchants contributed $400, leaving the town only $300 to put into the improvement. It now only remains for Royaton town to do its share to give Pokegama town farmers on the west side of the lake a direct outlet to their county seat and their natural trading center, a matter that is of great interest and should prove of great importance to them. The county board, at its meeting this week gave Royaton $35,000 out of the estimated cost—$100,000—for their work and we understand they will build their road across Keel slough at once.

Mrs. Carrie Wilke passed away suddenly at 9 o'clock last Wednesday forenoon as the result of heart failure. The remains were taken to St. Paul the following day, funeral service being held at her home at Pine City at 8:30 Sunday morning, followed by public services in St. Mathews church and interment in Calvary cemetery. Mrs. Wilke was seriously burned on April 4 by her clothing catching on fire and she was confined to her bed since that time. Her wounds were healing satisfactorily, however, and she was considered as progressing satisfactorily and came almost without warning. Mrs. Wilke was about 66 years of age and had resided at the lake for about 15 years, during which time her hotel had been a refuge of rest for hundreds from the cities and all over the northwest. She will be greatly missed by residents of this region for she was a generous and hospitable lady.

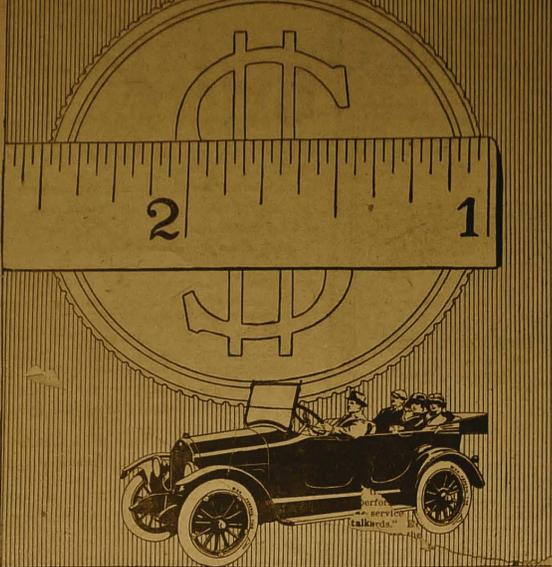

East of Pine City
Miss Emma Ruby expects to go to work the last of the week at J. D. McKay's at Rock Creek.

Allan Lindquist, who recently enlisted in the naval service and is taking training at the Dunwoody institute, Minneapolis, was home for Sunday.

Mrs. Chas Johnson and two children, who have been spending a couple of months at the home of her parents, the John Lindquists, while Mr. Johnson moved the family goods from Minneapolis to Wichita, Kan., left for that place to make their future home, last Sunday.

Remember the meeting to be held in the Pine town hall, the coming Sunday afternoon, May 21st, at 8 o'clock. Welcome H. Bradley of Minneapolis, state agent of the humane society, will speak as well as others. The St. Croix band will play and the Pine City high school quartet will sing.

S. O. Brekke and Ole Herrod, who have rented the Pangel well drilling outfit, have put down wells for Mr. Brekke and Jonas Lindquist, getting 6 1/2 feet of water in a 102 foot well at the former place and 8 feet in a 62 foot well at Lindquist's. They will also drill for Herbert Morrison, Ole Nordrum and S. O. Brekke.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira C. Holt entertained their friends on Monday evening, at their wedding anniversary. Music for the evening was furnished by Mr. Del Carrier, John Bevar and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cutler.

The meeting in the Pine town hall, last Saturday evening, was attended by about 50 people and an excellent program was listened to. G. A. Robinson from south of town presided. Mr. Corwin, manager of the county farm bureau, made a fine talk along the lines of cooperation, farm clubs and general farm topics. Assistant Co. Supt. of Schools Miller talked on the need of exerting every effort of the agricultural people to assist the government in the prosecution of its war aims. Mr. Ayres from south of town presided. The list of articles to be sold, which is published in the paper, contains articles of every kind—and every purchase boosts for the Red Cross. Our people have contributed liberally of articles to be sold.

A farewell party was given last Thursday evening in the town hall in honor of Wayne Nichols, who left Pine City with the county contingent the following day. A purse of $11 was presented to him by his home friends. Altho "Tommy," as he is always called, will be greatly missed among his hosts of friends. We know we are sending a boy that will do his best for his country and we all wish him good luck.

The "White Elephant" sale held in the town hall, April 20th, by the Farmers' club proved a grand success, about $112 being netted from the proceeds of the sale, largely owing to the untiring efforts of Wm. Von Bush who was supported loyally by all our folks. Mr. Corwin, agent of the county farm bureau, gave a very interesting speech as did also Mr. Ayres and Asst. Co. Supt. Miller of Pine City. The same evening Alma Schulze gave a basket social and dance in the hall, where about 47 was taken in, which goes to the Pine City Red Cross.

