

The Pine City Development Association All together—all the time—for a greater Pine City

Ten thousand people will visit Pine City on July 4th to take part in the mammoth Home Coming for the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines.

You only have two weeks to make Pine City The Spotless Town before that event. This is your opportunity to show your civic pride.

Trees should be trimmed. Grass cut along the boulevard. Weeds kept down in vacant lots. Old sheds and buildings removed. Back yards of stores and shops cleaned up. Dilapidated fences removed.

Clean Up Paint Up Keep It Up

It has been suggested that photographs of all uncleaned back yards be taken July 1st for publication in the Roll of Dishonor. Don't be in this class.

A large fund must be raised for this Home Coming. Donations will be received by either of the local banks. Any amount will be accepted. Do your "bit" and make this the greatest event in the history of this part of the state.

DECORATIONS.—Every business place and every residence should display Old Glory and patriotic decorations on the Big Home Coming Day, July 4th.

Buy your decorations now while they can be had. Don't wait until the supply of flags and decorations is gone, but buy them now.

Change in Phone Rates

Phone Co. Announces Increase Changes Because of Advanced Expenses

The telephone company announces an increase in telephone rates in the Pine City and Hinckley offices, effective June 20th, 1919.

The new rates are as follows: Main Station Individual 2-Party 4-Party Rates Line Line Line Business $2.50 $1.25 $1.25 Residence 1.50

The old rates at Pine City were: Main Station Individual 2-Party 4-Party Rates Line Line Line Business $2.00 $1.00 $1.00 Residence 1.50

The old rates at Hinckley were: Main Station Individual 2-Party Rates Line Line Line Business $1.50 $1.00 Residence 1.00

Farm station multi-party line rates, metallic old rates $1.25, new rates $1.50.

Service station multi-party line annual rates: $120 per station. The reason given by the telephone company for higher rates is the advance cost of labor and materials.

Telephone officials say that because of the increased cost of operation the revenue under the old rates the company has charged have been insufficient to meet its financial requirements.

On account of the doubt as to what authorization was necessary for changes in telephone rates, the company has not previously made increases in its rates.

However, a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court determined the authority for rate changes, and a new schedule of rates has been made effective accordingly.

Officials of the company say it satisfactory telephone service is to be furnished increased revenue is necessary, and they feel that the public will realize the justification of their action in the present situation.

Duluth Sends County $10,000 check, a week ago, for $10,000 which represents the amount guaranteed by Duluth automobile and business people toward the Federal road work done in Pine County last year.

St. Paul and Minneapolis each guaranteed a like amount but neither have paid up yet though they undoubtedly will.

Most of the towns and villages in the county which made guarantees have already settled.

The Poor Poor Crocodiles! Annette jumped among the crocodiles in one-half yard costume, feet first. In "A Daughter of the Gods."

"Why," said Miss Kallerman finally, "the costume I wore when I was thrown to the crocodiles was but a little band around here and about half a yard around here."

She illustrated, but I'll leave the illustration to the artist, if he dares. "And the crocodile cost 25 cents a yard. The crocodile costume must have cost all of 25 cents."

Now I ask any impartial man who has read this account of the perils of Annette, who on earth wouldn't be a crocodile?—At the Family theatre one day only Wednesday, June 26, prices 10c and 25c.

High School Agriculture Now is the time to have that broken hay rope spliced at the high school. Better yet, why not buy a bulletin from the school showing all sorts of splices, knots and hitches.

Mrs. Nina Lindahl has a fine new mammoth concrete site. The design is somewhat different from the others in the neighborhood.

The Chongwata Farmers' Club met in the town hall Saturday afternoon.

Potato blight is now in sight. Use Nordway Mixture with all your sight and victory will reward your fight.

Have your wife describe those flowers on the school grounds and then take a look at them: cosmos, larkspur, balsam, geranium, aster, larkspur, phlox, peonies and golden glow.

Notice the new shawl—snowberry—placed on the southeast corner of the grounds.

Chongwata Basket has a few specimens of the entire receipt. The blight is a fly about the size of the common house fly. The former lays eggs on the young plants.

