To you, the student, this Dragon is dedicated. Your days of study in stuffy rooms when the sunshine and cool breezes offered disturbing suggestions, your attention given to a dull speaker when it would be much easier to doze, your going to noontime study when you would rather eat, your turning off the radio and reading until midnight when you could be listening to Bob Hope, or better still, sleeping -- your fortitude has made you worthy of this dedication.

History

It was in the fall of 1940, when twelve little angels entered Miss Nelson's kindergarten room at 8:30 consisting of, Ben, Jerome, Sandy, Mary Agnes, Mary Jean, Sue, Nancy, Joe, Jeannie, Jack, Loretta, and Shirley. We were sorry to see our mothers leave, but Miss Nelson put us to work in the sand box. We soon forgot our troubles and started a new life in school. Bennie ran around talking in Bohemian which had us all stumped.

First grade started under the supervision of Miss Collete, who used to check our health charts every day. We were all rowdies, especially Tuffy. He locked himself in the cloak room and couldn't get out until we noticed his absence and got the janitor to take the door down. We didn't like the naps we had to take every day, but keeping time to music with our little instruments surely made up for them. We all remember that stormy day when we helped Joe celebrate his birthday. May rolled around and thirty-two happy youngsters passed into the second grade.

In the second grade we learned how to make butter under the careful guidance of Miss Larson. We were also introduced into a new subject called "Arithmetic."

In the third grade we met Miss Whitselbaum, and three little cherubs named Marilyn, Margaret, and Carole joined our class. Henry and Lois liked our class so much they decided to stay another year. At Christmas our teacher presented each of us with candy canes.

We started fourth grade by having our eyes tested. Joe, Sue, and Carole were found to be the unlucky ones. Joe proved to us that glasses were breakable. We presented "Rumpelstiltskin" with the help of Miss Moran. Remember the ragdoll and angel who took part in the Christmas program?

Every one liked fifth grade with Miss Steen as our teacher. Remember the incident when Mary Jean was making paper cigarettes? We were all happy to have Bert join us that year. We were all very, very sad to leave the fifth grade but very happy to climb up another step to the sixth grade. The fellows just loved to hold Miss Steen's hand when they were naughty.

We all started to mature in the sixth grade, and romances started to bud everywhere. Remember the gifts Henry kept bringing to Sandy? We didn't like the long paragraph sentences Miss Olson had us write for being naughty. Yes, and how about the accident Joe had because he couldn't wait for the bell to ring? Then the big day came and we entered Junior high. We were all very proud of ourselves.

We were rather confused with our new schedule of changing classes. But it wasn't long until we were ourselves again. We had several teachers including Mr. Kallin, whose specialty was throwing chalk and erasers. There was quite an addition to our class from the country. We haven't forgotten the U's Miss Jorgenson threatened.

We studied eighth grade Math under the strict ruling of "Henry" Gackstetter, who made several of us learn from the corners. That year three girls were chosen our first junior cheerleaders. The kids from Beroun and Rock Creek joined us. Our class was split and half of it went upstairs to Miss Christopherson's room. We also took first prize for our Homecoming Float.

My but we were big then, Freshmen! And such a large class, 105 enrolled. Mary Jean made senior cheerleader that year. We studied "Ivanhoe, Merchant of Venice" and made newspapers under the careful attention of Miss Anderson. In Mrs. Fritz's Health and Safety class we wrote plays about Polio, and sent several students down to represent us in Minneapolis. While they were gone we had some "Swell Times" didn't we???? On we went into Senior High.

Our Sophomore year was a great deal of fun. Several of us signed up for Drivers Training with Mr. Saunders, who showed us where all the good duck hunting places were. Remember the "tests" we had in World History? We still wonder what happened to some of those exams. A "few" Sophomore girls became Pep Club Members. What a sight!! After Christmas vacation, Darlene B. and Ed. G., (Edwin to Miss Rogstad), joined our ranks. Ed was also named the "Sophomore Wonder in Basketball." A number of girls and fellows were picked as Hansels and Gretels for the Junior and Senior Prom. The Mothers also put on a Spring Dance for us which we enjoyed.

Soon after school started, Homecoming festivities began, and our own Lois Jean was chosen to reign over the coming year. Shortly after homecoming we presented "Brother Goose," our first class play. All of us took part in making it a success. In football we broke our twenty-four straight winning streak. Finally the day came for us to choose our class rings. Soon after Christmas we began to think about our prom, which didn't get started until a week before the big day. Circus Day was chosen as our theme, and the prom was made up of gay carnival colors. Everyone took part in making it a success-- and finally, on May 9, the Grand Carnival of Fun was held.