Pine City School News
Contributed by Senior class
Frank Babcock has been teaching at the Demonstration school the last two weeks.

The Normal department has been invited to attend the picnic at the Demonstration school, the last day of school, Friday, May 3rd.

In previous years the Athletic association has given to each Senior boy who has been in the organization for a certain number of years, a suit. This has proven very expensive so this year letters will be given instead.

Our boys will meet the Hincley team on the base ball diamond at the fair grounds tomorrow—Friday—in the first game of the season. Game will start at 6:30 p. m. sharp and Pine City rosters ought to be there in force to cheer our boys on to victory.

Some of the Seniors are already preparing their parts for graduation. Carol St. Germaine will give the class poem, Herbert Anderson the class history, Theresa Mavis the valedictory speech and Faith Pennington on the salutatory speech. Other parts have not yet been assigned.

The high school orchestra met a very warm reception at Granston, where they gave a concert for the benefit of the Red Cross, last Friday evening. They enjoyed a large audience and were heartily applauded, the Granston Red Cross benefited materially. Miss Frances Crowley was suffering from liberty measles at the time and was unable to go but her place in the orchestra and on the program was filled by Prof. Boyle. The orchestra will play a concert at Rush City for the benefit of their Red Cross, tomorrow—Friday—evening.

The Woman Hater

He Was Suddenly Cured of His Prejudice

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Jim Hudson laughed uproariously when Ramsey told him about it. "My dear Peter," exclaimed the light hearted youth when he had caught his breath, "you of all men to be appointed guardian pro tem. of a young and lovely girl! She is young and lovely, I suppose? Why didn't they pick out some woman to send her to, ah?"

"They did," said Ramsey, red-dening. "They wrote to my cousin, Mrs. Ferris, whom they knew for years before they went to China, that they were sending the girl to her for a year's visit. It seems she needed a change of air, and Cousin Mary had invited her. Then after the girl sailed my cousin, as you know, died suddenly, and it was only while I was looking into her papers that I learned the girl was coming—in fact, was on the way. There are no other women in my family to send her to, and I have no friends to call upon in such an emergency."

"That comes of being an arrant woman hater," said Hudson heart-lessly. "What are your ideas as to do about the matter?"

"What I'll do is connect and send her to the Young Women's Chris-tian association, I guess. I've called to her parents telling them of the situation and asking—for in-structions."

Mr. Hudson howled joyfully. "Did you tell them you were young and handsome and a rich bachelor to boot?" he chuckled.

"Scarcely room for all that in a cable, you know," returned Ramsey modestly. "Joking aside, Jim, I don't know what to do. You see, the girl was to visit Cousin Mary when she reached San Francisco, saying what train she would take for New York. I've got to meet that train."

"Lucky you," murmured Mr. Hudson enviously. "Nobody ever intrusted me with a young and lovely daughter. Heard from them yet?"

"No. Expect a cable any moment. They're missionaries, you know."

"Which accounts for their child-like trust in?" Mr. Hudson never finished the sentence, for at that instant a servant brought a cable, gram to his friend. Ramsey tore it open and read aloud:

Dear Cousin for later simpson! Ramsey never understood why this brief message should send Jim Hudson into another paroxysm of laughter. He stared at his friend with rising indignation. "I say, old man," he protested, "there's no need to make quite a fool of your-self, you know. The young lady is in something of a fix, and she will be all broken up over Cousin Mary's death. Just advise me, Jim; there's a good fellow. It will be all right to send her to the Y. W. A., pending her father's letter of instruc-tions, won't it?"

Hudson's face sobered. "Just the same, Peter. Why don't you go and engage a suit for her? Then you can take her there as soon as she arrives."

"I'll do that now," said Ramsey, relieved. "I'm watching out for Miss Simpson's message to my cousin. It will be sent down to me here from the house."

The message came next day. It was addressed to Mrs. Ferris, and, according to Peter's instructions, it had been sent down to his office. It was brief.

"I'll arrive New York Thursday on time, and at 9 p. m."

Peter Ramsey, bereft of all his own womankind and very shy where others were concerned, felt a pleas-ant little tingle in the intimacy of the signature even if it had not been intended for him.

It was 5 o'clock on Thursday when Peter Ramsey reached the Central station. He had dressed himself with unusual care and had busied to detect himself hesitating over the choice of a hat.

Just as the hatless came hissing to a standstill Jim Hudson burst into view. His eyes met Ramsey's, and then together they walked to- ward the platform toward the crowd that was pouring from the gate.