Notice the new shawl—snowberry—placed on the southeast corner of the grounds. They have made arrangements with Corporal Tust to manage the show for an introduction to be held at your service.

Coming Events

Big "Home Coming"—Celebration for Pine County soldiers and sailors at Pine City, July 4. Chautauque—will be held at Pine City, Monday, July 21 to Friday, July 25.

Royal Neighbors County Convention—at Sandstone, Wednesday, June 26.

Boards of Review—in all towns and villages of Pine county will meet next Monday morning to equalize assessments.

Farmers and Merchants Picnic—which was first set for Saturday, June 21, has been postponed to Saturday, July 26, when it will be held at the Pokegama town hall grounds at Pokegama lake.

Midsummer Day Celebrations—will be held at Abraham and Denham on Tuesday, June 24. There is always a big crowd—1500 to 2000 people—at these celebrations at Denham.

The Old Settlers Picnic at Denham is one of the most enjoyable annual picnics held in Pine county.

The destruction of the injured plants is recommended as the best insect abate. If the pests are numerous the University recommends the use of kerosene and sand.

A cup of coal oil is mixed with a pint of sand and this is scattered along the row. This method is not successful unless it is done before the flies lay their eggs.

After the eggs are in the onion control is almost impractical.

Several larvae in town have a rather unusual disease called the Fairy Ring. It is a circle of light-colored toadstools. Beneath each living parasol are numerous folds running from the center to the circumference. On these folds the seeds are formed.

The disease has not proved serious enough to require control methods.

Requests for the formula for making kerosene emulsion have come to the high school. If you want to make just a little this is a good method. Dissolve one ounce of ivory soap (1/8 of a cake) in a pint of hot water.

Add one quart of kerosene and stir thoroughly about five minutes until the mixture looks like milk. Then add 17 parts of water and stir again. This solution is placed on the plants and is excellent for plant lice.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Bever left Tuesday for St. Paul to visit relatives, whence they will leave for Ladysmith, Wis., and Cass Lake to visit with their daughters before returning home.

Frank Bever accompanied his parents to St. Paul where he will be employed for the summer. Miss Rose Tachey also accompanied her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bever, to St. Paul where she is visiting relatives and friends, expecting to return Sunday.

"Notice is hereby given to all drivers of automobiles that when they wish to stop and leave their cars within the limits of Pine City they will park their cars on the right hand side of the street, next to the curb, and at least 15 feet from the corners. Engines must not be left running unless some person is in the car, and mufflers must be used. Please observe the road and speed laws.—J. J. Scully village president.

Miss Gladys Jensen and Jos. Finberg were recently married at Minneapolis and Miss Ruth Wilson and Paul Kaebble were also wedded.

Both the brides were on the teaching force of our village schools the past year and the grooms are well known in this, their home village.

Big Preparations for 4th

Committeemen from Over Co. Promise Enormous Attendance at Home Coming

Big preparations are being made to entertain Pine county soldiers, sailors and marines and their folks and friends at the big county "Welcome Home" to the boys at Pine City on July 4. It will be the biggest day ever known in Pine county—and it ought to be. Nothing is so good for "the boys."

Word from committeemen all over the county promises big delegations and Pine City folks are working night and day to try to do their share in making the day one that the boys and their friends will never forget.

The Pine Poker will issue a fine souvenir edition on that day, entirely devoted to The Boys. We want stories of all those who gained glory or honors of any kind. Write them up and send them to your brother or son or friend to give your proudest recommendation. We can only print what we know and think of.

A Happy Double Wedding A pretty double wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jov. Verker at Minneapolis, last week Wednesday, June 11, joined their daughter, Miss Mimie Verker, and Albert Neuhauer of this place and Miss Emma Neuhauer and Thos. Volney Cox, both of this place, in wedlock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Sletten of the Norwegian Lutheran church in the presence of relatives of the contracting parties. The house was prettily decorated in white and pink and the bridesmaids were in gowns of white and carrying white roses and sweet peas.

