Pine Lake, leaders of the Eastern Minnesota Base Ball League were the opponents of Rock Creek last Sunday and when they left for home, they were still leading the list, with Rock Creek occupying the same position at the bottom of the league.

Rattnerman was on the mound for Rock Creek and pitched good ball but lack of support and poor base running cost him the game. Pine Lake had got a bunch of good ball players and play a consistent game of ball.

LIKE A BANK For your Grain.

There is little difference between a dollar in money and a dollar's worth of grain.

Yet many farmers, who keep their money in massive stone banks where they know it will be safe, keep their grain in old and wasteful granaries.

Did you ever stop to think that every golden grain of wheat, oats, barley, or corn means so much toward your income?

Don't waste your money any longer by thinking that you can store small grains in a crib built for ear corn. Your granary must have tight walls and floors and be strong and durable.

We can help you build a granary that will increase your yearly profits.

Come in soon and we'll talk more about granaries.

The Value of Patriotism

When the Fourth of July comes around, talk about patriotism, the patriotic and socialists frequently say this is an old fashioned ideal and that it cannot give way to internationalism and love of humanity everywhere.

The human mind, however, is so constituted that it needs more definite and nearby objects to arouse its better sentiments. You can persuade a man to make sacrifices by showing him what his country stands for. In loyal response to the noble deeds of his forefathers, he can be invited to give his effort or his life to the common cause.

Patriotism is the mother of many virtues. When you get a good patriot, you find that he who takes broad view of life, who is willing to sacrifice for the common good. His spirit of cooperation is so developed, that he will usually do more for humanity the world over than a man who has nursed the misty dreams of internationalism. Let us do our utmost to make sure that every young person brought up in Pine City goes out into life a good patriot.

The Wealth of a Smiling Face

Did you ever think of the magic that lurks in the peasant's smile? Hain't you seen the disguise the traitor that comes to us once in a while?... Why, it even disgusts suspicion—it comforts an rescuer, all there's many a painful condition, that we know if speedily cures.

The baby smiles at her kitten—in a minute it starts to purr. The feller is seldom bitten that smiles at the angry cur. I don't know how to explain it, this joy in life's stern changes—but it's worth while to consider it—the wealth of smiling faces.

I suppose there's some that ignore it, no' some that's inclined to scoff—these fellers that never have wore it—the smile that can never come off—but I know I'm right in insistin', which I've known for a long, long while—that there simply ain't no resistin' the meltin' power of smile.

—Uncle John

Theatre Notes

In regard to the article in last weeks paper "It's Up to You," The members of the City Commission of Pine City, after viewing it agreed that it was a high class production. I have decided to show it to the people of Pine City Friday and Saturday, July 1st and 2nd, and we hope that "The Truth About Husband" won't be true of all Pine City husbands. Sunday we have Oliver Thomas in "The Devil's Disciple." The comedy troupe in Oliver Thomas' great得意作 "Yankee Folly" are presented by "Munich" Eliza and her packmates. You wil enjoy and you will laugh. See it now!

For the Fourth of July we have another of those James Oliver farce wood pictures. Could you resist the third and fourth of them?

Romantic, heroic and beautiful, held i a iron-bound but with the man who has sworn to exact from her the price of his sister's shame; and the man who hates them both.

Jin Thorpe—with only loathing for the girl yet responding to the gentle caress of her hands, on his snow-blind eyes.

Black McCready—more beast than man, who saw his chance while Thorpe was helpless, and the girl unarmed.

And Kaxan—the great dog who hears Joan's any moment crashing through the door to fight.

"Kazan" The greatest James Oliver Corcoran story ever told.

Thursday is free day again we give away Energy Gas in gal. lots. Park your car in front of the theatre and see Tom Moore in "Shop Thief." But you will be no thief if you take 5 gallons of gas with you.

Waiting until the real hot weather is here before starting to take ice may be false economy.

Food which you may think absolutely untainted but which in reality is unfit for the human system, is very common at this season of the year.

Food kept ice-cold is more pleasing to the palate and keeps appetites whetted for every meal.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pofrel at the St. John hospital in St. Paul, Tuesday evening of last week. The new arrival is such a bouncing big fellow, and the nurse couldn't decide whether he would be a Dempsey or a Carpenter. Frank settled the argument by telling them that he would be a president of the U. S. A. Pofrel with a wife and infant son.

Fred Blomsten, proprietor of the Rembrandt studio, was surprised a power in the building, Tuesday evening, who was evidently there for the purpose of helping himself to some of the valuables. Fred was on his way to the studio about nine o'clock, when he noticed a light in the window of the building. On getting close to the shop, he saw someone walking about inside. He went to the hotel for assistance to help nab the fellow, and when he and Herb Ingram got back, the intruder had made his escape. A window in the rear was open, through which the man had evidently gained entrance. Night had fallen, however, the man having probably just gotten in, when Fred showed up.

The studio was entered last fair time and while nothing was taken, the world-beat had done considerable damage.