Yippee! We were upper classmen finally! We immediately started work on our annual. We had to smile for the birdie and hope our class pictures would turn out okay. Spring brought us the class play, the Prom, and finally Commencement. Now we will no longer hear the laughter of the kids in the school, but others will carry on where we left off. We have left good old P. C. H. S. and many unforgettable memories as we start down another path to an unknown future.

The End

Prophecy

On a beautiful fall day in 1963 our first woman president was to speak at Pine City. I was glad that she was making a whistle stop here, for I hadn't seen Rose since we graduated. As I made my way through the crowd on my way to the train depot a loud clatter and the screeching of brakes drew my attention.

I looked up and saw Dick Thiry, still running the same old Model "A" Ford he had in school. He told me to hop in and said he would escort me to the depot. On our way Dick informed me that he was an antique car dealer and business was booming. Just then I heard the train pulling in and I ran to get my ticket. When I returned, the platform was crowded with people who were hoping to catch a glimpse of the president. I found myself standing next to Bob Salonek. He told me he was the proud owner of the "Streamliner" in competition with Pine Camp. He was stalling that "booming bass" Dick "Bingo" Dowler and next week he would star "Whoopy Joe and his Shatavaines."

He informed me that Margaret Shumway was the editor of the DAILY POKER with a circulation of over twenty-three thousand and was doing a feature story on Gene Thom who had been crowned the world's greatest billiard player in Venice. He said that Jerome P. was named Dairy King of the Northwest, and that Mary Saumer's, "Did You Know That?" gossip column was covering a story on Cleo Coca, television star of "the Show of Shows."

Just then Pres. Kryzer finished her speech and the train conductor began to call everyone aboard. I got in the coach to find all the seats filled. Stumbling my way to the back the train jolted and I fell into the lap of Eldon Finger who was working on a pile of architectural graphs a foot high. I helped him gather them up and asked him what the graphs were for. He said he was building a new Trophies Trikes Tricycles in Rock Creek.

As I continued looking for a seat I heard someone calling "Copy Boy!" I looked up and there was Annabelle working over a huge bundle of notes. When I asked what she was doing, she explained she was an editor of "Time Magazine", and was personally following the president. She asked me if I knew anything about the mysterious disappearance of Ray Odegard, who was Head of the Atomic Energy Commission. I said I'd heard nothing about his disappearance. She told me he was found arguing with Dean Madison over a slight technicality in his comic strip.

Seeing a seat at the far end of the car which was only half occupied, I made my way towards it. The occupant was a soldier who was staring dreamily out the window. As I should have guessed, it was Dick Luedtke. He said he was on his way to Stillwater to see an old friend. I asked him why he was still in the service. He explained that it was the kind of life he liked. He said he'd heard Sandy was busy saving lives at Miami Beach now, but in her spare time she was coaching Bert Ostwald for her attempt to swim the English Channel. Last week-end he had seen Bennie Kozak's last Pro Football game. Bennie was going to coach at the U. of M. He also told me that Virgil Schmidt was making a good profit manufacturing his "Pick Pocket Pin Ball Machines."

Suddenly a blast from someone's radio came on singing commercials for "Pierce's Priceless Stickless Glue", sung by the familiar coloratura voice of Everal Novy. Following this came the voice of New York's Governor, Tom McClellan, introducing Edward Gillespie, former Ford Dealer, now running for the Democratic Presidential Nomination, under Secretary of Agriculture, Arden Hippen's policy on Higher Honors for Judging.

I was staring out the window when I saw the familiar face of Margie Soukup smiling from a billboard advertising "Towle's Twinkle Plenty" toothpaste. I glanced over to see Dick reading a book called "Midwestern Flight's Scream", written by Lyndon 'Poe' Peterson.

At dinner I secured a seat with a red headed Wave. Looking closer, I recognized it to be Mary Jean Bartos; she was an Admiral now. She said she had seen Darlene Gaddes in Washington D. C. and that she was now working on the Secretariat of the U. N. Darlene told her that Marlene Badke was the new ambassador to Italy. Mary also said she had seen John Ouradnik in Washington a few times, trying to get a bill passed to raise the income of Minnesota Senators.

I glanced out the window to see a car trying to race our train. Mary Jean said that it was Arnold Johnson and that he was trying to get a patent on jet-propelled cars that will beat trains -- so far he hadn't succeeded.

