NEW FIRM BUYS Markville Man FORD GARAGE Shoots Robber

The Pine City Motor Company is now under new management and new ownership, the new owners taking possession yesterday. The new firm is composed of O. W. Peterson and H. C. McNeil of Minneapolis. They have purchased both the building and the business and will continue under the same name.

The building was owned by Paul Perkins and was leased to Mr. McCarthy of St. Paul, who purchased the agency and business from Mr. Perkins about two years ago and has had Chas. Hedding as agent. Mr. Hedding is undecided as to his future plans and left for the cities yesterday. Walt Riley, who has been salesman here the past few months, has also gone to the cities.

The new owners will continue the same business policy as their predecessors and will have the Ford agency and supply and service department and general automobile repairing. Fred Wade will remain with the new firm in charge of the parts and service department. No further arrangements have been made as to the other positions.

The new owners are both experienced automobile men. Mr. Peterson has been in the auto game since 1911. In 1922 he took a position with the Studbaker Corporation in South Bend, Ind., and later was employed by the Maxwell-Chrysler Automobile Co., in Detroit, Mich. He was then in the automobile business in Minneapolis the past 6 or 7 years.

Mr. Peterson is married and they have two children. They have purchased the Paul Perkins residence and expect to move in about the first of the month. Mrs. Peterson's mother, Mrs. Johnson, and her daughter, Miss Clara Johnson will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Peterson. Miss Johnson will be in charge of the bookkeeping and the office work at the garage.

Mr. McNeil has had fifteen years experience as an auto salesman in the Twin cities. He has recently been associated with the Northern Battery Company of Minneapolis. Mr. McNeil was taken ill when in Pine City a short time ago and on his return to the city went to a hospital where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. He is getting along nicely and expects to be home soon. He is a married man and as soon as his health permits, he and Mrs. McNeil will move here. They have rented the De Wolf's house, where they will reside.

The Pine City is pleased to welcome Mr. Peterson and Mr. McNeil and their families to Pine City. We know they will find this a most desirable community and we are confident their future home in Pine City will be a pleasant one.

FATHER INHURED
BY MAD BILL
Charles Hagen, living near Ogilvie, had perhaps as close a call to death or permanent serious injury Monday morning of this week as he will have until his time comes.

Mr. Hagen was turning his car over to a party and among them was a "Grovers" bill which had always been gentle. This morning his Bullahp was proved all too something, however, and deciding that Hagen was the cause of all his troubles, started to settle matters right there.

Mr. Hagen has nothing to defend himself with, and was knocked down and pretty badly used up. Finally, Hagen rolled and scrambled and was helped by the bill to a log in the lot. The bill became confined upon seeing the log and began bawling it, giving Mr. Hagen a chance to get away.

He was rushed to the hospital at Princeton and given surgical attention, and it was found he was not as seriously injured as first thought, but it was a remarkably close shave.

Pine County Fair Has Big Program

The program for this year's county fair is practically completed and it is the best program that has been offered so far.

A flying circus has been engaged for two days, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 9 and 10th, Monday is entry day. The flying circus consists of three thrilling acts each day.

Other attractions before the grandstand are four big free acts; automobile races and two big horse races each day. There will be two baseball games with a $100 purse for each day.

The Askov-Sandstone band will furnish music for Tuesday's program and the Sandstone orchestra will play for the dance at the armory in the evening.

There will be at least $1700 to be paid out for premiums in the various departments and the management expects to have the checks ready for distribution within a short time of the close of the fair.

Quite a number of political speakers have been asked to speak at the fair and it is hoped that the management will be able to make definite announcement of who they will be next week.

COUNTY BOARD MEETS MONDAY

One of the important matters to be taken up by the county board to do the county state-ment for the year ending June 30, will be the question of graveling. The board will meet next Monday afternoon.

Pine county has the opportunity to get $12,500.00 to be used for the graveling of State Road No. 9, thru Rock Creek and Royallon from the Federal road to No. 5, providing the work is done this year.

Representative Therrien and county officials started a year ago to get an extra appropriation from the state for this work. This spring, with members of the Anoka county board they had two or three conferences with the Hennepin county board, with the result that Hennepin county appropriated $7,500 to be used on the road, providing the work was done this year.

In view of the action of Hennepin county state-ment will add $5,000 to the fund. Both these amounts will be available to the county next year.

It looks like mighty good business on the part of Pine county to do the work this year, and thereby take advantage of the appropriation. No. 9 has got to be gravelled some day and the sooner the better. This gift toward the work amounts to too much to turn down.

