

DELEGATES VOTE FOR COOLIDGE

Harmony Reigns at State Republican Convention Held in St. Paul.

St. Paul—The Republican state convention held at the Auditorium last Saturday was one of the most harmonious political gatherings ever held in the state.

Delegates Chosen Unanimously. The seven delegates-at-large, the only seven nominated, were chosen by acclamation, as follows: Colonel Charles H. March of Lincoln, Minn.

The election of these delegates-at-large completed the Minnesota delegation of 27 to the national convention. 23 of whom have been instructed to support President Coolidge's candidacy.

The following is a list of the delegates elected at the various district conventions, and those with the seven delegates-at-large will comprise the Minnesota delegation at the national convention at Cleveland.

First District: Judge Robert Brown, Waseca; Mr. John Chas. Stewart, Willmar; Elmer Lind, Wadena; Mrs. Bess Wilson, Redwood Falls.

Colored March Honored. Colonel Chas. H. March, of Litchfield, who has so successfully managed the Coolidge campaign here, was recommended for national committee, and a motion to instruct the delegation to work for his election.

BODIES TAKEN FROM MINE

Utah Disaster Victims All Perished in Blast is Believed. Chas. G. Ball, 81-year-old bodies have been recovered from the No. 2 mine of the Utah Fuel company.

The mine gave up its dead in ever-increasing numbers as rescue crews searched their way through the wreckage of the huge mine during the night of the 17th and miners are touched to the mind by those terrible explosions early last Saturday.

PRESIDENT WANTS TAX CUT

Special Message to Congress Asks for Immediate Action. Washington—President Coolidge has sent a special message to congress recommending a reduction of 25 per cent on income taxes in 1925.

The president believes that the importance of the reduction of taxes for laying out bills will legislative houses for his consideration.

John W. Wadsworth, New York, is believed to be the most important administrative positions of the measure and all of the schedules remain to be acted upon.

W. A. Sauser is Pine City Mayor

Although the filing date for Village officers closed a week ago with only one candidate for each office, Tuesday's election was one of the most spirited held in years.

W. S. McEachern had filed for the office of trustee and a sticker campaign was waged in favor of Volney Cox. McEachern was elected receiving 116 votes and Mr. Cox polled 118. There were a total of 286 votes cast in all.

Other offices elected were W. A. Sauser, president, Clark Pennington, clerk, J. D. Boyle, treasurer, C. F. Stephan, justice of the peace.

Pine City has the Australian ballot system which places our election under the general election laws. The way official ballots were cast in our town and passed out on the streets, it appeared there were more ballots on the streets than in the polling place which is against the law and carries a criminal penalty.

See 620. Negligence in printing and care of ballots—Every person authorized to print, or employed in printing, official ballots, who knowingly gives or delivers any of such ballots to any person other than the person to whom they are directed to be sent, or with any other names thereon, or with the names sealed or the names of officers arranged thereon in any way other than that authorized and directed by said official, shall be guilty of a felony.

114 Votes Cast in Pine Town. The election in Pine Town this year was a quiet one with only 114 votes cast with the following results: Supervisor 3 years: Frank M. Kubach 81

Justice of the Peace: John Erickson 21

There were only 10 votes cast in the Boylston Town election and all former officers were re-elected.

Supervisor 3 years: Arthur Erbanson 19

Justice of the Peace: Richard Downing 13

Mrs. Pocta Badly Hurt in Accident

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pocta had a narrow escape from disaster last Monday afternoon when their automobile was struck by the north-bound limited at Beroun.

They were traveling north and had turned at the Beroun crossing to enter Beroun just as the train approached. It is thought he intended to stop but failed to do so and the car was struck in the track when struck a wedge on the front of the engine and carried past the depot before the train was brought to a standstill.

Mrs. Pocta was badly lacerated about the face and badly cut on the forehead and back of the head. She was brought to Pine City and taken to the Pine City Hotel where she was treated by Dr. Wiseman. Her condition is extremely serious and it is feared her face will be disfigured. Dr. Wiseman is of the opinion she is out of danger and may recover. Mrs. Pocta is not injured. They were the only occupants of the car and were not thrown out but were still in the car when the train was brought to a stop.

It is thought the only thing that saved them from worse injury was the fact the north bound was slowing up to take the siding at Beroun where the north and south bound tracks meet.

The car is a new Ford and is a total wreck. Mr. and Mrs. Pocta reside northeast of Pine City.

Mrs. Anna Heinen

Anna Maltzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Maltzer was born at Madiso Lake, Minnesota, July 19, 1900.