I finished my dinner and returned to the coach; I found a magazine lying on my seat called "Famous Romances" with a feature article on "How To Get Your Man" by Elaine Piha, with an editorial written on "Why Go Steady?" by Donna Russell. As I flipped through it I saw an advertisement. This time it was diamond rings modeled by Lois Nichols.

I found QUICK magazine laying on the floor. Picking it up I saw a picture of "Bring'em Back Alive" Livingston on the cover. Opening it up I noticed an article on "How To Crash A Jet Plane" written by Ace pilot, Howard Larsen. Toward the middle of the magazine was a picture of Bette Benson who was named "Secretary of the Year" and also an article she had written on "How To Please Your Boss." I was surprised to see as I went further on that Bernice Enos was modeling Poodle Cuts, and that Margie Hinzle had designed a new style dress out of paper -- so it can be discarded after use. There was also an article on Shirl's winning a thousand boxes of 'Spick' and Span on "Cornie's Crazy Capers" television program.

Just then the train stopped and I realized I was at the end of my journey as far as the train ride was concerned. I stepped out of the train to be greeted by a dozen blinding flashes. Looking behind me I saw Jeannie and Yvonne, the Schwartzwald cousins, who had hitchhiked home from Egypt.

I entered the Depot and saw Barbara standing with several children by her. I asked if they were all hers and she replied that she was proving families are really cheaper by the dozen. She told me that Helen B. was the Proprietress of the carry-your-own-tray Restaurant now. Wally was now the chief speller in the Alphabet Soup Factory. As I left Barbara I saw Sue hurrying up the corridor. I asked her why she was hurrying. She said she was supposed to catch the 3:30 train. I informed her that it had left ten minutes ago. She was late again! She said she was working her way through Harvard trying to get a Bachelor (Degree.)

We walked out together to get a cab. Finally a Mercury appeared, and the driver called out "Cab?" We ran and got in only to find the driver was Lois Jean. She said she enjoyed driving; especially in the "Cities." She told us that she had just given Eugene A. a ride to Sonja Swanson's Mansion, where Gene was going to auction off her $9,478,316 diamond necklace.

She stopped outside the airport and I bid the girls good-bye and started toward the information window, when I heard over the loudspeaker that Stunt Pilot Shirley Doran was coming in for a crash landing in her new Heli-Hop.

After finding out that my plane would be leaving soon, I went into the waiting room and sat down. Picking up a newspaper, I saw a familiar name in the headlines, Jack Anderson. There was a story telling of his return from Mars from a conference on interplanetary space ship flying. There was also a story of a disaster. Nancy Grover had blown up the Theory of Revolution in her chemistry laboratory. She was recovering nicely at the Bible's Memorial Hospital, under the care of Dr. Bible and Dr. Engh of the Psychopathic Ward. The loudspeaker then began to call out the flights. I looked over to the radio room to see Mary Ann K. standing in there calling off the flight numbers. I recognized mine and went to board the ship and saw Marilyn at the top of the stairway. She was now a stewardess for Northwest Airlines. After I'd settled myself, she came over and asked me if I would mind sharing my seat. I found my partner was Nancy H. who told me that she was co-editor of Esquire Magazine.

I opened my paper to the Society section, which was written by Margaret Quiding. I read that Carole De Forest (New York's most prominent Social Leader) wrote a book called "The Jer and I" which had sold almost a million copies. Glancing down the page I saw that Betty Lou Stoffel and Helen Sundgaard were taking a much needed vacation after writing "How to be a Miser in Three Easy Lessons" or "Live Alone and Save Money." And that Loretta S. had just convinced Mary O. that her streamlined baby diapers were guaranteed not to be moisture proof. I turned to the cinema section and saw to my surprise that Darlene Benson and Jack Beherendt were starring together in the play "Romeo and Juliet" at the Alvin Play House.

I was very absorbed in the paper when suddenly an announcement came over the loudspeaking system. "Attention, please, remain in your seats. Killer Korf has been found in the baggage room by Police woman Janice Odegard. Everything is under control.

Naturally I was astonished, but I smiled in spite of myself at the thought that Janice was still after her man.

Time passed quickly and I got off at the next stop. To my surprise, who should appear, but Joe Holetz sporting a flashy game warden's badge. We had a little conversation about the 'good old high school days.' Finally, I bade him goodbye and left the airport at Key West, Florida to enjoy my long-awaited vacation.

FOOTBALL

For the first time in nine years the Dragons failed to win the District Conference Championship. When the season's results were finally in, Pine City's record was five games won, three lost, and one tied.

