ALLEGED BREAKS BELIEVED NEAR

Views of French and British Premier are Divided on Sanctions.

Paris—Instead of cementing the Anglo-French union the report of the French commission seems now as the result of the visit of the ex-ante cordial. Two open.

The first difference is over the matter of sanctions. Premier Poincaré has already indicated that France will not accept the report of the experts at all unless Britain and Italy sign an agreement by which all the Allies will join in imposing new sanctions. In making a compromise of the Ruhr system should Germany default.

Premier MacDonald in a speech categorically repudiated such a proposition on the grounds that the menace of new sanctions would be an incentive to German nationalism.

In the second place Premier MacDonald believes that the total of Germany's debt should be reduced in order to permit her to acquire herself fully within 20 years.

Child Welfare Board Advocated

The regular monthly meeting of the county board was held at the court house on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Miss Julia Sturm, representing the state board of control, was present at the meeting Monday afternoon and spoke in favor of a county child welfare board.

The duty of a board is to look out for the welfare of children, investigate applications for relief, and assist the judge of probate in the investigation of applications for other purposes. Miss Sturm stated that such a board was materially assisting probate judges in other counties and was agreeable to Judge Wilcox of Pine City.

Since 1920 there have been 52 cases investigated in Pine county by the state board of control as follows: 24 cases of unmarried mothers, 5 or 6 homes for delinquent proceedings, 14 families relief, etc. 4 or 5 delinquent cases, more than 5 feeble minded cases, 2 cases of families in need of help, 2 cases of children mistreated and others. A county welfare board could have done most of this investigating.

Such a board is composed of one member of the county board, one superintendent of schools and 3 members appointed by the state board, two of whom must be women. The members serve without pay, and the cost to the county would be about $25 per month for expenses.

Commissioner Anderson moved that such a board be organized here but his motion received no support and was not put. There are only 12 children in Minnesota without a child welfare board.

Constructive routine business was transacted all of which will be in the commissioner proceedings in The Poker in a week or two.

The auditor was instructed to advise for bids for the opening of State Road No. 9 in Rock Creek east of St. Croix river, also for the construction of one mile of road on No. 6 west of Hinley on and fill a swamp on the road.

Bids will be opened at the next meeting for culverts, patrol graders, etc.

Tokio—The four major political parties of Japan held meetings at which resolutions of protest against the Japanese exclusion legislation by the American Congress were passed.

Fred Degerstrom Senior Class Files for Office Friday Evening

The latest county commissioner applicant is Fred Degerstrom of Aak who filed yesterday as a candidate for nomination for county commissioner of the fourth district.

Man friends have been urging Mr. Degerstrom to file for the post few months and it was the many offers of support from all parts of his district that finally induced him to become a candidate for the office.

Mr. Degerstrom has been a resident of Pine City since 1892 and he took up a homestead in '98, the farm where he now lives. He served as a member of the county board of health and did not run for reelection, being succeeded by the late J. Zimmerman. At the time of Mr. Zimmerman's death a successor was elected the town chairman of the district. The office was of record to Mr. Degerstrom but he refused and Frank Stepan was appointed.

He has been a member of the town board of Partridge since it was organized with the exception of the four years he was on the county board, and is still a member of the board. He has been state game warden for the past two or eight years.

We venture to say that Mr. Degerstrom is one of the most popular men in Pine county. He has demonstrated his ability in public office both on the county board and his own town board. There is no question but what he will be a strong contender for the office and stands a mighty fine chance of being elected.

The other candidates in the fourth district are Frank Stepan, present incumbent, Aivin Ahlgren of Willow River, Carl Anderson of Hinley and Ed Olson of Surgon Lake and Edw. Clough of Willow River. Mr. Clough is also a former member of the county board and was defeated for re-election by Fred Degerstrom 12 years ago.

SPEED PLAN FOR LIVESTOCK LOAN

150 Farm Leaders, County Agents and Bankers Agree Upon Details.

Farjo, N. D.—With the adoption of a definite program for the distribution of $1,000,000 in loans to Northwest farmers, the initial step in launching a balanced agriculture, 150 bankers, county agents and farm leaders of four states met at Fargo on Friday afternoon for a 2-day conference to perfect local organizations which will make it possible for farmers to obtain live stock within a few weeks.

The Agricultural Credit corporation will have its loan and live stock purchasing department set up and ready to do business by the time the local committees are organized. M. O. Grand, vice president in charge of the live stock department, assured the members of the conference.

This assurance was the final touch to one of the most significant agricultural meetings ever conducted in the Northwest. In the opinion of the leaders, a meeting which will pave the way for additional millions in loans on generous terms to real farmers, and which will lead to a better understanding between the banks and the farmers and in the direction of the failure to maintain his ideal.