Mrs. Neuhauer who was Miss Verker, spent her childhood here and her coming back is into many old friendships, while Mr. Cox has grown to womanhood here. Mr. Neuhauer is one of Pine City's very best, cleanest, business men and Mr. Cox, who has been in charge of the Pine City Produce Co. warehouse the past season, coming from his old home at North Branch, has made many friends here.

The Neuhauers are living at the home of his mother, Mrs. Jullia Neuhauer, until they find a place in which to settle. Mr. and Mrs. Cox expect to spend much of the next month at the home of his brother, near Finlayson, after which they hope to get located in a home here.

Contractor O. H. Olgin is pushing work on the new Petchel garage as rapidly as possible and has the side walls about half up but is being delayed by difficulty of the lumber yard in getting materials.

Mr. Petchel is putting up only two-thirds of the length of the building at this time, building up and boarding up the east end of the building. He is doing this as a "learn-as-you-go" policy and will add the other two feet at the end as soon as he decides what is absolutely the best plan.

At present he plans on building the east end of the building two stories high and putting a paint shop on the second floor, but will feel the public need before doing this. He had hoped to have the building ready for "opening" on July 4 but this is almost impossible owing to lack of material.

Miss Margaret Klaus passed away, last Thursday morning from heart trouble at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Neville. The remains were interred in Calvary cemetery, Saturday forenoon, following services with mass in St. Mary's church by Father Leo. De Marry, who was born in Germany, 60 years ago and came to America with Mrs. Neville in 1882, remaining here until he came to Pine City for a year, after which he came to the Nevilles on their farm, south of town, where she lived, until she moved with them to town.

Guest Jas. Ingram, just back from France, stopped to visit with his parents, Proprietor and Mrs. O. H. Ingram of the Hotel Grand, last Thursday, before going on to his home at SandPons, Mo. Ingram enlisted as a private and went up from the ranks. His only neighbor in all with the army of occupation in Germany.

A social meeting of the Pine City Cash organization was held last Thursday, before going on to their home, there being a large attendance and a delightful time spent. A report of the meeting has been prepared and is to type but no account of lack of space will be given next week.

When the Colorado Burst Its Banks and Flooded the Imperial Valley of California

By EDNA H. AIKEN

Copyright, 1917, by Edna H. Aiken

RICKARD "GOES IN," AND AS HE GOES HE BEGINS TO APPRECIATE THE DIFFICULTIES OF HIS POSITION.

Aspen—E. C. Rickard, an engineer of the Overland Pacific railroad, is called to the office of President Marshall in Tucson, Ariz. While waiting Rickard reads a report on the ravages of the Colorado river, despite the efforts of Thomas Hardin, head of the Desert Reclamation company. Hardin had been a student under Rickard in an eastern college and had married Betty Holmes, with whom Rickard had fancied he was in love. Marshall tells Rickard the Overland Pacific must step in to save the Imperial valley and wishes to send Rickard to take charge. Rickard declines because he foresees embarrassment in supplanting Hardin, but is won over.

CHAPTER III.

The morning of the 17th. When Rickard left the main line at Imperial Junction the next afternoon his eyes followed the train he was deserting rather than the one that was to carry him to his new home. He felt again the thrill of detachment that invariably preceded his entrance into a new country. With the pulling up of the porter's green-carpeted stool, the shuffling of the train gait, the curtain fall on the Tucson scene. The long line of cars was pushing off with its iron-covered Pullmans and coaches, standing at attention toward the Sisk, the expression which had been primal scene, and then desert, and was now a sea of blue. Beach, rechristened Imperial Junction for railroad convenience, was itself lower than the ancient sea level. Once the gate had been closed, Rickard knew he could find shells at that desert station should he look for them. He picked up his bag that the porter had thrown on the ground and faced the ransacked curtains.

Its painted ceiling a yellow station house broiling under a desert sun, a large water tank beyond, and in the distance the blue-tinted peaks of desert mountains, like property scene sheets, flat and thin in their unreal tones of burnt pink and purple. The dusty accommodation train was backing and switching, picking up the empty refrigerator cars to carry into the valley for the next morning. Already the valley had asserted its industrial importance; the late manager of the Colorado had been so spectacular. Those who would pay little attention to the opening of a new agricultural district in the heart of a dreaded desert opened their ears to the wagner of the river which had sportively made a part of that desert an inland sea. Scientists were rushing their speculations into print; the sea level was being rechecked as it had done before. Or would the overflow maintain the paradoxical sea?

