April 5, 1917

Mr. Wm. D. Hayward, 164 W. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Fellow Worker: - Have just returned from Des Moines, Iowa, and am very glad to be able to report that all of the cases there are disposed of favorably and the boys at liberty.

My expenses for the trip were $34.50 and if you will send me check for that it will clean the matter up.

How are you coming with the Minnesota proposition. I hope you don't start anything until the year has expired. This damned war business is going to be a hard one to get out of.

Have you heard from Pennsylvania with Powers of Attorney?

Yours for industrial freedom,

ARTHUR LE SUEUR

AUSTRIAN PEACE BID IS PROMPTLY TURNED DOWN

Secretary Lansing Hands American Reply to the Swedish Minister.

INCIDENT IS CLOSED

Conference Proposal Refused Is Cabled at Once to Stockholm for Transmission to Vienna.

Washington, Sept. 19.—So far as the American government is concerned, Austria's peace offensive is a closed incident.

Secretary Lansing sent to the Swedish minister the note authorizing President Wilson's reply rejecting in two short sentences the proposal of the Austrian government for a secret and non-binding peace discussion. It was started on the cables at once for transmission to Stockholm by the foreign office at Stockholm.

The president's action, including the prompt granting of the reply and the proposal was which it was delivered, drew expressions of approval everywhere in Washington. At the capital, among officials and throughout the Allied diplomatic corps, similar responses from the other nations at war with Germany are expected to follow quickly.

"Both Wise and Right" Says Lodge in the Senate. Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader and the ranking minority member of the foreign relations committee, voiced the feelings of Congress on the subject in a prepared speech highly approving the President's course as both wise and right.

On the House side Representative Frank of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Congressional committee, spoke in approval, declaring that the quick reply meant "an open diplomatic war, but is justified as a rebuke to the double dealing of our enemy."

Unmistakable rejections of the Austrian offer from all the Allies will be in accordance with the policy which has governed the Allied powers to speak with one voice in the expression of the individual aims and views of the separate states.

Aircraft Service Requires Many Men of Draft Age. Enlistment Rolls Have Been Opened for Pilots, Observers and Mechanics.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The war department announced that production of aircraft and motors and the training of the aircraft personnel are now so well advanced that additional pilots, observers and mechanics are needed.

To procure these men the air service collecting plans have been prepared. Candidates are now being opened for voluntary induction of most of draft age.

Since last March no civilians have been accepted for aviation schools, but it was announced that the fast moving operation of air squadrons, planes, motors and materials, together with the completion of 25 flying field, 1,200 de Havilland planes, 6,000 Liberty motors, 1,800 training planes and 12,000 training engines has allowed all of the 6,000 prospective fliers enrolled last year, as well as a number of others, to be taken from the ranks to receive training at the flying schools.

KAISER FORCED TO SCREAM

Secretary Daniels Says Allied Victories Hurt Him.

Annapolis, Sept. 19.—Austria's peace conference with Germany's peace offer to Belgium and the "scream of the Kaiser at Essen" were all due directly to the Allied military victories, Secretary Daniels said at the graduation of 646 cadets from the naval academy.

THE PINE POKER

Published every Thursday at Pine City, Minnesota. HOWARD FOLSON, Editor and Mgr. Entered as second class matter at Post Office at Pine City, Minnesota. Subscription Price $1.50 Per Year THURSDAY, SEPT. 19, 1918

A subscriber inquires from The Pine Poker whether automobiles may be used in driving to church on Sunday without infringing on the Sunday gasoline regulation. Our understanding is that the government's request was to discontinue the use of all gasoline burning vehicles or boats except those of doctors, peace officers, undertakers or others performing an absolutely necessary duty for the public. We believe in churches and in going to church but don't see where the use of an auto for that purpose would constitute a necessity—people used to go to church before they had any automobiles, and attended more generously in those days than they do now. President Wilson has set an example by walking to church—of course he has not as far as go to as, but he has further than others. If the bars were let down on driving to church, we fear that some Pine county folks might feel impelled to attend church at St. Paul every Sunday. It is entirely a request, however—there are no orders—and the only way to enforce it is by massing public opinion and public exposure back of it, and we presume that, if the public were convinced that any certain mode could be made a better Christian and better patriotic and citizen by allowing him to auto to church instead of requiring him to drive a horse or walk, they would have no objection.

The Pine Poker hasn't much interest in the "middleman" question that is so much touted by the Socialists. For we believe that he is a necessity and here to stay, though we would rather see everyone a producer—a tiller of the soil or a workman in a factory if we had any faith in the possibility of the plan. But it does strike us as a first class farce to see those Northern men who are down on the middleman, pick up Dave Evans of Glouster as their candidate for governor—Dave Evans, the hardware merchant and money lender, who is supposed to have made a million dollars out of milking the farmer, "coming and coming." And it looks equally like a farce to see Mr. Evans, himself, criticize the country to which he came as a poor young man and in which he has been able to acquire even a million dollars. It strikes us that the Nonpartisan management (Downey and his advisors) don't care whom they select for their standard bearer so long as they raise hell and defeat Governor Burnquist, and it also looks to us as though Dave Evans would rather be governor than be right.