LOCAL MERCHANTS DO ALL THE THINGS FOR A COMMUNITY THAT MAIL ORDER HOUSES WILL NOT DO

It has been said that three-fourths or nine-tenths, or even some big proportion—the exact figures do not matter—of the business of the world is done on credit. If this was not true there wouldn't be much business done for no currency system could be devised that would furnish enough money to meet the needs of society if every article sold had to be paid for in actual cash. The amount of money in circulation in the United States is only $47 per capita, and this would not go very far if everyone had to keep enough cash on hand to pay for what he might buy.

The greatest of miscreants need ready cash, and those are employed and at times are in need of ready cash. The same thing is true at times of men of smaller means. The credit system, as it is used sometimes, especially in smaller communities, is abused and works a serious hardship upon the business men of the town. Some merchants, to avoid the loss that would result in the sale of credit, or possibly to enable them to sell goods at a lower price than their competitors, operate strictly on a cash basis, but the majority of merchants in every community give those customers, who are responsible and honest, the privilege of a charge account and the chances are that some sort of credit system, properly safeguarded, will always continue to be a feature of legitimate trade.

You will have a reputation in your community for being at least fairly responsible and upright know that when you desire it or need it, you can obtain credit from at least some of the merchants in your town. In some time when you are in need of a few articles of merchandise and a little short of ready money, order what you want from a mail order house in Chicago or some other city and ask them to please charge it till the first of the month. The experiment will be interesting at first, and the answer that you receive may cause you to give a little thought to the difference between trading with the mail order house and buying from the merchant in your own home town.

Some mail order concerns are now operating a so-called credit system, but it is not a credit system such as is maintained by most retail merchants. These mail order houses will sell certain merchandise on the installment plan, but they not only demand on business with initial cash payment, but require the purchaser to sign a contract which operates as a mortgage not only on the merchandise purchased, but upon any other property that the customer may possess. There is nothing in this system that is any better than the one that is offered by the majority of retail dealers.

There are some other requests you might make of the mail order man when the occasion arises and the responses might be equally interesting. For instance, you, Mrs. Farmer, who bought that box of groceries from the catalogue house last month, might write the manager and ask him to bill you for the box of groceries. It would be considerably more trouble to pack them for shipment to the city than it is to take them in to your local grocer, who is always ready to pay you the market price for them, but then the mail order man would pay you enough more than the market price to pay you for the extra trouble. And then again maybe he wouldn't.

And then, there is that mowing machine that you, Mr. Farmer, have been figuring on trading in for a new machine. Suppose you write to the mail order man from whom you bought that wire fencing and ask him (who) he will allow you for your old machine on a trade for a new one. Of course the local hardware dealer in the village where you live will accept for your farm products, will allow you fair price for your old machine, but what's the use of asking him to do it. The mail order man surely will be glad to do that much for you.

There are a good many things that the mail order man will not do for you.

The list would be too long to crowd into one issue of newspaper. He will not give you credit, however much you may need it. He will not buy the farmer's produce. He will not pay a dollar of taxes to help support your schools or build your roads. He will not contribute a cent to the support of your churches or your charitable institutions. He will not lend you a helping hand in time of trouble.

St. Paul, June 29—Minnesota farmers and other spring wheat producers have carried their fight for grain grade changes straight to Congress.

Provisions of federal transportation laws, coupled with threatened railroad concession if state grades should be adopted, have caused the board of agriculture to ignore the agriculturist's resolution instructing it to restore old Minnesota grades. Instead it adopted federal standards. Officers of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation at once took the fight to congress. Representatives of the state federation, together with Minnesota legislators and railroad and warehouse commission experts, are in Washington this week. They are testifying before the Senate committee on agriculture in an effort to change the language of the Stevenson grain grading bill. This bill would give the spring wheat producers the changes they want, while doing away with dual standards, and leaving grades for other parts of the country unchanged.

Here's Proof

A Pine City citizen tells of his experience. You have probably heard of the stories of people getting far away but can't doubt Pine City endorsement? Read it. H. J. Birge, mill foreman, Pine City, says: "I know Doan's Kidney Pills deserve a good deal of praise. A number of years ago I had an attack of backache which I suppose was caused by a cold settling on my kidneys. My back caused me a lot of suffering, especially when I had to work hard. My kidneys didn't act right. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me in a short time. I hadn't used them long before all the trouble disappeared. I have had no return of kidney complaint."

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN

Mrs. Little Tells How She Suffered and How Finally Cured

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was not able to do my housework and had to lie down because of pain in my left side. My monthly periods were irregular, sometimes five or seven months apart, and when they did appear, they did not last long for two weeks and were very painful. I was sick about a year and a half and doctor but without improvement."

A neighbor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me, and the second month I started taking it. I began to feel better and I kept on taking it for seven months. Now I know how to take care of myself and hold duties. You can use these facts as you please and I will recommend Vegetable Compound to all women as I did."—Mrs. J. S. LITTLE, 8455 Livingston St., Philadelphia, Pa.

How many thousands of a woman become when she suffers from such distressing symptoms and weakness as Mrs. Little experienced? A product which would allow herself to get into such a condition because troubles may be speedily relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for more than forty years has been restoring American women to health.