The following letter, regarding the matter, has been received from Commissioner Backcock:

Sir: Yours very truly
In answer to your letter of the 21st, and confirming the telephone advice given your engineer Mr. H. V. Jorgenson, I will say that I will use all possible means to obtain for your county an additional allotment of State Aid next year to assist in financing the graveling of your State Aid road from Rock Creek west to make connection with Trunk Highway No. 5 which will aid in distributing traffic over No. 5 and 1 instead of having it concentrated on No. 1, which we understand is one of the reasons why Hennepin county was willing to contribute $7,500 for this project.

I am inclined to believe that an additional of $5,000 might be given for the purpose.

Yours very truly

ROADS NEED GRAVEL

The wet season this summer has demonstrated one thing to everyone's satisfaction and that is that the gravelled roads are the ones that give the service in all kinds of weather. A dirt road, nicely graded, looks fine when it is first completed and answers the purpose in good dry weather. A few days of rain soon put it in such shape that a man doesn't know whether he can traverse it with out having to be pulled out of a mud hole.

The south end of the county has two roads on which considerable money has been spent—State road No. 9 thru West Rock and No. 10 thru Westerville. These roads carry a heavy traffic. It is possible for the county to get $12,500 of outside money to be applied on graveling No. 9 and No. 10 and look like good business to do the work.

Two or three months ago the county board instructed the highway engineer to prepare an estimate of what it would cost to gravel some of the worst spots on the Pokegama road. No money has ever been appropriated to fix these places however.

Of course we all want lower taxes, but at the same time we have to travel these roads to get to town, and good roads that are absolutely necessary to the farmers are a good investment for Pine County.

When we spend money for construction and grading roads we should complete the job and make them weather proof as far as possible. It would be fine barn with good walls and then put on a cheap roof. Nicely graded roads cost money and gravel will help make a "good roof" that will tend considerably to keep them in shape and serviceable in rainy weather.

An Appropriate Place

An editor and a merchant were discussing the virtue of billboard advertising. The merchant contended that more people read the billboard than the newspaper. After a lengthy conversation in which neither man would give in, the merchant parted. The next week the merchant came tearing down the street to the newspaper office wanting to know why the obituary of his wife's mother was taken to the newspaper after he had seen that a copy was taken to the newspaper of his.

"Well said the doctor, I knew you wanted the obituary read by the people so I took it out and nailed it up on your billboard—Dell Rapids (S. D.) Tribune

ALL OUT OF SORTS!

So was this Pine City Woman who tells her experience. All too often women neglect their pains and aches as natural to their sex. They fall to realize that weak kidneys are often to blame for that back ache, those headaches, dizzy spells and that tired, depressed feeling. Thousands have found new health and strength by helping the weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a simple diuretic. This Pine City case is one of many.

Mrs. H. T. Day says: "Heavy, bearing-down pains over my kidneys had me feeling mighty bad all over and when I stooped these pains became sharp, darting ones and I could only move straighten. My kidneys were weak and acted too frequently. I saw Doan's Pills highly recommended in the paper and decided to try them. Two boxes from the Brokenridge Pharmacy rid me of the trouble."

Local Happenings

A few friends of Miss Vivian Buchanan surprised her Tuesday evening on her fourteenth birthday. She and Grace Wiseman went for a hike to Devils Lake, taking their lunch with them. To her astonishment the gathering was there to meet her. They spent a jolly time feasting on marshmallows and Weiners. Later returning to her home games were played and a pleasant evening enjoyed.

Mrs. Chas Utter, sister of Val Joalin, passed away at St. Paul last Monday night death resulting from Cancer. She has been in poor health for a long time. Mrs. Utter was the wife of Mrs. Joalin's brother.

Matter of Business

Mr. Pluhub was a trifle close. However, he fell in love with a lady and persuaded her to marry him. She was said to be a very capable manager. The honeymoon being some time over, with extended hand. He asked it and attempted to kiss it. "Now, John, do not try to seduce the wife," said the lady firmly. "I want $10."

The Hinckley Memorial

Just outside of Hinckley, Pine County, Minn., stands a huge monument erected in honor of those who lost their lives in the great forest fire that destroyed Hinckley on September 1, 30 years ago. Four hundred square miles of Country were devastated, four towns and villages destroyed, and 418 lives were lost.

This column of granite stands 50 feet high and rests on a granite base 14 feet square. On one side is this inscription: "This Monument is Dedicated To The Pioneers of Civilization In The Forests of Minnesota." In the plot back of the monument, according to an inscription in the granite, lie the remains of 248 men, women, and children, residents of Hinckley who perished in the fire.