The season's best game was played against a strong, high-ranking Cambridge team. Although the home team came within scoring territory several times, they lacked the final drive to push them across the goal line. Ronnie Spickler's spectacular open-field running brought the fans to their feet in game after game.

This season's Dragons were captained by Richard Luedtke and Dick Thiry. By popular vote of the team, Ronnie Spickler was chosen to lead next year's squad.

The Team

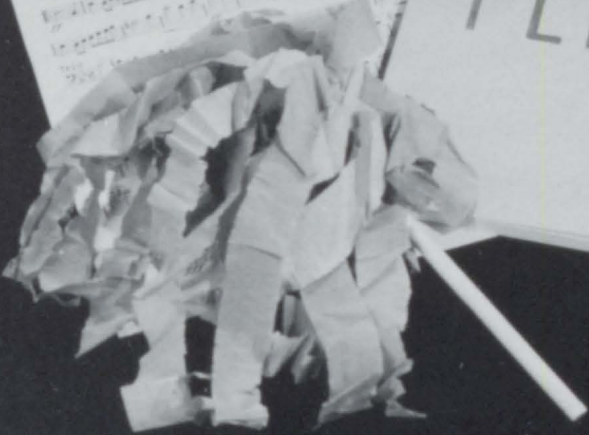

Although they started poorly, the boys showed determination and sincerity all through the season. Due to the fact that in most games they were considerably shorter than their opponents they never showed signs of discouragement.

Ed Gillespie was elected honorary captain by the members of the squad.

Pine City High School is proud of their Band, whose membership is fifty-five strong. They have made many appearances in the last year, including pepfests, a christmas concert, and invitations from different schools. During the summer months, the band gave a weekly concert at the park band stand and appeared at local celebrations.

The band has helped maintain school spirit by appearing at pep assemblies, football and basketball games.

In the past year new uniforms have been purchased for the band. Seventeen extra uniforms were bought to allow for the rapid increase in membership.

Much credit is to be given to the majorettes for their fine leadership of the marching band.

CHORUS

FOURTH ROW: Daniel Boo, Deanne Clark, Ruth Turgeon, Ted Larson, Darold Powers, Roger Lawrence, Fred Hodge, Michael Selleck.

This training band is composed of about fifty musical inclined students who are training for the "A", or first, band.

These hard-working members are admitted to the Second Band upon completion of their first beginners book, and are eligible for the "A" Band on entering the seventh grade or upon completion of the required amount of work.

These musicians showed their talents to the school at the assembly for the March of Dimes.

JUNIOR CHORUS

FIRST ROW: Miss Arimond, Nancy Selleck, Elaine Krube, Kathleen Teich, Elaine Caroon, Barbara Bell, Mary Bauer, Stuart Peterson, Loren Erhart, Richard Baker, Rosemary Byrne, Janice Tracy. Studious, ambitious students whose job is to straighten the library so others can mess it up -- that's the job of the seventy-four pupils who are members of the Library Club. This hard-working group has just completed its third year of existence.

The duties of these helpers include charging books, processing all new books, cataloging and ordering new books.

During its three years of service new book shelves were made, indirect lighting was installed and new bulletin boards and card cataloging were purchased.

Miss Thompson, advisor of the club, is very generous each year in giving a Christmas party and gifts to the members.

DECLAM

'52 was the first successful year in speech work that Pine City High has had in recent years.

Shirley Henning, in extemporaneous reading, went to the regional contest where she progressed as far as the second preliminary.

Doris Eklund, in memorized humor, received an excellent rating at the district contest.

This year there were over 30 students who participated in declam work. Many of whom showed promise for coming years.

PEP CLUB

This "hep" group of girls have provided a larger and more enthusiastic cheering section at the different games of the year. Other accomplishments were the selling of Pom Poms for Homecoming, and buying flowers for the Queen. There is also an added attraction now; that is, the new green n' gray beanies the members are sporting at games. This makes them more noticeable than ever.

CHEERLEADERS

Here are the girls who help the team on to victory in every game. These girls are the ones who get the students to cheer because of their hard work and effort to do their best to give moral support. Let's hope the students will continue to give more support to the cheerleaders -- they need it and appreciate it.