It was Ramsey who saw her first, stepping like a young goddess, her lovely eyes meeting vainly for a familiar face and finally meeting his in bewilderment. She was the most exquisite creature Peter Ram- sey had ever seen. He drew a sharp breath and instantly forgot his dil- lected. He was reminded of this wonderfully beautiful girl.

"Here she is, Jim," he said, draw- ing his way toward the girl. He supposed she thinks the mistress on a street with her name."

"Now, Mrs. Ray," said the lawyer sharply.

"I'll take the money," said Peter miserably, the tears starting and mud- dling the winking creature, and then, with a gasp, he saw a hidden face.

Some one looked at the work table, but he saw a hunched and bent in back. There was the woman hater.

He work table and chose a patent rocker because the covering was red. Jane Morris fidgeted impatiently while they were choosing. At last her turn came.

"I wanted that Morris chair," she said bitterly, "but as it's gone I'll have to take the work table, al- though I've got one already." She looked contemptuously at the re- maining article, a small round cherry stand.

"Now, Miss Thomazine," encour- aged the lawyer.

"I'll take the stand," said Thom- asine loftily.

"Now, the other things. Mrs. Squires, your turn again."

"The marble clock," said Ann promptly. Jane and Fanny ex- changed smiles.

"The vases," said Fanny Ray.

"Lamp," said George Giles.

Luke Howe smirked at his reflec- tion in the looking glass and said he'd take that, much to Jane Mor- ris' chagrin.

"Androns," she snapped vicious- ly, "though I don't want 'em."

"I'll take the parrot," faltered Thomazine as each one arose and began to investigate his or her es- pecial choice. They were not un- kind people, but each one was un- consciously greedy of gain and none of them realized that the youngest cousin was poor and that the inheritance that had fallen to her share was the poorest of the lot.

After the dusting with bright beam- made and they had got over their disappointment at there being no money they would forget all un- friendliness and perhaps invite Thomazine to spend vacations with them.

They parted later, and the next morning Thomazine went home and back to work. Ten days later the legacy came by express—the cherry stand and the stuffed parrot on his perch. Thomazine placed the par- rot on the stand and stood them near the marble clock, and when she saw the green parrot sitting on the perch he stared angrily and flew at the unoffending bird. When Thomazine ran to the scene the floor was covered with bright feath- ers and the stuffing was protruding from the body of the bird. The cat, chagrined at this one sided battle, retired to a corner and washed his face.

Thomazine picked up the body of the bird and wondered if she might not repair the damage with needle and thread and glue. Then her eyes opened wider and wider, for the stuffing of the parrot was com- posed of tight wads and rolls of greenbacks, and twisted among them was a queer little note from Aunt Lucia.

"Dear Thomazine—I know they'll all pick out the best and leave poor Polly to me so I have made him worth while after all. You need not mind, and I say, old man, without having any dispute over it. Mr. Rhodes knows, and you mustn't tell anybody but your husband. If you ever have one, but I don't see how you ever can, handpicking with that creature name With Aunt Lucia's love."

Through her tears Thomazine counted the money and found there was $5,000, and her worn little face was glorified by a smile of perfect relief. Now she could close her sewing machine and buy a farm and raise chickens!

As a beginning she closed the machine with a loud clat- ter. Then she looked the strange cat and adopted him on the spot and thereafter he waxed fat and lazy and never even blinked at the young chickens that ran about Thomazine's poultry farm.

And Thomazine never told a soul about the strange way her legacy had come to her until after she was married, and then she told her hus- band, for of course she got married.

She Wouldn't Make Trouble. She was rich out of three trouble making women. In fact, she had the greatest contempt for people of that kind. She said so herself.

"And she spoke of you, too," she said in telling a friend of a call.

"What did she say?"

"Oh, I'd rather not tell you, dear. There's no use making trouble, you know."—Chicago Post.

Reason to Cleave. "Why do you wish to close this show?" demanded the beautiful ac- tress.

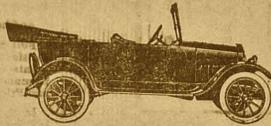

"It's losing money," replied the manager.

"What of that? The critics all say that I look lovely in my part!"—Chicago Herald.

Overstrenuous Poetry. Many people suppose that poetry is something to be found only in books, contained in lines of ten syl- lables with life ending. But where- over there is a sense of beauty or power or harmony, as in the motion of a wave of the sea, in the growth of a flower that spreads its sweet leaves to the air and dedicates its beauty to the sun—there is poetry in the heart.—Herald.