As I stood there, I recalled to my mind the story that P. H. Nyberg, a farmer, had told me that day about his experience in the Hinckley fire. His story could doubtless be duplicated by the tales of other settlers who were fortunate enough to survive that fateful September day.

"I was living in my little cabin several miles east of Mission Creek. I took my family with me through a meadow near by. There I threw a heavy plank across the creek. We had blankets with us, which we soaked in the creek and wrapped around us. At times the heat was so strong and the smoke so thick that it seemed that we could not stand it any longer.

"Finally the fire passed on and we were able to leave the creek. The ground was hot from the recent fire and in many places the very soil seemed to have been burned away. We went through the smoldering and smoking stumps which had formerly been heavy woods to the place where our cabin stood. When we arrived at the spot of our home there was nothing but the charred ruins to show where our cabin had been.

"As we stood there, no one would have given me five cents for what I owned, and that would have included the clothes that I wore. I wish that I could tell you how poverty stricken I was. The relatives mittes put up a little cabin for us, but we had no livestock of any kind. There were no horses to be hired in the country. Those first years we fell of hardships. I hope that none of the young people of today have to go through with the hardships which we met.

"I was about your neighbors."

"I had no neighbors. I was the only settler in the township," answered Mr. Nyberg.

I am glad to say that I learned from Mr. Nyberg that he is in a position to enjoy his late years of life in greater comfort.

While I was in Pine County, funds were being subscribed for the relief of the tormented victims in southwestern Minnesota. Generous donations were coming in from all parts of the county. I wondered, at the time, if memorials of the Great Fire of 30 years ago did not have an influence in loosening the purse-strings.—Don P. Shannon—in the Farmer

THE DAWES PACT PLAN IS SIGNED

Ratification by Parliament of Nations Involved Necessary to Make Plan Operative.

Kehl, Germany.—The French commander-in-chief in Baden announced the evacuation of Offenberg and Appenize by French troops are preparing to move. Retirement of the French troops from the two Baden towns is the first troop movement under the French promise made to the Germans at London to withdraw troops from Germany "as quickly as possible."

London.—The pact of London—marking the successful termination of five years struggle to agree upon means of settling German war reparations—was signed in a plenary session of the conference on the Dawes report here. The last of the signatures had been affixed to the protocol which only ratification by the several parliaments remains to be effected before the Dawes program becomes operative. Payment of reparations by Germany is placed on a sound and regular basis, and the gradual withdrawal of Franco-Belgian forces from occupied territory in Germany begins.

There have been dramatic meetings in the British foreign office, but perhaps none has possessed the potentialities of the one when the Allies and the German representatives met to seal the contract which, since the treaty of Versailles, has defied the best minds of many cabinets to satisfactory draft.

The agreement includes the final protocol with four annexes. The protocol itself is a brief document in French and English. This and the first annex were the only documents actually signed, the other annexes being merely initiated. They will be signed in London August 30. The French and Germans desiring to submit the into their respective parliaments before finally affixing their signatures. None of the American representatives signed the document, which bears the title "an agreement between the reparations commission and the German government."

ITALIAN OVERTAKES AVIATORS

Loceatelli Gives No Hint He Will Try to Reach Continent First

Bojshavik, Iceland.—Lieutenant Loceatelli, Italian aviator, following the route of the American army world fliers, has overtaken the American fliers here after a hop from Thors haven, Faroe islands. His plane was brought into the inner harbor and anchored between the planes of Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith and Eric Nelson, the American aviators. He brought with him a letter from the embassy in Rome to Lieutenant Smith. It was 28 days old.

It is still uncertain when Loceatelli will leave Reykjavik, and where his next landing place will be. There is no hint that the Italian aviator has any idea of getting to the American continent ahead of the American fliers.

"INTERNATIONAL BANKER" A MYTH

Otto H. Kahn Refutes Idea That Foreign Finance Activities Dull Allegiance to America.

BANKING REFLECTS BUSINESS

"International Farmer" and Foreign Business Men Who Sell to Foreign Markets Create Demand for International Financial Service.

The idea that bankers engaged in financing foreign trade and in handling foreign bond flotations are a particular cult of "international bankers" actuated by motives differing from those of other bankers was refuted recently by Otto H. Kahn of New York, in an address before the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

"There is no such thing as an 'International Banker' in America, as the meaning of the term is generally understood," Mr. Kahn said. "He exists in the imagination of people all too numerous, but he does not exist in the flesh. You might just as well speak of the 'International Farmer' because the farmer sells a certain percentage of his crops to Europe, or of the 'International Manufacturer'."