The flood signs were apparent. There cracks had split the desert sand; here water fissures had menaced the tracks; and there, on the fringe of young willows hid the path of the Colorado's debouch. The men crowding the platform wore the motley of the new country. In Tucson the uniform of the male citizen, with the exception of those reckless ones who were still wearing that lotus is a liquid, was the wilted pretense of a gentle civilization; dependent ducks and ducks and limp collars. Imperial Junction marked the downfall of the collar. The rest of the composite costume was made of badly laundered and torn, faded and faded; the clothes of the desert soldier. Rickard's uniform was a pair of faded overalls, shabby trousers, and a faded cap. The faces under the hood-brown hats made a leaping impression upon you of eagerness. He noted a significant average of intelligence and alertness. This was not the desert of the men which makes a pretense of occupation whenever a train comes in.

"Going to take a walk?" "Yes, sir." "It is a good time to buy," Rickard suspected a real estate agent. "For land is low—very low—on the account of the unseasonable drought. The river. People are afraid. They want to see the company before they come in and the company isn't in much of a hurry." Rickard asked what company he referred to.

The young-old face with the faded eyes was behind the counter. "The D. R. Company, Desert Reclamation, which brought us all here." "Seemingly?" "Seemingly?" "The long line of cars that formed the neck and lead lines that served the neck of the valley gave a man of casual note to the question.

"No. Fools?" The answer was as swift as a bullet. "Though some people think there is something in it, it don't go so far. I'm willing that they've tried. I'll say that much. But they haven't the know-how." The window seat of the car could see, were filled before the cars halted. Each row selected the ones who had not waited for the train to be taken up. In the scramble he spotted a vacant window on the sunny side and made for it. A stranger dropped into the seat beside him.

Very window in the car was open. Rickard felt velvet, dusty seat was filled. A strong breeze from the sea sent his hair flying, discoloring the hats and covering the floor. The engineer turned to his companion, who was coughing.

restained by a brown silk tie; and it was truly beautiful. There were two neckties in the suitcase and they occupied, Rickard observed, the same seat.

"The beginning of the canal system." Rickard looked out upon a flat, unbroken expanse of desert. In rectangles by plows and scrapers. Farther south these rectangles were edged by young willows. He fancied he could see, even at that distance, the gleam of water.

"It is the passing of the desert. A few miles back he had seen the desert in its primitive nakedness, which not even cactus relieved. He was passing over the land which man and horse were preparing for water. And he could see the land where water was about to be. The way it looked when I first saw it," commented the other man who wore a tie. "Come out to the rear platform. We can see better."

Rickard followed to the back of the platform, adding car. The glare on the ground was intense. He stood watching the newly made checkerboard of a country slip past him. Receiving over the two lines of gleaming steel rails which connected and separated him from the world outside. He was "going back" to Mexico over the new yellow-painted station. There were several dusty automobiles walking by the track, a few faded trucks and the inevitable country hotel bus. The platform was swarming with alert, vigorous faces, distinctly of the American type.

The man in the seat beside him asked Rickard if he observed the general average of intelligence in the faces of the crowd below. Rickard acknowledged that he did. He noted that, not only here but at Imperial Junction, there had been a waiting for the train.

"There is a club in the valley, lately started, a university club which admits as members those who have had at least two years of college training. The list numbers three hundred already. The first meeting was held last night in an empty room across the street. If it had not been for that, we might have been at Ann Arbor tonight. Rickard felt the suspense of the next act.

"It was a torpid imagination, he thought, which would not quicken over the desert. In the tract men and teams were preparing the newly formed ground for the seed. The curved hand of a plow was breaking up the rich mold into ridges of soft soil as unobscure and tearful as the desert. The dark color of the chocolate of chocolate, this soil which had been plied from the states through which the man with ideas, or the man who is willing to take them, who comes into this desert country. If he has not had the education to force work beyond the limits of aridity."