STUDENT COUNCIL

FIRST ROW: Darlene Erickson, Darlene Krube, Marlys Montgomery, Raymond Odegard, Sylvia Wood, John Stratte, Karen Challeen, Shirley Doran, Marilyn Youngquist. SECOND ROW: Pauline Anderson, Janet Bell, Joy Doran, Arlene Holetz, Jane Blanchard, Bette Benson, Marlene Badke, Janet Rypkema, Delores Becvar, Pat Gebert, Margaret Gillespie. THIRD ROW: Mr. Oldenburg, Dean Stoffel, Judy Frolke, Rose Marie Kryzer, Janice Rypkema, Elaine Wood, Gloria Okeson, Georgiana Gillespie, Joan Chalupnik, Richard Buckley, Lauren Erhart, Dale Teich. FOURTH ROW: Mike Selleck, Jim Blanchard, Robert Orvis, Donald Wurm, Robert Fischer, Dean Madison, Jerry Carson, Bob Bjork, Dan Boo, Scotty Russ.

These honorary students are working hard to represent the rest of their classmates -- the student body.

This group, which consists of four elected students from each grade in the Junior and Senior High, is striving for more and better cooperation and understanding between students and teachers.

Lots of work by the Annual Staff,
To bring you memories and a laugh;
So enjoy it while you may,
We still have the printer to pay.

Thanks, Cleo!

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

These future farming men have really had a busy year -- especially in winning awards. To begin with, in October, '52, the dairy products judging team took part in the national contest at Waterloo, Iowa and won the Silver Emblem which is the second highest award possible. The members of this team were Melvin Besser, Le Roy Hippen, Arden Hippen, and Tom McClellan; all of Brook Park.

Two teams were entered in the State Horticulture Contest and won second and third place. Howard Larson, Ted Nelson, Lowell Nielson, John Ouradnik, Eldon Ginger, and Rodney Swanson were the participants.

In November, 1952, Arnold Johnson won honors in the district Cow-Clipping Contest.

Pine City won first place in the December district Horticulture Contest; the members were Howard Larson, Lowell Nielson, and John Ouradnik.

Completing his list of outstanding showings by the FFA, was the state contest which was held at the University. This ambitious group won the high honors in Horticulture, Soils, and Poultry.

"CHEAPER BY THE DOZEN"

"Cheaper by the Dozen"

Dad is an efficiency expert who believes what works in the factory will work at home. He continues with his strict organization of the family even though his high-school age daughters are bothering him with boys and dates. He assigns them each a definite household duty, and efficient methods of bathing are demonstrated on the living room floor. Father Gilbreth has his own reasons for such antics; he has a heart ailment which he keeps from his family, and as long as he is on borrowed time, he wants to make his family efficient so his wife won't be burdened by a lot of troubles. Dad succeeds and the play ends in a heartwarming scene where dad is leaving for Europe, and both Ann and he are regretful that they don't understand each other better.

Brother Goose

A delightful comedy with Humor and romance -- that's "Brother Goose." Jeff Adams, architect and also housekeeper for his brothers and sister, starts things rolling when he mistakes Peggy Winkel, a hosiery saleswoman for the new maid. Because she is tired of traveling and also because she is fond of children, she stays on and accepts the position. Trouble develops, however, when Lenore Hudson, a wealthy lady, tries to get Jeff to build her new house and marry her too. Hy, the tomboy of the family, resents Lenore because she is building her house on the lot where they play football, and makes trouble for her. Peggy protects Hy, Jeff gets angry, and Peggy leaves. Jeff then realizes what Peggy really means to him and Hy helps by getting the football squad together to bring her back.

There are many other difficulties, but everything finally turns out well for everyone.

"BROTHER GOOSE"

HOME COMING

"Veto the Vikings" was the battle cry of all Pine City Dragons as they prepared for the Home Coming festivities of October 3. Following the coronation of Queen Carol Carlson in the auditorium and the choosing of her attendants, Margie Soukup and Kay

Metcalf, the entire school took part in a parade through town.

Later in the evening, Queen Carol reigned over happy subjects as Pine City romped to victory over North Branch.

JR. SR. PROM

1952 Jr. Sr. Prom

Juniors, Seniors, and faculty gathered at the Armory May 7, 1952 to partake in the Grand Carnival of Fun. Under the big top, the circus theme was carried out, even to the brown, wooden fence and the well trained circus animals. The evening's entertainment consisted of a banquet and dinner music followed by dancing with music furnished by Dix Mann and his orchestra. Dick Luedtke presided as master of ceremonies for the evening. Jeannie Schwartzwald and Edward Gillespie led the grand march to bring the prom to an end.

1953 Jr. Sr. Prom

As this annual is being printed the Juniors' plans for the 1953 Junior Senior Prom are very indefinite. The Prom and banquet are scheduled, however, to be held on May 8. Therefore, all the Juniors and Seniors are looking forward to an evening of great fun.