"The banker maintains, and can maintain, international contact, and conduct international business, only to the extent that American industry, commerce and agriculture are international. True, the banker must take within his purview continuously the conditions of affairs and the current of things throughout the world, but so must the exporter and importer, and so must the farmer take into account the prices and tendencies of the world market in Liverpool."

Banking Mostly Home Business

"The American banker's market is the home market. His success is conditioned upon the capacity and willingness of the American investor to absorb the securities which he offers. His very existence depends upon the confidence and co-operation of the public and of his fellow-bankers—and any banker whose activities would justify create the impression that he was actuated by cosmopolitan rather than by American interests would very soon lose that confidence and following."

"The business which he does for his own account in, with or for Europe, is inconsiderable as compared to the business he does in America. His principal function in relation to Europe are to provide the requisite banking facilities for export and import and for travelers. That part of his fancifully inflated reputation which consists in financing loans of foreign governments or industries has subsided, with sporadic exceptions, of relatively inconsiderable proportions as compared to the vastness of the volume of his transactions in financing American industry, commerce and enterprise."

Necessity for Foreign Credits

"In saying this, I do not mean to imply that there is anything that calls for apology in the floating of foreign loans in America and in the loaning of American funds to Europe, provided such loans are considered sound as to security and are made for legitimate, constructive purposes. Indeed, such loans ought to and I believe will be made in increasing measure, when conditions in Europe will have become such as to warrant it."

"It is manifest that the promotion of our export trade, including, of course, the export of farm products, requires us, under the circumstances as they now are and are likely to remain for some time, to aid the purchasing power of other nations by extending to them financial facilities to a reasonable extent."

"It is the function of the banker to be instrumental in carrying out such transactions. In doing so, he is the means of serving a useful national purpose, just as he served a useful, indeed a highly important national purpose, in being the means of attracting and bringing European capital to America in former years when conditions were reversed and such capital was nothing less than vital to the development of this country and the realization of its opportunities."

KING FUN TO RULE AT STATE FAIR

Old King Fun, with his entire court, is coming to the Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 30 to Sept. 6, for the biggest gala week ever staged in the entire Middle West. The mammoth fireworks spectacle, "Tokyo," depicting in vivid detail the destruction waged by the Japanese earthquake, will feature the evening program. More than $145,000 is offered for educational exhibits, the largest sum offered for that purpose in any fair in the world this year.

The Basilisk in Legend
The basilisk is a fabulous creature, resembling a serpent, and supposed by the ancients to inhabit the Libyan desert. It was described as being of a yellowish color with spots of white around its head, which was crowned as having a pointed head, when a sound one or more pronouncements, also this, resembling a diadem. Its breath was considered to be especially poisonous, and its glance fatal. The word basilisk is now applied to a sort of snake.

He Couldn't Wait
One evening when calling on my sweetie her little sister ran into the room and jumped on my lap. She sat real still for a few minutes, then suddenly she threw both chubby arms around my neck. "I just love you, Dan," she whispered in my ear. "I wish you'd please wait till I grow up so's I could marry you!" But I didn't. I married "big sister" instead.—Chicago Journal.

Hold the Back Straight

All you have really to do is to keep your back as straight as you can, and not to think about what is on it; above all not to forget what is on it. The real meaning of virtue is in that straightness of the back.—Ruskin.

Sweetbreads

Sweetbread is the name of the thymus or pancreas of an animal (especially a calf) used for food, the former being the throat sweetbread or neck sweetbread, the latter the stomach sweetbread.

Inspiration to Genius

Shakespeare and Mollers were debted for some of their plots to Gerardo, the great Italian novelist of the sixteenth century, whose "teen Pleasant Nights" is still a st house for writers of the present t

U.S. Royal Cords

BALLOON ~ BALLOON-TYPE ~ HIGH PRESSURE
Built of Latex-treated Cords

TIRE building took a big step forward when the makers of United States Tires invented the Latex Process.

The added strength and wearing quality given by Latex-treated cords is something that the user of Royal Cords can tell you about from his own experience.

Royal Cords are the standard of value in cord tire equipment—even more certainly today than ever before.

And this holds good whether you are considering a High-Pressure Tire, a Balloon-Type Tire to fit your present wheels and rims, or a Balloon Tire for a 20 or 21 inch wheel.

"Listening In"

The electricity on a telephone line is intended to carry a conversation between only two persons at a time. When other receivers on a party line are taken off, the flow of electricity is weakened, making it difficult for the proper persons to hear.

The electric current which carries a conversation between two telephones, may be likened to a stream of water flowing through a pipe under a given pressure. If the pipe springs a leak the flow at the other end is less.

