

Two Day Search For Missing Boy

Philip John Planert, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Planert living about 5 miles northeast of Pine City, who disappeared from his home last Thursday evening...

Philip Planert had left home on Thursday evening about 6:30 o'clock, when he had gone to look for a horse which had strayed away.

It was feared at first that the boy had suffered an accident or become lost and was unable to get home. The sections of the dog later made searches...

When the hour grew late and he had not returned, his father took a lantern and searched through the pasture which is quite heavily timbered.

There are a number of abandoned mine shafts in the Planert pasture and on the bank of the Snake River, which affords the Planert farm.

Words fail to express our heartfelt thanks to our many kind friends and neighbors and to the men of Pine City who assisted us in our search for our missing boy.

Everything is all ready for the Big Legion Auxiliary card party to be given in the P hall on next Monday evening, October 1st.

MR. MCADOO HITS BACK AT THE RAILROADS. One of the most sensational documents of recent weeks is a letter from William G. McAdoo to Senator James Couzens, in which he charges that the railroad executives, for their own selfish interests, have engaged in a deliberate and organized propaganda during the past three years, at a cost of millions of dollars, to discredit Federal control of the railroads.

It would seem that the Government operation were actually operated by the more prominent of these same railroad executives who were chosen by Director General McAdoo for the purpose, and who continued for the Government the work they had been doing for the private owners.

The operator's remedy is to organize and destroy the union; the union's remedy is to unionize all mine operators. Both can't be right. The check-off does not increase greatly because of the war. It merely explains why $600,000,000 of operating income, generously earned by the roads should now be included in the profits of extravagance against Government war operation.

Entertain School Teachers. A number of the young matrons and ladies of the village entertained the school teachers at the J. Adam Bede house last Saturday afternoon which included a picnic dinner on the Bede land on the shores of Cross Lake.

Commodore Morris Edmunds was in his glory last Saturday afternoon when he commanded a flotilla of two schooners—Volstead schooners in the shape of motor boats—up Cross Lake loaded with some of Pine City's finest, when they took a party to Norway Point as a windup and the entertainment for the teachers.

Card of Thanks. Words fail to express our heartfelt thanks to our many kind friends and neighbors and to the men of Pine City who assisted us in our search for our missing boy.

Plan Corn-Potato Show in November

Matt Pofel is laying plans for the holding of a corn and potato show to be held in the armory about the first of December. Mr. Pofel was so well impressed with the quality of the corn and potatoes exhibited at the county fair that he is certain an excellent display can be gotten together for the holding of such a show.

He states that the corn and potatoes shown at the local fair will compare favorably with any that were displayed in the county exhibits at the last state fair, when 33 counties of the state had county exhibits.

Mr. Pofel's intention to take the matter up with some of the business men and farmers of the community and if they are interested to go ahead with plans for such a show. Tentative dates for the show are Friday and Saturday, November 30th and December 1st. Liberal premiums will be offered for such exhibits and the show will be brought to a close with a dance on Saturday evening.

Mr. Pofel will know definitely in the near future if the show will be held and in case it is decided to attempt it, farmers will be asked to hold their best specimens of corn and potatoes for the show.

THE REPORT OF THE U. S. COAL COMMISSION. The report of the United States Coal Commission which was recently made public goes deeply into the basic relations between the owners of mines and the union and non-union workers. The commission is "reluctant to accept at their face value the affidavits made by either side. Grave evils come from both sides. Each side admits, to a certain extent, that the principles espoused by the other are justifiable and in accordance with law.

The operator's remedy is to organize and destroy the union; the union's remedy is to unionize all mine operators. Both can't be right. The check-off does not increase greatly because of the war. It merely explains why $600,000,000 of operating income, generously earned by the roads should now be included in the profits of extravagance against Government war operation.

County Commissioners Meet. The county board meeting this week was notable for its lack of debate, argument and controversy. About the only business transacted by the board in addition to the regular routine was the consideration of a petition from the school trustees.

Grassroot Fair on Friday-Saturday

The committees for the Tenth Annual Harvest Fair to be held at Grassroot Friday and Saturday, Sept. 28th and 29th, are busy event. Premium lists and programs will be mailed out in a few days, and the people of Grassroot and vicinity are requested to prepare their exhibits early and to make them as complete as possible so as to assure a larger and better exhibit than ever before.