She had resided on a farm with her brother John Maltzer near St. Clair, Minnesota, during the year 1917. In the spring of 1918 she came with her brother to another farm near Princeton where she resided until October 1921. She was later employed at St. Joseph's hospital, St. Paul where she remained for more than a year.

She was married to Wm. P. Heinen, September 26, 1922 at Wadena, Minn. She moved to Pine City, Minnesota where Mr. Heinen attended the University of Minnesota. In March 1923 Mr. and Mrs. Heinen moved onto a farm west of Pine City. She died February 25, 1924 at the Northwester Hospital, Princeton, Minnesota.

Report of Seal Sales

To date the Christmas Seal Sale has netted $346.77.

The amount reported by the schools is $265.24. There are still several districts to be heard from in the morning for a report of $70.81. Mr. M. B. Wisconsin Senator Resigns As Chairman Because of Continued Ill Health

Washington—Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin has resigned as chairman and member of the Senate public lands committee which is investigating the oil lands.

Continued ill health was given by the senator as the reason for his action.

Wisconsin senator's warning that he might retire as chairman was given in the course of a formal speech two weeks ago in the course of a debate in which he was assailed from the Democratic side for having visited Albert B. Fall in his hotel here before Fall turned the committee over to Leonard J. Rusk.

'BERLIN OR BUST AND RONUE'

The following letter, taken from the Minneapolis Star, was written by Frank Babcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Babcock of Pine City. The letter follows:

Editor, The Star: I have been greatly interested in the article on the bonus which I have read in the Star and would like to express my opinion on that subject. I am an ex-serviceman, but not one of those detailed boobies who are depending their names to a paper stating that they do not want a bonus. No, I am not one of those for I am very much in favor of a bonus.

It is but a few short years ago since the boys took up arms to fight for their country. They granted the opportunity willingly and were glad to do their bit for democracy. They did not believe for a moment that their path would be strewn with flowers, for they knew of the terrors of war, they knew that was all that Grant said it was, plus what the Kaiser was making it. They did not hesitate to tear themselves away from all that were dearest to them, they left their work in life just when success was about to be realized and when their absence would mean certain failure; they left their homes and their plans for the future, their school and college courses but half finished and with anticipation they threw aside the sash of the civilian and donned the helmet of war. They undertook a huge task fraught with untold perils, with Berlin or Bust as their motto, and they went through with it, as only the Yankee could.

Must we believe, that the heroes of yesterday, now that peace has cast its tranquil shade over the land, have been forgotten? Now that the curse of war has been scourged out and the turmoil of a veritable hell subdued, must we believe that the promises which were made during the war—and they were made—were but the galloberies of a people afflicted with the fever and passion of war? Must we believe that the fervor and enthusiasm with which they exclaimed, "Nothing is too good for the boys," has died with the last spark of the great confederation? No, we shall not believe that, we shall but remind them that now is the chosen time to show their gratitude to the protectors of our country, and that today, in the tomorrow they were seeking of yesterday—F. A. BABCOCK.

MRS. THIEMAN GIVES VIEWS

Editor The Pine Poker: Having read in your paper an item relating to the speech of Mr. J. Adam Bede and being a farmer of this locality would like to answer Mrs. Bede in my behalf. His words are an unjust criticism to us all. "As to hard work," who works the hardest for so little the farmers or the well-to-do politician. Mr. Bede has a farm out side of Pine City, so why does he not "step on" it and set an example before the farmers of his locality.

This is not the first time that Mrs. Bede has criticized Pine City farmers. One year ago at our Pine County Fair, he told the farmers that their wives spent too much for "high silk stockings" and themselves eat oata. If the farmers didn't borrow money how could the rich man live? His principal would soon be gone, that the poor folks would have to turn farmer or politician. As for swapping our cars for fertilizer there is none on the market. Mr. Bede has it all in his pockets. He doesn't have to walk to his high powered cars and not like the farmers of Pine City in lowly Pords.

The Daily Star recently took and defended the farmer against his insult in an editorial for which I thank them. The truth deserves thanks. Lies criticisms. He says to "top buying land, well, who would have the land, and as to "stepping on it?" The trouble with the farmer is he has "stepped on" and produced too much. "Supply and demand" rules "price." Over production is the cause of "deflation."

I have looked over the farmers and have checked them up and they are all on their farms except Mr. Bede.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Jennie "Alex" Thieman

Theatre Notes

Saturday—
Hous, Peters & Pauline Stark in "Last and Fond"!