The effect of "listening in" is particularly noticeable when long distance calls are being made.

"The man has a great heart in him, as every great man must," he wrote to his father. "I am beginning to love him. I can see that these thousands in the army are going to be bound to him by an affection like that of a son for a father."

"The next night Sir Henry Clinton got around the Americans and turned their left flank. Smallwood's command and that of Colonel Jack Irons were almost destroyed, twenty-two hundred having been killed or taken. Jack had his left arm shot through and escaped only by the swift and effective use of his pistols and dagger, and by good luck, his horse having been only slightly cut in the withers."

For nearly two weeks Jack was nursed.

"For nearly two weeks Jack was nursed in his wound in Washington. The hospital, which consisted of a cabin, a tent, a number of cow stables and an old shed on the heights of Fort Mifflin, had lain in a stable. Toward the end of his confinement, John Adams came to see him."

"Were you badly hurt?" the great man asked.

"I was scratched a little, but I'll be back in the service tomorrow," Jack replied.

"You do not look like yourself, good. I think that I will ask the commander in chief to let you go to the hospital at Philadelphia. I have some business there and have Franklin and I are going to Staten Island to confer with Admiral Lord Howe. We have some maps, maps and old dogs and need a young man like you to look after us. You would only have to keep your eyes on the attend to our luggage and make some notes in the conference."

"It happened that Jack went to Philadelphia with Mr. Adams and after two days at the house of Doctor Franklin, set out with the two great men for the conference on the next day. He went in high hope that he was to witness the last scene of the war."

"Mr. Adams is a blunt, outspoken man. His things do not fit his liking. He is quick to get angry. Doctor Franklin is humorous and polite, but firm as a God-placed mountain. You may see your slight, and you will see the mountain and push and think it is moving, but it isn't. He is established. He has found his proper bearings and is one with more than a hundred men in little matters. They had a curious quarrel the other evening. We had reached New Brunswick on our way north. The taverns were crowded. I ran from one to another trying to find quarters for my distinguished friends. At last I found a small chamber with one bed in it and a single window. The bed nearly filled the room. No better accommodation was to be had. I had left them sitting on a bench in a little grove near the tavern, with the luggage near them. When I returned they were having a hot argument over the origin of northern storms, the doctor asserting that he had learned by experiment that they began in the southwest and proceeded in a northeasterly direction. I had to wait ten minutes for a chance to speak to them. My letter was left, the doctor calm and smiling. I imparted the news.

"God of Israel! Mr. Adams exclaimed. "Is it not enough that I have to agree with you? Must I also sleep with you?"

"Sir, I hope that you must not, but if you must, I beg that you will sleep more gently than you talk," said Franklin.

"I went with them to their quarters carrying the luggage. On the way Mr. Adams complained that he had picked up a flea somewhere."

"The flea, sir, is a small animal, but a big fact," said Franklin. "You alien me. Two large men and a flea will be apt to crowd our quarters."

"In the room they argued with a depth of feeling which astonished me as to whether the one window should be open or closed. Mr. Adams had closed it."

"Please do not close the window," said Franklin. "We shall suffocate."

"Sir, I am an invalid and afraid of the night air," said Adams rather timidly.

"The air of this room will be much worse for you than that out-of-door," Franklin returned. He was then between the covers. If he got up and open the window and get into bed and

STORING CROPS FOR WINTER USE

Careful and Consistent Handling in Harvesting and Marketing Will Pay Good Dividends.

Edited by the Agricultural Extension Dept., University of Minnesota.

Authorities among horticulturists and vegetable growers agree that temperature, humidity and exclusion of light are outstanding factors in the keeping of potatoes through the winter. The best storage temperature for table or seed potatoes is one that will keep them in a dormant condition and preserve their soluble sugar...

Moisture content of the air should not be so high as to deposit a moisture film on the surface of the tuber or so low as to cause an unnecessary loss of moisture through transpiration. Thorough ventilation is essential for the best preservation of stock and the reduction of storage losses.

It is potatoes are not well matured, they should not be put into bins immediately, but allowed to sweat and dry out on the barn floor or any dry place where there is good ventilation. Great care should be taken not to bruise or otherwise damage the potatoes in the process of harvesting and storing. Potatoes should not be dug and left in the sun for an indefinite time.

Onions which are not sold at once should be either left in open crates or put on shelves or racks in the storehouse which need not be covered but should be dry and well ventilated. Onions must not freeze, but the temperature can be taken to 30 degrees below zero if done.