Governor Burnquist's address at the fair grounds, last Saturday afternoon, was a characteristic expression—straight from the shoulder, free from "jolly," plainly stated and intended to carry conviction to fair minded, thinking folks. It was unfortunate that some of those who are "on the other side of the fence" failed to listen to all that he said. All of the Governor's statements are easily proved—for instance, on the first page of this issue we reproduce a letter written by Arthur LeSeuer, secretary of the Nonpartisan League, which shows LeSeuer to be all that the Governor said he was—and then some. We are sorry that we cannot reproduce the address in these columns for it was absolutely sound and carried conviction to many. It made many friends for Governor Burnquist in this region.

Our Government, which exposed Germany's attempt to array Mexico and Japan in war against the United States and which published the proof of German lying and intrigue in this country, has now given to the world the final proof of Germany's outright parasitism for gold of Lenin and Trotsky in Russia and her ruthless demoralization of civilization in that country. Germany's hand, wherever it falls, is a blight. It cannot be treated with; it must be wiped clean.

The recognition of the Czechoslovak nation by the United States was also the final proof of Germany's loss of the "self determination

Since war industries are using great quantities of acetic acid, the acid present in vinegar, in the manufacture of airplane wings and in many other ways in munitions work, the demand for the commercial vinegar plants renders the making of vinegar in the home more important than ever before.

The directions given below are for making vinegar on a small scale for household use. While the principle is the same in manufacturing on a commercial scale, different methods are employed in handling large quantities.

The symptoms were unmistakable. Pains shot up my back and through my knees, and I felt as though I was crawling. I felt as weak as, but more helpless than, a kitten.

"I got home from the office—and I don't know how I managed to crawl there—my whole body was one large ache. My wife rushed to meet me at the gate."

"Jack's come home on leave, dear," she said, throwing her arms around my neck in a burst of joy. "He got four weeks' leave. But it's simple grippe!" (Jack is our soldier boy.)

I didn't like to do so, but on the grounds of expediency I gently but firmly pushed her up.

"Be careful, old girl," I explained. "I've got it!"

"I'm glad to see you're all right," she said, but my watery eyes told her I meant it, and I slipped her arm in mine to help me up the path. I was glad of her assistance, for I was shivering over and over with cold. "I've got it," she said, "but it's simple grippe!"

Best Antidote for Cares and Worries Found in the Solitude of the Wilderness.

What medicine in the quietude of nature? After a day of feverish struggle to make the discords of human endeavor harmonious with the earth's aspirations for tranquility and peace go into a bit of natural woods bordering a calm, shaded stream. Let the twilight silence listen to the innumerable whisperings of the leaves. Stretch your body on the green sward and with an ear to the earth note the quick bursting of the roots of those twilight blades through the compressed ground. Catch the quick changes of light and shadow of the breeze-stirred branches overhead. Half over the water a swallow darts and whistles. A gleam of faith, against a tender sky. The waters lap the shore with accents of thought. Cool soft winds steal through your hair and across your cheek like the fingers of great compassion, gone before.

In such sweet solitude all cares and worries fall into forgetfulness and their places are filled with gentle brotherhood and kind reassurances. The harsh sounds of the busy day assault the ear with their disturbing presence. Nature is the only actor in this lovely scene and her movements are full of gentle grace, all her sounds accord, one with the other, cheer, joy and peace. The world of sweet sounds that win your whole being to their melodious flow.

Here you become one with the expanding sky, the reflecting water, the calm trees, the playful grasses. Something liberal takes possession of your heart and mind and soul and you are kindlyness grows within. Humanity is softly transmuted into an essence of brotherhood. No longer is the material, your senses go. The eye of the mind beholds a universe of quiet cheer, joy and peace.

Nature has wrought a world of quiet cheer, joy and peace. The eye of the mind beholds a universe of quiet cheer, joy and peace.

Take a big tablespoon. Place in it about three-fourths of an ounce of butter and about one-sixth of an ounce of glucose, together with slightly less than half an ounce of ice cream. Scrape the contents of the spoon, and wash them down with milk of a quantity just under a pint.

"American people do not begin to eat enough dairy products for their own good. Let's get together, produce the very best goods possible and then start such a well-organized campaign of education that all may have the correct knowledge of milk value. Nature's Chosen Food.

Mothers Nature gave milk and milk products to the world. She supplies milk to the helpless infant, struggling for strength, and as well to the old-fashioned farmer who feeds his cow.

The value of milk as a producer of health and strength is recognized everywhere, but despite this the quantity of milk and milk products available daily for the average inhabitant of this country would be far less than enough to meet the specifications for a good square meal with round corners.

Granted that some people drink a quart or two of milk each day, far more than three-fourths of an ounce of butter on their hot biscuits or toast or fried potatoes or whatnot, eat twenty or more times as much cheese as is coming to them on the basis of averages, and are regular patrons of the ice cream parlor, still the quantity of milk and milk products available daily for the average inhabitant of this country would be far less than enough to meet the specifications for a good square meal with round corners.