To steal the bride of the grocer chieftan Waki mean certain death—Yet she called him from her royal hut and her Yankee hero did not fall her!

A thousand dangers faced him, but hazard was nothing if he might hold this ravishing beauty in his arms once more. Here is a thrilling love drama, photographed in the South Sea Islands that you will never forget!

Also a comedy "The Advisor" & Movie Chats.

Sunday—
William Fairbanks in "Peaceful Peters."

Black ran the dance hall and then "Peaceful" came stumbling along on Alexander and Blalock's hopes went glimmering. For "Peaceful" backed up an indomitable will with an unerring aim and a sense of humor. He laughs and shoots his way out of a number of tickish situations.

Also a comedy "One Stormy Night."

Tuesday—
Colleen Moore in "Broken Hearts of Broadway."

"At last we've won," Johnnie Walker assures Colleen Moore after their soul struggles on Old Broadway.

The street of all streets—the glimmering stage on which is enacted half the country's drama of life—BROADWAY.

And a comedy "Railroading" Family Night.

Thursday—
House Peters in "Human Hearts."

The story of stories—playing 'up' on the heart-strings with its throaty poignant drama—replacing with tender smiles the tears it will bring, as its gentle, homely humor sinks deeper and deeper into your heart! It is a story of home—of a wonderful, beautiful love—of pathos and humor—of a wife, who was an outcast—of a son who suffered because of his love for The One Woman. A story for you—for your children—for your father and mother—for the whole world.

Don't miss it!
Also a comedy "Hurry Up."

Gasoline vs. Ice Cream Soda

IN recent years, the price of gasoline has been discussed, widely and at length. It has been the subject of legislative discussions and investigations. It has served in some instances as a political vehicle for aspiring candidates.

Because gasoline plays such an intimate part in all our lives the theme has been a popular one.

Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is America's leading refiner of gasoline and, therefore, is keenly interested in all phases of such discussions.

For the benefit of those who would have the subject illuminated, this Company will present, in the next few weeks, some side-lights on this question.

The average tank wagon price of gasoline in the ten Middle Western States served by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is approximately equal to the price of an ice cream soda—which comparison we make merely as an example.

The ice cream soda satisfies a passing desire—it is pleasant—it is nourishing.

A gallon of gasoline renders a vital service—it will take your car a dozen or a score of miles on an errand of business, pleasure, or mercy.

It will bring the doctor to administer to the sick—it will propel a fire engine to save property—it will harvest grain—and in innumerable instances does gasoline render an essential service.

Gasoline is a vital cog in the wheel of industrial progress.

Gasoline is the cheapest commodity in the world—in proportion to the service it renders.

To make this service available to all; to enable every one of the thirty million people of the Middle West to get gasoline when and where he wants it, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has so comprehensive a system of distribution every few blocks in the city and every few miles in the country.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) counts its system of distribution a major achievement, because its benefits accrue to the man who buys two gallons of gasoline as well as the man who needs a thousand gallons.

Frank Riker, well-known resident of North Sacramento, Cal., who came to the state from Illinois in a covered wagon in 1864, along with other hardy pioneers, recently exhibited a bottle of Tanlac, which he had just purchased, to a friend at his home and remarked: "If I thought this was the last bottle of Tanlac I would ever be able to buy, I wouldn't take one hundred dollars for it," thus proving the high valuation...

Mrs. J. W. Elliot of Youngstown, Ohio, who has just won the honor of pie-baking champion in a contest in which over one thousand women entered. Mrs. Elliot's homemade pineapple pie won the judges' award. Here is her recipe: For the filling—One cup of crushed pineapple, one-half cup of sugar, one envelope of plain gelatin, one-half teaspoonful of almond extract and one-half pint of whipped cream. For the top—One-half pint of whipped cream, one-half dozen dried macaroons rolled and sifted over the whipped cream. For the crust—One cup of flour, two tablespoons of lard, a pinch of salt and water to moisten.

Radio Pleases the Artist's Model

Giovanni Pagella, a young Italian artist, has installed a radio set in his studio and finds the concerts and talks serve to lessen the strain for this pretty model, Lena Cesca.

There is still another advantage besides low cost in buying cheap sets. It won't take as much labor to harvest the crop.

To clean white enamel furniture, wash with warm soap water, wipe as dry as possible and polish with a dry cloth upon which a little whiting has been sprinkled.

Exercise is a natural requirement of a hog. A brood sow that is kept in a small pen and fed upon corn has a poor chance of producing a large litter of strong pigs.