Cabbage may be kept in a light or dark cellar, but in the latter it is likely to bleach. It should not be stored in piles, but should be placed either in crates or on shelves where the ventilation is sufficient to prevent spoilage. The cellar should be moist, but humidity should never reach the extent of rotting. The temperature should be kept between 32 and 35 degrees.

Carrots are the most tender of all the root crops and should be harvested before a heavy frost. They keep best when not too ripe at the time. Because of their small size and compactness when in storage they heat readily. Heating may be prevented in most root crops by not using too large a bin and by having proper ventilation.

Parsnips and rutabagas are resistant to frost and may be among the last root crops harvested. Parsnips may well be stored for sale in the winter. Beets and turnips are less resistant to frost and should be harvested earlier.

Brown Betty—Bread crumbs, apple sauce, spice, and butter. Arrange crumbs and sauce in layers. Dot each layer with butter and sprinkle lightly with spice, cinnamon and nutmeg. Add a little lemon juice. Bake in buttered baking dish in a moderate oven. Serve with plain or whipped cream or lemon or hard sauce.

Date Pudding—One-half cup sugar, one egg, one-fourth cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one cup dates, seeded and cut, and one cup walnuts, chopped. Mix sugar and egg. Mix the fruit and nuts and dry ingredients. Then add to first mixture. Mix and turn into an oiled baking dish or pan. Bake in moderate oven from 30 to 40 minutes or until firm. Serve hot or cold with plain or whipped cream.

Timothy and clover planted separately or in combination for pasture or hay crops next year should be sown in Minnesota before the middle of September, says Andrew Boss, chief of the farm crops section of the university. Stable land can be best prepared to advantage in sowing grass seed, he says.

Young pullets rearing good care and shade during the warm summer months will more than repay you next winter with high priced eggs.

Clover on sandy land has not been dependable, but alfalfa has succeeded on light brown sand on the Craft farm in Sherburne county over a period of 15 years.

Proper culling of flocks before fall will increase returns over costs and note winter. Why feed high priced grain to second rate producers?

MORE WINTER WHEAT

Crop Gains in Popularity, But Will Not Supplant Spring Wheat in Minnesota.

The growing of winter wheat and rye in Minnesota will doubtless be further attracted by the best crops of these cereals secured this year. Introduction of the extra hardy Minnesota winter wheat by the Minnesota Experiment station has been a large factor in the increased attention given to winter wheat growing in recent years.

Farm crops men at University Farm agree that winter wheat in southern Minnesota should not be seeded later than September 15 and preferably the first week or ten days in September if possible. In northern Minnesota winter wheat should be planted a week or so earlier. One and one-half bushels of good clean seed should be planted to the acre. Rye should be sown at the rate of a bushel and a peck or a bushel and a half to the acre.

Some of the largest yields of winter wheat have been secured. Says W. L. Cavers of the agricultural extension division of the university. "Where the wheat has been seeded on clean silage ground immediately after the removal of the corn bundles without any soil preparation. The advantage in this method is that the corn stubble catches the snow and so gives the winter wheat good protection. There is also the possibility that where corn is cut and shocked the winter wheat may be seeded and drilled in immediately before shocking the corn. By throwing the corn bundles over upon the drilled ground after each round of the drill, still another method is possible to disk the ground in the spring. Still another method is the use of a one-horse drill between the rows of standing corn. The corn must stand up well or this operation may be wholly successful."

Many winter wheat growers believe that the crop has decided advantages over spring wheat. Mr. Cavers has summarized some of these advantages as follows: Acre against acre winter wheat is usually worth more than spring wheat, oats or rye. By planting wheat in the spring seed bed on the farm is lightened and the harvest season lengthened, because winter wheat is not so much in less danger from rust and dry weather than spring wheat; should it winter-kill there is still time in the spring to use the ground for corn or other crops.

But with all these advantages, farm crops men do not expect winter wheat to displace spring wheat in Minnesota agriculture. Certain difficulties in preparing corn land for winter wheat are pointed out. The temperature should be kept between 32 and 35 degrees. Care should be taken that all cabbage put into storage is sound.

BIDDY SHOULD HAVE CHANCE

Should Have Benefit of Good Ration Before Meeting Culling Order.

Before culling the poultry flock each individual hen a chance to show what she can do, says N. E. Chapman, chief of the poultry and agricultural extension division of the university. Before being subjected to the culling order, the hen should be well fed for a period of at least two weeks. Along with good feeding a sharp cull should be kept on her by the farmer.

Mr. Chapman suggests that besides the regular daily scratch feed there be accessible to the flock a mash hopper containing equal parts by weight of corn meal, bran shorts and 10 per cent meat scraps where skim milk can be used, or 20 per cent of the same mixture with the addition of buttermilk is available. The flock under these conditions will show what it proposes to do—to continue to lay or become fat and mott.