The wind, though still blowing through the car and ruffling the train, was carrying a new note. The man with ideas, or the man who is willing to take them, who comes into this desert country. If he has not had the education to force work beyond the limits of aridity."

"The desert, after a certain stage, is a place of men because of its temperance stand. It is the other way round. The desert offers a man special advantages, such as the man who is willing to take them, who comes into this desert country. If he has not had the education to force work beyond the limits of aridity."

The Dort is the sort of a car that is used—one that more than pays for itself. Light, easily handled, costing little for upkeep, there is no hesitancy about using it early and often.

You can do more with a Dort to get you out quickly; you can do better by getting "on the ground" instead of telephoning. In any way you look at it, the Dort will increase your efficiency. Buy a Dort and use it.

FARM SALES A SPECIALTY

Songs of the Club Workers

By the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Of course, the poets and writers of light odes are all wrong when they try to make out that farming is a business wherein the jovial harvesters join hands with the merry villagers and dance around a Maypole, singing roundays.

But there are farm songs, and farming songs. The country heard a lot of them last fall when volunteer helpers went out from the cities to help meet the situation created by heavy yields and low prices.

One are the days when my farm returns to me as the folks who used to call me when they were to go to work.

Youth, however, is the springtime of life, and springtime is the season when the human family, and the birds and the locusts and the grain grinders, seem most disposed to make a noise or less harmonious noise.

Imagine that you are sitting in the shade of an old apple tree in the green fields of Virginia or Maryland, or some place like that, where the road comes a bunch of garden club boys and girls, with spades and rakes on their shoulders and the light of achievement in their eyes.

Preserving Asparagus by the "Cold Pack" Method

Asparagus may be preserved by the "cold pack" method. Cut the stalks to a length that will permit them to stand upright in the jars. Blanch by putting them in boiling water for two minutes.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

A great truth lies within French proverb. The English proverb is: "Many a true word is spoken in a quarrel."

Guy Morton Promises to Put Cleveland Indians in Limelight This Season

Guy Morton of the Cleveland Indians bids fair to prove the sensation of the American league. Early in the season he pitched two full games without allowing a run.

Several years ago Morton suffered an injury to his arm. It was feared he would never be useful on the mound again.

He pitched well last year, and this spring he showed in New Orleans "Camp" and "put the crowd on edge."

Guy Morton.

On the training trip that he had resumed his old-time form. Cleveland has been generally picked as one of the contenders for the American league pennant this season.

With Morton in form to help the reconstruction and effective Stanley Covaleski, Cleveland looks up as extremely dangerous.

TIPS FOR THE POULTRYMAN

Chickens and fruit make a combination hard to beat. Plum trees do especially well in the poultry yard.

A man who is willing to buy fruit trees as he would lumber need not expect to get good results anywhere.

FAMOUS PEACE TREATIES

By H. IRVING KING

TREATY OF PARIS, 1856.

Ending the Crimean War, of whose heroes Florence Nightingale is Alma Remembrer.

One of those treaties intended to "forever" the question of the Near East" was signed at Paris in 1856, ending the Crimean war.

The eastern nations now formulated their "four points," as much discussed in the "fourteen points" more recently.

The car informed Austria late in 1864 that he accepted the "four points" that was too late for England and determined that the war should go on until Russia was so crushed as to be no longer a menace.

The second coalition consisting of France, Austria, England, Portugal, Naples and Turkey began war with Russia in 1790. Napoleon was in Egypt and the directory was in the Rhine.

SILO TALK No. 10.

A WISE farmer won't put away a six months valuable food supply in a tall, untopped cylinder without seeing to it that that cylinder is wisely built of the best material.
A wise farmer will not leave his silage open to destruction by wind or fire. SILAGE security is a thing worth paying for. If the supply for Mr. Sande's new 10x28 silo is destroyed, the farmer's business stops; and he is often forced to sell his stock at a loss.
MONOLITHIC CONCRETE SILOS are windproof, rat proof, fireproof, burstproof, warproof, crackproof, and lightning proof. All of these things must be considered. The good silo must be all of them.