Friday, Sept. 28th, will be entry day and exhibits will be received at the annual harvest fair has always been in more and better exhibit and each year has been a bigger and better fair. The cooperation of the people of Grassroot and far beyond is also commended for their respective ladies has brought about this success. The committees sincerely hope that their farmer friends will again do their part by bringing in more and better exhibits than in former years.

FARMERS AND COST ACCOUNTING. Reports compiled by the department of agriculture from 4,000 farmers in all parts of the country show an average production cost in 1922 for wheat of $1.23 a bushel for corn 66 cents and for oats 53 cents. Against these figures, the average sale price realized on the 73 cents for corn and 48 cents for oats. The profit and loss account for 1922 would probably not vary much from the 1921 figures.

Rush City Bank Twenty Years Old

A festive scene was presented as the bank doors were thrown open to the public on Monday morning September 24, at the First National Bank at Rush City and the assembled crowds were ushered in. The entire banking rooms and vaults were decorated with gorgeous autumn foliage in brightest colors mingled with green. The long table in the receiving room was heaped with delicacies, and silver candelabra lighted in green tapers with bouquets of china asters. The large birthday cake, whose ingredients formed three great layers, grandly frosted, was lighted with its fifty candles, each significant of a year of earnest effort service and thrift. The lighting of the candles was the charge of the Cashier G. M. Erickson, while President E. J. Boyle cut the cake itself. All of the banking force including Vice President C. M. Johnson, Cashiers W. P. Jones, J. R. Miller, Helen Peters, teller and Wendell Johnson, bookkeeper, were also assisting in receiving the guests. Among the ladies were the directors, who assisted with the occasion. E. J. Boyle, G. M. Erickson, W. P. Jones, J. R. Miller, J. P. Holmberg, besides the delicious coffee and cake were appropriate souvenirs were given out, thermometers and neat folders containing a record of the bank's growth and financial standing and its objects and purposes.

The original board of directors of the First National Bank of Rush City, when organized, Sept. 24, 1903, consisted of F. H. Welcome of Minneapolis of the Union Investment Co., S. C. Johnson, E. J. Boyle, J. D. Markham, James D. McCormack, W. G. Babeck and J. P. Holmberg. The first officers were: F. H. Welcome, President; S. C. Johnson, vice president; W. G. Babeck, cashier; G. M. Erickson, assistant cashier.

In January 1910, the late S. C. Johnson, resigned to the presidency of the bank from vice president, remaining president until his death, May 18, 1920.

In January 1919, the local director, who was the controlling interest in the bank, formerly held by H. Welcome and his associates of Minneapolis, they retired from the institution. At the death of S. C. Johnson in 1919, E. J. Boyle was advanced to the presidency from vice president, and Greta Johnson was elected vice president. The original capital stock of twenty five thousand dollars remained the same until September 21, 1921, when it was increased to fifty thousand dollars and in which time increases have grown to $505,608.52. Mrs. W. G. Babeck, assistant cashier from the beginning of the bank on January 1907, was succeeded on its promotion to cashier, by Alfred Decker in 1910, which is 25 years ago. When the position until January 1921, when J. P. Markham was named assistant cashier, retaining the position until November, 1922, when W. E. Jones, present assistant cashier, was elected to take his place. In January 1922 the office was increased to include a second assistant cashier in the person of Rachel P. Miller, Miss Helen Peters stenographer, and teller has 229 employees. Mr. Babeck, became bookkeeper in June of the present year in that position since June, 1922.

Architects Wonder Why People Insist on Having Locks Through out the House.
It has long been a question with architects why people should have doors throughout the house so completely equipped with locks. Why, for example, should all the closet and bedroom doors have locks? Did you ever lock your bedroom door? Probably not. It may be desirable to put locks on closet doors. Do not put a lock on a door just because it is a door. Perhaps, after all, you will want a lock on the pantry door. Some people have thought it desirable to have a lock on the door of the house equipped with a good cylinder. Such a lock may come in very handy at certain times, perhaps if for nothing else than as a sign which to store the family skeleton.

