A Self Centering Bowl

on the new
De Laval

Greater Value. Present-day purchasers of De Laval Cream Separators are getting more value than ever before possible. In 1913 it took 231 pounds of butter to pay for a popular-sized De Laval. Now it requires only about 158 pounds (average prices for years 1913 and 1925) to pay for the same machine—43 pounds or 19% less butter. In addition, the present-day De Laval is at least 20% better, having 10% more capacity, a ball speed-indicator, self-centering bowl, and many other improvements and refinements.

Self-centering Bowl. The De Laval Bowl is so designed as to center and balance itself when it attains separating speed, which causes it to run smoothly, without vibration, and adds to the efficiency and life of the machine. It also gives the least possible resistance in being revolved, which together with the automatic oiling system and superior design and construction of the driving mechanism, causes the De Laval Bowl to require the least power (per pound of capacity) to drive.

All-Around Superiority. A combination of the foregoing features, together with superiority of De Laval design, workmanship and materials, enables De Laval to separate more thoroughly under all conditions of use, deliver a smoother cream, capable of making better butter, separate a richer cream with less loss of butter-fat, and to separate with greater efficiency at lower temperatures.

Remarkable Record. Not only was the De Laval the first continuous centrifugal cream separator but ever since it has been first in popularity, in numbers in use, in efficiency and length of service.

Pays for Itself. There are many worn-out and inferior cream separators in use today, wasting enough cream to pay for a new De Laval in less than a year. You can buy a De Laval on such easy terms that you can use it while it is paying for itself.