Estimates recently made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that the value of poultry products in all kinds in this country in 1923 was one billion and forty-seven million of dollars. This was greater than the value of all the cattle raised in the same period in the United States. It is about six times the value of all the horses and mules, and seven times the value of all the sheep. It is more than 10 times as great as all the swine raised in this country in 1923.

The U. S. department further points out that the 1923 valuation of poultry production was 35 times as great as that of all the hogs raised in the same year and more than one-third as great as all the dairy production. It exceeded the value of beef and veal more than 300 million of dollars and nearly half the value of corn.

DAIRY

DEVICE STIRS MILK WHILE IT IS COOLED

Fresh milk is often stirred in order to cool it, and this is usually done by hand, which is a slow and tiresome task. A simple device for doing the work automatically by water flowing into a tank, 15 above the tank, can be made by any farmer from materials that are available everywhere.

A Simple Rocking-Box for Stirring Fresh Milk Automatically by Water Flow.

board extending vertically in the center about eight or ten inches above the sides. The box is mounted at its center on a wooden axle, and a stirring paddle is attached to each end as indicated. These paddles are made from laths, planed smooth, and having a number of short crosspieces nailed to them. In used the milk cans are placed in the water tank and the stirring device arranged as shown in the drawing, the rocking box being located under a water pipe so that the water first flows into one side and then into the other side alternately. As soon as one side of the box is filled the weight of the water causes the box to tilt over and the other side of the box is then filled.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Young Calves Made Good Gains on Corn Silage

Silage when fed to calves, and other three or four-month-old prodigious good gains economically, with 20 per cent physical fitness. In a test made during the past winter at the Iowa experimental station.

Five Jersey and four Guernsey calves, averaging at the start about thirty days of age, were divided into three groups. Before the trial they received whole milk, skim milk, grain and alfalfa hay. After being divided into groups, they were continued for eight days on part whole milk and then changed wholly to silage. A grain mixture consisting of three parts cornmeal, three parts ground oats, two parts bran and one part oatmeal was hand fed. Timothy hay, salt and water was available at all times.

Each group was fed silage for a 40-day period in addition to the regular ration and then silage was replaced by the silage for a 40-day period. Still a third 40-day period was used in which the calves received only the timothy hay and grain ration. Slightly more than four pounds of corn silage a day was consumed by each calf during the silage feeding period. The consumption of sliced beets ran 5.75 pounds per calf per day.

It was found that the silage or roots reduced the amount of hay eaten and that growth was more rapid. Less other feed was required with the silage or roots, and the calves were fatter. No scouring due to silage feeding occurred.

Dairy Facts

Speaking of poor relations, consider the calf's cow. Give dairy cows more clean drinking water and more food. If pastures are short, give the cows a larger grain ration. The way to improve common stock is by using good sire.

Clean water should be placed before the calf at all times. Let the calf suck its dam for the first four or five days or until the milk is fit to use.

Blood will tell, but not blood alone. The test herd cow in a world will keep up good milk production unless she has plenty of feed rich in materials that produce milk.

Culling the cows is a constant job. No matter how good your herd, there is always a chance to improve. When you get little the scale of production the culling process may be very profitable.

Tuberculosis control must be regarded as a burning problem. Its eradication cannot be accomplished in one clean sweep. A very gradual reduction in all that can be expected and the farmer must take persistence and consistent effort.

Improvement in Horse Breeding

In Five States All Stallions Used for Public Service.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) An improvement in the quality of stallions and jacks licensed to stand for public service, but a decline in their numbers compared with previous years, are shown by a report on the horse-breeding situation, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The information compiled by J. O. Williams and S. B. Spielman of the bureau of animal industry, is based on the latest records obtained from the state boards of stallion enrollment boards of the various states. The report shows that more than 70 per cent of the stallions standing for public service during the breeding season of 1923, were pure bred.

In numbers, however, stallions registered in 20 states from which comparable figures were available, totaled 89,200 in 1923, as against 90,000 in 1922, a decline of 0.70 or 0.8 per cent. During the same time jacks declined from 4,887 to 4,534, a loss of 7.41 or 16.6 per cent. The figures given show the same general trend in the other states. The total number of horses and jacks on farms in the United States at the beginning of 1923 and 1924. Both of these classes of animals show a decline in numbers.