PINE CITY, the county seat of Pine County, is located on the Northern Pacific Railway, Trunk Highway No. 1, sixty miles from the Twin Cities and a hundred miles from the Twin Ports. The Village lies in the heart of a rich agricultural section, at the junction of Snake River with Cross Lake. It boasts a population of 1500, with two banks whose total deposits are nearly one million dollars. A well managed co-operative creamery paid to its patrons more than $194,980 in 1922.

Dr. H. L. Taylor's Sanatorium is located four miles west of Pine City on the shores of Lake Pokegama and its facilities for the treatment of tuberculosis is unsurpassed by any sanatorium in the Northwest. Its new building, erected in the fall of 1923, is as complete in all details as can be made, and Pine City is justly proud of this institution.

Pine City has natural beauties unsurpassed, and its Tourists' Camping Ground on Cross Lake makes an ideal spot to camp. Tourists are extended a warm welcome to lunch in our park-to-boat and fish on beautiful Cross Lake—to bathe at our beach and to rusticate at our Camping Grounds.

EXPLORER URGES

PROTECT NORTHERN PRESERVES.

Says Conservationists Should
Protect Northern Preserves.

EARLY CONDITIONS ARE NOTED

The reason that carbon and muskox are so scarce in the north is due to the fact that the animals were killed for the sake of killing, says Harold H. Noyce, the American explorer in a recent bulletin of the American Game Protective Association. Those who slaughtered our great herds of musk, slaughtered because they liked to kill, he says. "They did not have the vision to see that the musk was eventually made away from the place which had to come, although they later said that argument as their excuse. The history of the musk is a story of slaughter against wild animals is much the same wherever we go. It ends in the destruction of the species. The Canadian has been exterminated we say that the wild animal had to make way for the domestic. It is in the same way that the real reason lies in man's desire to kill. It is a heritage from our primitive ancestors.

When Leif Ericson discovered America he saw a land whose lakes teemed with fish and over whose mountains and valleys roamed hundreds of wild beasts. The people who inhabited this land were much the same as those who eventually conquered them. They were merely humans, but humans who had not as yet evolved the faculties of the modern man. They had the same desire which actuated their conquerors—the desire to kill. But because they had not yet attained the same level of culture, because they were armed only with the most primitive of weapons, they were unable to kill more than an insignificant fraction of the game in this country. In fact, the muskox was not killed enough to affect the natural increase, and so, in spite of the fact, the animals became more numerous year after year.

"The game civilization, which put into the hands of these primitive the modern instruments of death, destroyed a night with a light, for the reds and whites, though mutually hostile, joined forces in a war on wild animals. Gradually weapons improved, more and more of them were available, and the hunters increased their prey remorselessly. Mile by mile and state by state the country became almost denuded of game. The hunters were included in the terrible slaughter until only one great game preserve remained—the Far North. But not for long, even it was invaded.

Whereas game appearance. "The man who has seen only his strange ships, which at first startled and awed the simple natives who inhabited these regions, soon learned to trust the strangers, who had brought them new weapons for killing. The natives found that working only through the hands of a year for these strangers they could secure guns and ammunition by the ton. Hitherto, the muskox and caribou had been the bow and arrow and primitive arrows, they had been able to kill barely enough game to support their wants; only enough skin to clothe themselves in warm furs and only enough meat and fat to satisfy their stomachs and their hearts.

"The mere fact that a few hundred thousand animals were slaughtered almost denuded of game. The hunters were included in the terrible slaughter until only one great game preserve remained—the Far North. But not for long, even it was invaded.

dated their own country of caribou. But here, they intervened. There are a few individuals who have now asserted that the muskox was a hunted creature. But they who speak without thought, or more likely ignorant of the muskox, than they are of the muskox, have been deceived by those of the majority. The business and traders wanted ammunition to shoot at caribou, which were being in the majority, hogged the lot. But the wily fur traders, deceiving the ignorant, endeavor to load their warehouses with ammunition while there was yet time. They understood the situation, and they were with an appalling result that before the war was over they began to run short of bullets. The poor Eskimos were then quite distressed at finding themselves no longer able to purchase ammunition. The caribou, therefore, did not vanish as quickly as was expected.

"The game civilization, which put into the hands of these primitive the modern instruments of death, destroyed a night with a light, for the reds and whites, though mutually hostile, joined forces in a war on wild animals.