The Bar to Lord Holland. Among the qualifications of a cabinet minister discretion ranks high. Lord Brouncker took to his chary a truce between Lady Holland and Lord John Russell. The former asked the latter why Lord Hol- land was excluded from office. "If you must know," said Lord John Russell, "because no man will act in a cabinet with a person whose wife opens the letter."

Any maker may claim for his product all the qualities there are. That is his privilege. He may even think his claims are justified.

You read the advertisements, so you know that makers, as a rule, are not over modest in that regard.

If you believe them all, they all make super-cars.

In your experience, that theory doesn't hold.

Maxwell is different.

We never claim anything we cannot prove.

As a matter of fact we never have claimed anything for this Maxwell that has not already been proved in public test and under official observation.

Maxwell claims are not therefore claims in the ordinary sense—they are state-ments of fact—proven facts.

They are, in every case, matters of official record attested under oath.

For example! The famous 22,000-mile Non-Stop run was made with the Maxwell every minute under observation of the A. A. officials.

That still remains a world's record—the world's record of reliability.

That particular test proved about all that anyone could ask or desire of a motor car.

Among other things it still stands the world's long distance speed record.

Just consider—44 days and nights without a stop, at an average speed of 25 miles per hour!

And that, not by a $2,000 car, but by a stock model Maxwell listing at $825.

You will recall perhaps that a famous high powered, high priced six in a trans-continental trip made 28 miles average over a period of five days and eleven hours.

Now compare those two feats—one of less than six days, the other of 44 days. You know automobiles—which was the greater test?

Is there any comparison on grounds either of speed or endurance?

Proves you don't need to pay more than $825 to obtain all the qualities you can desire in a motor car—if you select a Maxwell.

For that Maxwell Non-Stop run was made, not on a track but over rough country roads and through city traffic—average of all kinds of going.

And—listen to this.

So certain were we of the condition of the Maxwell at the end of that great feat, we announced that at the stroke of eleven on a certain morning, the car would stop in front of the City Hall, Los Angeles, for the Mayor to break the seal.

Five seconds after he had pulled the switch plug and stopped the motor after the 44 days and nights continuous running, she was started again and off on a thousand mile jaunt to visit various Maxwell dealers.

How is that for precision—certainty of action? That incident brought a storm of applause from the assembled thousands.

Hill climbing?—this Maxwell holds practically every record worth mentioning—especially in the West where the real hills are.

The Mount Wilson record—nine and one-half miles, 6,000 feet elevation!—was taken by a stock Maxwell.

Two months ago a 12-cylinder car beat that record by two minutes.

Then—three days later—a stock Maxwell went out and beat that 12-cylinder record by thirty seconds! Pretty close going for such a distance and such a climb—wasn't it?

So Maxwell still holds the Mount Wilson honors.

Ready to defend it against all comers, too, at any time—a stock Maxwell against any stock or special chassis.

Economy—also a matter of official record.

Others may claim—Maxwell proves.

Thousands of Maxwell owners throughout the United States on the same day averaged 29.4 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Not dealers or factory experts, mind you, but owners—thousands of them—driving their own Maxwells.

Nor were they new Maxwells—the contest was made by 1915, 16, and 17 models, many of which had seen tens of thousands miles of service—three years' use.

Nor could they choose their own road or weather conditions—all kinds were encountered in the various sections of the country.

Good roads and bad—level country and mountainous regions—heat and cold—sunshine and rain—aspalt and mud.

And the average was 29.4 miles per gallon!

There's economy for you. And under actual average driving conditions—not laboratory test.

But that isn't all.

The greatest achievement of this Maxwell was in its showing of speed and reliability and economy all in the same run.

In that 44 days-and-nights Non-Stop run, though no thought was given to either speed or economy, it still remains a fact of official record that the Maxwell averaged 22 miles per gallon and 25-miles per hour.

Now you know that speed costs—and that economy tests are usually made at slow-speed—closed-throttle, thin-mixture conditions.

You know too that you can obtain economy of fuel by building and adjusting for that one condition.

Speed you can get by building for speed. Any engineer can do that.

But to obtain that combination of speed and economy with the wonderful reliability shown in that 44-days Non-Stop run—that car must be a Maxwell.

Gummed stamps. The inventor of the gummed stamp was a Scotchman, James Chalmers of Dundee, who in 1834 suggested the use of adhesive tape. He was much ridiculed, especially by doctors, who said the proposed stick stamps would spread disease. The postoffice gave no serious attention to the proposal until 1841.

Education. The real object of education is to give children resources that will endure as long as life endures; habits that time will ameliorate, not destroy; occupations that will render sickness tolerable, solitude pleasant, age venerable; life more dignified and useful, death less terrible.—Sydney Smith.