Fight Grenade Duel for Love of Woman Berlin—Hand grenades are the latest thing in dueling weapons to Hungary.

Two Hungarian students at the University of Budapest, who were both in love with the same girl and could not agree as to who should have her, decided to settle this question by a duel.

The weapons they chose were hand grenades at 15 yards, two shells apiece.

The duel took place recently and when the handkerchief dropped both "volunteers" threw their grenades, but nothing happened.

The grenades failed to explode.

In the second round both grenades went off and beheaded the contestants with mud and soap.

The referee did not proceed; therefore decided that getting dirty was quite sufficient to satisfy honor and declared the hand grenade duel a draw.

At one time the Indians used no lead in their bullets.

VITAMIN DISCOVERY AID TO SCIENTISTS

See Possibility of Producing Nutritive Food.

New York—Unusual interest has been aroused in medical circles by the announcement of Dr. Walter H. Eddy, professor of physiological chemistry at the Cornell University.

Dr. Eddy told a distinguished body of scientists and physicians at the annual meeting of the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine at Bellevue Hospital Medical college recently that he had succeeded in isolating crystalline substance, which he believed to be chemically pure "biotin."

Dr. Eddy's discovery has attracted the interest of a number of pharmaceutical companies and Dr. Ralph Kerr, an expert in organic chemistry at Columbia.

"Interest in the subject was revived here by Dr. Williams, who suggested that biotin was actually vitamin B." "Extracts of substances known to be rich in B were shown by him to have the power of stimulating yeast growth, and Dr. Williams devised a test based on the use of yeast stimulation as a means of measuring the vitamin B content of substances.

Cure for Beri-Beri "The final outcome was that while most substances rich in vitamin B do stimulate yeast growth, the stimulation may be due not to the presence of vitamin B, but to some other factor accidentally associated with it.

"We understand the Fruit Growers' Nurseries of Newark, New York, growers of High Quality Nursery Stock, are desirous of employing someone in Pine City to act as their District Sales Manager.

Investigating Committees
 An investigation of records of the house of representatives revealed 33 investigation resolutions pending before the house committee on rules, and almost an equal number proceeding or pending in the senate.

In the words of one of the senators, "Congress has gone mad." In the words of members of the press gallery, "Congress has become an investigating instead of a legislative body."
 "If the courts decide, as they did in the case of the Federal Trade Commission vs. the American Tobacco Company, and P. Lorillard that the commission has no authority to go on "fishing expeditions" by rifling the files of various concerns, under suspension, applying this ruling to the congressional "smelling committees," and if the courts decide further that a witness who is already party to a court proceeding shall not be compelled to give testimony to a congressional committee it will have a very salutary effect on congress in that it may have a tendency to restore sanity and induce that body to resume the duties for which it was constituted.

Of the 33 house investigations called for, about seven appear to be legitimate in that they are calculated to inform the house as to the proper legislation concerning the respective subjects. These are not really investigations, but hearings against which there is no disposition to cavil.

Representative Tinkham, republican from Massachusetts, wants the activities of the Anti-Saloon League looked into to determine their effect on Congressional elections. He also desires information on the extent to which the right to vote is denied American citizens.

Representative Allgood, democrat of Alabama, wants a hearing on improving the hall of the house of representatives.

Representative Stange, democrat of New York, asks for a hearing on middlemen's profits on farm products, which should give some interesting information.

Representative Michaelson, republican of Illinois, wants the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway considered by a committee for the purpose of informing congress on required legislation.

La Guardia, republican of New York, desires a study of federal bankruptcy laws.

And Moorehead, democrat of Nebraska, asks a hearing on federal aid in road construction.

The Bobbed Hair Criterion
 Maybe she's one of those rare blossoms, the matrons, the school teacher. Maybe she made her school room a foundry for the casting of youth's characters in fine American molds. Maybe she's the keen, clean, wholesome influence for which the public school always is seeking and of which it never can find quite enough.

But no matter—if her hair is bobbed, she is barred, barred officially from the schools of Wabash county, Indiana. And her dresses like her tresses, must be long, wild sleeves in them too, the township trustees have decreed.

Fortunately, the humor of Wabash county, Indiana, has not proved contagious. The rest of us likely will continue in our drab and an distinguished habit of choosing teachers for their ability to teach.

NEW ANTISEPTIC TO PROTECT SURGEONS

Doctor Who Faced Death Has Remarkable Recovery

Baltimore, Md. - Septic poisoning, long considered the most personal enemy physicians encounter, is being successfully combated by a new antiseptic developed at Johns Hopkins hospital here.

Although the experiments at the Brady Urological institute have covered a period of five years and have been successful in many instances in the last year, the new treatment has become known to the public only through the remarkable recovery of Dr. Carl V. Vischer of Philadelphia.