Both Sea and Land Tank. The sea tank which has been under test at Marquette has proved in the form of a heavy launch, but is unable to a screw it has caterpillar wheels, and is otherwise adapted to serve as an ocean liner. Often carrying out its evolution, it will, it slips gradually into water, while it is moved about like any motorboat, and when required it crawls up the bank and becomes a land tank once more. In trials made in the waters the new machine type carried five persons besides the inventor.

"You will never rest anywhere unless you have higher ideals than this," preached the woman to whose door the tramp had applied for assistance. "Are you really content to spend your life running around the country beggar."

"No, lady," answered Wency Willie. "Many's the time I've wished I had an auto."—American Legion Weekly.

The Star Spangled Banner

Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light?

Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight,

O'er the ramparts we watched, so gallantly streaming!

And there floated the red plow,

bursting in air,

Gave proof thro' the night our flag was still there;

Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the shore dimly seem thro' the mists of the deep,

Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,

What is that which the breeze, o'er the lowly green steep,

As it fitfully blows half conceals?

Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,

In full glory reflected, now shines on

Tis the star-spangled banner; oh, long may it wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

going the rounds at Valley Forge. You came upon a sentry in thin clothing and without stockings. He was slowly freezing to death. You took his gun, saddle, blanket, etc. Then you found a blanket, a blanket and a fire. After warming yourself bring the blanket to me. Meanwhile I will keep guard."

"The soldier obeyed. When he returned to his post, you, General Lafayette, cut the blanket in two. One-half you kept; the other you presented to the sentry. Here, general, is one-half of that blanket, for I am the sentinel who gave you a fire."

Historic Yorktown.

Yorktown is the site of the oldest settlement in the United States. It has been the scene of decisive events both in the War of the Revolution and in the Civil War, consecrating its soil to the memory of great deeds. Naturally, Yorktown contains many places of historical interest, and especially those which are the ruins of the old fort which played a significant part in the surrender of Cornwallis and his army to Washington at the end of the Revolutionary War.

At present, Yorktown is a small town, but it is the birthplace of Washington, the man who founded the nation, and the home of many heroes.

The reason for the popularity of Yorktown is the fact that it is the birthplace of Washington, the man who founded the nation, and the home of many heroes.

A brilliant attraction was under way. A show featuring the recently-purchased by Lafayette was erected with courtly grace. Presently there approached an old soldier, clad in a worn Continental uniform. In his hand was an ancient musket, and his coat was torn and stained with blood, and his hair was matted and matted, or rather a piece of a blanket.

On reaching the marquis the veteran drew himself up in the stiff fashion of the old-time drill master, and the man saluted. As Lafayette noted the man's tears started to his eyes. The tattered uniform, the ancient musket, the silver-haired soldier, even older than himself, recalled the dead past.

"Do you know me?" asked the soldier.

"No, I cannot say that I do," was the frank reply.

"Do you remember the frost and snow at Valley Forge?"

"I shall never forget them," answered Lafayette.

"One bitter night, general, you were

But they were organized! They were trained!

Organization and training, brought the Colonials to victory.

Individual, the Colonials were better fighting men than the redcoats; collectively, they were not.

With greater training and equipped than half the British number—Washington might have vanquished the invaders as quickly as their regiments were landed.

Given equal training and equipment, the Colonials would have done the rest. At the moment, it is unlikely that it would have required more than two years.

Valuable Nipa Palm

For the Nipa palm, so abundant in many parts of southeastern Asia, an important future is predicted as a source of alcohol and sugar. In the Philippines, this palm, the vast numbers around Manila bay and along the coast of other provinces. Its leaf is used for thatching the roofs of native huts, and its fiber is used for cordage. The nipa, from which toddy is collected from incisions in the bark after the tree is five years old. Each tree yields about 45 quarts in the period from July to December, and each acre of 300 trees would therefore yield about 35,000 quarts. Dr. Ghosh, a chemist associated with the Martin Bureau of Sciences, finds that this should supply at least 5,000 quarts of sugar per cent. Used for sugar, a gallon of juice yields about 8 quarts of raw cane sugar, which after boiling and drying gave excellent crystals weighing about 16 ounces. It had a quantity of first and second quality molasses. It is estimated that the refining of this sugar should cost considerably less than that from cane.

Introducing the Bassaris.

Ever meet a bassaris? No, not a bassist; that is something different. A bassaris is a conomys. But the animal is better known as the tree cat, though why so called nobody knows, inasmuch as it is not a civet and not a cat.

It is a strange little creature, related to the raccoon, with a very long bushy tail, black and white. Sometimes it is called a "ring-tailed cat" and sometimes a "cat-squirrel"—the latter designation bestowed on account of its squirrel-like habit of climbing trees and nesting in hollow branches.

Like a cat, it catches rats, mice and small birds. It is about 16 inches long, not counting the tail, which measures another 10 inches. In color it is brownish gray. It is a slight prowler, like a cat, and often makes its home in buildings and deserted ranch houses.

The tree cat ranges from Mexico and Texas to California and as far north as southern Oregon. Occasional it is kept in captivity as a pet.