Tom Farmer says: "My neighbors are buying my pig-dred pig because they discovered that I was getting more pork with less feed."

About 15 per cent of the 48 million hogs slaughtered under federal inspection last fiscal year showed tuberculous infection to some extent.

COLONY BROODER HOUSE HELD BEST

Plans Can Be Obtained From County Agent—Comfort of the Chicks Vital.

By the Agricultural Dept. of U. S. D. In preparing brooders and coops for the coming chick crop, two things should be considered, according to the March poultry news letter of the agricultural extension division of the university—the comfort of the chicks and the convenience of the person who is to care for them.

Chicks that are to be raised with the old birds can be made comfortable in a simple Ashpole coop, say the university poultry specialists. If unshed roof can be used, particular care must be taken to see that the roof is tight to protect the little fellows from the rain. Whatever the type of selected, they should be so built that they can be moved for quantity to fresh ground. For this and a separate coop for each hen and chicks is somewhat more desirable than a series of coops built together.

Where chicks are to be raised with a brooder, one of the first-class colony brooders is particularly good as it supplies a steady and even heat and requires only a small amount of attention. It will take care of a large number of chickens that will be small outdoor brooder and has the added advantage of being easy to keep clean and sanitary. Don't crowd the chicks under the hover. A 48-inch hover will accommodate about 100 chicks and the 60-inch will accommodate about 120 chicks.

The brooder house should be high enough for the operator to work in comfortably so that the work of caring for the chicks is easy as possible. Provide about one square foot of floor space for each three chicks. A house 12 x 14 feet is large enough for 600 chicks. Where the house is long and narrow, it is a good plan to place the brooder at one end of the house so that the chicks have a greater choice of temperature in the different parts of the house.

Ventilation should be provided close to the ceiling in front, in a shed roof house, so as to prevent drafts on the chicks. Plans for the colony brooder house may be obtained from your county agent.

In planning the necessary equipment for raising the chicks don't forget to provide some place out of doors where the chicks can be fed and watered without being disturbed by the adult flock.

SHOULD FEED PROTEIN

Dairy Cows Need Oilmeal If Alfalfa Or Soybeans Are Lacking.

By the Agricultural Dept. of U. S. D.

Protein-bearing foods must be given the dairy cow regularly if she is to maintain her bodily needs and furnish a liberal milk flow. Protein is found in alfalfa, soybeans, and field peas. When the dairyman lacks any of these three plants for the better ration, he should feed oilmeal or cottonseed meal especially if the cows are milked heavily.

George Goehner, tester of the Southern Dodge association illustrates the importance of feeding protein in simple qualities by reporting to University Farm the experience of Frank Hamilton in feeding night milking cows through December and January. In December, without any protein supplement, the cows produced 2,246 pounds of milk and 143.7 pounds of butterfat. In January they were fed a pound of oilmeal each cow daily and their response for the better ration, he should feed oilmeal or cottonseed meal especially if the cows are milked heavily.

"Feeding butterfat at 62 cents a pound," says Mr. Goehner, "the gain amounted to 150 white the oilmeal cost only $7.25, leaving a profit of $22.65 more from the same cows by feeding enough protein to make up for the lack of it in the other feed. Not only is this herd producing more butterfat than it did a month ago, but it will keep on producing milk and butterfat with a much slower decrease from month to month than those herds that fed oilmeal. When spring comes these cows will be ready to go on pasture and will keep on producing until the pasture becomes short. They will not have to build up their half starved bodies before they begin to milk as would a cow that did not get enough protein in her dry feed during the winter months."

PAYS TO TEST SEPARATOR

Faulty Machine May Cost Itself Rob of Profit.

Ed O'Toole, tester for the Jackson county association, has had an experience which prompts the remark that new separators as well as old ones should be tested. Just recently, says one separator was found in one cow which prompts the remark that new separators as well as old ones should be tested. Just recently, says one separator was found in one cow which prompts the remark that new separators as well as old ones should be tested. SHORT COURSE DATES FIXED

Hours of State Will Have Choice of Three "U" Stations.

Dates for the annual short courses for club boys and girls of Minnesota have now been definitely determined and preparations for three interesting weeks are well advanced. The annual short course at University Farm will be held the week of April 12 to 19, which is the general vacation week for the schools of Minnesota. Any boy or girl in the state from 10 to 20 years of age may register for what may properly be called the Junior Farmers' and Homemakers' Week Short Course.