Dr. Vischer, a surgeon at the Hahnemann hospital, suffered a severe attack while performing an operation at the hospital last summer. He contracted septic poisoning, and though his most skilled assistants undertook the treatment of his case, it was believed he had a very small chance of survival. In the months that followed he fought a steadily losing battle with death. The tip of the finger was sacrificed, but the deadly poison continued to creep through his veins, scarring his hand with deep marks.

Doctors Still Experimenting.

As a last resort, his physicians, Dr. Edmund R. Piper and Dr. John Dean Elliott, used mercurochrome in a solution of sufficient strength to act on the stubbornly resistant bacteria caused the infection. Now, entirely recovered, Dr. Vischer has returned to his home with only scars of his fight against death.

For the development of mercurochrome and its use in fighting blood poisoning, medical science is indebted to four Baltimore physicians, Dr. Hugh H. Young, director of the Brady Urological institute, Dr. Edwin C. Waller, Dr. J. C. Hill and Dr. John A. C. Colton.

All are reluctant to discuss the drug and its use although patients of the subject have been prepared and presented to several medical societies. Dr. Young admitted, however, that he had been in close touch with Dr. Vischer's case and was familiar with all its aspects.

He had hesitated to make the discovery known while it yet was in an experimental stage. The fact that it is not invariably successful also has deterred him from announcing it, he said, for fear it might be thought undue claims were being made for it.

In the year it has been used at the Johns Hopkins hospital, however, he said, it has been successful in many cases, often when the patient was desperately ill and literally beyond hope of recovery. In these cases, Doctor Young said, the cures had been complete.

New Method of Treatment.

"We now are using mercurochrome in many cases of blood poisoning due to staphylococci and other bacteria," Doctor Young said. "We also are experimenting with other 'antiseptic dyes,' which are being used in other cases of blood poisoning."

Mercurochrome, it is said, long has been used as an antiseptic for external application, but its injection into a vein is new. It is not a serum, however, but comes under the head of "chemo-therapy."

Perhaps more than any other medical discovery, it is of value to physicians themselves, for they, more than any other class of persons, always have been sufferers from the ravages of this disease. It is often caused by infection resulting from a tiny prick with a surgical instrument when performing an operation, as in the case of Doctor Vischer. Once septic poisoning sets in, the patient's chance for recovery formerly was very small—a chance which has been multiplied many times by the new use of mercurochrome.

Doctor Vischer's illness attracted widespread attention in the medical fraternity. His father, C. V. Vischer, died 17 years ago from the same disease.

PLANS TO SALVAGE SUNKEN WARSHIPS

England Lets Contract to Raise German Fleet.

London.—The German fleet is to be raised. The admiralty has entered into a contract for its salvage with a London firm.

Since the memorable 21st of June, 1918, with one or two exceptions, the ships have lain at anchor, a menace to shipping and a worry to the business. Lifeboats service in maintaining numerous buoys and beacons. For though the name Spana Flow out, retaining a world-wide significance during the war, its waters have been well known and much frequented by mariners in all ages.

Less than an hour after the first ship had sunk five years ago, rumors were current that these were to be raised in the Flow, writers are correspondent.

As the naval authorities at that time were in possession of the telephone systems in the country, I decided to test the feasibility of mail secrecy. So to mail headquarters to Kirkwall I went.

"I know," I said to the officer in charge, "that you can't tell me anything, but is it worth my while to take a night's tiller on the road?"

"Well worth your while,"

"Thus it was that I witnessed one of the most dramatic incidents of the war.

Witnessed Sinking of Fleet.

I saw the hulls, the masts, the funnels and the chimneys sink into the sea and their decks reach the level of the sea. Then walked and founded on their sides and simply disappear. One moment a tall gray slide, like some huge whale. The next, nothing to mark the spot but a patch of water, boiling like a cauldron.

I witnessed the frantic efforts to beach the great battleships. But our naval men were too late. She settled down in the mud close to the little island of Carv, and then she slipped, her huge masts and funnels rearing themselves from the water into space. The cruiser Bremen was beached near the air station at Svandaber, but she had lost all stability. With her bow hard on the ground she lurched drunkenly for a minute or two, then broke her neck and fell on her side.

The German liners sank at their moorings. At low tide parts of their hulls are exposed, danger spots of which numerous fishing trawlers have strangled and held fast until released by the rising tide. Further to the south the destroyers lay, opposite the now deserted naval harbor works at Lyness, near the island of Ler, their masts but from the water at regular intervals, like some broken-down fence.

The navy's salvage efforts were not entirely fruitless. Some ships, both great and small, were saved and were taken south for disposal. The salvage operations now commenced are not on any large scale. These ships were purchased over a year ago by a small company in Strom, raised and brought into harbor for breaking up.

Speculation Is Profitable.