Production Behind Death Rate. The percentage of stallions registered still behind the death rate, the department specialists assert, "although there is no doubt a surplus of horses which cannot be marketed readily, there is an actual shortage of animals of the heavy draft type. High-class heavy horses are marketed rapidly. Reports indicate a brisk market for animals of these classes, and only sale at good prices. The decline in the number of public-service stallions and jacks was greatest in those states where there is a favorable indication of a better class of foals in the future. Four states—Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan and West Virginia—licensed only pure bred stallions and jacks during 1923. Iowa joined the ranks of these states only pure bred stallions and jacks by a law becoming effective January 1, 1924.

The complete report on stallion enrollment and the horse-breeding situation contains comments by secretaries of stallion enrollment boards in various states, statistical summaries on the number and breeding of jacks and stallions in states keeping stallion records, and an analysis of the state and national officials in charge of horse and mule breeding work, and a list of pedigree registry associations. Copies of the report may be procured on application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Most Practical Way to Save Water in the Soil

How to save water in the soil is a very important matter. We know that soil is moist in the spring when the seeds are sown and that this moisture dries up and goes off in the air. Covering up the soil prevents this moisture from drying up, and the best practical way to do this is with a thin layer of loose, dry earth and make this covering by raking the bed every few days, once a week anyway, and often if the top of the soil becomes hard and crusty, as it does after a rain, therefore, instead of pouring moisture in the shape of water, on the bed, keep the moisture in the soil with this covering of dirt. However, if the soil becomes dry in spite of you, the best thing to do is to sprinkle it, but water it by wetting thoroughly at intervals. Then in the morning when the surface begins to get dry, begin raking again to keep the water from getting away in the evaporation. The best way of doing it or two is one of the surest ways of spoiling them.

Clean Sand Is Favored for Vegetable Storing

Sand makes a very good medium for storing in jars, carrots, beets and parsnips. These vegetables should be kept cool, fairly moist, and free from contact with circulating air. The sand for storing purposes should be free from organic matter. It should also be renewed each year, as the sand in which vegetables have been stored may contain rot spores from the previous winter. This common method of storing is in a box on the basement floor. Or the roots may be placed in a conical pile covered with a layer of sand about eight inches deep.

Important to Store Eggs in Dry Place

Gather and Market Often to Obtain Top Prices.

Other things being equal, newly-hatched brood hens are one of the most profitable foods in the world. From the moment it is laid by a healthy hen in a clean and sanitary environment it is subject to deteriorative influences. The hen is in no way responsible for this, but her owner is. Dirt, heat, excessive dryness or a damp environment are all inimical to quality in fresh eggs. Dirt disfigures the shell and so lessens its value to buyers; it attracts the germ and enters the egg, and so lessens its value to buyers; it attracts the germ and enters the egg, and so lessens its value to buyers; it attracts the germ and enters the egg, and so lessens its value to buyers.

Manure Is Too Valuable to Be Wasted in Yards

No matter how rich a soil may be, years of constant cropping with no return of organic matter will exhaust the soil. The manure which includes a legume at least once in every four years must be followed regularly to be maintained. In addition, all crop refuse available, such as stubble, straw and manure, should be returned to the soil. The average increase in crop yields for each ton of manure applied per acre has been found to be worth $2.50. In an experiment extending over a period of 14 years, manure is too valuable to be wasted around the barnyards. When it is thrown from the stable into the yard, it contains on the average, 80 per cent water if from cattle, and 70 per cent if from horses. This water evaporates and a portion of the salts which give manure its fertilizing value. Expose such material to the rain and the liquid manure will soon be washed away. If water if the manure pile is where it will drain easily.

FAIR FACTS

The best time to fix the farm machinery is before it needs repairs.

During summer the gardener needs to cultivate his peep along with his pepper.

The average duckling is ready for market between ten and twelve weeks of age at which time individuals of the Pekin variety should weigh between five and six pounds.

There is absolutely no danger spraying leaves or broad ways with the eye pregnant. Spray broad ways with crude oil after they have been put in a thoroughly clean harrowing pen. This prevents the flies from getting into their mother.

The time to set trees and shrubs is in early spring, as early as the ground is fit to work. They may be set to the first of June if kept in the house until then. It is just as well to remember that the later the planting the less likely the success, within certain limits.

Boys and girls have often got started with good flocks of sheep by taking a lot of wool from the cow's milk. As ewe's milk is richer than cow's milk, there is no need to dilute cow's milk for feeding, though it is a better plan to sometimes add to prevent indigestion.

The old wood may be cut from the raspberries and blackberries, and if new canes are making a very strong growth they may be cut back, say to three feet. In the case of red raspberries, it is unnecessary to cut them back, and experience has proved that it is a better plan to cut them back only black caps and blackberries.