March 25, 26, 27, and 28 have been selected for the course at the West Central School at Morris. The course at the Northwest School at Crookston will be held March 31 to April 4. Foremen at University Farm will be used for regular class work. In most cases the juniors will study the subjects which bear upon the particular project work they are doing. Sight seeing trips about the twin cities will be taken every afternoon. Programs at the gymnasium and the auditorium will be presented every evening.

DRINKING CUPS WORTH WHILE

That drinking cups have a definite value in helping to increase the production of dairy cows has often been shown. Harold Roth, tester for the Pine county association, says that five cows which were treated about the same time showed an increase of $1.68 a cow per month when the cups were installed. Sixteen members who installed cups tell Mr. Roth that the cups paid for themselves in three to four months. Read this statement taken from Mr. Roth's report to headquarters at University Farm:

"Cold water taken into a cow's stomach demands more energy and heat. More energy and heat mean more feed. During the cold weather of January, the cows held their own where drinking cups were installed, whereas they showed a decrease which may never come back. Drinking cups show more return on the dollar than do any other equipment that can be bought. Why not have them?"

Prosper smoked and stood there looking now at her now at the fire. At last, with difficulty he said: "You are not going to make it easy for me, are you, Joan?"

"For her part she was not looking at him. She kept her eyes on the fire and this averted look distressed and irritated his nerves.

"I am not trying to make it hard," she said. "I want you to say that you can say and go."

"Did you ever love me, Joan?" He had said it to force a look from her, but it had the effect only of making her more still, if possible.

"I don't know," she said slowly, answering with her old directness. "I thought you needed me. I was alone. I was scared of the emptiness when I went out and looked down the valley."

"I thought Pierre had gone. I was living thing that wanted me. I came back and you met me and you put your arms round me and you said—'I love you'—and your eyes and repeated his speech as though she had just heard it."

"No," she said. "Her voice was more than ever before moving and expressive. Prosper felt that half-forgotten thrill of the muscles of his throat contracted."

"Joan, I did want you. I spoke the truth," he pleaded. "She went on with no impudence but very coolly. 'You came to tell me your tale. Will you tell me, please, for the first time she had looked into his eyes and he drew in his breath at the misery of hers.'"

"I built that cabin, Joan," he said. "For the other one I said I must have been like a tall child. She wasn't your wife. She was dead."

"Prosper shook his head. 'No. Did you think that?' She was a woman I loved at the time very dearly and she was already married to another man."

"You built that house for her? I don't understand."

"She had promised to leave her husband and to come away with me. I did everything ready, those rooms, those clothes, those materials, and when I went out to get her, I had a message saying that her husband had fallen here, that she couldn't come."

He went on without touching back to her. His hand held the small book that he had come back to read.

"And when you—went back?" "Her husband did not die," said Prosper blankly. "He is still alive."

"And you still love her very much?" "That's the worst of it, Joan," groaned Prosper. "His grain changed into a desperate laugh. 'I love you. Now truly I do love you. If I could marry you—if I could love you for my wife—' He walked hesitatingly, then came and stood close before her."

"I thought to myself. The devil is alive and he deserves to be dead. This woman can never live with him again. God wouldn't sanction such an act as giving her back to his hands."

"I don't know," she said slowly, answering with her old directness. "I thought you needed me. I was alone. I was scared of the emptiness when I went out and looked down the valley."

"No," she said. "Her voice was more than ever before moving and expressive. Prosper felt that half-forgotten thrill of the muscles of his throat contracted."

"Joan, I did want you. I spoke the truth," he pleaded. "She went on with no impudence but very coolly. 'You came to tell me your tale. Will you tell me, please, for the first time she had looked into his eyes and he drew in his breath at the misery of hers.'"

"I built that cabin, Joan," he said. "For the other one I said I must have been like a tall child. She wasn't your wife. She was dead."

"Prosper shook his head. 'No. Did you think that?' She was a woman I loved at the time very dearly and she was already married to another man."

"You built that house for her? I don't understand."

"She had promised to leave her husband and to come away with me. I did everything ready, those rooms, those clothes, those materials, and when I went out to get her, I had a message saying that her husband had fallen here, that she couldn't come."

"No," she said. "Her voice was more than ever before moving and expressive. Prosper felt that half-forgotten thrill of the muscles of his throat contracted."

"Joan, I did want you. I spoke the truth," he pleaded. "She went on with no impudence but very coolly. 'You came to tell me your tale. Will you tell me, please, for the first time she had looked into his eyes and he drew in his breath at the misery of hers.'"