It is believed that the speculation has proved very remunerative. Strange uses have been found for portions of these engines of war. Boiler tubes have been polished and sold liberally by the thousands for such household purposes as casement curtain rods.

Last year a company, comprising some of the destroyers. Operations went on for some months last summer and was understood that in the event of these proving successful the company had an option on the remainder of the fleet. A certain amount of material was brought ashore, but no ship was raised.

When the salvage ship proceeded to the home port last fall it was stated that operations would be recommenced in the spring, but it is not known how this company is affected by the contract now entered into between the admiralty and the London firm.

It is evident that the operations shortly to commence are to be on a really big scale. We in Orkney have little knowledge of the methods of salvaging, but to the unskilled the operation of raising the smaller ships, and even the Humber grunting on the mud, does not seem to be so very unimpressive. The hulls are whole.

The scuttling was affected by opening the sea cocks. If these can be closed and the hulls sealed, then does not the problem simply resolve itself into one of pumping oil? I see the German fleet scattered in it. In past years or so the East Coast Salvage company has carried out two similar operations in the Orkneys.

Bombing of Cities to Feature Next Big War

Cleveland.—Millionaires nations will not try to kill enemy soldiers in the next war, but will bombard cities, said the secretary of war under former President Wilson, declared here in a recent address.

"The League of Nations is falling," declared Mr. Crowell. "The nation or group of nations which enters the next war adequately equipped with tanks, gas and airplanes will win a quick and probably decisive victory. In the next war governments will use poisoning or laughing gas, or anesthetics, to put men temporarily out of the fighting. Death-dealing gases were used less and less as the war progressed, and that shows the tendency. A high ranking German officer said after the armistice that it was General Trenchard and not the genius of Marshal Foch that turned the tide against the Germans."

"Airplanes will jump over armies and attack the directing bases behind them. I believe that bombing cities is not justifiable, but will be carried out in the next war. Supply depots and the telephone systems in the country, the morale of the civilians behind the lines impaired."

"Alphas will jump over armies and attack the directing bases behind them. I believe that bombing cities is not justifiable, but will be carried out in the next war. Supply depots and the telephone systems in the country, the morale of the civilians behind the lines impaired."

"I wish to complete this spiritual adoption by changing my name. This change will not be detrimental to the interests of any person and it is a proper change."

Rameses says he was adopted in spirit about four months ago. He contends that he is related to 19 monarchs who ruled from 1869 to 1909. B. C. He is a graduate of the University of Dublin, Ireland, and was a member of the Roman Catholic church. He plans to visit Egypt.

Gold Star Twice Stolen From Tablet to War Hero

Woodbury Heights, N. J.—The hero's county here has offered a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of the person who has twice removed a gold star from in front of the name of the hero's only son, who lost his life while serving in the World War. The borough placed a bronze tablet on a huge building in the center of the town containing the names of all its representatives in that contest.

Last July it was noticed that the lone gold star on the tablet had been plucked out, and interested citizens had another star placed there. A few weeks ago this second star was found to be missing, and a quiet investigation was made. The borough finally decided that the matter should be given publicity and offered the reward.

As Others See Us

IN ITS issue of March 5, the Gazette of Hutchinson, Kansas, says:

"THE BRIGHT SIDE

The Standard Oil Company gets into print often but never on account of trouble with its employees. At Brisbane says the company is the best managed business organization in the world.

The entire oil business has been singularly free from labor troubles which have beset many of the other major industries. Reasons for this can be found in the fact of the rapid growth of the industry, the payment of relatively high wages and the shifting of labor and working conditions.

The oil companies, however, have not been content to allow harmony to rest entirely on conditions. Efforts have been made, in the Standard and other companies, to obtain the greatest harmony possible among the workers. The Standard of Indiana was pioneer in fostering a policy granting employees, through their elected representatives, a voice in settlement of all questions affecting their welfare, as to wages, hours of labor and working conditions.

How the plan is working is expressed by Colonel Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors, who says:

"The greatest thing needed in American industry today is a better understanding between employees and management. The day of intolerant and drastic methods by either the leaders of capital or labor is past. Each needs the other, and the policy of establishing good will, peace and good understanding has been established between the management and employees of our company.

For five years we have worked together in mutual interest and trust. For the board of directors, I say to you that while the problems presented by the Standard in the oil industry today are stupendous, we face them with a greater confidence because we feel that we have back of us the whole-hearted support of every man and woman in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The oil business has its virtues as well as its foibles, if conducted properly."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been relatively free from labor troubles because justice, equity and fairness are fundamental to the organization.

Without loyalty, earnestness and complete harmony in its organization of 27,000 men and women, this Company would be unable to render to the thirty million people of the Middle West, the comprehensive service which they now enjoy and which is so essential to their commercial and domestic life.
